

GUDRUN BJARNADOTTIR . . . Easy on the Makeup

BRIGHTEST STAR OF GALAXY

Top International Beauty Starts Her Glamour Reign

By CHARLES SUTTON

The suspense and surprise all over, lovely Gudrun Bjarnadottir, Miss International of 1964, settled down Saturday to a job for which she seems eminently fitted — that of being a reigning beauty queen.

The long-stemmed beauty awoke shortly after light filtered through her Breakers International Hotel windown and, before you could say Keflavick, her home town in Iceland, she was looking freshly demure for visitors who came knocking at her door.

Friday night had been a tumultuous, exciting shocking experience for Gudrun —so shocking, in fact, that she broke into tears when officials tapped her for the International Beauty Congress title.

* * * *

"I DIDN'T think I had a chance," she confessed. "When it happened, I didn't believe it at first."

Saturday, Gudrun not only believed it—she looked it. She wore a simple blue sheath dress and, despite only three hours sleep the night before, looked flowerfresh in it. There was nary a shadow beneath her deep gray-green eyes, and her peaches - and - cream complexion fairly shone in the morning light.

* * * *

SITTING ON the edge of a queen-size bed, with her legs crossed nicely, Miss Bjarnadottir admitted she'd been quite nervous all through the pageant — though outwardly, she said, she appears to be the cool and collected type.

She also disclosed that she almost didn't enter the contest.

"I had been having terrible headaches and I really didn't feel up to it," she explained. "But Mrs. Swanson (Mrs. Sumi Swanson, her chaperone, of 4029 Pine Ave.) and my parents persuaded me that I should go if only for my countrymen. They said I owed it to the people in Iceland. I feared I wouldn't be able to take the grind."

* * * *

FOR THE FIRST three days of the pageant, the headaches continued, she said. Indeed, she still gets them intermittenly.

The daughter of a fishing boat builder in Iceland, Gudrun has been living recently in Paris, where she works as a photographers' model.

Her sideline is acting, and she wouldn't mind it one bit if Hollywood beckoned. However, none of the studios have approached her yet, she said.

Romance?

"I'm not interested in marriage," she stated firmly, thereby adding more mystery to an already mystifying issue.

* * * *

GUDRUN'S first comment on the subject was made Friday, following her coronation. "I don't want to discuss my personal life,"

Party Weekend for IBC's Girls

The city Saturday paid homage to Miss International, 20-year-old Gudrun Bjarnadottir and the 86 weary but beautiful ladies of the International Beauty Congress.

The Downtown Long Beach Association sponsored a 10 a.m. International Farewell Day as open-top convertibles brought the contestants along Pine Avenue. Each car stopped at one of the six "International Arches of Friendship" so that gifts could be bestowed on the girls by local merchants.

MISS COLORADO (Darla Huff) went to the Colorado state picnic at noon, Miss Minnesota (Mary Jane Haferman) went to the Minnesota state picnic and the rest of the girls spent the afternoon primping and prettying for the Coronation Ball and banquet at 7 p.m.

Officers from the United States Navy served as escorts for the ladies as their hostess - chaperones ringed the ballroom.

One young ensign was heard to comment that "it looks like an admiral's inspection." But the perfume, music and flowing formals took effect as the evening progressed and the Navy demonstrated "close formation drill," much to the delight of the beauties.

TODAY, after church, the girls go to a buffet and swimming party at 2 p.m. at the Petroleum Club . . . Miss Pennsylvania (Diane Stockton), goes to you-know-whose state picnic . . . Light Plane Rams Wall; Pilot Killed

A Huntington Beach man was killed and another seriously injured when their light single-engine plane skimmed treetops in the San Bernardino Mountains and crashed against a cement-walled reservoir.

Killed was the pilot, Richard Olson, 34, of 15442 Baffin Circle. His passenger, Robert B. Stanford, 28, of 5681 Mangrum Dr., was taken to San Bernardino County Hospital with multiple fractures and head injuries.

Friends said the pair left Sunset Airport in Huntington Beach in a Fairchild trainer "just to go flying." The Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Agency were investigating the cause of the crash.

Olson operated a radio-TV repair shop in Fullerton.

Meredith's Graduation Set Today

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Barring unforseen developments, James H. Meredith will receive his bachelor's degree today from the University of Mississippi.

The 30-year-old Meredith, a slightly built Negro from Kosciusko, Miss., became the first known member of his race to attend the 115-year-old university last fall when he was enrolled by the force of federal arms.

* * * *

GOV. ROSS Barnett, who last fall tried repeatedly to block Meredith's admission, attempted last week to prevent Meredith from receiving a degree from the same school where the 61-year-old governor got his law degree.

But the State College Board, ruling body of Mississippi's public institutions of higher learning, voted 6-5 to allow Meredith to receive his diploma.

At issue was a statement Meredith issued last June after a sniper assassinated Negro leader Medgar Evers at Jackson, Miss.

* * * *

MEREDITH called for a "general boycott of everything possible by Negroes" as a protest against the racial situation in Mississippi.

"A Negro's life is not worth the air it takes to keep it alive in Mississippi," he said.

Barnett, in seeking to stop Meredith's graduation, contended the statement violated a university rule against inflamatory pronouncements.

Members of the State College Board said they feared Ole Miss would lose its accredition if it denied Meredith a degree because of his statement.

GOVERNOR EDMUND G. BROWN and wife are received by Pope Paul VI in a special audience at his summer palace, Castel Gandolfo.

INVITES RETURN VISIT

Brown Meets With Pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) —Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California Saturday met with Pope Paul VI and invited the Pope to visit his state.

A spokesman for the governor said the Pope threw out his arms in a wide gesture which seemed to indicate "Who knows?"

THE POPE said he was happy to receive the invitation but did not say if he would accept, the spokesman added.

Brown, a Catholic, shook hands with the Pope rather than kissing his ring as is the customary practice for Catholics received in papal audience.

He gave the Pope a book entitled "Beautiful California," which is well illustrated with color photographs of the Golden State. The Pope told him he would look forward to reading it.

The spokesman for Brown said the governor had found the Pope a much more striking figure than his photographs indicate and had described him as a "very kindly" man.

AFTER leaving Castel Gandolfo, located in the Alban Hills 17 miles southeast of Rome, Brown went to Rome to meet with Italian Foreign Trade Minister Giuseppe Trabucchi.

After attending church today, the governor leaves Rome by air for Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia.

Race-Relations Meet Disrupted by Interlopers

By MARK CLUTTER and VINT MADER

A scheduled human relations meeting to discuss the integration issue in the South Bay areas was broken up at Torrance High School Saturday night by a cadre of heckling demonstrators who hooted the program to a halt.

Late Saturday night, after Torrance police declared the meeting "illegal," some 1,000 persons refused to leave and attempted to carry on the meeting.

The group, accused by the panel moderator of being from the ultraright-wing John Birch Society, succeeded in overwhelming a proposed panel discussion of the Centinela Bay Human Relations Committee.

As the riotous disruptions continued at an uncontrolled and violent pitch, C. H. Catterlin, Torrance city prosecutor who was to have been moderator of the panel, declared the meeting adjourned.

* * * *

POLICE Lt. D.C. Cook then proclaimed the meeting an illegal assembly and officers began attempting to clear the hall of the dissident claque and the legitimate participants alike.

Catterlin, president of the South Bay Bar Association, said later that "the leaders of this are the Birch Society."

The disruptive program began early with loud demands from the floor that the gathering be launched with the singing of The Star-Spangled Banner, in addition to the already-scheduled Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and a religious invocation.

The crowd stood and sang

Long Delay Forecast on Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) —Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Saturday Senate consideration of civil-rights legislation will be delayed until late September in an effort to get other important bills passed.

Mansfield outlined in an interview a program calling for Senate action on measures to keep the debt limit at $309 billion, to authorize foreign-aid spending and to permit ratification of the limited test-ban treaty — before any civil-rights measure is brought up.

The Senate is expected to take up the House-passed debt-limit measure Tuesday.

Mansfield said regular departmental money bills will be taken up as they are cleared by the House and approved by the Senate appropriations committee. He said he also hopes to win passage of an educational-aid bill, but did not say which of several pending ones it would be.

Although Mansfield did not say so, this seemed to reflect an administration decision to try to get approval of most of the legislation it regards as absolutely necessary before heading into an expected work-stopping filibuster on civil rights.

Bus Crash Injures 34

TROY, Ala. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus smashed into a bridge abutment and crazily overturned into a creek near here Saturday while trying to avoid colliding with a car.

First reports indicated at least 34 persons were injured, but there were no immediate reports of any fatalities.

PIED PIPERS CAN GET OFF RELIEF ROLL

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)—If you build a better mousetrap — and mighty quick — the residents of Conejo Valley will beat a path to your door.

A recent drought has driven thousands of little field mice into this Southern California residential area, and the invasion has residents going to every corner market and hardware store for mousetraps. Stocks were depleted over the weekend, while one firm said it was ordering traps by the gross and selling them like hotcakes.

Haiti Rebels Report Aerial Foe Downed

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Haitian rebel forces reported Saturday night they had shot down one of two air force planes which they claimed President Francois Duvalier sent against their positions around the town of Mont Organise in Haiti.

Paul Verna, spokesman for the rebel forces led by former Haitian Gen. Leon Cantave, said the plane was shot down after a two-day pitched battle around Mont Organise, an interior city which the rebels claim they have captured.

Verna said he got the news from rebels by courier.

He said Cantave and his rebels retreated into the mountainous area around the city after inflicting heavy losses on special army and tactical units of the Duvalier government.

He put the government losses at 125 killed, and the rebel fatalities at 5.

For the past several days there have been reports of heavy fighting in the coffee-growing areas between government troops and Cantave's forces, variously numbered as between 250 and 500 well-armed men.

Cantave, a former general in Duvalier's army who fell out with the Haitian president, headed a force of exiled Haitians that landed near Cap Haitien in Haiti Aug. 5 in a move to topple Duvalier.

1,000 Attend Coming-Out Fete for First Lady's Half-Sister

By FRANCES LEWINE

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Debutante Janet Jennings Auchincloss, with a surprise boquet from President and Mrs. Kennedy, was the star of an elaborate seaside coming-out ball Saturday night.

The introduction to Newport society of 18-year old Janet, half-sister of First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy, touched off a weekend of partying here. The biggest party of all was the Venetian Ball, with 800 to 1,000 guests invited to dance until dawn in honor of Deb Janet at the 75-acre Hammersmith Farm, home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss of Washington.

The rambling, gray-shingled 19th-conutry Victorian summer home on Narragansett Bay was a beehive of activity as New York decorators and caterers culminated months of planning to give it the flavor of Venice, the city of gondolas, music and romance.

The gay decor included two huge marquees with Venetian canvas tops—one for dancing and one for dining—set up on the lawn overlooking the water.

A 40-foot gondola, with red and black velvet trimmings, provided the bandstand background for Meyer Davis and his society orchestra, who had played only the night before for the Newport coming-out Blue and Silver Ball of Janet's close friend, Josephine Pearson Taylor of Camden, S.C.

The musicians were provided with the costumes of gondoliers and told to emphasize sentimental Italian tunes. All the young girls received a golden mask on a stick and the young men escorts were given authentic straw hats, worn by gondoliers in Venice and imported from there especially for the ball.

The Auchinclosses invited some 300 guests to dinner first and a list that reportedly came to 1,000 for the ball beginning at 11 p.m. and traditionally continuing until dawn — with pancakes and scrambled eggs featured at the buffet tables.

A Who's Who of Society from Newport, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia gathered for the event, including ambassadors and Janet's two roomates from Miss Porter's exclusive

Bombs Wound 20 in Barroom

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Two hand grenades were lobbed into a Congolese bar in downtown Brussels late Saturday night.

First reports said at least 20 persons were wounded, several of them critically.

E. German Guards Victims of Own Mine

ALTENBURSCHLAR, Germany, Sunday (UPI)— Two East German border guards, their legs blown off by a Communist land mine, crawled to freedom in the West Saturday night.

The border guards were talking to the mayor and some residents of this village across the barbed wire fence "iron curtain," West German border police said.

When they walked back to resume their patrolling duties, they stepped on one of the anti-refugee mines in the "death strip" adjacent to the border, police said.

"The explosion ripped off the leg of one border guard, while the leg of the other fellow was still dangling there," police said.

On their elbows, they crawled back to the fence and across to West Germany, police said.

Both men were rushed to the nearest hospital.

L.A.C. Says:
A Miserable Mess of Fraud and Collusion

"It is a credit to the U.S. Justice Department that the government is placing the full force of its strength into an investigation of the crime syndicate." This glowing tribute to Attorney General Robert Kennedy and his FBI is based on the hoped-for curtailment of the nation-wide crime syndicate being exposed by Joseph Valechi, whose life is threatened because he squealed on his fellow gangsters.

At about the same time we read the above comment we also read a U.S. News article telling of the corruption in the Attorney General's home state of Massachusetts. But we have not heard of his taking any action to disclose and stop the corruption that has been rampant in that state all his life—and which is shown to be rampant today among its political hacks.

The U.S. News article reads as follows:

"A congressional report described land-buying for the federal-aid highway system in Massachusetts—President Kennedy's home state—as a 'miserable mess.' Fraud and collusion were so widespread, the legislators asserted, that the cost to the taxpayers may be reckoned in terms of millions of dollars. The report was issued on July 30 by a special subcommittee of the House Committee on Public Works. It is the strongest denunciation yet of irregularities in the $50 billion federal-state highway program.

"Democrats and Republicans on the subcommittee joined in declaring that miscreants in Massachusetts have perpetuated the perverse philosophy that public funds exist solely for the support of rogues and sycophantic and invidious political hacks. The report cited evidence of collusion among fee appraisers and between appraisers and attorneys for property owners, padding costs of right-of-way acquisitions. One example: One piece of land taken contained a converted street car diner and 10 parking spaces. For this, $155,000 was paid—where the original estimate was $21,000."

It will be recalled that, in last year's election, another Kennedy was elected as senator for that state—on the slogan that he could get more for that state than his opponent. The above report from the House Committee on Public Works indicates that vast sums of federal highway funds are going into that state. But it would seem there is collusion and fraud connected with their administration.

The Justice Department with the President's brother in charge, deserves credit for its continued efforts to prove the ruthless misuse of union power and money by Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa. It attempted to by-pass many states and personal rights in its harassment of the steel companies. But it seems to accept the conditions in Massachusetts as normal—which based on is past history, it is.

There have been highway scandals in other states. Many of them have been prosecuted and men sent to prison. Wherever there is such collusion and theft of federal money, such action should be taken. That is why it is distressing to read of the Attorney General's own state being exposed by a Congressional Committee without assurance from the Kennedys that the mess will be cleared up. I fear the reason is that it has long been a way of life in that state, so why be disturbed about it. My answer is that the best way to clean up corruption nationwide is to start by cleaning it up at home.—L.A.C.

Young Demo Meet Told West Vital

BERKELEY (AP)—Western Young Democrats were told Saturday they now are more politically important than ever before.

"The vast westward migration has made this so," Gov. Grant Sawyer of Nevada said in an address to the western conference of Young Democratic Clubs of America. Thirteen Western states were represented.

"Political and economic power is shifting to the West," Sawyer continued, "and in years to come this section of the country will dominate national affairs."

* * * *

BOTH Sawyer and Allen Howe of Utah, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, spoke disparagingly of the Young Republicans of America who met recently in national convention in San Francisco.

Howe said the California YR organization is "recognized as John Birch Society-dominated." The society is regarded by some as an organization of far-right extremists.

Sawyer said YR meetings "have been dominated by a wave of far-right extremism which has as its goal the abolition of most of the social progress this country has experienced in the last thirty years."

* * * *

AT A DINNER meeting Saturday night Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., in a prepared address, urged the young Democrats to resist any attempt at diverting their party from what is called its liberal philosophy.

Sawyer reviewed President Kennedy's record and predicted a Democratic victory in 1964.

"Democrats have the candidate and the record to put before the public next year, without fear that either will be found wanting," he said. "The President is building a program which we can present to the American people without apology. It needs no window dressing to prove that the people's best interests lie with the Democratic party."

* * * *

AGAIN referring to the growing political power of the West, he concluded:

"We Westerners are going to flex our new political muscles in a positive way—the reflection of President John F. Kennedy and a Democratic Congress, thus assuring continued progress for a sounder, safer, more powerful and more enlightened America."

The conference ends today.

Model Airplane Hits Man, Hurts Him Seriously

VAN NUYS (CNS)—A 35-year-old Woodland Hills man is in serious condition at Valley Receiving Hospital from injuries suffered Saturday when an out-of-control model plane smashed into his back.

Attending physicians said Allen Latta has multiple rib fractures, a possible collapsed lung and has required a blood transfusion.

Police said Latta was refueling his model plane at the Sepulveda flood-control basin at the intersection of Sepulveda Boulevard and the Ventura Freeway.

Suddenly another model plane, weighing 12 pounds and radio-controlled, got away from hobbyist Ken Murakami, 35, Monterey Park, and hit Latta in the back.

President, First Lady Are 'At Home'

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy passed up his customary Saturday cruise to stay at home with his convalescing wife. But he had a date for a golf game later in the afternoon with an old friend.

The President is spending his seventh week-end in a row with Mrs. Kennedy and the two children at their seaside retreat on Cape Cod. He arrived Friday by jet from Washington.

The White House yacht, Honey Fitz, moved up to the Kennedy family dock late Saturday morning. But White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger announced that Kennedy would not board it.

"He plans to stay around the house," Salinger said.

And he planned to golf with his house guest, New York investment banker Charles Spalding.

Teen-Agers Held for Arson in $2-Million School Fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Two teen-agers were arrested Saturday after one of them admitted setting a $2-million fire that destroyed Stanford Junior High School.

Police detectives arrested Robert Reese, 17, at his mother's home before fire crews had finished mopping up the blaze. They said Reese admitted starting the fire at the school which he formerly attended.

They said Reese implicated William Crawford, 16, as an accomplice. Crawford, like Reese, was charged with arson and burglary, but he denied that he was involved.

Fire Chief Thomas A. Diese said that except for the school cafeteria and five portable classrooms, the 30-year-old school was a total loss.

Sacramento Schools Superintendent F. Mervyn Lawson said the two-story brick building had been built for $330,000 but would cost $2 million to replace. He said it had been insured for the full replacement value.

Conrad Asks GOP Truce for Primary

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, Saturday called upon fellow Republicans to support a plan aimed at cutting intraparty fighting during next year's presidential primary election.

Conrad, minority floor leader, said information of a united uninstructed delegation, not pledged to any candidate, would avoid fighting between conservative and moderate elements of the party if no major candidate filed in the primary.

He noted that no delegation could be pledged to a candidate without the candidate's permission, but said groups could form delegations labeled conservative or moderate and claim they represent the thinking of a given candidate.

'POLITICS!' SCREAMS REPORTER

Mayor's Hunt 'n' Pecks Sets Writer on Cadenza

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The third and last in the season's Starlight Serenade Pop Concerts at 8 p.m. Aug 27 in Bixby Park will include "The Typewriter," a work which calls for a virtuoso soloist at the console of the Underwood Grand. Choice of soloist boiled down to hunt-and-peck artist Mayor Edwin Wade and Reporter William Jones. Symphony Orchestra conductor Lauris Jones auditioned the two—and here is Reporter Jones version of how politics was his undoing.)

By WILLIAM (SUGAR FINGERS) JONES

Cats, the truth is that I took a dive in the 23rd bar.

B-waangg went the typewriter key when I punched "?." There the question mark hung shamefully stuck between home and the ribbon.

Gamely, I tried to get my buckling fingers up to the "½." But the one-half got stuck-up too and the music played on while I was played out.

I threw in the typewriter ribbon. Whatinell, everybody knew the mayor had already canceled all appointments for the concert date, an act which would have caused any official at Los Alamitos Race Course to ask for a saliva test.

The judge, Lauris Jones, was saying something like: My mayor's won, my mayor's won, my mayor's won.

Wade himself was saying something to me like: It's a shame, it's a shame, it's a shame. He was saying it smart-like.

The crumbs didn't even give me the courtesy of a 10-note count.

LOOKING BACK now, I'm sure I could have had "?" and "½" working if Jones had given me a mandatory eight-note count.

It was a frameup from the beginning. The typing duel was held in City Hall and with city-owned typewriters. And, man, those two cats, Lauris Jones and Wade, carried on like brothers before the first keys were even banged.

While the mayor held up a conference in Council Chambers, he proceeded to rob me in an adjoining room.

It wasn't all one-sided though. I created a high note when I made my musical debut in black beret, dark glasses, checkered coat and tan hush-puppy shoes.

I tell you I almost blinded that mayor into defeat.

But, instead, the darkness fell upon me. Those sunglasses just ain't cut out for indoor sports.

BEFORE THE contest—psychiatric-like or something, I cracked my knuckles and did a few rapid push-ups with my fingers to limber up. Wade looked like he was staring at the new city budget.

"Maestro," I said, a capella, "how about warming me up with something like 'Flight of the Bumble Bee?'"

"Better make it 'Mary had a Little Lamb,' Fatso," my faithful camera-bearer, Chuck Sundquist, bellowed.

I shed the suggestion and said, "Let's get started, on the Key of "G." And I banged "G."

Wade—who meanwhile was practicing on something significant like, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party"—waded into the contest with a loud "#."

BY THE 15th bar, Wade's right showed his excellent training in shaking hands with the voters while I was sticking to the easier stuff like "C," "A" and "T." Wade tore into it like he was facing the rapid transit problem and speeded up.

As the paper's music critics Julien Musafia, or Rachel Morton would have said of me: "One would have expected to find a more infectious enthusiasm generated by the cheerfulness and vivacity of the music, but instead one found the element of abandon deserted and replaced by an appalling conglomeration of harsh notes and missed opportunity" and so on.

Wade was not acting like a guy who's licked the customhouse battle and was typing out: "Y-O-U—A-R-E—L-O-U-S-Y." Weakly, I hammered back: "S-A-M-E — T-O — Y-O-U, — B-U-D-D-Y." In the fatal 23rd, Wade won hands down—hands down on "Q#$%F&L@."

. . . And there I was—flat on my cadenza.

American Nazis Too Soft to Suit Pulpit-Pounding 'States Righters'

By SHERM WILLIAMS
(Copyright, 1963, Independent, Press-Telegram)

As though looking to see if her grandchildren were there, the frail lady with blue-silver hair walked uncertainly into the Open Bible Foundation church in Bellflower early last January and sat down in the second row.

She leaned forward to hear the speaker's opening remarks.

* * * *

THE REV. Conrad Lynch looked over his audience carefully, then bellowed, "We call niggers, niggers, and Jews, Jews."

He looked beligerently at his audience, tucked the thumb of his right hand under his Sam Browne belt in a manner reminiscent of Hitler, then pointed dramatically at the door.

"The faint-hearted better leave now!"

The little old lady let her mouth drop open. But not with shock. "Say it again," she exhulted, "Say it again."

The meeting at the Open Bible Foundation was the first of a series of organizational meetings the National States Rights Party held in Southern California.

The following that built up rapidly addicted itself to uniforms, black boots, shiny World War II helmet liners and Sam Browne belts. Lynch exhorted them not to be pushed around by minority groups—and in his language, anything that wasn't a "white, Christian American—real whitefolk" was in the minority. "It's time to fight back," he shouted.

* * * *

NSRP ranks in California swelled until one fateful night in San Bernardino when Lynch, apparently inspired by his own words, led some of his men in a race-baiting campaign in a local drive-in restuarant which caused a young minority group member to talk back.

In the resulting fracas, one of Lynch's men fired the ultimate weapon, a pellet gun, which grazed his target. Police rescued the valiant NSRP men, hauled them off to the station and booked the disheveled white supremacist on a variety of charges. Convicted and fined, they have been less cocksure lately.

Despite their posturing.

* * * *

THE CALIFORNIA Senate factfinding subcommittee on un-American activities devoted a chapter to the NSRP in its latest report and had this to say:

"This organization is, in our opinion more potentially dangerous than any of the American Nazi groups, as it is interested in activities that are far more vigorous and direct than the picketing that has become so popular in this country during the past few years."

At a meeting of the NSRP in San Bernardino, this writer met George Joseph King, 30, of Long Beach. King, of 1404 E. Second St., was arrested last week during the sale of a .50 caliber machine gun and a British Sten gun to undercover agents in Baldwin Park.

* * * *

HEAD of the Open Bible Foundation Church at 9701 Flower St., was the Rev. George Rigler. He expressed no shock at the statements Lynch made and instead, after offering a prayer at the end of the meeting, suggested contributions to the NSRP cause.

Scouts Kayak on River Trip

By KEN KNIGHT

STANTON— Seven months of preparation and planning ended at dawn today as a band of 31 Boy Scouts and their seven leaders began a 100-mile trip in kayaks down the Colorado River.

With all the precision and punctuality of an invasion, members of Stanton Boy Scout Troop 82, loaded their brightly painted kayaks aboard special trailers and left from their homes Saturday.

Today, the boys will practice on the river and learn how to handle their canvas-covered plywood boats, before they start the journey downstream. They will travel from Blythe, Calif., to Yuma, Ariz.

* * * *

DURING the cruise, the boys, their leaders and an accompanying outboard motor boat will cover about 25 miles-per-day on the river.

Each evening as they reach a predetermined camping place, supply trucks already will have arrived and set up camp.

The section of the river that the boys will travel is one of the quieter portions of the Colorado. Currents will not exceed six miles per hour but there is always the danger that a hidden tree or log could snag a kayak, ripping the boat's cover.

"All of our boys are good swimmers and two of our troop learned to swim this summer so they could make the trip," Scoutmaster Paul (Monty) Montgomery proudly commented.

During the past seven months, the backyard of Montgomery's home at 3400 W. Orange Ave., Anaheim, looked as if it were sprouting kayaks.

* * * *

"THE BOYS and the leaders made their own kayaks, painted and decorated them here," Montgomery said with a sweeping motion of his hand toward the canvas-clad craft that had yet to be loaded on the trailer that would take them to the river starting point.

"With the materials people donated and with us doing our own work, the kayaks cost us only about $15 apiece.

"The boys will give another $10 each which will go to buy supplies and gas for the outboard boat which will go with the kayaks."

Each day as the boats go down river, two supply trucks must travel by road to reach the night stopping places.

"Roads are pretty rugged in some areas and on a couple of stops, the trucks will have to travel about 125 miles in a roundabout way to make the 25 miles that the kayaks will cover on the river," explained Montgomery.

* * * *

LEADERS ON the trip, in addition to Montgomery, are Don Rusling, Bill Whitaker, Bud Groom, Arnold Hoffman and Steve Parks.

"Now that we have the boats, boating will become a regular activity for us," Montgomery said.

"We are already planning to kayak down the Kern and Sacramento Rivers and on Bass Lake."

STANTON BOY SCOUTS from Troop 82 are ready for the river as they stand with paddles by the kayaks they made for their six-day trip down the Colorado River. The scouts are the first from Orange County to make the trip and have been planning it for seven months.

Race-Peace Conference Broken Up by Hecklers

the anthem, but other demands that The Battle Hymn of the Republic also be sung did not find a response.

As Catterlin tried to begin the planned forum on integration problems of the South Bay area, the dissident activities in the gathering repeatedly howled down the attempts at discussion.

* * * *

THEIR eruptions included booing and catcalls at speakers, plus employment of mock, speaker-suppressing applause that brought progress to a standstill.

The members of the panel, representing groups involved in the field of human relations were Robert Burke, California deputy attorney general; Julius Klein, member of the County Human Relations Commission; Anthony Neusom, legal representative for the NAACP; John Rodriguez, president of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Mexican Community Service Organization; G. E. Harrington, assistant counsel for the south regional area of the State Real Estate Commission, and Lawrence Lucks, Los Angeles area supervisor for the State Fair Employment Practices Commission.

AT THE Southwood Riviera Royale housing tract, where the Congress of Racial Equality has picketed for more than a year, sheriff's deputies under Lt. Lloyd C. Bachtelle of the civil division took over the policing Saturday.

Only 11 pickets showed up at the Don Wilson tract and deputies showed them copies of a recently granted injunction limiting their area of march and number. All complied.

Negro Hits Own Group for Failings

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Negro author Louis Lomax attacked Negroes and whites alike for their parts in today's racial crisis in a speech Saturday at the California Negro Leadership Conference at Stanford University.

Earlier, a San Francisco Negro leader, Dr. Carlton Goodlett, had blasted both major political parties and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown for what he called their "disinterest" in the political role of the Negro.

Lomax said Negroes themselves have not worked hard enough to better their race. He named education as the most important thing toward raising the position of the Negro.

"Any race that drinks as much whisky as we do and buys as many Cadillacs and Continentals as we do, can afford to buy some shares in the future of its children," he declared.

Mystery Disease Kills 50 Children

SIAGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A mysterious disease has claimed the lives of 50 children under 10 years old during the past week in one of South Viet Nam's western provinces, the government reported Saturday night.

Health service officials said the disease could not be identified as any known children's disease.

Johnny Carson Weds TV Hostess-Model

NEW YORK (AP)—Television star Johnny Carson and former TV hostess and model Jo Anne Copeland were married Saturday at Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue.

Carson, 37, has three sons by a former marriage. His bride, 31, also has been married before.

Carson is the star of the National Broadcasting Company's "Tonight" show. His bride daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Copeland of Palo Alto, is a graduate psychology student at Hunter College.

A handful of close friends witnessed the Protestant single ring ceremony. Afterward, Carson held a small recepton for his friends in his apartment.

Carson told reporters he had intended to keep his marriage a secret until he announced it himself Monday night on his show, but a newspaper, the Daily Mirror, learned of it.

Surviving Twin Said Doing Better

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—Tiny David Bartley, the surviving Siamese twin son of Mrs. William Bartley, continued to improve Saturday at Children's Hospital.

A spokesman at the hospital said David is now completely off intravenous feeding and is being fed entirely by mouth.

However, he is still being kept on the post-operative critical list and will still be for several days, the spokesman said.

Funeral services for his brother Daniel, who developed a bloodstream infection and died Wednesday, will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale.

The two boys, born Aug. 10 joined from the naval to the breastbone, were separated in a three-hour operation Sunday at Children's Hospital.

Further Layoffs Threatened in Walkout at Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. officials Saturday said they hoped for an early settlement of a strike in their Chicago Heights, Ill. stamping plant before it led to more layoffs throughout the country.

The workers in the vital stamping plant went out on strike Friday in the midst of negotiations over safety conditions.

Friday night Ford announced it would be forced to lay off 10,000 workers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana plants beginning Monday.

One Ford executive emphasized that the layoffs would not be in assembly line plants. He said, "We are in the changeover period now from 1963 to 1964 models. The layoffs would come at the parts plants mainly."

Ford was scheduled to begin assembly line production of their new models next week at one of their plants. Nine other assembly lines were due to open Aug. 26.

Ford followed the layoff announcement with a warning that "more layoffs would come if the strike was not settled quickly."

Ford here said union members were picketing the Chicago plant, but the spokesman had no idea of the number of demonstrators.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Early Film Star Barthelmess Dies

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (UPI)—Silent film star Richard Barthelmess, who won a special Academy award in 1928, the first year they were presented, died of cancer Saturday. He was 68.

Barthelmess had been ill for about five years, according to his physician, Dr. William Gaynor.

One of the most celebrated stars of his era, Barthelmess was nominated for the "Best Actor" award in 1928, but lost to the late Emil Jannings.

The special Oscar was given for "distinguished achievement" in two films, "Patent Leather Kid" and "The Noose."

Barthelmess' wife, Jessica, was at his bedside at their home here when he died.

Barthelmess was a moving picture pioneer and one of filmdom's most celebrated stars. More than any other actor of his time, Barthelmess represented the clean-cut American hero—not strikingly handsome but good-looking, gentle yet masculine, modest, unassuming.

FBI Nabs Industrialist

CINCINNATI (AP)—The FBI reported arrest Saturday at Dayton of Emanuel Morton Siegel, 57, of New York, charged with bribery in a $9.5 million contract at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Victor Turyn, assistant agent in charge of the Cincinnati FBI office identified Siegel as vice president of Loral Electronics Corp., with chief offices in the Bronx, New York.

Turyn said Siegel was charged with trying to influence Charles Lopez, chief of the electronics warfare branch at Wright-Patterson, in a decision involving the contract.

Turyn also reported several hundred dollars changed hands in a meeting of Siegel and Lopez as down payment on a promise by Siegel of several thousand dollars.

Okinawa Ferry Sinks

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Heavy waves sank the ferry boat Midori Maru in the East China Sea Saturday and left perhaps 55 persons dead or missing.

Air-sea rescue operations saved 185, including four U.S. servicemen believed to have been the only Americans aboard.

Two bodies were recovered. The rest of the passengers and crewmen, believed to total about 240, were unaccounted for.

News of the sinking was slow in reaching Okinawa and Shannon McCune, U.S. civil administrator for the Ryukyu Island chain, said the success of the rescue operation was amazing. U.S. military aircraft joined fishing boats in saving survivors.

U.S. Plans 'Cold-Cure' Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration proposed Saturday a ban on some 50 to 75 prescription cold cure drugs containing antibiotics.

A spokesman said a six-man panel of outside medical experts had concluded that there is no evidence that these antibiotics have any value in treating the common cold or its side effects.

Today's proposal affects similar prescription products where antibiotics are used in combination with cold remedies.

An FDA spokesman estimated that 50 to 75 products manufactured by 15 to 25 drug manufacturers could be affected by the proposal.

Dictator Trial Speeded

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The 15 magistrates of the Venezuelan Supreme Court cancelled their vacations Saturday to speed up the embezzlement trial of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, extradited from the United States. He could get almost 17 years in prison if convicted.

Informed sources said the magistrates planned to start the trial procedure immediately and possibly would call on Perez Jimenez in prison Monday to present him with the first document—the auto de detencion, or arrest order.

The 49-year-old former strongman president was in an air-conditioned, TV-equipped cell in the general penitentiary at San Juan de Los Morros, 50 miles southwest of Caracas.

U.N.'s Borneo Report Slow

KUCHING, Sarawak (UPI)—The United Nations inspection team seeking to determine if British Borneo really wants to be part of yet-unborn Malaysia made it official Saturday with an announcement that it was unable to complete its work before the scheduled birthdate—Aug. 31.

U.N. spokesman Abdul Dajani said the team's extensive field trips into Sarawak and North Boreno hinterlands would be completed on Aug. 31, but the final report would then have to be prepared for Secretary General U Thant.

6 Die as Home Burns

NIAGARA, Wis. (AP)—Six persons, including a paper company executive, four members of his family and a neighbor girl, suffocated early Saturday when fire broke out in the first floor of a home in this northern paper mill community.

The six bodies were found on the floor of upstairs bedrooms in the home of Howard Comstock. The fire was confined to the first floor of the seven-room frame home, which was filled with smoke.

A 19-year-old son, who had decided to spend the night with friends, was the only survivor in the family.

TEST-TUBE TRIUMPH

Key Molecule Made in Space Breakthrough

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Two scientists have artifically produced for the first time the substance which supplies energy for humans and other life forms, it was announced Saturday.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said "construction" of the molecule adenosine triphosphate (ATP) will have a significant bearing on future explorations of other planets.

* * * *

THE WORK was carried out at Ames Research Center here by Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma of Ceylon and Dr. Carl Sagan of Harvard University and the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory, Cambridge, Mass.

It is the most complex biological molecule yet produced artificially, said the spokesman.

Life forms today manufacture (ATP) by breaking down food and, in the case of plants, through photosynthesis. Heretofore it was believed the presence of the molecule was ample proof of the existence of life.

But the creation of ATP by Ponnamperuma and Sagan was done with a solution of chemicals thought to exist on Earth before life developed.

* * * *

THE SOLUTION was bombarded with ultraviolet rays which easily reached earth four billion years ago, but do not penetrate the upper atmosphere today. From that bombardment came ATP.

The experiment indicates ATP can exist independent of life as we understand it, said the spokesman, a discovery which will have a great bearing on future explorations into space.

No longer will the presence of the molecule on other planets be considered indicative of life. Mechanical devices sending back reports—say from Mars—of the presence of ATP, will now have to search further for proof.

Archie, Rowdy Bartender of 'Duffys' Tavern,' Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ed Gardner, known to millions as Archie, wise-cracking bartender on radio and television's "Duffy's Tavern," died Saturday at Good Samaritan Hospital. He was 62.

Gardner became famous in the 1940s for drawling into the 'phone, in a broad Astroia accent: "Duffy's Tavern. Archie speakin'. Duffy ain't heah."

Death came at 9:50 a.m. Gardner had been hospitalized for two weeks with a liver disease. An autopsy will be performed.

With him when he died were his wife, Simone, and their two sons, Edward Jr., 19, and Stephen, 15.

Gardner, whose Hollywood career began as a producer, often joked about his start as an actor. He originated the "Duffy's Tavern" radio show, but couldn't find a good mug type to play Archie, so he stepped into the role himself.

He originated the Rudy Vallee-John Barrymore radio show and later directed George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bing Crosby, Al Jolson and Fanny Brice in their radio shows.

Gardner was married to actress Shirley Booth for 13 years before he wed New York radio and stage actress Simone Hegeman 21 years ago.

They lived in Beverly Hills.

the 20-year-old model said then.

Pressed further however, she said she had a fiance, and that he was an American living in Paris.

Saturday, having had time to collect her thoughts, Gudrun told a reporter: "Doesn't everybody have a boy friend? Well, I have one too. But I'm not engaged."

Meanwhile, in IBC circles, the rumor was being bruited about that Miss Bjarnadottir's boy friend was a wealthy 30-year-old French nobleman who did not want his name linked with the contest winner at this time.

* * * *

GUDRUN SAID she'll probably visit New York City for a day or two after leaving Long Beach next week. Until then, a whirlwind of activities is in store for her here.

IBC social planners apparently hadn't told the auburn-haired beauty what she could expect in the next few days, because she had no idea of what here schedule was. She wasn't even aware that she'd be attending the Coronation Ball and Banquet Saturday night in the Lafayette Hotel, though she may simply have forgotten it in all the excitement.

Dudrun made several confessions as she tried, unsuccessfully, to polish off half a cantaloupe—her breakfast.

* * * *

FOR ONE thing, she said, she doesn't use makeup. (She only did so during the pageant because she had to.)

"I really don't think young girls should ruin their faces with makeup. There's plenty of time later, when they're older and they need it."

Nor does Gudrun use nail polish, or back-comb her hair, or do all those things that fashionable young ladies are supposed to do—except manage to look quite beautiful.

A tall girl—she's five-foot-eight — Gudrun sports a slender mannequinish figure. And, with her modeling background, she bears herself with regal self-assuredness.

* * * *

SHE SPEAKS English with a curious, almost undetectable accent, part Icelandic, part French and part British, the latter coming from her English school teaching.

Among her diversions are acting (she has trod the boards in Iceland), swimming ("I do a lot of it"), skiing ("I love it") and reading (mostly ancient history).

"But I guess there won't be much time for those things now," she sighed—happily.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Columbia Broadcasting System has contributed $250,000 to Community Television of Southern California toward establishment of an educational television station in Los Angeles.

Announcement of the gift was made by Frank Stanton, president of CBS, and Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, chairman of the board of Community Television.

Oregon Job Office Cuts Employes

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's Department of Employment, which tries to find jobs for the jobless, can't pay 100 of its own employees and is laying them off.

What's more, said Commissioner David Cameron, the remaining 650 are expected to take pay cuts.

He said a 1½ per cent cut in the 1963-64 federal budget for aid to state employment services was responsible.

German Shepherd Hailed as Hero

CAMOGLI, Italy (AP) — A German shepherd received the top award here Friday in a contest to honor Italy's most faithful dogs.

Gimmy, the German Shepherd, leaped in front of his mistress, Mrs. Rosaria Gatto when she was attacked by a man with a knife. The dog barely survived a severe knife wound in its chest.

boarding school at Farmington, Conn.

As house guests and sharing the excitement with Janet were her two 18-year-old schoolmates, Susan Clark, whose own debut is next Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Clark of Copperstown, N.Y., and Patricia Starr, daughter of the Ogden Starrs, of Far Hills, N.J., and Antigua, British West Indies.

Janet, dark-haired, dark-eyed and pretty, selected a strapless white organza gown with tiers of ruffles, a motif of lilies of the valley with green leaves at the bodice.

The long dress had straight lines, but flared at the bottom with a riffle.

She had her hair done specially in a high pouf so she could wear a circlet of lilies of the valley in it.

Together with her mother, who picked a yellow silk gown embroidered with white beads for the occasion, and her stockbroker father, in formal attire, a receiving line was arranged in front of a floral-decked fireplace in the downstairs sitting room.

The debutante party for Janet, long on the social calendar, was held despite the tragedy of the death of President and Mrs. Kennedy's newborn son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, eight days ago. The Kennedys personally requested that the party go on as planned and they arranged to send a bouquet to Janet—something she wasn't told about in advance.

Mrs. Kennedy, now recuperating at her Squaw Island summer home, near Hyannis Port, Mass., on Cape Cod, had been a debutante here in Newport, too. When she had her coming-out party at Newport's exclusive Clambake Club, a New York society columnist named her the No. 1 deb of the year, describing her as having "the daintiness of Dresden porcelain."

Mrs. Auchincloss is the mother of Mrs. Kennedy.

767 Mafia Arrests

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Police officials said Saturday Italy's big drive to wipe out the Mafia secret criminal society on this island has brought about the arrests of 767 persons since July 1.

Cuba Slow in Planting of Sugar Cane

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban official says Cuba is well behind this year in fulfillment of its plan for planting sugar cane.

Raul Herrera so informed the Sugar Technicol Commission of the Cuban Agrarian Reform Institutes Friday.

Herrera, a member of the commission, said that Cuba so far had planted or had ready to plant 83 percent of the cane acreage planned for this year. He said the figure was 97 percent at the same time last year.

"This means we are well behind in relation to last year," Herrera said, "and we want to alert our provincial comrades."

Official reports show that Cuba's sugar crop last year was the lowest since 1945.

Hay Fever Time

By J. W. DAVIS
AP Newsfeature Writer

A time of great misery has come once more to America.

It is the height of the hay fever season, when millions suffer red eyes that itch and stuffy noses that run and sneeze.

There is some relief at hand—medicines, air conditioning, mountain trips and ocean cruises can help—but hay fever is still rampaging.

There is now a National Allergy Month, timed to coincide with the high mark of the hay fever onslaught, Aug. 15-Sept. 15.

* * * *

HAY FEVER is the big thing, numerically, in the allergy army.

It is an inflammation of the eyes and nasal passages caused by sensitivity (allergy) to some particular pollen, dust or other substance.

Hay fever can strike in the spring or summer but fall hay fever, usually due to ragweed pollen is the most widespread.

Surveys by the United States Public Health Service indicate that more than 8 million Americans suffer from hay fever and asthma. Asthma is a complication of hay fever.

* * * *

FOR SOME reason, there are people who look upon hay fever as sort of a joke. This may be because even a pretty girl or a handsome man looks ridiculous while sneezing, and a homely person looks even worse.

The grimness of the situation, however, is underlined by this fact: In the prevalence of chronic diseases, hay fever and asthma are outranked only by heart disease, cancer and arthritis, or rheumatism.

Allergy can develop at any age but children 5, 10 or 15 years of age are more apt to develop allergies than persons in later life.

Allergic disorders themselves are seldom fatal, but the statistics indicate that about 9,000 persons die in the United States each year with asthma as a contributing cause.

* * * *

WHAT CAN be done to to prevent or ease hay fever?

Your doctor, through patient detective work, may determine just what allergies are causing your trouble. Allergens are the substances which develop the painful sensitivity; they can be pollens, molds, dust, animal skin or hair, feathers, some foods, etc.

Once identified, the offending substances must be removed or evaded as completely as possible. You might have to avoid drives in the country during the pollen season. You might have to give away your dog.

It may help much to remove pollens from the air, particularly in your sleeping room. Your doctor may recommend an air filter, perhaps in an air conditioned unit, or an electric pollen remover.

A series of shots will often reduce the sensitivity and prevent further attacks for some time.

Medicines may be prescribed.

* * * *

ON THE point of trying to run away from the pollen that causes hay fever, the Health Service suggests that a permanent change of location should be undertaken only on medical advice.

"If removal to another part of the country is not practical—if too expensive in terms of economic and family stability—air conditioning and other protective devices in his own home may be just as satisfactory."

The health service recommends, to victims who are looking for information about the kinds and amounts of pollen in various U.S. areas, a brochure written by O. C. Durham and called "Hay Fever Holiday."

The brochure is available from the American Academy of Allergy, 756 North Milwaukee St., Milwaukee 2, Wis.

Underwater Sound Beacon to Aid Ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high-pitched atomic squeal is about to be added as a navigation beacon to the din of the ocean depths.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the underwater atomic sound beacon is being developed by the Martin Co. nuclear division under a $110,000 contract.

Heat from radioactive strontium, formerly a waste product of nuclear reactors, will generate steam which will drive oil through a device known as a hydro-acoustic transducer.

From this device will emerge a squeal with an underwater range of 20 miles. In addition to helping ships and small craft get their bearings, the squeal also may prove useful to mark channels and fishing grounds and to warn vessels of reefs, sandbars, and other hazards, the AEC said.

The atomic beacon's voice, as recorded on shipboard listening devices, is expected to stand out above the squeaking of porpoises, the snapping of shrimp, and other submarine rackets.

The device will fit into a box one cubic foot in volume and, because of its atomic power supply will dispense with the electrical batteries and electronic equipment of sonar beacons now in use.

The atomic sonar beacon is expected to cost less than other kinds and to have a lifetime of 10 years. The first test is scheduled at 25-foot depths in Chesapeake Bay, early next year. Later tests will be conducted at 200 feet depths near Bermuda.

Judge O. D. Hamlin Retires Sept. 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced President Kennedy has approved the retirement of Judge O. D. Hamlin of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, San Francisco.

Hamlin was appointed to the Appellate Court by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on March 26, 1958. The retirement will become effective Sept. 5.

ON OLD LAND CLAIM

Cherokees to Get $1 Million Bonus

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP) —Cherokee Indians will be able to celebrate a $1 million bonus when they gather here next month to commemorate the founding of the Cherokee nation here Sept. 6, 1839.

The tribe will get $1 million more than it expected from a settlement of Cherokee claims to land taken from them in what is now Oklahoma.

Earl Boyd Pierce, tribal attorney, said the Indian Claims Commission had issued a formal judgment awarded the extra $1 million as 4 per cent interest on a $14.7 million claim approved for the tribe Oct. 5, 1961.

The tribe got the big award for six million acres it was forced to give up in what is known as the Cherokee Outlet, a strip of land across northern Oklahoma. Actual payment of the award was held up pending settlement of offset claims against the total by the government. The money is now being distributed to tribe members.

The 11th annual Cherokee holiday is scheduled here this year on Sept. 7. It is a gathering of Cherokee Indians from all over the country at the site chosen for the tribal capital after the Cherokees were moved from southeastern United States.

'RUNAWAY' PRODUCERS, STARS RETURN

Hollywood on Way Back as Movie Capital of World; 105 Pictures Set

By JACK BALDWIN

Hollywood, on the skids for the past decade as the movie capital of the world is making a comeback.

A recent survey of the eight leading studios and producer-companies indicates there are no less than 105 major feature motion pictures either in production or soon to go into production.

With the return to Hollywood of many "runaway" producers and stars, movie fans will be offered a choice of motion picture entertainment this season ranging from sophisticated horse operas to United Artist's $8,000,000 Cinerama production, "It's a Mad, Mad World," featuring a cast of 76 name stars.

* * * *

CURRENTLY before the cameras at the Burbank studios of Walt Disney are characters—both live and cartoon, featured in "Mary Poppins." The $5,000,000 production stars Julie Andrews making her film debut and has been described as the most ambitious effort of Disney's varied career.

Universal Pictures Company in Universal City is forecasting its heaviest production schedule in the last six years. The company now has a stable of 20 writers at work on 17 different story properties under nine producers.

Backing up its faith in the industry's renaissance, Universal through its parent company, MCA, has started construction of a $10,000,000 development which includes a 14-story building at Lankershim Blvd. just north of the Hollywood Freeway.

* * * *

JACK L. WARNER, head of Warner Bros., has taken personal supervision of "My Fair Lady" one of 22 features comprising an $80,000,000 production program.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will have put nine pictures into production between July 9 and September 16—plus filming five and half hours of weekly television shows.

Further evidence of a re-birth of Hollywood including its surrounding cities, is a recent announcement that MGM will join with 20th Century-Fox and Columbia Pictures to build a massive film production center on a 180-acre site in the Malibu Hills.

Paramount Studios has filmed twice as many pictures during the first six months of this year as it did during the same period in 1963.

* * * *

LAST YEAR 20th Century-Fox lost $40,000,000! Then Darryl F. Zanuck took over control of the ailing company. He recently announced that the company was "in the black" for the first quarter of 1963. He has announced he will film 14 pictures this season in Hollywood. The studio has just completed shooting "Move Over Darling" with Doris Day, Polly Bergen, and James "Maverick" Garner. Also wrapped up is "Take Her She's Mine" starring James Stewart and Sandra Dee.

Columbia Pictures will put into production between now and the end of the year seven feature length movies — four of which the studio labels as major productions. Currently before the cameras is Joan Crawford in "Straight Jacket."

Due to be released by Columbia before the end of 1963 are 10 other motion pictures—in addition to the TV shows being produced by Screen Gems, a Columbia affiliate.

* * * *

WITH ALL the major movie-making companies revealing plans to shoot more and more pictures here at home, it is obvious that the romance between Europe and American producers is on the wane. Producers were lured across the Atlantic by the promise of low labor costs and a favorable tax structure.

However, foreign labor which once cost a third of that paid to domestic labor has jumped to 60 per cent — and more in some countries. This factor plus the language barrier has tended to nullify the advantages of shooting in Europe. Some American producers claim European workers are slower and lack the esprit de corps of non-talent workers here in the U. S.

A number of producers, eager to get certain stars for their productions, carried the mountain to Mohammed. They went to Europe where the stars were living. Moving mountains is costly. To keep production costs in line, the producers have simply sought other stars for the leading roles — stars who agree to work in the U. S.

HOLLYWOOD guilds and unions still in the throes of fighting "runaway" production, seem to be winning the battle. A "runaway" is the label pinned on productions which could be filmed here but are taken overseas and produced.

Unique in this respect is Disney's "Mary Poppins" featuring an almost all English cast, in an English story, in an English setting. "Mary" has been dubbed a runaway production in reverse. Reason given by Disney for bringing Mohammed to the Hollywood Hills is because this is where the talent is. He claims nowhere in the world outside of Hollywood do the skills exist among technicians, artisans, and other behind-the-camera workers that would enable him to produce the unique live-cartoon-magic to be seen in "Mary."

Other producers and movie-making studios are beginning to follow Disney's lead. While Disney has and will continue to film abroad "it will be only because of the locale I demand for authenticity," he said.

Jules C. Stein, chairman of the board of MCA Inc., during "Golden Rivet" ceremonies signaling the start of construction on the new multi-million dollar Universal City Plaza, seemed to express the opinion of the entire movie industry when he said, "Historically the very heartbeat of entertainment production and its worldwide leadership have flourished in this area. Southern California, traditionally the world leader in film production, both theatrical and television, will continue to hold and expand this leadership."

DIRECTOR ROBERT STEVENSON lines-up on a closeup of Julie Andrews for a scene in musical-fantasy, "Mary Poppins," $5 million Disney production.

DMV Reports Deaf Drive Farther, Crash Offener

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Deaf drivers have more accidents than those who can hear but can still be termed good drivers, the State Department of Motor Vehicles said Saturday.

Director Tom Bright explained that while deaf drivers accumulate a larger number of traffic-violation convictions, they do not tend to repeat offenses and thus are not more negligent than others.

Bright said that in a study of 721 deaf drivers, it was found that deaf persons drive somewhat more than non-deaf persons. He said one reason might be that driving is one pleasure that a deaf person can enjoy compared to the many he cannot.

Tot Loses Fight for Life After Fall Into Bed Rail

VAN NUYS (CNS)—A four-month-old boy who stopped breathing Friday but whose heart miraculously continued beating died Saturday afternoon in Valley Hospital.

Little Robert Johnson, Van Nuys, was rushed to the hospital at 9:27 a.m. Friday where oxygen was pumped into his lungs and he was packed in ice to slow down his heart beat, but at 2:05 p.m. Saturday his heart finally failed.

The infant fell from his crib Friday morning and caught his head in a guardrail.

When his mother, Mrs. Brenda Johnson, 17, discovered the baby caught in the guardrail she called the fire department and a rescue crew responded to the home.

Firemen Vincent Pratt, Lyle Lentz and Bruce Watson said when they arrived the child was not breathing and his heart had stopped.

For 15 minutes they externally massaged the boy's heart and gave him oxygen and when the heart resumed pumping rushed him to the hospital.

The baby's father, James R. Johnson, 23, a truck driver, was not home at the time the accident occurred.

New Pope Handles Job With Ease

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The somewhat troubled look so evident in the first hours after his election last June 21 is gone from the brow of Pope Paul VI.

After two months of directing a church of a half a billion believers, the Roman Catholic Pontiff is finding he can carry the load.

A recent Italian visitor to the private Papal library exclaimed:

"He acts like he has had the job not for only 50 days but always."

* * * *

POPE PAUL defined the principal tasks of his Pontificate in his first address — to continue the Ecumenical Council conceived and begun by Pope John XXIII, to work untirely for universal peace without respect to political blocs, to keep open the new pathways of friendly dealings with all Christian demoninations.

Beyond that, the Pontiff, now 65, had made few headlines while keeping to a regimen that has him on the job 18 hours a day.

Many were surprised when Pope Paul announced proptly after his election that the Ecumenical Council recessed last December would resume Sept. 21 — just three weeks after the original resumption date set by Pope John.

A private appraisal by one leading cleric in Rome was: "It shows not so much his intimate knowledge of the Council's workings, which is to be expected, as it does the speed and ease with which he has assumed the Papacy."

* * * *

IT IS DURING the next council session, when 2,500 bishops meet again for a discussion of 17 revised schemata (topics), that Pope Paul is expected to make his first major impact as shepherd of a church striving to bring itself more in tune with modern times.

The Italian press has spared the new Pope the criticism that rightwing papers unleashed against Pope John's "Opening to the East" — his moves to improve church relations with Communist Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The groundwork for seeking a solution to the case of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty has continued quietly under Pope Paul. He also sent two prelates as personal representatives to the July celebrations in Moscow of the 50th Episcopal Anniversary of Russian Orthodox Patriarch Alexei, a gesture unique in Christian history. The Italian press held its tongue.

* * * *

MOST OF POPE Paul's working hours are occupied with preparations for continuing the Ecumenical Council.

He is reported to have told Augustin Cardinal Bea, president of the Vatican's Christian Unity Secretariat, that he wanted a planned council scheme on Christian-Jewish relations to be kept unchanged. The schema is believed to stress, apart from a condemnation of anti-semitism, the traditional Hebraic roots of Christianity.

Pope Paul also is said to be seriously studying a proposal by an Indonesian bishop for creation of a Vatican Secretariat for non-Christian relations. The idea would be to let Catholicism profit from contract with religions such as Buddhism, Shintoism and Islam.

One of Pope Paul's minor triumphs concerns an old baroque habit of expression that not even Pope John could uproot — the constant use by L'Osservatore Romano of the phrase "the Holiness of Our Lord" in referring to announcements.

As of two weeks ago, the Vatican daily dropped the phrase and now uses simply "His Holiness" in prefacing its daily list of the Pope's ecclesiastical appointments.

Call Conference On Export Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has called a White House Conference on export expansion for next month to spur sales of American products abroad. He will address its opening session Sept. 17.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Break in Rail Stalemate a Boost for the Economy

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of a paralyzing nationwide railroad strike was lifted again this week.

It was a break for the economy in a cliffhanger situation that has made business men jittery for months.

The railroads and the five operating unions agreed to binding arbitration of the two key issues in the work rules dispute. This was done at the suggestion of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Issues to be arbitrated are firemen's jobs and train crew makeup.

The arbitration board would be made up of representatives of the carriers. The unions and two public members.

It was expected that other issues in dispute could be ironed out in negotiations.

* * * *

THE DEADLINE for the railroads to put work changes into effect and for the unions to strike had been Aug. 29.

The controversy centers on "featherbedding" — the railroads' term for what they consider unnecessary jobs. This mainly concerns the jobs of firemen on diesel locomotives.

The railroads eventually would like to get rid of 40,000 firemen and 65,000 employes altogether.

CHRYSLER CORP., which racked up an excellent gain in production and sales during the 1963 model year, kicked off 1964 by showing its new entries in San Francisco.

The firm spent $125 million in preparing its new line but the changes weren't startling. Chrysler appeared to be betting that it could keep its sales gain going without radical departures from 1963 styling.

Other automakers soon will be coming out with their 1964s although they won't be put on sale until mid-September.

In the meantime, emphasis will be on cleaning out about 1 million 1963 models which were in dealers' hands Aug. 1.

While the inventory total is the highest ever, it represents only a 45-day supply on the basis of recent selling rates.

Production fell this week to an estimated 18,000 passenger cars, lowest of the year and down from 41,862 last week.

General Motors completed its 1963 model run last week and Ford did so this week. Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker already were building 1964s. Ford starts its 1964 run Monday and General Motors' 1964 production will begin Sept. 3.

* * * *

STEEL production skidded again last week for the fourth straight week. It dropped to 1,748,000 tons, an estimated 56.3 percent of operating capacity.

No improvement in orders was expected until vacations are over and auto makers get their assembly lines running full blast on new models.

Steel stockpiles built up by users as a hedge against a strike that never came off were reported diminishing steadily.

WALTER W. HELLER, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, predicted the gross national product—total of goods and services — would record a $580 billion or perhaps a bit more this year, up $25 billion from last year.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council issued a statement saying current economic trends point toward a recession in 1964 unless the government takes decisive action to increase sales, production and employment. It urged a substantial tax cut.

For the sixth consecutive month non-farm payroll employment increased in July. The gain totaled about 1 million persons but because of the increase in the work force the rate of unemployment stayed about the same.

* * * *

BRIEFLY around the business scene: furniture manufacturers expect industry volume to reach a record high this year . . . Johns-Manville Corp. predicts construction expenditures this year will total $85 billion against $82.1 billion in 1962 . . . The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported regular deposits gained $100 million July to a total of $43 million.

COUSTEAU

Sees Atom Bases on Sea Floor

MARSEILLES, France (UPI)—Cmdr. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the French underwater expert, believes the nuclear age military base of the future may be built on the floor of the sea.

Cousteau told a news conference his recently completed underwater exploration of the Red Sea has shown man can live and work for prolonged periods under water.

With the threat of nuclear obliteration now more than a fantasy, the seabed may also provide man with a new type of defense, he said.

"It is certain that the major states could be interested in installing bases under the sea because water is an excellent protection against radiation," Cousteau said.

The famed oceanographer plans to relax for a time and then begin preparing for another exploration next year.

Miracle Coating Replaces House Paint
Textured Coatings of America has developed a remarkable product for exterior walls that virtually eliminates outside painting for many years to come and is factory guaranteed for 10 full years. This product, called TEX-COTE, combines the long lasting properties of fiberglass, asbestos, mica, and perlite to make a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes.
Guided Missiles
Guided Missile Manufacturers for the United States Government have found TEX-COTE a superior product for insulation of heat shields used in the space programs.
Many thousands of textured coating applications have been made on home, commercial and industrial buildings throughout the world, and these buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all weather extremes.
The United States Government and large corporations, such as Shell Oil Company, Pacific Telephone Company and Thunderbird International Hotels are using TEX-COTE. This remarkable exterior surfacing provides water-proofing, insulation and beauty, far outlasting any ordinary paint.
Comes in Colors
TEX-COTE comes in 12 beautiful decorator colors — and does not change the structural lines of the building. Actually it adds beauty to any home or structure and increases its value.
Water-Proofs, Insulates, Fire Retardant
In addition to beauty, TEX-COTE has the additional advantages of water-proofing and insulation. Through the use of silicones, a modern day scientific advance, a water repellent "blanket" envelopes the entire building so that no moisture can penetrate and damage the interior of the home. Through the use of fiberglass and perlite, highly efficient insulating material, the building becomes cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter.
Applied With a Gun
TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment under high pressure. It fuses itself to the wall surface to a thickness 15 to 20 times that of normal paint. It remains flexible and withstands cracking and normal surface expansion and contraction.

SHERIFF'S SPECIAL ENFORCEMENT DETAIL

Saturation Squad

By WILLIAM JONES

Dawn breaks slowly in a mouse-gray chillness and the alarm clock in the pleasant home of Deputy Joe Carbondale rattles reveille.

Carbondale washes away the last traces of sleep from his eyes with icy water. He turns the faucet to hot and shaves cleanly. In 30 minutes, he is on his way to work after somewhat calming his nervous energy with a cigarette and steaming coffee.

Today will be special. All days are special for Carbondale and 45 other Los Angeles sheriff's deputies. All are volunteers of an elite police corps known at the Special Enforcement Detail—special men, specially trained for special missions.

Where will he go after he checks into his headquarters in East Los Angeles? Lakewood, Hollywood, Malibu or the mountainous northern county border? What hours will he work? He doesn't know.

Crime dictates the location. Crime dictates the hours.

You probably have seen Carbondale. A lot of people have seen him.

His has been the grim face in the shadow of a white, crash helmet that was in the wedge formation of officers that broke up a riot.

His has been the sweaty, red face beneath the orange construction helmet in the forest fires to the north.

His has been the intent face under the regulation deputy's cap in the high-powered pursuit car on a stakeout.

* * * *

AT EAST Los Angeles, he checks in with detail commander Lt. Richard W. Pearson and then gets his assignment from operations officer Sgt. Beto Kienast.

"A lot of burglaries in this area," says Kienast, pointing to the map. "Pearson wants saturation. Check into it and, tonight, we'll flood the section with our men in addition to the regular duty cars from the sheriff's station in that area."

Saturation, that is the key word.

Carbondale recalls how last February Deputy William L. Backman of Long Beach and Deputy Frank Hayes of West Covina, both members of the detail, made an astonishing arrest in just such a saturation stakeout. The two men arrested confessed to 60 armed robberies, eight of them in Long Beach taverns.

* * * *

WITH HIS partner, Carbondale checks out the area in SED's bible, a massive notebook with maps and information on each of 13 sheriff's stations in the county. The entire Los Angeles County is their beat.

He checks out the equipment in his speedy car. On top are electronic siren, red light and loudspeaker. By the front seat, brackets cradle the shotgun. In the trunk, are the transistorized power unit, first-aid kit, blanket, flares and even snow chains.

Unlike the one or two channels in regular deputy cruisers, Carbondale has four radio frequencies so that he can contact any station when he darts from one end of the vast county to the other.

The unit prides itself on its special equipment.

At a riot, the SED sets up headquarters in a Mobile Command Post. Orders can be channeled to a saturation squad on foot or a fleet of pursuit cars by six radios, a mobile telephone or the high-powered loudspeaker on the modified bus CP.

For searches of lost hikers or at forest fires, SED can use its Mobile kitchen, a housewife's dream on wheels, which can feed two men or 200 with equal ease.

Backstopping the mobile force is a generator truck which supplies additional power through 11 lines and turns midnight into neon with strong floodlights.

* * * *

BUT THE equipment is not the only thing special. There is the man.

Though Carbondale, actually, doesn't exist—he is the average man in the detail if the word "average" can be used—his existence comes to life each day in the lives of SED deputies.

From a waiting list of volunteers, a Carbondale is chosen after a background investigation, oral interviews and a written examination. He must have been a deputy for at least two years.

"We try to paint the blackest picture for the new man," Pearson said. "And," interjected Sgt. Kienast, "that's the way it generally works out."

* * * *

THERE FOLLOW two weeks of indoctrination, another one or two weeks riding with one of SED's 10 sergeants for a final sizing up.

The deputy — they average 60 units of college police study when they join SED—is given extra training in crowd and riot control, tear gas equipment and general police duties.

The veteran still goes to school or into the field for training problems on the average of 16 hours a month. SED has its own training officer, Sgt. Raul Vasquez, who has schooled himself in everything from high-speed chases to disarming a knife-carrying thug.

Pearson (bachelor of science degree in police science and administration from Los Angeles State) brings out experts in such fields as firefighting and civil defense to beef up the curiculum.

Though under the immediate supervision of Lt. Pearson — who, in turn answers to Area Inspector R. T. Parsonson —the SED man comes under the control of the station commander when he moves into an area.

But he does not issue citations or, generally, answer radio calls in the vicinity. He is there for one specific reason—a riot, a strike where violence may breakout, a mountain search, a fire or because of an unusual increase in stickups or burglaries.

In the past, SED men have guarded Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Khrushchev, baby-sat with the children of the king and queen of Thailand in a Pomona ranch 24-hours a day when the royal pair left for Washington ("we played baseball with the kids") and assisted Palos Verdes when the Greek freighter Dominator went aground.

They are responsible each year for the crowd control operations at the New Year's football game in Pasadena's Rose Bowl. On other holidays, SED men can be found at Catalina Island or Malibu where teenagers band.

Most SED men leave only because of promotion or to go into the detective bureau. In his two years with special enforcement, Pearson can recall only one man who quit for personal reasons.

The guy's wife screamed about the hours.

AS happens every year, there's a little beefing about the decision of the IBC judges from persons who had favorites who didn't get the nod.

And that brings us back to a comment here the other day pointing out that of course, the IBC winner can't be everybody's "most beautiful woman in the world." There are millions of women who are somebody's most beautiful women.

The swain, kissing his girl in the soft light of the harvest moon, doesn't need a Vincent Trotta or an Alberto Varga to tell him who is the most beautiful woman in the world.

HAVE you noticed that favorite litter spots are at points where motorists are forced to wait for protracted periods for the lights to change.

Having all that time on the hand, they use some of it to empty their car ashtrays.

Beside the pavement at the notorious long-wait intersection of Pacific Coast Hwy., E. 7th St. and Bellflower Blvd., for instance, is a great scattering of cigarette butts, bits of paper and other items typical of the contents of auto ashtrays.

The noted intersection contributed to in-car tidiness and outside litter.

GENEROSITY of L.B. area people has been well demonstrated in the response to the appeal for the Vaughn fund—the fund to help the family of three little girls killed in a senseless auto wreck on Atlantic a while back.

With the West Side Lions Club, the Elks Club and the post office employes group taking charge, the fund has grown to about $5000 and around $6000 is the anticipated maximum. Fund sponsors think that will be about adequate.

A committee from the sponsoring groups will handle disbursement of the fund. Postmaster Dave Selcer will serve on the committee representing the postal service group, which alone has raised more than $2100. William Vaughn, the father, is a post office employe.

IN amazingly short times, startling things happen to the countryside hereabouts. Housing projects, village shopping centers, or manufacturing plants, spring up in areas which, only a short time ago, looked as if they were permanently set for agricultural purposes in a rural atmosphere.

This was brought to mind by a visit to Meadowlark Country Club the other day. Since last I was out there housing projects have crept to the very edge of the fairways. The character of the area has changed so that one who hasn't been there for a while has some trouble figuring out just where things lie.

Alongside certain fairways fields of bean plants used to await the out-of-bound ball, and finding a little white pellet in a bean field is a job.

Now, a ball following a similar unfortunate course is likely to go through a window. Finding a ball in a living room might not be so difficult, but somewhat more embarrassing.

Seeing the countryside disappear brings something of a pang, but that's the way it is in our region.

DRIFTWOOD — The chef at Breakers International provided Irish stew for a late evening chawfest for the visiting girls. And for counsel and advice, he turned to a very appropriate authority —Olivia White, Miss Ireland of the IBC. . . . A Samoyed female residing with the Schuster family at 4986 N. Stevely in L.B. gave birth the other day to 11—that's right — 11 puppies. Mrs. Schuster says she thinks that's probably a record—and she's probably right.

Past Presidents of Officers Club Honored

Past president pins were awarded recently to the following chief officers of the Long Beach Chapter of the Retired Officers' Association:

Capt. Louis Verbrugge, USN; Col. E. L. Stewart, USA; CWO L. L. Marshall, USMC; LCDR W. F. Lewis, USN; LCDR J. F. Geis, USN; Major H. H. Dudley, USA and LCDR D. L. Webster, USN. Mrs. Elizabeth Warne accepted the pin presented to her husband, Lt. Col. William Warne (USAF), who died recently.

The group meets the first Thursday of each month at Allen Center. All retired officers of the services are invited.

Missouri Picnic Next Sunday

"Show-Me-Staters" will hold their annual picnic Aug. 25 in Bixby Park with Bill Boyd, manager of the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee and a Missouri native, scheduled to make the welcoming address.

The program will open at 12:45 p.m. with a concert by the Marvin Marker Junior Concert Band.

READY FOR NEW CAREER

Ex-Marine Finishes 4 Years at LBSC; He Started at 42

By ROBERT WILCOX
L. P-T Education Editor

When the 42-year-old retired Marine first showed up at Long Beach State College in September 1959, students thoughts he had arrived early for homecoming.

But Al Rinehart, smartly attired in a business suit, unexpectedly stepped into the freshmen admission lines with the gaily clad girls and bright-eyed youths.

His slowly receding hair was flecked with gray. He'd been married 21 years, had two fast-growing children and a supressed middle-age yen to fish the cool streams of his native Washington.

Restlessly he had switched occupations twice in three years since leaving the corps before deciding vaguely to become a language teacher. A magazine article had lured him to Long Beach State.

"You won't last a semester," warned his college adviser.

* * * *

AL HAS CHANGED some in four years and so has the college.

The late-blooming scholar heads home for Washington Wednesday with the end of the summer term. He's completed five years of college in four, compiled a near A-minus average. At 46 he's ready to start a new career.

But his best marks were made outside the classroom.

At first his youthful colleagues didn't know how to take the ex-major who joined the Marine Corps before most of them were born, served in the South Pacific during World War II and had a daughter nearing their age.

Al worked hard for acceptance. He joined campus clubs, wrote for the school newspaper. "I wanted the whole college experience."

* * * *

HE GOT MOST of it. In all, he amassed 14 scholastic-service awards, including the college's highest service honor. He was elected president of two campus organizations. He was listed twice in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Last year he was picked as the school's outstanding graduate.

Al moved his family to Long Beach, battled financial problems by getting a part-time job for awhile against his wife's wishes. He was "saved" in his graduate year by a $500 grant from the Alphi Chi Omega alumnae clubs and the Crippled Children's Society.

As a 44-year-old junior, Al found his career among some handicapped children in a speech correction clinic at the school. "I learned how much could be done for them."

Next September he will start teaching speech correction in the Naches, Wash., public schools hard by his hunting and fishing country. "But I'll still be Long Beach State College's biggest booster," says its belated new alum. The feeling's mutual.

Advance enrollment is under way at Long Beach high schools and City College.

STARTS TODAY

New Feature Highlights City's Past

Quick glimpses at important and interesting events in the history of the Long Beach area will be provided in a new feature appearing daily on the editorial page.

It's called "Dating Local History" and it helps focus attention on the community's background in this Diamond Jubilee year. It will run the gamut of significant and interesting dates from 1542 to the present. Look for it daily, starting today.

New high school students may pick up enrollment forms and schedule an appointment with a counselor Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. at each of the five local senior schools. Students in local classes last semester and those advancing from Long Beach junior high schools do not have to apply.

New liberal arts students at City College must have submitted applications, completed aptitude tests and filed school transcripts by Sept. 3, the college said.

Pre-registration at the Business and Technology Division of City College will continue through Sept. 12. Arrangements for entrance tests may be made by telephoning the admissions office on either campus.

Adults planning study toward a high school diploma were advised to make a counseling appointment as soon as possible at the Long Beach Evening High School office, Bungalow 33, West Adult Center, 1794 Cedar Ave.

Kid Fishing Derby on Thursday

The Ninth Annual All City Fishing Rodeo will be held at Belmont Pier Thursday.

Under sponsorship of the Long Beach Recreation Department and the Southern California Tuna Club, boys and girls 15 years of age or younger may compete. Prizes will be awarded in various categories.

Fishing hours will be from 6 a.m. to noon.

Youngsters can obtain information and sign up for the Rodeo at their nearest city playground.

NAACP Meet Here Today

Diabetes Group Honors 2

Mrs. Joseph Shuff, residential chairman for the "Dollars for Diabetics" fund drive last March, and Rear Adm. Lawrence E. Ruff, U.S. Navy (Ret.), Southern Area chairman, have been honored with citations from the Diabetes Association.

Dr. Charles R. Brantingham, local podiatrist who is chairman of the Long Beach Society of the Diabetes Association of Southern California, presented Mrs. Shuff and Admiral Ruff with the awards. They were honored for their effective work in the fund collection drive here.

Announcement also was made by the Southern California Diebetes Association that Dr. Brantingham has been elected to a three year term as a member of the DASC board of directors.

The fund campaign was the first major program staged by the organization in the Long Beach area.

"This disease is the seventh most common cause of death in the United States," Dr. Brantingham pointed out. "One out of very 70 persons has diabetes and for every person who has it another person is a victim but does not know he has the disease. There are more than 108,000 persons in Los Angeles County alone who have diabetes, including 5,400 children.

World's Fair in Transition

IN THE CONCLUSION of his "Review of Accounts and Records" of the California World's Fair, City Auditor Murray T. Courson makes significant note of the city's growing interest in the affairs of the fair organization.

This interest, he said, had been somewhat limited, but with the Long Beach electorate's approval of the use of tidelands oil funds to guarantee the fair's construction bonds "the city will, of necessity, assume additional responsibilities in the form of mandatory and trust obligations."

Mr. Courson's timely remarks reflect a transition in the status of the fair organization.

The organization moved, however, toward a quasi-public situation when it asked for and obtained a lease for the fair site from the City of Long Beach. Under this arrangement it proposed to use public property for a site for its operations and to construct buildings which would later be turned over to the city for municipal use. This brought the city in as an interested party, not to manage or control the operations of the organization, but to make certain that they conformed to standards properly required of an occupant and lessee of city property. To some extent it made the city a sponsor of the fair with a sponsor's responsibilities.

This transition went further when the fair organization asked the city to conduct an election, looking toward a request from the State Lands Commission to use tidelands funds to guarantee the fair organization's bonds, or other financing, for the construction program. The Council called the election, the voters approved, and a program of this nature is now under negotiation.

This contemplated use of public funds makes the fair a fish-bowl operation. The consideration of the negotiated program by the City Council and the State Lands Commission requires a close observation of the fair operations to make certain they are sound, efficient and clearly in the public interest.

A vital argument for the projected program is that a well-conducted and successful fair will produce ample revenue to finance the entire construction program and thus avoid the actual use of any of the tidelands "guarantee" fund. As official sponsor of the program before the Lands Commission, the city has a responsibility to see that it is a well-conducted and successful fair that will do the revenue-producing job.

MUNICIPAL management of the fair is neither required nor desirable, but there is, on the one hand, a responsibility for the city to review and check on fair operations, and on the other hand, a need for the fair organization to recognize the city's necessary interest and its own responsibilities to the city.

It is a unique relationship, but one that should work out satisfactorily if there is a cooperative spirit and an understanding of problems and responsibilities on both sides. In this connection, it should be noted that the fair group months ago made some changes in executive committee membership and took other steps recommended by the city manager's office.

All of this must be kept on a strict business basis. Politically-motivated meddling in the fair business could be most harmful. The fair organization must have the management know-how and the personnel to do the job properly. Incidentally, the more open and free publicity the fair group gives to its business operations, the better.

FREDERICK W. COLLINS

Capital Tensely Awaits Aug. 28

WASHINGTON—It is perhaps not too early to report that this town is in a state of rising apprehension and intensifying controversy as the date approaches for the mass demonstration here on Aug. 28 in behalf of Negro rights and employment equality.

One of the circumstances feeding both the apprehension and the controversy is the fact that at the moment, no one really knows what is going to happen. But even if one accepts the optimistic premise that there will be no violence, Washington already has an advance sense of being subjected to a tremendous pressure, from the prospective advent of 100,000 or more demonstrators.

People are quite deliberately and openly making plans for either escaping or hiding. There is the man who has arranged to leave Washington on Tuesday, the 27th, and return on the 30th. He will go to New York and "consult with his home office." But he is leaving Washington solely and simply because of the demonstration.

* * * *

UNDER SOME CIRCUMSTANCES, a city the size of Washington can accommodate a sudden concentration of 100,000 outsiders. It happens every inauguration day. But the element of potential friction and violence makes this a very special case. Washington has not forgotten the sudden eruption of race violence at a high school football game last Thanksgiving Day. Nobody really thinks that a plan of organized violence exists on either side of the Aug. 28 demonstration. But no one can wholly dismiss the possibility that a spark may ignite a train which would blow up the powder magazine.

* * * *

ENDLESS ARGUMENTS fail to shake the proposition that if these people want to assemble here, then they are fully within their rights. It may be said that if they maintain peace, they will not have hurt their cause. If they do not maintain peace, they will have hurt their cause terribly.

It may be said that this is a fearful gamble for President Kennedy. Let it be assumed that he spoke in full good faith and from adherence to profound principle when he welcomed the plan for the march. If by some tragic mischance the city should be turned into a shambles on that day, Mr. Kennedy would have a very hard time recovering.

Watch Out for That Next Step—It's a Dilly!

Puzzling Arguments Offered Urging Test Treaty Approval

WASHINGTON—More puzzling than any of the words themselves in the pending treaty limiting nuclear tests are the strange arguments being made urging its ratification.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, who represent the military judgment on which the security of the country is customarily based, say frankly that they have had their doubts but that, on the whole, they now think the disadvantages in ratifying the treaty are outweighed by the advantages. They insist, however, that the United States not only carry on a vigorous program of underground testing but that it stay ready on short notice to resume atmospheric testing if the Soviets abrogate the treaty.

LAWRENCE

All this is difficult for the average person to understand, and many members of Congress have wondered whether political pressure has been applied to persuade the Joint Chiefs to support the treaty. In fact, in a Senate committee hearing this week, the question was asked if the Joint Chiefs responded to "pressure." This was emphatically denied. But the mere raising of the question indicates that in the backs of the minds of some senators is a feeling that the high military officers do not dare to incur disfavor. Indeed, recently a Chief of Naval Operations was not reappointed and, while it was denied that he was punished for expressing his views before Congress on a controversial issue, the idea prevails that he did disagree with the administration and paid the penalty.

THE CAMPAIGN to get the treaty ratified is typical of what happens when a political issue is involved, but it is not characteristic of the kind of discussion that, usually takes place when purely military matters are being considered. It is doubtful whether any high military man would venture openly to question the wisdom of ratifying the nuclear-test treaty.

Another puzzling development is the attitude of the nuclear scientists. While a large number favor ratification, it is significant that Dr. Edward Teller, often referred to as the "father of the hydrogen bomb," is vehement in his opposition. Efforts are being made by the administration to poohpooh his objections as of secondary importance, but his testimony — just published — has served to increase the doubts prevalent on Capitol Hill.

Dr. Teller says that testing in the atmosphere is important in order to catch up with the techniques in which the Soviets are ahead of the United States. He says that nuclear explosions in the air are the key to developing missile defenses. If the Soviets feel they are at an advantage, they can threaten attack and gain political concessions by such a threat. They could invade small countries at will, knowing they would not be risking war with the United States. So, Dr. Teller insists, tests in the atmosphere and in outer space are absolutely essential to America's future safety.

There is considerable speculation as to why the Moscow government reversed its previous decisions and suddenly decided to go ahead with a plan it had earlier rejected. It is suggested that the Soviet experts may be planning someday to mount a mock attack by, say, 500 missiles high over Russia and counter the attack with a display of their anti-missile defense system. Dr. Teller thinks they might even invite American experts to watch the test. If the test happened to fail, the Russians would have lost only the treaty, but he thinks that, if the scheme worked, they would then be able to say: "Now, you see we have an excellent defense and can absorb any attack you can send against us. There is the proof. Now please do this and that, etc."

On this point alone—inhibiting U.S. development of a missile defense—Dr. Teller feels the treaty is dangerous to the United States.

Secretary of Defense McNamara feels that America possesses the power of a devastating retaliatory attack that could destroy Russia. America can rely on that potential power, however, only as long as the Soviets do not develop a system whereby missiles from the United States or its bases on land or water are intercepted and nuclear materials are disintegrated in flight. That's the true worry of the scientists who disagree about approving any treaty while it halts testing in the atmosphere.

* * * *

AS FOR FEARS of "fallout," testimony has been given that these claims have been exaggerated and that the radioactive substances which drop from the air after nuclear tests have not been anywhere near the maximum limits at which the nuclear "fallout" becomes dangerous to mankind.

So the whole issue is far from clear, and probably many weeks of debate in the Senate will ensue before final action is taken.

Turks Stuck With Bill for Big 'Tom Dewey' Steel Mill

ISTANBUL—The Inonu administration in Turkey is not happy about the big "Tom Dewey" steel mill it's getting from the United States. It's called the Tom Dewey mill because the former Governor of New York got a legal fee of $150,000 for helping to negotiate the deal.

PEARSON

The present Turkish government can't do much about the steel mill — because it involves the United States and highly placed former officials of the Eisenhower administration who OK'd a huge $129,600,000 loan to build the mill at Eregli.

This loan—one of the biggest in Development Loan Fund history—was extended by the DLF under the Eisenhower administration when Vance Brand was its director. Immediately after retiring from the loan fund, Brand went to work for the Koppers Company, one of the firms which benefits most from the Turkish steel mill.

The three American firms building the huge Turkish project are: Blaw-Knox, which is manufacturing the rolling mills; Koppers, which is doing the engineering and ordering the equipment; and Westinghouse.

Vance Brand, retired as director of the Development Loan Fund at the end of the Eisenhower administration and after extending the huge loan for the Turkish steel mill, then promptly blossomed out as a consultant for Koppers. From a modestly paid government servant he has become a tycoon, has been elected a director of Koppers.

Brand made several trips to Turkey while director of the Development Loan Fund, the last one being on Jan. 9, 1961, 11 days before Ike left office, at which time Brand participated in a celebration of the start of the new project.

Koppers, Westinghouse, and Blaw-Knox all work together in Pittsburgh, and in close cooperation with the Mellons, who are big contributors to the Republican party; also with the Hanna interests, whose top executive, George Humphrey, was Secretary of the Treasury under Eisenhower.

Today, in Turkey, the Inonu government is finding that the steel mill will cost almost double the $129,600,000 development loan.

It also notes that just across the Aegean Sea Greece is constructing a steel mill, plus an oil refinery and a petro-chemical plant, with private capital—$160,000,000—thanks to the initiative of Tom Pappas of Boston and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

EVERY summer and fall a delegation of congressmen, with wives, treks through Turkey and Greece on U. S. MATS planes, spends counterpart funds drawn from the U. S. consul or embassy, buys beautiful presents at the Istanbul bazaar, and frequently sends them home through the diplomatic pouch — all at the taxpayers' expense.

Meanwhile, the wives of American Air Force personnel, Army officers, and diplomats are anchored in one place for two years at a time. They cannot use government planes.

If You Go Near Sacramento, Get Firm Grip on Your Wallet

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Legislative battle lines are re-forming over several of the issues that caused fur to fly at the 1963 session.

The Brown administration already has dropped the word it will seek a countywide school equalization measure at the 1964 budget session. A withholding tax collection system and a death penalty moratorium, two other controversial proposals that bit the dust at the 1963 session, also are expected to come up for another vote by the 1965 session.

McCAULEY

The Brown administration didn't even wait for tempers to cool from the hot 1963-summer special session before plumping for the countywide school equalization plan again.

Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, acting governor, announced that the 1964 campaign is in the works on equalization when he signed the special-session bill for another $50 million in school aid.

Said Anderson: "It is urgent that the method of distributing state aid to districts be reformed before any further increases are granted . . .

"The state must fulfill this responsibility by insisting that distribution reforms—the most important of which is countywide equalization—be enacted before new aid increases are made."

The administration plan is to soak the rich school district by giving it a smaller share of state aid. The additional funds made available would go to poorer districts.

Anderson and others are attempting to sell the soak-the-rich-district concept by implying that equalization can be accomplished without any additional funds.

In a two-page press release on educational financing, Anderson says: "If we can get these reforms enacted—and I am confident we can with the help of education groups, district officials and parents—the way will then be clear to make further increases in state aid to education from funds already available for that purpose."

The statement is misleading.

LONG BEACH Unified School District figured it would suffer a net loss if a Los Angeles County equalization program went into effect under the proposed 1963 ground rules. That means that Long Beach taxes probably would have been raised to make up for the loss.

The result: Long Beach taxpayers would wind up footing the bill for school programs elsewhere.

But the concept of raiding Long Beach and other urban areas for funds is a popular one these days in Sacramento. Long Beach also had a narrow brush with a proposal to penalize Long Beach Unified School District for the federal funds it receives for educating the children of federal employes. That provision finally was beaten after a round of legislative battles.

* * * *

IF YOU DRIVE to Sacramento from Long Beach these days, better keep both hands on your pocket book and both eyes on proposed new legislation.

Robin Hood was considered a bandit when he stole under the guise of giving to the poor. In Sacramento they no longer call it banditry. The new term: equalization.

Let's Put Blame Where It Belongs

EDITOR:

In a recent letter R. G. Palmer complained that our Long Beach busines men contributed to unemployment because they buy foreign made products.

Let's face some cold facts and put the blame for much of our unemployment where it belongs, right in the laps of the unionists. Strike after strike for higher wages have raised the cost of production and prices. Hence our export trade has been dropping steadily and our importations are increasing because people with common sense buy what, where and when they can buy the cheapest.

The way to correct the mistakes the unionists have made is to teach our workers to create more salable goods at less cost. Then more people will have jobs because we will sell more of what Americans produce.

Lenin's Prediction Coming True

EDITOR:

There is much talk and discussion about Communism today, and I believe that it would be a good idea to trace the early history of the movement.

The first organization of note with the ideas which we now call Marxism was a group called the "Illuminati" which was founded by a man named Adam Weisharyst in a German university. The organization called for three basic things: abolition of private property, destruction of religion and abolition of patriotism and nationalism. The Jacobins of France were part of this movement.

Marx put these ideas into writing and other groups met in Switzerland in the late 1890's to carry out this world scheme which this small, but powerful and wealthy group was out to put in practice. The money and many of the revolutionaries who were to accomplish the Bolshevik conquest of Russia came from the United States and were channeled through Germany during World War I.

Today we are faced with a world which has been about half taken over by these conspirators and with a policy which is based on weakness and appeasement, we may find the conquest of the world by them in the 1970's, just as Lenin predicted. There is still time, but it will soon be too late if we don't soon wake up and do something about it.

U.S. Should Stop, Look and Listen

EDITOR:

The citizens of the United States might be wise to stop, look and listen before urging the signing of any paper with Russia's Nikita Khrushchev.

A report on Aug. 3 from Miami, Fla., stated, as reported by refugees from Cuba, that over 200 men, women and children had been killed by poison gas as used by Castroite troops commanded by Russian officers.

Also the refugees reported that in the Escambray Mountains in Las Villas Province the Russians had ordered gas attacks on the guerillas hiding there.

We supposed there was a law against the use of poison gas in any part of the world, but here again law and order makes little difference to Nikita Khrushchev.

Canadian Liked IBC, Hospitality

EDITOR:

As one of the 250,000 people and a visitor in your midst who lined the route to watch your 12th annual International Beauty Congress parade, I was thrilled and much surprised to see such an event take 3½ hours, run off so smoothly and without mishap. Great credit should be given to the IBC officials in charge, and more especially to the officers and police of Long Beach for their courtesy and help.

I have visited many places and have yet to find the cleanliness, friendliness and hospitality I encountered in Long Beach. This is better publicity than your Chamber of Commerce could give. This was our second consecutive visit to California in two years. We visited Disneyland which is something out of this world.

We take back happy memories of an enjoyable holiday well spent in Long Beach.

DATING L.B. HISTORY
A Diamond Jubilee Feature

October, 1542 — Cabrillo, the Spanish explorer, sailed into the Catalina channel. He and his men visited Santa Catalina Island and later came close to the mainland. They saw "many smokes" believed now to have risen from fires set by Indians to facilitate rabbit drives. They called San Pedro Harbor Bahia de los Fumos, "Bay of Smokes."

1771 — San Gabriel Mission was founded. The Mission for many years exercised loose control over Indians who resided in great numbers in the present-day Long Beach area.

1784 — The governor of Spanish California granted to one Manuel Nieto a vast area from the sea to the mountains, including the land on which Long Beach and surrounding cities later developed.

Military, Civilian Officials Urge Pact Signing

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy will abrogate the limited nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia and Britain "overnight" if the Soviet Union violates it in any way. He also will order prompt resumption of U. S. atmospheric tests.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave this ironclad pledge under oath to three congressional committees last week as the pact banning all except underground tests began a tortuous ratification journey through the U. S. Senate.

* * * *

RUSK CONCEDED the treaty may contain marginal risks. But he said the greatest risk was the continued nuclear weapons race with Russia. He also conceded that Moscow might breach it if that served its own ends. But he said Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and his colleagues had "looked into the pit of the inferno" in the Cuban missile crisis last fall and saw for the first time that "nuclear war is an operational matter."

"In this," Rusk added, "you don't play the game called 'chicken' with the lives of millions of people around the world."

As to preparations for weapons tests, he said they could proceed under the treaty "up to the point of explosion itself." Nor, he said, would peaceful atomic projects be hampered.

Rusk and other administration witnesses, including Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and the heads of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Atomic Energy Commission, were under firm injunction by the President to answer publicly or behind closed doors every question posed by senators. This was to prove there was nothing to conceal in or behind the treaty.

* * * *

SO THOROUGHLY did the Kennedy team arm itself against inevitable questions, that only a handful of dissidents seemed dissatisfied. Among these was Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

McNamara did more than Rusk to ease the senatorial minds. He said top military leaders were fully consulted on the test-ban negotiations. Then he electrified the legislators by declaring the United States has "tens of thousands" of atomic warheads ready for delivery, is manifestly superior to Russia in nuclear power, and would risk little in ratifying the treaty.

McNamara minimized the military worth of the Soviet Union's 100-megaton H-bomb as opposed to the vast number of smaller American bombs "which can be launched with precision." He said the United States would pursue underground tests—two of which were conducted in Nevada last week—and will stay at peak readiness to resume other tests which the treaty would outlaw.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the AEC, said the U. S. would be able to continue weapons development, including warheads for missile defense, and that AEC laboratories would be "in a state of readiness" at all times to resume atmospheric testing. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said the joint chiefs were agreed that the pact was "compatible" with U. S. security interests. He denied there had been any "arm-twisting" to bring them into line.

The strongest dissenting voice came from Dr. Edward A. Teller, "father" of the H-bomb, whose testimony was heavily censored. He warned of "military disadvantages" and asserted the treaty "cannot be completely policed" and would impede development of U.S. missile defenses. This last was challenged by McNamara.

* * * *

IN GENEVA, the United States also announced it was ready to accept a Soviet proposal that East and West exchange ground observation posts to reduce the risk of surprise attack, provided Russian conditions are canceled. But Rusk told a press conference that he does not see any across-the-boards settlement with Moscow on the broad range of cold war disputes.

The Canadian government finally agreed to accept U.S. nuclear warheads for its plane and missile defense bases—an issue that had toppled the Diefenbaker regime. The warheads will remain in American or NATO custody after stockpiles are established.

The United States and Russia agreed meanwhile on a joint program of experiments with weather and communications satellites starting next year and to contribute satellite information to a world magnetic survey in 1965. The program was first proposed at Geneva in June, 1962.

A SIZABLE federal tax cut loomed for all Americans if the House and Senate will go along. The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee voted to cut income tax an average of 20 percent starting Jan. 1—though this would be offset in some brackets by fewer legal deductions.

The Federal Reserve Board reported meanwhile that industrial production picked up enough steam in July to cancel out a steel industry slowdown and show a slight gain. And the Labor Department reported that non-farm employment in July jumped to 56.6 million, the sixth consecutive month of improvement.

In other news spheres the State Department reported that the U. S. Coast Guard and military planes had witnessed the "kidnaping" by Cuban authorities of 19 persons, apparently fleeing Cuban refugees, on a British island off the coast of Cuba.

Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, told the Senate that the John Birch Society and other "radical right" organizations are a deadlier threat to democracy than American Communists. He said there were nearly 1,000 such organizations "distributing wildly irresponsible literature."

For the first time in history, the State Department approved the extradition of a former head of state to face embezzlement charges in his own country. Involved was former dictator Marcos Perez Jiminez of Venezuela who once ruled with an iron hand. He is accused of looting the Venezuelan treasury of $13.5 million plus political murders. Perez had been in jail in Miami. He was turned over to Venezuelan police.

In Congress the House passed and sent to the Senate a $1.2 billion bill to provide matching grants and low-interest loans to spur the building of laboratories classrooms libraries in public as well as private colleges.

First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy went back to Hyannis Port, Mass., from Otis AFB Hospital where she had undergone surgery for the birth of her third child, Patrick, who died of a respiratory ailment. Her doctor ordered her to curtail all White House activities until after the first of the year to protect her health. Mrs. Kennedy told hospital officials she still hopes to have more children.

In New York City Navy Yeoman 1/C Nelson C. Drummond, 34-year-old Baltimore negro, was sentenced to life in prison on charges of stealing and selling classified defense documents for $24,000. Drummond was arrested in company of two Russian United Nations aides.

Laguna's Opera Season Premieres With Its 'Rigoletto' Sung in English

By RACHEL MORTON

The 1963 summer season of "Festival of Opera" opened auspiciously at the Irvine Bowl in Laguna Beach Friday evening with a performance of "Rigoletto" by Verdi, sung in English.

The opera was repeated Saturday night, and next Friday and Saturday "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart will be given. The season will close with three performances of "Madame Butterfly" on Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

* * * *

IT IS a most commendable effort on the part of Laguna's musical elite to produce a second season of grand opera and to present it sung in English. The distinguished and enthusiastic audience attested its appreciation.

When I noted how moved was the audience by the emotional scenes in the opera, I was convinced for all time that opera sung in English is what makes an audience in our country really enjoy a performance, because then, at long last, they know what it is all about.

Eugene Ober, musical director, conducted a large and excellent orchestra with good control, but with not much fire. The men's chorus was outstandingly fine in balance and tone quality. The sets of the first act were lavish, as befitted a duke's palace, with two armored figures in opposite niches of the stage and strolling couples on an upper gallery an innovation. The costumes were rich in color and texture.

But an opera is only as good as its leading singers and in this respect there was great disparity of talent.

By far the finest performance was given by Norma Lynn as Gilda. She will be remembered here in Long Beach for her beautiful singing at first Pops Concert.

* * * *

IT WAS announced in the program notes that this was Miss Lynn's first appearance in a leading operatic role. In that case, she is destined to go far. She has beauty, a limpid voice of lovely quality and exceptional acting ability. After her singing of "Dearest Name" (Caro Nome) the show stopped for a long ovation.

Possessed of a sympathetic baritone voice, Calvin Marsh as Rigoletto gave a sincere portrayal, if not a forceful one.

John Crain, on the other hand had a ringing tenor voice that soared dramatically in the aria, "Women Are Frivolous" and in the famous quartet. As a philandering duke who was supposed to be irresistible to the ladies, his stage presence left something to be desired.

* * * *

BUT John Arnold Ford as the wicked Sparafucile combined both a magnificent bass voice with fine dramatic acting and his excellent English diction got across the footlights—every word. Remembered for his fine achievements of the past, John Gurney was a convincing and handsome Count Monterone, albeit the once-glorious bass voice has lost much of its luster. As the flirtatious Maddelena, Kathleen deSpain went "all out" in her acting, but her singing seemed colorless.

There was dancing in the first act by young people that was charming.

Africans Riot

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — Police used tear gas to break up a procession of 2,000 to 3,000 Africans who refused to dispense Saturday after a political meeting. The gas was used when police officers were stoned by the crowd.

Pair Still Partners in Retirement

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Two members of the county assessor's office who have been doing things together for more than 50 years just retired together.

Edward J. Blickfeldt of Inglewood and Fred Jones of Los Angeles grew up together in Kemmerer, Wyo. They enlisted together in 1917 on the day World War I was declared. After the war, they moved to Los Angeles within a few days of one another.

Although they went into different lines of work, they maintained their friendship. In 1939, after working both as a printer and newspaperman, Blickfeldt joined the assessor's office. In the early 1930s, Jones joined the tax collector's division. He transferred to the assessor's office in 1945.

Unimart Signs Retail Clerks' 4-Year Contract

Some 200 members of the Retail Clerks Union Local 324 are working under a new four-year contract signed Saturday with Unimart discount stores.

The stores are in Long Beach and Norwalk.

The contract calls for wage increases during the first year ranging from 5 to 17½ cents per hour with automatic pay hikes of no less than 7½ cents each year thereafter.

Local 324 has 10,000 members working in the Long Beach, Southeast Los Angeles and Orange County areas.

Family Outings Offered

The city's busy program of "end-of-summer" family fun will continue this week at school and park playgrounds, according to Dale Hoskin, director of recreation, along with more group summer picnics.

Today the Pennsylvania State Society holds its picnic at Bixby Park and that of the Catholic Naval League will also be held in the same park. Next Sunday the Missouri State Society will picnic in Bixby.

Recreation Director Hoskin points out that the playgrounds family-fun programs often include an opportunity for active participation by parents in such games as softball, volleyball or table games, usually held in the early evening. Often, he said, a picnic or covered dish affair is scheduled for later in the day.

An indoor program is a part of some of the events, including community singing and demonstrations by the children of the various playground activities.

The director listed this week's "end-of-summer" events as follows:

Monday, Signal Hill Playground at 7 p.m.; Tuesday, Fremont Playground at 6:30 p.m., Kettering at 7 p.m., Lee at 6:30 p.m., Sutter at 7 p.m., Burcham at 7:30 p.m. and Holmes at 7 p.m.; Wednesday, Barton at 6:30 p.m., Burnett at 7 p.m., Burroughs at 8:30 p.m., Henry at 3 p.m., Mann at 6:30 p.m., Los Cerritos at 7 p.m., Willard at 7:30 p.m. and Kidd at 1 p.m.; Thursday, Lafayette at 7 p.m., El Dorado at 7:30 p.m., Webster 10 p.m., Stearns at 7 p.m., Houghton at 7:30 p.m., Coolidge at 6:30 p.m., Whaley at 7 p.m., Tucker at 7 p.m. and Prisk at 6:30 p.m.

Hoskin advised residents to contact the playground they with to attend to see if a game or picnic is planned. Directors at schools can not be reached by phone, he said.

ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI

She's Gal Who Can Say 'No!'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—"I'm one of very few actresses," said spunky little Anna Maria Alberghetti "who could retire tomorrow and just never work any more.

"But if I retired what would I do? I don't know how to keep house, or even how to fry eggs."

It was around midnight and Anna was demonstrating that she is still one of our busiest stars even if she hasn't been on Broadway for a while. She was getting a permanent from a hairdresser working out of an apartment. She was due in Boston to open in "West Side Story" and in between the New York rehearsals for that show, and the permanent, she had been talking to David Merrick about a new B'way show, "Roman Holiday."

"I'm funny in that I believe that waiting for the right part is worthwhile. I can sing in nightclubs, I can do television or I can do nothing.

* * * *

"IF ANYBODY says you can't save a dime because of taxes, they're lying! I have stocks, I have land, I have 400 head of cattle. I'm not a tycoon but I can read a script and say 'No.'

"And it's not that I'm stingy. But we've seen people starve, we've seen pianos traded for a few pounds of flour . . . during the war. Every time I hear a scream now I go white. You see, when my father died, I became head of the family. I was the one who had to take the reins."

Anna Maria said she was not a show-off.

"I have one car, a Mercedes. I bought my brother a Fiat. You knew my sister Carla got married—she beat me to it.

"Now she takes her work as of second importance. I can't. I hope to God the day will come when I can. She doesn't have the drive I have. And I think she's happier than I am because she doesn't have the drive."

* * * *

ANNA MARIA, at 30, is back with her old beau Claudio Guzman, the director, but she said: "Still my work comes first, my work has given me great satisfaction. But maybe if the right man would walk in . . ."

It would surprise nobody to see Anna Maria working again for David Merrick, with whom she battled in "Carnival." They were haggling over a new contract and Merrick said that her understudy, Anita Gillette, who stepped in, was better.

"But we became friends again, and we could work together again. Because he needs talent, and I need a bright producer."

Fractured Flickers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Zany Jay Ward has taken old silent movies and given them new dialogue and will hit the nation with them this fall under the title "fractured flickers."

For instance, John Barrymore as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be portrayed as a soda jerk.

LOOK MA, CAVITIES

This camel seems to have been in the wrong dental group at some oasis. But he will be in the right group when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus opens Wednesday in the Long Beach Arena. Two daily performances are set for the circus daily through Aug. 25.

'La Ronde' Is Saucy at the Off-Broadway

By BUCK LANIER

Saucy, sometimes splendid sex, sent the Off-Broadway Theater's audience home happy Friday night.

The offering was Arthur Schnitzler's controversial and famous "La Ronde," or Merry Go Round.

Set in Vienna in the 19th century, the delightful offering was highlighted by the directing and acting of David Emmes, drama director at Long Beach City College.

It continues tonight at 8:30 and for four weeks—Thursday through Sunday nights.

The actors take you on a sometimes sobering but mostly joyful journey through social stratasex in 10 scenes.

Emmes as the husband is at best in his seduction scenes of his wife, Marlene Silverstein and a young miss, Pamela Dunlap.

The cast's overall enthusiasm, sly dialogue and stage action make for a fine two hours.

White House Library Books Chosen by Panel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scholars and librarians have finally decided after a year of study what books will go into the White House library.

James T. Babb, Yale University's librarian and overseer of the project, has settled on 1,780 titles in almost 2,600 volumes.

Babb was chosen to direct the project by the First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy.

He had the assistance of two renowned historians, Lyman Butterfield of Boston, editor of the Adams Papers, and Julian Boyd of Princeton University, editor of the Jefferson Papers, among others.

* * * *

THE COLLECTION will include Amreicans of every period, style and point of view, from George Washington to James Thurber. Subjects include history, literaure, society, geography, science, sports, religion, folklore, music, art, politics and journalism.

Approximately 400 of the books are already on the shelves of the library on the ground floor of the White House. As is in the case with most of the White House furnishings and art, the rest will have to be donated.

President Kennedy himself appears twice on the list of chosen books. He made it with "Profiles in Courage" and "The Strategy of Peace."

* * * *

HIS OPPONENT in the 1960 presidential campaign, Richard M. Nixon, also made the list with "Six Crises." Three former presidents, Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, are representented with their memoirs.

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, reportedly bounded on and off the list like a table tennis ball but finally made it with "The Enemy Within." This is the story of the Senate Rackets Committee's investigation into improper activities in labor and management. The attorney general served as counsel to the committee.

City Councilman R. E. (Pat) Corbett, 'Y' board chairman, said the $1 pancake dinner party is being staged to give North Long Beach residents an opportunity to inspect 'Y' facilities, "because I think many of them may not be aware of what the organization has to offer."

EMERGENCY AID PROGRAM

Ambulance Plans 'Satisfactory'

By DON BRACKENBURY
I, P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The county's emergency aid program, under which ambulance and hospital service is provided by private facilities under contract, is "effective and satisfactory," according to L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

Hollinger expects to give such a report Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors in answer to a request earlier this month.

The relatively few complaints received over the emergency service is a good indication of its efficiency, Hollinger said.

* * * *

FROM JULY 1961 to July 1963, there were 33 complaints officially lodged against ambulance companies and 38 against contract hospitals. All were investigated by the Department of Charities.

Fifteen of the 33 complaints against ambulance firms and 21 of those against hospitals were proved groundless, Hollinger reported. A number of other complaints were justified, but there were "reasonable explanations" for the difficulties, his report indicated.

In the 13 cases where the ambulance firms were found at fault and the 10 cases where the hospitals at fault, corrective actions were taken, Hollinger said.

* * * *

A POLL of the sheriff's 13 station commanders, who are the primary users of the Emergency Aid Program, indicated reactions ranging from "good" to "outstanding," said Hollinger.

Operators belonging to the Southern California Ambulance Service have expressed satisfaction with what they call "the finest program of its kind operated any place in the nation," according to the report.

The Emergency Air plan was put into effect in Los Angeles County July 1, 1947. It originally was administered by the Sheriff's Department, but since 1951 has been under the direction of the Department of Charities.

The county has contracts for emergency service with 27 private ambulance companies and their branch stations and with 55 private hospitals, clinics and aid stations throughout the county.

* * * *

AS PART of the program, 53 cities contract with the county for emergency ambulance service.

Actual expenditure for the program in 1961-62, Hollinger reported, was $190,506 for hospital service and $185,604 for ambulance service. Persons given aid under the program are billed for the costs, except that the county pays the entire cost for indigents.

Contract cities paid $81,362, or 43.8 percent, of the total cost of the emergency ambulance program in 1961-63.

Average response time — that is, the time it takes to get a person to the hospital after the first call for aid — is less than 20 minutes, according to the report. The majority of the county's population is within an average of five miles from an emergency hospital or ambulance service.

* * * *

HOLLINGER said his only recommendations are that the Department of Charities be given formal responsibility for overall administration of the program; that the sheriff, when requested, provide statistical and background information on level of service and that the county-city section of Hollinger's office serve as liaison representative in negotiations with contract cities.

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to adopt these recommendations.

Sandy 1st to Win 19 in Majors

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

NEW YORK—The New York Mets managed to come up with two runs on some ninth-inning dramatics Saturday, but three Dodger home runs were enough to give Sandy Koufax his 19th victory, 3-2, a high-water mark in the majors.

Ron Perranoski saved the Dodgers' eighth win in 14 games on this trip by striking out ex-teammates Tim Harkness and Duke Snider for the final outs. Coupled with San Francisco's loss, the Dodgers now lead by five games.

Koufax, in achieving the highest win total of his career, shut out the Mets on four singles through the first eight innings and entered the final round with a 42-inning scoreless streak against the NL tailenders.

Sandy's bid for a major league record of 11 shutouts by a lefthander was ruined, however, on his first pitch in the ninth inning. Ron Hunt drilled it into the right-field seats for his seventh home run.

When Frank Thomas followed with a single, manager Walter Alston figured Koufax had had it and called on Bob Miller to face Jim Hickman. Miller accomplished his job by getting Hickman to hit the ball on the ground but second baseman Dick Tracewski failed in his and the Dodgers were deprived of a double play.

* * * *

TRACEWSKI, who entered as part of the defensive platoon in the ninth, missed touching second base while taking Jim Gilliam's throw from third, but his relay to first was in time to nip Hickman.

Perranoski entered when Harkness was announced as a pinch-hitter for Norm Sherry. Harkness looked at the third strike.

Tracewski next redeemed himself by making a hit-saving play on Duke Carmel's bouncer behind first base, but Ron Fairly juggled the throw and did not have possession when Carmel crossed the bag. Meanwhile, Al Jackson, running for Thomas, made it to third and scored when Perranoski's first pitch to Snider was in the dirt and bounced to the backstop.

Snider went down swinging with the tying run at second base and 21,841 of the New Breed customers screaming as if this were a World Series.

* * * *

PERRANOSKI'S save was his 12th of the year to go with 13 wins and only two defeats. He was working for the third day in a row and for the 49th time this year, thus proving conclusively that he is far from worn out.

Koufax, too, dispelled rumors of arm tiredness as he struck out nine Mets and became stronger with each inning until Hunt homered. Koufax registered eight of his strikeouts in the last five innings.

Frank Howard, John Roseboro and Wally Moon were the home run heroes for the Dodgers, who were winning their third in a row. Each connected against loser Tracy Stallard (6-11), who gave up six hits in his eight innings.

Howard hit his 21st homer

'HELLO, YOU RAT' --BRIAN

SEATTLE (AP) — Paralyzed Brian Sternberg had a visit Saturday from two of the world's great pole vaulters and for one, he had this greeting, softened by a delighted grin:

"Congratulations, you rat," he told John Pennel.

World record holder Pennel and John Uelses, first man to top 16 feet by pole propulsion, were the visitors. Doctors allowed them half an hour with Sternberg, paralyzed in a trampoline accident this summer just before he was to accompany the United States track team to Moscow for its meet with Russia.

Uelses replaced him and won the vault in Moscow.

FORMER RAM WILSON RIPS OFF NINE YARDS

BAKER'S PRO DEBUT RUINED

Vikes Crush Rams, 27-3

By JERRY WYNN

Big-hearted Norm Van Brocklin had a belly laugh on the Rams Saturday night as he watched his Minnesota Vikings register a 27-3 victory before a crowd of 42,966 at the Coliseum.

The garrulous Minnesota coach, who had proposed to start his rookie quarterback star, Ron VanderKelen, didn't even let him into the exhibition game even though the Rams played their ace rookie, Terry Baker, for a full three quarters.

Baker proved as an exciting performer as advertised. He completed 8 of 14 of his southpaw passes, and made one fine run of 16 yards. His debut was marred by two interceptions which quelled Ram drives.

However, it was an interception of a pass thrown by Jon Arnett which broke open a close game early in the fourth quarter. With the Rams trailing 10-3 and driving deep into Viking territory, the Arnett areial was picked off by a charging Minnesota tackle and returned 68 yards to the Ram 5.

The Vikings soon scored, and added 10 more points late in the game—the final seven on a 64-yard run by ex-Ram Tom Wilson.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, always a Ram nemesis, paced the Viking attack with 11-of-17 completions for 204 yards and one touchdown.

For the Rams, Arnett—playing in place of a flu-weakened Dick Bass—was impressive with 62 yards gained in 11 carries. But the Rams inability to score even one touchdown against one of the weaker defensive clubs in the league, bodes only trouble for the future.

How the game unfolded:

FIRST QUARTER

Vikings 7, Rams 0: A 28-yard touchdown pass from Tarkenton to flashy halfback Bob Reed gave Minnesota first blood with 12:45 elapsed. Reed was the lonesomest man in the Coliseum as he gathered in the pigskin on the Ram 8 with nary a defender 10 yards near him.

The play, a swing-and-up in which a Ram linebacker was guilty of not dropping back on the receiver, capped a 73-yard drive by the Vikings in only four plays. Tarkenton had passed to Bill Brown for 14 and Oscar Donahue for 29. Fred Cox kicked the conversion.

Minnesota had another advance which ended on a missed 23-yard field goal by Cox and an 87-yard touchdown punt return by Bill Butler which was blown dead at the start by a clipping penalty.

SECOND QUARTER

Vikings 7, Rams 3: On the second play of the quarter, Charlie Britt intercepted a Tarkenton toss and returned it 15 yards to the Viking 40.

A cheer greeted Baker as the prize rookie took over at quarterback for the Rams. Keeping the ball on the ground, the Rams made one first down on a nine-yard run by Arnett to the 30. But with a fourth-and-2 on the 22, Danny Villanueva was called in to boot a 29-yard field goal which was perfect.

Baker's second series of downs was one for the comic books. With the ball on the Viking 39, Terry twisted through the Viking secondary on a 16-yard run only to have the play called back on a clipping penalty on Jim Phillips.

* * * *

ON THE second play, Baker passed for the first time and hit Adams perfectly at the goal line only to have Adams drop the ball. But that play, too, was called back on a holding penalty.

Now from the Ram 37, Baker tried a pass to Arnett which also ended up in a penalty for the Rams when Arnett ran out of bounds and then on the playing field in pursuit of the ball.

The Rams had one more threat late in the quarter when Arnett gained 24 yards to the Vikings 30. It ended on an interception of a Baker pass by Tom Franckhauser.

THIRD QUARTER

Vikings 10, Rams 3: After the Rams produced a goal-line stand by holding the Vikings without gain on three tries from the Ram 2, Minnesota settled for a nine-yard field goal by Cox.

The Vikings had marched from their own 44. Key plays were a 30-yard pass from Tarkenton to Jerry Reichow, an 11-yard run by Reed and a successful fourth-

Peterson Errors Aid Roswell Win

By JOHN CASH

Peterson Post, hamstrung by its own errors, was knocked from the unbeaten ranks in the American Legion West Coast Regional baseball playoffs at Blair Field Saturday night.

Roswell, New Mexico, parlayed only six hits with three Peterson errors good for four unearned runs and a 5-2 victory before a crowd of 2,487—largest attendance in the three days of play.

Errors by Jerry Martin and Jerry Flynn enabled Roswell to cut the margin to 2-1 in the fourth, and two walks, a two-base throwing error and two singles gave the New Mexico club a permanent 4-2 cushion after five frames.

The last run came on a triple by Julian Guerra and a single by Tim Whalen in the eighth inning off Ed Clapp, who allowed only one run after relieving Flynn in the fifth.

Peterson's runs in the third came on a single by Richard Dash, a double by Flynn and a single by Oscar Brown. Martin tripled to open the ninth, but that was Peterson's only other threat.

Crewman! Who's He?

Travers Jolts 3-Year-Olds

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Racing's 3-year-old division was thrown into utter confusion Saturday when George D. Widener's Crewman humbled the so-called Big Three and ran off with the $81,400 Travers Stakes before the biggest crowd in Saratoga's history.

The fact that the first three finishers in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes—the hallowed Triple Crown—were competing in the race made no difference to Crewman, who never competed in any of those blue ribbon events.

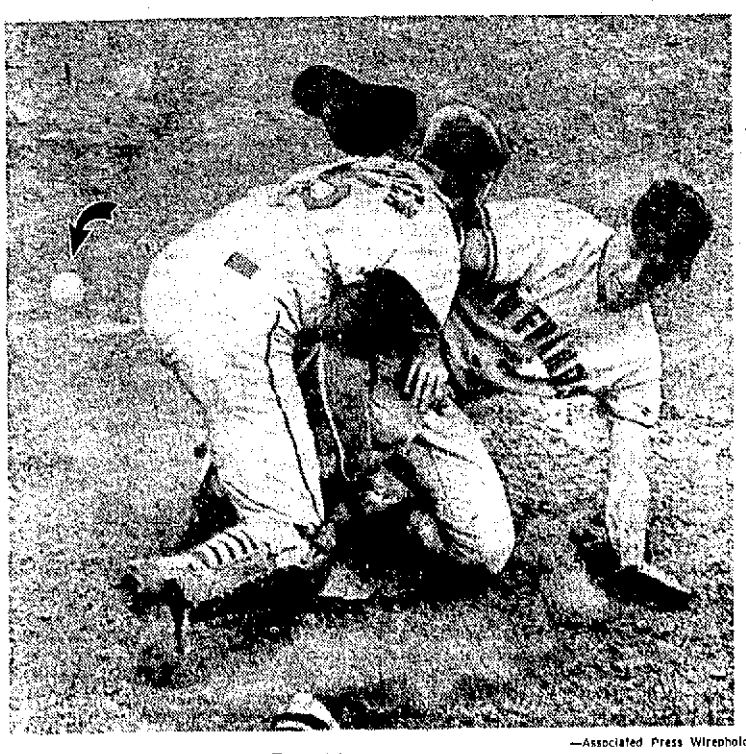

Behind him and thoroughly beaten at the finish was Chateaugay, winner of the Derby and Belmont, and Candy Spots, who took the Preakness and is the year's biggest money-winning thoroughbred.

* * * *

CREWMAN flashed home 1½ lengths in front of another outsider, Mrs. Alfred J. Giordano's Hot Dust. Darby Dan's Chateaugay staggered home third, a length back of Hot Dust, and 2½ lengths ahead of Rex Ellsworth's favored Candy Spots. Never Bend, the third of the Big Three, was last.

The fourth place finish was the worst in the career for Candy Spots.

Candy Spots was bleeding from the nose when he finished. Mesh Tenney said Candy Spots was not cut, but was bleeding "from a respiratory ailment."

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Van Brocklin Mellows

Since the Yanks have clinched the American League pennant and the Dodger hysteria will resume when O'Malley's Darlings return to the neighborhood this week, let's give football a chance today.

. . . Norm Van Brocklin either is mellowing or is deeply concerned with the recent stroke of his mother in the S. F. area, but the usually fiery Minnesota Viking coach was reluctant to pass judgment on the San Francisco 49ers, which were routed 43-28 by his youngsters last weekend. "They were experimenting," he laughed, when asked if the 49ers were due for a major skid this season.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . His publicity director, John Thompson, wasn't so close-to-the-vest. "My considered opinion is that the 49ers are in for lots of trouble this year," declared Thompson. "They looked horrible against us. Something's wrong with that club this year."

. . . Thompson did point to one big red mark on the 49ers' debit side of the ledger: The loss of Bill Kilmer. (The former UCLA all-America was injured seriously in an auto accident and will be out the entire season, if not forever.) "Kilmer always came up with the big 49er play," explained Thompson. "He wasn't always great, but when the big play was needed, Kilmer came through." John also insisted that the 49ers' loss of Kilmer was as important to the Bay Area club as the absence of Alex Karras to the Detroit and Paul Hornung to Green Bay.

. . . On the subject of lost personnel, the considered opinion throughout the NFL is that Detroit will suffer much more from the ban of Karras than Green Bay will from Hornung's suspension. "Green Bay has the horses to fill in for Hornung," commented one Ram official, "but the Lions can't replace Karras. For that matter, NO team in pro football can immediately replace an all-pro lineman. The good backs aren't that difficult to find. The good linemen are few and far between."

. . . Another minus factor for Detroit this season—the "experts" insist—is that the entire team's dauber is down. The Lions still believe the fines given to other team members—including the highly-respected Joe Schmidt—were unfair. They feel their particular club was discriminated against . . . and in a sense, I can't blame them. (Schmidt and four mates were socked in the wallet by Pete Rozelle for wagers they placed on a game they viewed via television. The fines still seem harsh, but I suppose an "accessory" is just as guilty as the real culprit.)

"WATCH OUT FOR UCLA" was the warning of Thompson, who still retains a closeness to college football, even though he's departed Washington. In his coastal wanderings, Thompson heard everywhere that UCLA was the best-looking AAWU team during spring practices.

. . . In Southland sheets, all we wrote and you read was that USC not only had bigger guns than last season when it snatched the national championship, but newer ones in the form of recruited prep stars. UCLA was overlooked. I dunno. In manpower, UCLA can't approach USC. The only fault I might find with the Trojans is that they could become complacent . . . but with Willie Brown, Hal Bedsole, Pete Beathard, Mike Giers, etc., how complacent can you become to lose?

. . . Thompson reported also that Jim Owens was getting worried at Washington "because his spring recruiting was lousy." Strangely, big Jim lost a lot of his candidates to rival Washington State, the AAWU's newest member who debuted in surprisingly excellent fashion last year. (As Southlanders know, however, WSU's Jim Sutherland is no slouch when it comes to recruiting.)

. . . The Thompson report claimed that Stanford "is a team to watch because of new coach John Ralston's fantastic recruiting and traveling." Ralston's Indians may not cut too much ice this season, but look out in campaigns to come. As for Cal, Thompson could say only, "I haven't heard anything about them." (Which means, Old Blues, you're in for another long season!)

ADD VAN BROCKLIN COMMENT: "Last season I really thought every team in the Western Division—except my Vikings—had a chance to win the championship. This year I think EVERY club has a chance. I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the Rams and us in the top half, either. Our road will be tough because of youngsters, but the Rams could really sail under Harland (Svare)."

. . . Minnesota's youth is expressed pointedly in the fact that Van Brocklin's seven starting defensive secondary men boast a total of eight years' pro experience . . . about one year per person.

. . . Even in their "most improved" department, the Vikings have little experience. That would be the pass receivers. The old Ram and Trojan, Leon Clarke, gives Minnesota experience, but Northwestern's Paul Flatley and Texas' Ray Poage are raw rookies. "But they can hang onto the ball — and I'm going to work them to death," said Van Brocklin. "I'll gamble and hope they cut it this season. I know I've got two great ones in the years to come."

. . . Anti-psychologist department: The 49ers each were analyzed by a professional man before the Viking game . . . then produced their worst performance in recent years. What price "positive thinking" now?

Bunning Stifles Angels, 6-1

By KEN PIVERNETZ

It was another perplexing night for the Angels Saturday at Chavez Ravine—just as it has been for most of this next to last home stand.

Jim Bunning, who has been somewhat of a mystery himself this season, allowed the Seraphs only five hits as the Tigers took a 6-1 decision before a crowd of 7,437.

The win put Bunning's record at only 9-12 this year, but anyone who saw him work against the Angels had a hard time telling it.

Bunning was never in trouble as he allowed only three hits over the first eight innings before the Angels pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth.

Detroit took advantage of Mike Lee's wildness in his first start as an Angel to break the game wide open with four runs in the fifth inning.

Lee, a 6-5 southpaw from Maywood, was given a big bonus by the Giants in 1959, but they gave up on him after only one season when he walked 202 batters in 162 innings at Fresno while compiling a 7-19 record.

It was his first major league game in three years. He's fast—and wild.

Don Wert walked on four pitches to open the game, but was thrown out going to third on Dick McAuliffe's single. However, Al Kaline walked and after Rocky Colavito had popped out, ex-Angel George Thomas singled in McAuliffe with the game's first run.

After that Lee struggled through the next three innings, thanks to some great fielding support.

He walked two more batters in the second inning, but got Wert to hit into a double play. G. Thomas struck out and Bob Rodgers threw to third to double up Kaline an inning later.

Wert lead off the fifth by hitting a home run down the left-field line that just dropped into the stands.

With one out, Kaline walked, Colavito singled to center and Lee was finished. The other Lee (Don) wasn't much better.

Billy Bruton greeted D. Lee with a single to score Kaline and then Gus Triandos and George Smith had run producing hits to clinch the contest.

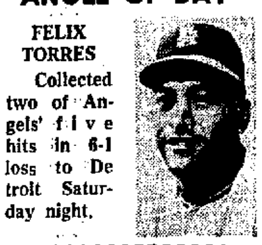

Bruton tripled with one out in the seventh off of Julio Navarro and came home on a sacrifice fly by Norm Cash to end their scoring for the night.

The Angels got base hits in the first, second and fifth innings, but Bunning had good control and struck out four and had a shutout going until two were out in the ninth.

Rodgers singled home Leon Wagner with the Seraph's only run as most of the fans filed out of the ball park.

Peters Halts Yankees on 4-Hitter, 2-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Gary Peters and third baseman Pete Ward, prime candidates for American League rookie of the year honors, combined their talents Saturday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

Peters, 26-year-old southpaw, checked the world champions' power with a four-hitter. Ward, 24, drove in both the Sox runs with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and with the second of his three successive singles in the fifth.

STARTER Al Downing took the loss, leaving him 8-4 and 1-2 against the Sox for the season. Tom Metcalf replaced him in the eighth after Mickey Mantle pinch hit for him and drew a walk, one of four Peters yielded.

MARICHAL FINED FOR THROWING AT GROAT

Musial's Hit Sinks Giants, 8-7

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pinchhitter Stan Musial singled home the winning run in the 10th inning Saturday to give the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-7 victory over San Francisco.

The Giants' ace pitcher, Juan Marichal, was fined $50 for throwing at batsman Dick Groat.

The Giants, after trailing 3-5, broke out in a rash of home runs to tie the game and then take the lead, but Bill White hit his 22nd home run with Curt Flood on base in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score.

Musial batted for relief pitcher Barney Schultz and rifled a hard grounder to left field to score Gary Kolb from second base.

Righthander Marichal was one of a series of pitchers put in by manager Alvin Dark. Marichal made Groat back away from a high inside pitch in the first inning.

Purkey Nips Old Nemesis

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Purkey, who often has had his troubles with the Chicago Cubs, drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly Saturday and got some pitching help for a 2-1 Cincinnati Reds victory over the Bruins.

First it was Bill Henry and then Al Worthington who came to Purkey's rescue when he weakened in the eighth. Joe Nuxhall finished up the ninth.

PURKEY had only a 10-14 lifetimes record against the Cubs going into the game but he fanned nine and walked only two before weakening.

Brandt Leads O's to 6-1 Win Over A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jackie Brandt supplied the offensive backing for Steve Barber's 17th victory Saturday night by lashing a 3-run homer, a double and a single to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-1 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics.

The Orioles jolted Ed Rakow for four runs in the third inning. John Powell, who also had three hits, singled in the first run and Brandt homered with Russ Snyder and Powell aboard. It was his 10th homer of the season.

The Orioles added their final two runs in the fifth. Luis Aparicio reached base on an error and moved to third on a stolen base and sacrifice. Powell drove him home with a single and scored himself on a double by Brandt.

Monbo Nabs No. 16, Cracks 3-Year Jinx

BOSTON (UPI) — Veteran righthander Bill Monbouquette pitched his 16th victory to break a three-season jinx Saturday in a 10-3 Red Sox victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Monbouquette, who went the distance for the 10th time, had won 14 games in 1960 and again in 1961 and finished with 15 victories last season.

The Boston attack included a pair of runs-batted-in for American League RBI leader Dick Stuart, who now has 87 for the season.

In-Field and Out

New York Scribes Sniping at Alston

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

NEW YORK—"That buzz you hear is the Dodgers leaning against the panic button."

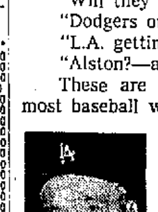

"Will they blow it again?"

"Dodgers out of step in flag march."

"L.A. getting slow hot foot from Mays."

"Alston?—ask the ex-Dodgers."

These are current headlines in New York, where most baseball writers have developed a one-track mind.

ALSTON

Perhaps the cause is from riding the subways.

More likely it is that the Dick Youngs, the Leonard Schecters and the Milt Grosses never will forgive Walter O'Malley and Horace Stoneham for pulling up stakes and leaving New York.

Walter Alston, who never dodges a question, again is dodging pot shots in the dark.

Milt Gross fired Alston in April and bet Leo Durocher would be the manager by July 4. Funny, but Gross hasn't made an appearance in the Dodger clubhouse since April 29.

MAURY ALLEN, like Gross a columnist for the N.Y. Post, renews the anti-Alston kick in an article entitled, "Alston?—ask the ex-Dodgers."

The ex-Dodgers, however, made a plea to remain anonymous, which Allen granted as "their privilege."

Said phantom No. 1: "When we saw them in Los Angeles, I asked them if they would win it. They were six games ahead. You know what one guy told me? He said the guy would find some way to lose it."

Said phantom No. 2: "Alston runs the club like a school teacher. Last year he sat everybody on little stools. Then he lectured us. He said we were taking too many Cokes out of the machine."

Perhaps the stool-sitting session was one of necessity. As I recall, there were several stool-pigeons on the club.

I'M CERTAIN, also, that Alston was "worried about stealing Cokes." He's an honest man.

Isn't it strange that those who cry loudest are afraid to lend their names to criticism?

Duke Snider, at least, has the courage of his convictions. He claims the Dodgers blew the Duke last year because Alston didn't play him during the last week.

What Snider failed to mention was his .278 batting average or his many moods. Snider played when he was good and ready to play.

Tim Harkness, who contributed a .258 average to the Dodgers' near miss, claims the club was "never loose" under Alston. "I'd like to see Casey Stengel manage the Dodgers," he said. "He knows how to keep a team loose."

It's too bad Harkness didn't worry more about that .258 average.

And it's too bad Messrs. Allen, Young, Schecter and Gross don't worry more about the Mets, Yonkers Raceway and the soccer matches at Randall's Island.

WYNN

MINOR

By JERRY WYNN

Nineteen years ago, a strong-armed lad from Wilson High paced Long Beach's Samuel Thomas Post to the State Legion baseball championship by pitching complete game victories on successive days.

This week, Harry Minor is on the scene again during the Western Regional Legion Tournament at Blair Field, but this time in the capacity of a player scout for the Milwaukee Braves.

A popular, personable 35-year-old native of Long Beach—once nicknamed Harry the Hoof for his kicking prowess as a star Wilson fullback—Minor has spent 16 years in professional baseball as a player, coach, manager and for the last three years, a scout.

How many baseball games do you see a year, Harry?

"It must be close to 300. From March through September, I sometimes go to three or four games a day, especially when there are tournaments such as this one. In the winter, it's usually two or three a week."

Do you ever go to Dodger Stadium on a "night off?"

"Yes, occasionally. It is important to keep a perspective of what you are looking for as a scout, and you can only do this by watching the major leaguers. A scout is inclined to look for too much in a boy. If a boy is 17, you have to look at him as to what he will be five years from now. It's not easy."

Are you interested in any of the players in the Legion Tournament?

"Quite a few. There is no one premium player, as we call the very outstanding boy, but Peterson has a number of boys with professional potential. Most of them have another year of high school. Looking ahead to next year, there will be plenty of scouts around Long Beach because there are four left-handed pitchers who are fine pro prospects—Bob Wiswell of Poly, the Peterson pitcher; Jim Strickland of Lakewood, Mike Small of St. Anthony and Mike Mantsch of Millikan."

Do you like the present bonus rule in baseball?

"No, none of the scouts do. It's too handicapping because you have to work so hard to sign a boy, and then there's no protecting him from being drafted by another club after a year if the major league team doesn't keep the boy on its roster.

"It also hurts the major league team to keep the boy if he needs more seasoning. Take the Dodgers. They really have a 23-man roster instead of 25. They've got to keep Dick Calmus and list Bill Haas (a bonus first baseman) among their 25 players even though Haas is with Santa Barbara. They would be much better off with Nick Willhite and Ed Roebuck."

What kind of bonus rule would you like to see?

"There should be a limit on the amount of money, say about $25,000. All the clubs would like to see this, but they are afraid the other clubs will cheat. The real important thing is that a boy should sign with the organization he likes best and with which he has the best opportunity, not the one which offers a few more dollars. No other business operates like baseball and gives out money before it is earned."

Then why did you, bidding for Milwaukee, stay practically all the way in the fantastic $175,000 race to sign Bob Bailey?

"The answer is that nobody is worth that kind of money, but the reason is the competition. You like the boy, and so do the other 19 clubs. The price is raised, and you have to compete. The only way to improve your club is to sign outstanding players."

Doesn't it cause resentment among the established major league veterans, who earn about $17,500 a year, to see a boy signed for $175,000?

"Yes, it definitely has a negative effect. But the thing a scout must be certain of is that the boy who gets that kind of money not only has the physical ability, but also the personality and the desire to be a credit to the game. Bob Bailey fits into this category."

What kind of bonus did Henry Aaron receive from the Braves?

"There was none. He was bought from the Indianapolis Clowns, a Negro team, for $10,000 in 1951. The story goes that Mr. Quinn, then the general manager of the Braves, nearly fell off his chair when the scout told him the price. But the scout insisted Aaron was worth it, and Quinn reluctantly consented to the deal."

Are little leagues good training ground for professional baseball?

"In most cases, yes. The more a boy can play baseball, the better he will be. But regardless of how much he plays, he still must have the tools. You can't train a donkey to win the Kentucky Derby."

Would you advise a boy who isn't certain major league material to continue with his schooling in college?

"The difficulty is that neither the boy or the scout can ever be certain. Normally, it is the wise decision to continue with his education."

Why should a boy sign with you, and Milwaukee, ahead of another club?

"Because we are the best organization. We're a little down in the standings now, but it won't be for long. There's plenty of opportunity for a boy with the Braves."

Are you listening, you future Spahns and Aarons? He isn't waving a fat checkbook, but the man to see is Harry Minor.

Rodriguez in Rough Win Over Moyer

Ex-Champ Stops TV Rival in Ninth

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Piston-punching Luis Rodriguez dropped Denny Moyer with clubbing rights in the eighth and ninth rounds then stopped him in the ninth round on a technical knockout Saturday night in a battle of recently deposed champions at Miami Beach Convention hall.

Referee Billy Regan called a halt to the uneven battle at 1:39 of the ninth after Moyer had gotten up glassy-eyed from his second knockdown, obviously unable to continue.

* * * *

THE CUBAN-BORN Rodriguez, gunning for another shot at the welterweight crown he lost to Emile Griffith June 8 at New York, was a big leader on all cards when he began his devastating attack in the eighth.

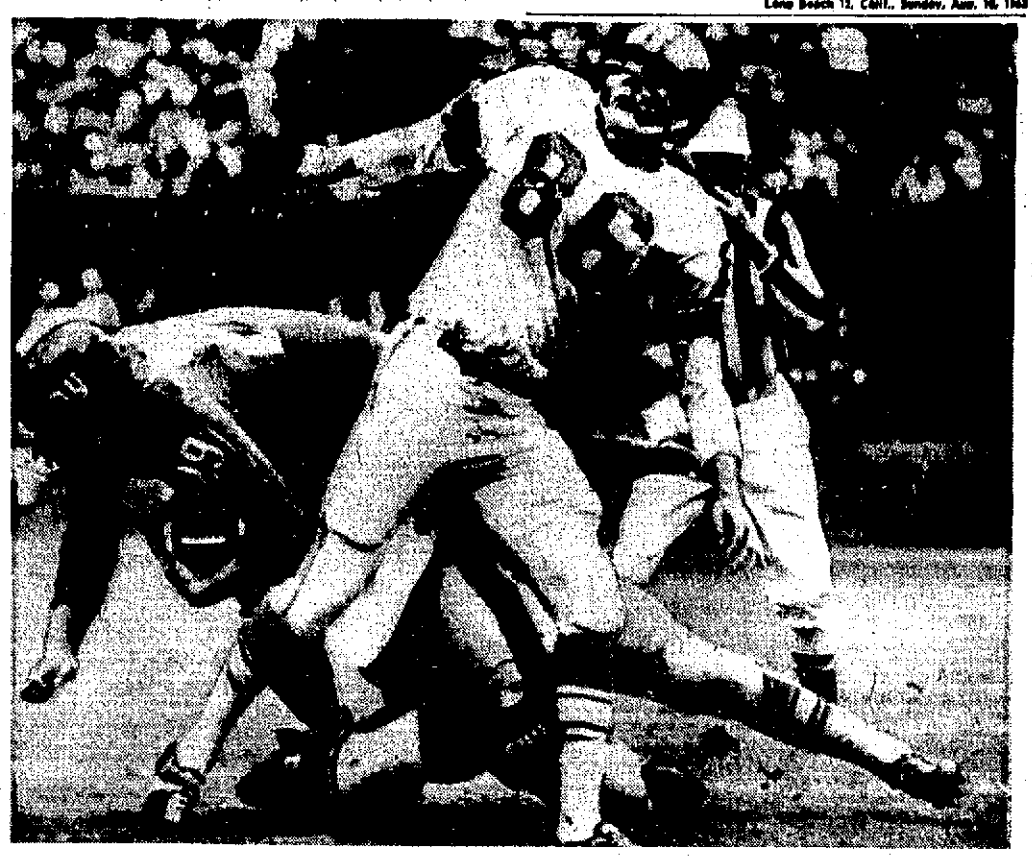

He nailed Moyer with four smashing rights to the head in the eighth, the last one sending the Portland junior middleweight down for an eight count. Moyer was wobbly when he got up but the bell saved him from further punishment.

A terrific right in the ninth sent Moyer down again. He regained his feet at the count of five but Regan quickly stepped in to end the fight.

* * * *

RODRIGUEZ, a native of Cuba, was far ahead before the bout ever started. The crowd of 2,618 cheered wildly as Rodriguez pranced to the ring, clad in a silk white robe with a red sash and blue lettering on the back.

Three teen-agers in the crowd became so carried away that they rushed the ring and tried to shake his hand while the announcer was talking but police carted them away.

Tittle, in Reserve Role, Lifts Giants to Last-Period Win

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Y. A. Tittle's pinpoint passing set up three touchdowns as the New York Giants edged the Detroit Lions, 24-21, in the opener of a National Football League doubleheader Saturday night.

In the second game, the Cleveland Browns met the Baltimore Colts before a crowd of close to 80,000.

The 36-year-old Tittle hit on 12 of 20 efforts for 175 yards as he kept the Giants clicking after Ralph Guglielmi was unable to move the club in the first quarter.

The winning touchdown came with 4:43 remaining when rookie Nat Craddock bulled over from the one-yard line to end a 60-yard, nine-play drive.

Early in the third period the Giants defensive unit blocked a field goal attempt and Allan Webb picked up the loose ball and ran 92 yards to give the Giants a 17-7 lead.

The Lions battled back and Nick Pietrosante darted 25 yards in the third period to put Detroit back into contention, only three points behind. The Lions then went ahead, 21-17, when Pat Studstill grabbed a seven-yard pass from Earl Morrall early in the fourth period.

The Lions scored first with the second quarter only 1:49 old as fullback Pietrosante went 14 yards in a draw-play to end a 58-yard, four-play drive.

Tittle saw action for the first time with 6:05 remaining in the first half and engineered an 80-yard, eight-play drive that ended as Alex Webster ploughed 15 yards to tie the score.

The Giants went ahead, 10-7, when Don Chandler booted a 34-yard field goal with six seconds remaining in the first half.

the sixth to take a commanding lead.

An error, a walk and Darryl Brumley's third single got Colorado even, then Doctor laid down a squeeze bunt, Dave Koonce was safe on a fielder's choice and Gary Adams singled for the final two runs.

Glenn Butler's triple and Marv Long's long fly gave Greeley an insurance run in the seventh.

* * * *

IN THE morning game, Las Vegas capitalized on losing pitcher Pat O'Leary's three errors to oust Tucson.

Bryan Karn's single and O'Leary's three-base throwing error gave Las Vegas a 1-0 lead in the first, but Tucson tied it in the fourth when Ed Leon walked, stole second and third and scored on George Cota-Robles' sacrifice fly.

Las Vegas got their decisive run in the fifth when Karn again singled, raced to third when O'Leary threw wild on a sacrifice by Sam Pizzo and scored on Fritz Kreuzer's long fly.

Dennis Daboll limited Arizona batters to four hits while fanning 13. Six walks kept him in constant trouble, but his strikeouts and strong fielding support kept Tucson at bay.

Lakers Open Camp Drills for Rookies

Coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers will get an early look at some of the club's top draft choices and rookie prospects when a week-long rookie camp opens at Loyola University Monday.

Roger Strickland, 6-5 Little all-America from Jacksonville U., Jim King, 6-2 all-Missour Valley Conference selection from Tulsa; Mel Gibson, 6-3 Little all-America from Western Carolina College; Warren Sallade, 6-4 Little all-America from Westminster College, Pa., and Gordy Martin, 6-7 shooter from USC, will be among the top rookies on hand. Strickland, King and Gibson were the Lakers first three draft choices.

Schaus will drill the rookies daily in afternoon sessions, then will stage informal scrimmages each evening in company with many of the Laker veterans.

The Lakers open their home schedule this year Oct. 30 against Cincinnati.

Patterson Plans for Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson is looking over the field of European heavyweights with a possible mid-November overseas match in mind after definitely deciding to continue boxing.

The former heavyweight champion received a flood of mail from fans urging him to continue his ring career. Although he said in Las Vegas after his second straight first-round knockout by Sonny Liston that he planned to continue, the mail response was the determining factor.

* * * *

JULIUS November, Patterson's attorney, said Saturday that Patterson was away for the weekend but had resumed training at his Highland Mills, N. Y., camp earlier in the week.

"Right now Floyd is looking over the field of European heavyweights. He definitely will fight again this year, probably in mid-November."

Wilson Hurls 3 TD Passes as K.C. Wins

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Second year quarterback Eddie Wilson passed for three touchdowns and scored one himself Saturday to lead the Kansas City Chiefs to a 35-21 victory over the Oakland Raiders in an American Football League exhibition game.

The game was played as a benefit for Brian Sternberg, former world record-holder in the pole vault who was seriously injured in a trampoline accident early last month.

A disappointingly small crowd of 13,500 saw Wilson sneak over from the one-yard line for the first Kansas City score, then connect on two touchdown passes to Chris Burford and one to Fred Arbannas.

FIRST LOSS EVER

Chargers Upset by Denver, 31-25

DENVER (UPI)—Veteran quarterback Frank Tripucka's long bombs of 75 and 60 yards carried the Denver Broncos past the San Diego Chargers 31-25 Saturday night. It was San Diego's first defeat in an exhibition game since the start of the American Football League in 1960.

Coach Sid Gillman's Chargers had compiled a record of 14 consecutive exhibition victories over a four-year period.

The 35-year-old Tripucka, in his 15th year of professional football, hit halfback Gene Mingo on a 75-yard touchdown pass in the first play of the second half. Then he spotted flanker Bob Scarpitto on a 60-yard scoring play moments later to give the Broncos a 28-3 lead.

San Diego never led. But the Chargers made a game of it from midway in the third period until the final gun.

and-one plunge by Tom Wilson which gained two yards to the Ram 17.

The Rams had taken the ball on the Viking 40 after a 33-yard punt return by Pervis Atkins. Baker passed to Carroll Dale for 31 and a first down on the 20. But the next three downs picked up only 2 yards and the field goal try ensued.

FOURTH QUARTER

VIKINGS 17, RAMS 3: A Ram drive from their own 34 to the Viking 21 ended disasterously when Arnett, trapped in a zig-zag run behind the line of scrimmage, elected to pass. The ball sailed smack into the hands of Minnesota tackle Don Hultz, and the hulking lineman has had his moment of glory as he roared 68 yards to the Ram 5 before being brought down from behind by Baker.

It took the Vikings two plays to score. Reed turned end for 4 and then drove over center for the touchdown.

VIKINGS 20, RAMS 3: Another interception by Minnesota set up an 18-yard field goal by Cox.

Baker had passed to Phillips for 11 and Arnett for 12 to the Viking 38, but his next pass was picked off by defender Lee Calland who returned the ball to the Ram 36. Tarkenton passed to Reichow for 30 to the Ram 6. The Rams held for three downs, and in came Cox.

Packer Defense Stops Dallas, 31-10

DALLAS (UPI) — The champion Green Bay Packers turned interceptions into touchdowns Saturday night and old-timer Lew Carpenter scored twice on short runs in a 31-10 National Football League exhibition victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Carpenter, starting his 10th pro season, scored from the one in the second period after a pass interference call against Mike Gaechter put the ball on the edge of the goal line and then slipped around right end four yards for a fourth period score.

Ron Kramer snared a 19-yard scoring pass from quarterback Bart Starr in the first period and Elijah Pitts had a two-yard touchdown push in the second period.

Gary Kroner booted a nine-yard field goal in the final period.

The Cowboys ignited for a short-lived 10-7 lead in the first period.

Quarterback Don Meredith tagged end Pettis Norman with an 85-yard scoring pass that Norman took at mid-field with Packer Jesse Whittenton hanging around his neck.

Early in the first period, Sam Baker booted a 12-yard field goal for the Cowboys.

McKinley, Ralston Maul Mexico

U.S. Leads Davis Cup Zone Play

By BOB MARTIN

Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston, full of fight from the first point until the last one, smashed Mexico's famed doubles team of Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox in straight sets Saturday to give the United States a 2-1 lead in their American Zone Davis Cup competition.

The victory, before a capacity crowd at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, was achieved in just an hour and 15 minutes by the score of 6-1, 6-3, 8-6.

As a result of the triumph over the reigning Wimbledon and U.S. doubles champions, America's hopes of avenging last year's 3-2 loss to Mexico are, of course, much brighter than they were at the end of Friday's 1-1 split in singles.

* * * *

RALSTON will take on Osuna in today's first singles event at 1 o'clock in a dramatic match pitting USC roommates against each other.

A Ralston victory would clinch the series for the United States, but, even if he loses, America's chances will be bright. For McKinley will be paired against Palafox in the final match, and the aggressive Chuck never has lost to Antonio in nine singles meetings.

McKinley was sensational in the doubles Saturday and he was ably abetted by Ralston, who did not hit as many spectacular shots as his partner but set up many of them with excellent serves and service returns.

Chuck, "trying to show what he's made of" (in the words of team captain Bob Kelleher) after a disappointing upset loss to Osuna in Friday's singles, was magnificent in nearly every phase of the game Saturday.

He excited the crowd particularly with his many hard-hit and sharply angled volleys and by running around serves to his backhand and slamming them back for winners with tremendous forehand drives.

* * * *

THE TRIUMPH was perhaps even sweeter to Ralston, for a year ago in Mexico City Ralston's service collapsed in the only cup match in which he particiapted and he and McKinley bowed to Osuna-Palafox in five sets.

Dennis had 18 double faults that day and lost his service six times, but Saturday he had only three doubles and both he and McKinley won all their services, many with ease.

Palafox, who had made far too many errors in losing to Ralston in singles, continued to be off his game in the doubles. Osuna was below par, too, in the first set, but performed skillfully in the last two.

"This is Palafox' worst Davis Cup tennis ever," said Mexican captain Pancho Contreras of the 27-year-old cup veteran from Guadalajara. "Tony is in a slump and has a mental tiredness."

Contreras said he thought the recent death of Palafox's father might have something to do with it.

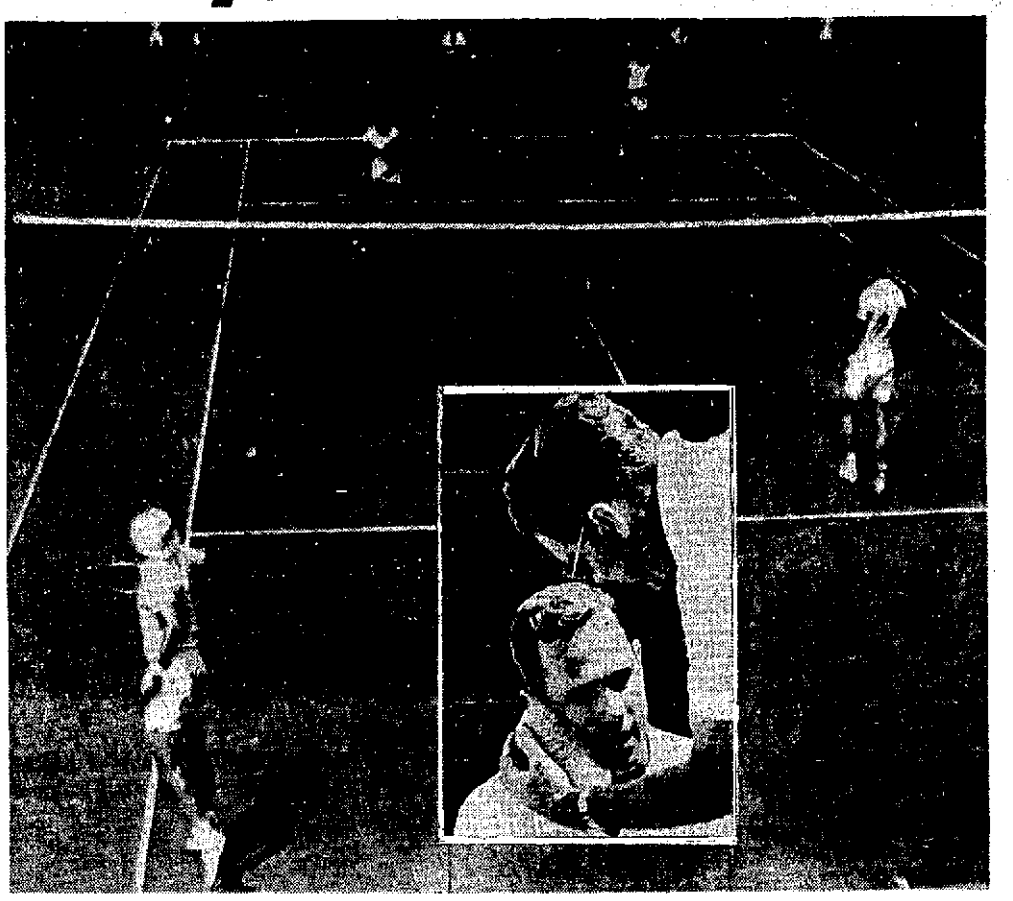

* * * *

BUT THE Mexican captain was not ready to concede victory to the United States.

"Osuna should beat Ralston," he said. "Then anything can happen in the fifth match. I've seen many a big upset. A player can be in a slump like Mickey Mantle one day and then hit a homer the next. I hope Tony hits a home run Sunday."

Warren Triumphant

Jim Warren in the Warren-Coburn-Warren fuel dragster took the top honors before 11,000 fans at Lions Drag Strip Saturday. His time was 186.40 mph in 8.13 seconds. Danny Marks took the No. 1 eliminator with a top run of 161.29 in 9.29.

IT WAS A HOT DAY FOR U.S. COURT STARS

U.S. LEADS JAPAN, 21-6

Californians Schollander, Saari Splash Way to World Records

TOKYO (UPI)—A powerful American swimming team set two new world records as it took a commanding 21-6 lead over the Japanese in the pre-Olympic-year three-day dual swimming meet Saturday.

Seventeen-year-old Don Schollander of Santa Clara, Calif., splashed his way to a new world mark of 1:58.5 in the 200-meter freestyle.

* * * *

MINUTES later 18-year-old Roy Saari of El Segundo, Calif., astonished a crowd of 8,000 spectators at the 50-meter outdoor Meiji pool by shattering Australian Jon Konrads' world mark of 17:11 in the 1,500-meter freestyle with a clocking 17:05.5.

The Americans also swept the 400-meter medley relay and Carl Robie, an 18-year-old Yank from the University of Michigan, upset heavily favored Shigeo Fukushima in the 400-meter individual medley.

200-Meter freestyle — Don Schollander (U.S.) 1:58.5 (world record; listed record 2:00.3 by Bob Windle, Australia), Richard McDonough (U.S.) 2:00.4, Ed Townsend (U.S.) 2:01.5.

400-meter indiv. medley — Carl Robie (U.S.) 4:52.8, Richard Roth (U.S.) 4:54.4, Shigeo Fukushima 4:55.5.

INVITATION IGNORED

Russians Bypass U.S. Doubles

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Mexico's Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox will defend their men's championship at the 83rd USLTA National Doubles tennis tournament which opens today—apparently without the Russians.

Russian officials had said they would make their debut in the event if the USLTA would finance the trip. The latter body gave the project the green light but when Moscow did not reply to the invitation the draw was made up without the Soviets.

Osuna and Palafox, fresh from their Davis Cup matches with the top American pair of Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston, may well meet them again in the title match a week hence.

The U.S. tandem won two years ago but lost in five sets to Osuna and Palafox 12 months ago.

Darlene Hard, No. 1 American women's competitor who starred in the Wightman Cup sweep of England, will defend the distaff crown with partner Maria Bueno of Brazil.

This pair has won 20 straight tournaments.

Veteran campaigner Gardnar Mulloy of Miami is back to defend in the senior men's. But this time his partner will be a familiar figure from his younger days—Billy Talbert of New York. Talbert is eligible for the senior division for the first time this year.

WAYMIRE TO HURL

Nitehawks Shoot for State Crown

By CHUCK MEDICK

The moment of glory for the Long Beach Nitehawks may come tonight when they battle Downey in the finals of the state softball tournament at Park Avenue Field. Starting time is 7:30.

Downey advanced to the finals via a 2-0 win over Culver City, which had beaten Pomona, 1-0, in the opener on a no-hitter by Gale Wood. His homer won the game.

Long Beach is the only unbeaten team remaining and thereby could lose one game tonight, win the second and still wind up with the title and another trip to Rock Island, Illinois, for the national championships.

* * * *

EDDIE Waymire probably will get the starting call from manager Joe Rodgers. Leroy Zimmerman and Jack Randall will be ready in case Waymire falters.

The Nitehawks, who won this tournament last year, have received timely hitting from most everyone in their lineup and a continuance of this should produce another crown.

Should the Nitehawks win, there will be a fund-raising game Wednesday at Park Avenue Field against a major opponent yet to be named.

L.A. Aquas Win; Triple by Johnson

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI)—Robyn Johnson, 17-year-old whirlwind from Arlington, Va., Saturday became the only triple winner at the 1963 national AAU senior swimming and diving championships, but had to share the spotlight with a record-breaking medley team from Los Angeles, which won the team title.

Robyn, swimming for Northern Virginia Aquatic Club, collected her third gold medal with her win in the 200-meter freestyle over defending champion Carolyn House of the Los Angeles Club, a triple winner in 1962 who failed to win a single individual event here this year.

The young Virginian was clocked at 2:15.6 in the 200-meter event. That was a full second off the American and national records set by Miss House in the 1962 meet in Chicago. Robyn won the 400-meter freestyle Friday in 4:46.8 and successfully defended her 100-meter freestyle championship Thursday.

* * * *

SHARING the spotlight with Robyn was the 400-meter medley relay team from the Los Angeles Athletic Club which toppled both the American club and national senior records in that event. The team was composed of Cathy Ferguson, Cindy Ford, Marsie Templeton and Miss House.

The fleet mermaids were clocked in 4:44.4 which shattered by 3.1 seconds the American and national mark set last year by the Vesper Swim Club of Philadelphia.

10-meter platform diving—Barbara McAllister Talmadge 307.95 points, Linda Cooper 305.75, Nancy Poulsen 289.40, Joel Lenzi 287.40, Patty Simms, 287.75, Patsy Willard 287.80.

Butts' Case Goes to Jury This Week

Officials All Rap Character as 'Bad'

ATLANTA (UPI) — One-by-one the top officials of the University of Georgia — including its president — took the witness stand in the trial of Wallace Butts' $10 million libel suit against the Saturday Evening Post.

To each official, Post attorney Welborn Cody put this question: "do you know the character of Wallace Butts?"

Each witness in his turn replied "yes."

"Based on that knowledge, would you say it was good or bad?" Cody asked.

The answer in each case was "bad."

The officials also testified they would not believe the word of Butts under oath.

* * * *

THROUGH IT all, Butts, former head football coach and athletic director at Georgia, sat in stony silence, staring blankly at the witnesses. Occasionally he would blink his eyes. The Butts family—wife and three grown daughters — sat behind the plaintiff.

Butts had known these men for many years, and in the close circle of university life at Athens had been on intimate terms with some of them. Now they were all in a federal courtroom, facing each other from the opposite sides of a lawsuit, with Butts' reputation as a respected member of society and of the football coaching profession riding on the outcome.

This was the scene as testimony drew to an end in the Butts libel suit trial that has stretched over two weeks in the courtroom of federal judge Lewis R. Morgan.

Monday, both sides will complete their closing arguments, Morgan will deliver his charge and the drawn-out, bitterly fought case will go to the 12-man jury.

Riding Out an Alberta Storm

VANCOUVER, B. C. (Delayed) — When old Mother Nature huffs, puffs and hisses in this country, she does it so vociferously that you wonder if you'll survive, especially when you are riding with 42 other persons in an old C46 aircraft, the famed two-engined plane that flew the China Hump in World War II.

We left Great Bear Lake in a normal takeoff and had good weather beyond Fort Smith, which lies on the border of Northwest Territories and Alberta. Then a weather front 50 miles deep and up to 85,000 feet high just seemed to dare the old C46 to give it a try. And TRY was what the crew did.

Lightning forks were streaking to earth all around the old ship which was bumping and bouncing like a cork in white-water rapids. We descended from 9,000 to 4,000 feet and still the electrical display continued, along with the noisy bumping and bouncing.

It was a 30-minute ride that the 40 passengers and even three members of the Pacific Western crew will remember for a long time. Even though the C46 developed leaks in the roof, it came through like a champ.

Sounds dangerous, you ask. No more than the weather fronts which prop-plane pilots in the United States contend with in the Midwest, South and over the Rockies.

IT PROVED ONCE AGAIN to me that when you make trips in the northern bush country, the fliers don't take unnecessary chances. However, when the chips are down and skill is needed, they have what it takes to get from Great Bear Lake to Edmonton, or wherever you may be traveling.

Reviewing the fishing at the lake, E. E. Roberts, Dearborn, Mich., continued to hold the leadership with his 41½-pound mackinaw trout. Fish-of-the-day charts, kept at Great Bear Lodge by operator Bill Haerr, showed these weights for the six days of fishing: 24¾, 25¾, 18¾, 41½, 23½ and 31½.

Harry Hargraves, Santa Monica, was the winner two days, and 15-year-old Ed Dossen, Burbank, with his 31½-pound fish on the final day, was about the happiest angler in camp. Ed, as I previously reported, caught the first whitefish ever taken in Great Bear. It weighed 7¼ pounds, a giant for that species.

Hal Baum, Long Beach, finally got his name on the fish-of-the-day chart with a 3-pound grayling, one that matched my first day's catch. There were larger grayling, however, two of which weighed the same—3½ pounds.

No record was kept of northern pike, which are not too plentiful at Great Bear. One Detroit angler made a side trip to Tree River and got the largest char, 16½ pounds.

THERE WAS NO RHYME nor reason for fish weights at Great Bear. For instance, Roberts' 4½-pounder measured 48½ inches in length and 24¾ in girth. Young Ed Dossen's 31½-pounder was 50 inches long and 20½ in girth.

Without good guides, fishermen could draw blanks at Great Bear. The fish had to be found every day, proving that they were on the prowl for food and spawning grounds much of the time.

Haerr has done such a swell job in training guides that Great Bear Lodge has become famous for its fishing standards and sanitation.

It was a joy to watch our guide, Andre Dolphus, cook lunch (fish always), then scour the utensils until they were mirror-bright. Andre is a second-generation guide at Great Bear. His father, Vic, still tops the 20 guides who spend two months at Great Bear, then move back to Fort Franklin at the start of September.

As for lures, we found that Dardevles of several weights and colors were the most effective. Bob Vernon, my fishing partner, used a red and white Seadevle that was a certain killer for macks. I had one of the same size in orange with black dots that worked almost as well.

Small Dardevles and Abu-Reflex lures were best for grayling. Those who tried fly-fishing found that strong winds did too many tricks to them.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that already Haerr is working on 1964 camp problems. He has ordered the fuel which will be barged in by way of the Bear River, with 9 portage and transfer to another barge, which will take it across the lake after the spring ice breakup.

The staff of Arctic Enterprises also is busy with next year's reservation list. This is handled through Mrs. L. Gordon, office manager, Great Bear Lodge, 829 S. Phillips Ave., Sioux Falls, S.D. Brochures are available for the asking.

Getting back to the wild flight in the storm, the passengers didn't exactly fall on their faces and kiss the ground at Edmonton, but they were happy to see it, believe me!

The next day's journey brought us to Vancouver in one hour and 40 minutes via Trans-Canada's famous Vanguard.

The Vanguard is a prop-jet airliner capable of carrying 121 persons. It is similar in some respects to Western Airlines' Electra. The flight from Edmonton directly across the Canadian Rockies, the Rocky Mountain Trench and then the Selkirk Range defies description.

Also, by way of concluding today's column, I'd like to add that TCA has very beautiful stewardesses. Somebody in TCA really knows how to pick them. And the girls are extremely polite and constantly solicitous of their passengers' needs and comforts. In a word, they are terrific!

Modern Golfers Swing Too Hard--Lord Byron

NEW YORK (AP)—It's not so much the swing that sets modern day golfers apart from the former stars of the game, says ex-king Byron Nelson, it's the rhythm.

"When I was playing regularly we hardly ever hit a ball hard," Nelson said. "We tried to play in a rhythmic pattern, usually well within our capacities. When we were going good we were probably never as good as some of the fellows are today but when we were a bit off we never hit the kinds of slump they do now.

"I think that's the answer to why a fellow like Arnold Palmer needs a rest now and then. It's difficult to see how you can keep up that 'hit it hard' pace week after week."

Michigan Names Lightweight King

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP)—Confident Paul Armstead and a determined Kenny Lane will meet in Saginaw's Veterans' Memorial Park Monday night for what is billed here as the lightweight boxing championship.

Armstead, the California lightweight king, said on his arrival in Michigan last week that Lane was "a little bit over the hill" and boasted, "I could beat him the best day he ever saw."

Lane, who wants to become the first left-handed lightweight champion in history, refused to comment on Armstead's remarks, adding he'll prove he's as good as he ever was when the two climb through the ropes. Lane is 31, Armstead 26.

Whether or not the winner of the bout will be recognized as the champion in other states remains to be seen.

The World Boxing Association stripped Carlos Ortiz of the lightweight crown, then decided to give him a hearing at its Miami Beach convention this weekend.

David I. Gudelsky, chairman of the Michigan Athletic Board of Control, withdrew Michigan from the WBA after it refused to force a title bout between Lane and Ortiz. The WBA's action against Ortiz followed Michigan's departure.

* * * *

GUDELSKY sanctioned the 13-round bout as a world title contest and tried unsuccessfully to get other states to recognize the winner as champion.

Armstead had a few words on the Ortiz situation himself.

"Titles should be won and lost in the ring," he said, "but Ortiz was making such impossible demands for a title fight that nobody could make the bout. He was just ducking. He didn't want to fight me, or Lane, either."

Gunderson After 4th National Am

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — JoAnne Gunderson, whose tremendous driving power is akin to that of professional Mickey Wright will be seeking her fourth title at the tender age of 24 when the 1963 Women's National Amateur Golf Campionship opens here Monday.

The Providence, R.I., defending champion will share the spotlight with Anne Quast Welts of Seattle, and Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, Colo. The trio has dominated this event for the past six years.

Miss Gunderson won in 1957 and 1960 as well as last year. Anne Quast won in 1958 and 1961 while Miss McIntire captured the honors in 1959.

The site of this year's competition is picturesque Taconic Country Club in this small western Massachusetts college town nestled in the Berkshire Mountains. Match play is scheduled through Saturday.

Wright Retains 3-Shot Lead in Swing Parade

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Defending champion Mickey Wright shot par golf Saturday to maintain a three-stroke lead in the $11,000 Albuquerque Swing Parade at the end of 36 holes.

Her two-day card of 69-72—141 put the Dallas golfer in front of second-place Jackie Pung of Daly City, Calif., who had two even-par rounds of 72 for a 144 total.

* * * *

A HIGH wind late in the day at the Paradise Hills Country Club Course hampered late finishers. The best round of the day was a two-under par 70, fired by Marilynn Smith of Tequesta, Fla.

Miss Smith hit 15 greens and sank two 45-foot birdie putts. That was good for a tie for third place with Peggy Wilson of Austin, Tex., who skidded to a 76 after an opening round of 71, and Joanne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., who had rounds of 73 and 72 for her 145.

Ace Aids Bayer to Golf Lead

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Big George Bayer, aided by a hole-in-one his second this season—zoomed into the third round lead in the $40,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 12-under-par 201.

The six-foot-five, 240-pound Bayer fired his ace on the 214-yard, par-3 ninth hole to go 11-under, and increase his margin while coming in despite a strong cross wind. His three-round scores are 69-65-67 on the par 35-36—71 Wethersfield Country Club Course.

BIG GEORGE, who will be 38 next month, leads Lionel Hebert by two strokes and Wes Ellis, the pacesetter in the first and second rounds, by three.

Bayer, who collected four birdies in addition to his ace, said he was "just trying to hit the ninth green."

Record High for Purses

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Despite suggestions that the PGA golf tour should be curtailed to give the top stars an occasional rest, pro goifers will be playing for the highest purses ever this fall. And few of them are likely to skip many stops.

Nine official tournaments, with a total of $422,500 in prize money, plus the biennial Ryder Cup matches against Britain, make up the major part of the fall tour.

That is $105,777.77 more than the 1962 fall prize money although the schedule has been reduced by three official and five unofficial events. The year's total will be $3,344,602.77 in official and unofficial money, $256,832.77 more than in 1962.

New to the Long Beach City College football staff this fall is Jon Meyer, who will serve as backfield coach.

Meyer replaces Phil Krueger, who resigned to accept a similar position at Utah State.

Last year Meyer served as trainer for all the varsity sports at LBCC. He has been a physical education instructor on both the Liberal Arts and BTD campuses since 1960.

MEYER

An all-city selection in football at quarterback and in basketball while at Wilson, Meyer received his higher education at Whittier and Stanford.

In 1959 he coached the Millikan B basketball team to the Moore League championship and compiled a 19-1 won-loss record.

Meyer's selection rounds out the Viking staff that includes Jim Stangeland (head), Rollie Eilerts (line) and Joe Lanning (ends).

NATIVE DIVER RUNS LAST

Sledge Surprises in Crosby

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—Trainer Bill Reavis, a guy who has been playing the role of "giant killer" in West Coast stakes races all year long, added another dragon to his booty Saturday when he sent out the Dee Dee Stable's Sledge to a surprise win in the $15,975 Bing Crosby Handicap.

Slain in the wake of the 1:08⅗ sizzler for six furlongs turned in by Sledge was the world record holder at the distance, Crazy Kid, who finished fourth, and the 4-5 favorite with the crowd of 19,415, Native Diver. He failed to raise a gallop and finished last in the field that was reduced to six starters with the mid-afternoon declaration of Rapido.

Sledge was never really clear at any stage of the journey, in spite of the fact he was virtually a wire-to-wire winner. Dogging him to the quarter in :21⅗ was Crazy Kid—he hung on to the half that Sledge rattled off in :44⅕. Then Testum took up the fight and fought Sledge right to the wire before losing a half-length decision.

The home you buy may belong to a baby...not to you!

If a minor once owned the property and his guardian sold it without proper court approval, your title will be clouded—and your ownership rights can be challenged.

Safeguard your investment. Do it the same way millions of California home owners have done it—with a title policy issued by Title Insurance and Trust Company. This is protection you can depend on. That's because T.I. is best qualified to investigate the history of California real estate. The proof is in complete up-to-date land records, America's largest staff of title specialists, and experience that dates back to 1893. So when you go into escrow, specify a safe, sure T.I. title policy.

UCDA says:
Meet Your
USED CAR MANAGER
NORM ISAACS
DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE
"Value-Rated Used Cars"
1090 Long Beach Blvd. HE 6-9624

Norm Isaacs is an old timer in this business; 16 years in the Long Beach area; since 1954 with C. Standlee Martin Oldsmobile; which, since June 1960 to the present, has been DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE.

"Thirty to forty per cent of DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE business," says Norm, "is repeat or referral. We hold this record as our claim to many satisfied customers. I believe this is true because of the choice selection of cars, carefully reconditioned, VALUE-RATED pricing, and a realistic warranty. We have recently TRIPLED our used car department at 1090 Long Beach Blvd., diagonally across the street from our new Oldsmobile showroom at 1227 L. B. Blvd. On our new 200-ft. frontage location we are offering a much wider selection of cars and much better service. We invite your inspection real soon."

Norm talks about everything but himself, so we must say that he is a solid Rossmoor citizen, with a lovely family, wife NADEANE, and children, Sandy, Tim and Gary.

TUGS RUSH TO MEND BREAK IN LINE
A harbor dredging project is a long, night and day operation and expensive. So when there's a line break as in above photo tugs rush in quickly to restore normal flow of "fill" sand. Figuring operational cost at $21 per minute, Don Graham, construction chief, is understandably concerned as he looks at watch (inset photo).

BIG DREDGE IN LONG BEACH HARBOR HAS CUTTER UP AND CHURNING

There's Drama in Harbor as Big Dredge Helps Build Pier

By ED KENYON

There was a sudden geyser of water off the stern of the giant dredging barge anchored in Long Beach Harbor.

A three-mile-long pipeline carrying sand dredged from the harbor floor at the rate of 3,000 cubic yards an hour was out of operation.

Air pressure forcing the sand through the pipeline had popped the bolts holding two sections of pipe together.

"There are 10 bolts on each connection, and they're two and a half inches thick," commented Don Graham, superintendent for Construction Aggregates Corp.

* * * *

THE COMPANY operates the dredger Sensibar Bros., which is digging out 33 million cubic yards of sand to create Pier J, a 310-acre finger of land jutting out into the outer reaches of the harbor.

Graham watched as two small tugs raced over to pick up one end of the ruptured line, then began towing it back to the section that extended from the stern of the dredger.

Minutes after the break, workmen were scrambling over the floats holding up the pipe, attaching new bolts in place.

* * * *

"WHEN YOU FIGURE it costs us $21 a minute to keep this operation going," you can see why we're in a hurry," remarked Graham.

Speedy repair work is an important part of the 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week operation to complete the largest man-made pier ever built in time to use it as the site for the World's Fair in 1967.

Target date for completing the dredging operation is Jan. 1, 1965.

* * * *

GRAHAM POINTED to the shaft driving the cutter, which chews up and digests the hard sand on the harbor floor.

"That shaft is 18 inches in diameter, and it's high carbon steel," he said. "But with 7,000 horsepower driving it, that shaft can snap off like a matchstick—and it has several times."

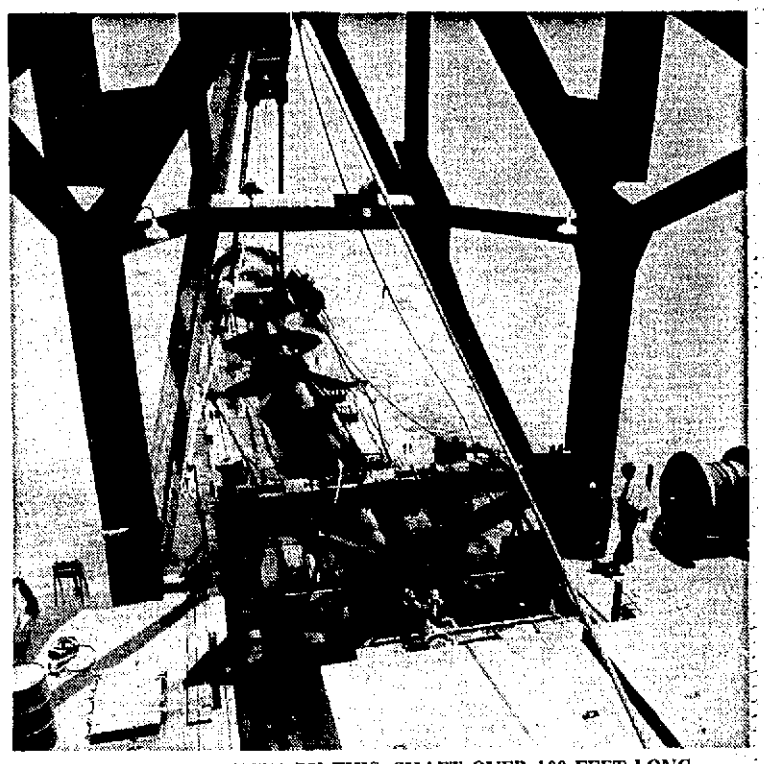

Aside from these breakdowns, the 75 men employed in the operation have to make regular once-a-week changes of the cutter itself.

"We take the cutter off and have it sharpened for re-use," said Graham. "It costs us $2,000 every time we do. Considering that the cutter costs $22,000, that's cheap enough."

Graham turned again to look at the workmen repairing the pipeline break. They were tightening the last bolt.

Moments later the giant engines aboard the dredger (they develop up to 18,000 horsepower) were rumbling again. A steady flow of sand was pouring through the 36-inch diameter pipeline.

Graham smiled. "It'll be close," he said, "but we'll have it done on schedule."

Hail National Home Week; Opens Sept. 8

The 16th annual National Home Week—stellar event of the year for the home building industry—will be celebrated Sept. 8 through 15, with a dazzling display of thousands of new homes in every part of the country.

More than million persons are expected to inspect the impressive new homes to see the delights they offer in greater comfort, pleasure and convenience.

The event, which is the housing industry's equivalent of the annual auto show or the clothing industry's display of new fall fashions, is sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders and its local affiliated associations throughout the nation.

* * * *

THEY HAVE the assistance and support of other elements of the housing industry, including banks and other mortgage lenders, suppliers of materials that go into new homes, nationally known manufacturers, and subcontractors.

National Home Week will be sponsored in Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties by the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, affiliated association of the National Association of Home Builders.

More than 500 model homes, most of them completely furnished, will be presented by builder members of the HBA as the major feature of the National Home Week in the three county area, reports Ray A. Watt, HBA president.

* * * *

"HOME BUILDERS this year again in Southern California offer the best values for the money in the history of the home building industry," Watt said.

"Southland homes provide more in efficiency, liveability, beauty, and ease of maintenance this year. Also records for the past 10 years show that a good home is one of the best investments you can make. Good homes have steadily increased in value $500 a year for many years."

Prospective home buyers will have an opportunity during the week to see the fine features of a variety of homes in many price brackets. They will find that today's new home is larger and provides more space for the money than at any time in history.

They will find, too, that 1963's new homes contain more automatic, electrical, and mechanical equipment to make life easier, have better insulation to reduce heating and cooling bills, and have more luxury finishes both inside and outside.

Gold's Building Torrance Store

TORRANCE — Construction was started the past week on a new Torrance store for Gold's Furniture and Appliances at the interesection of Artesia and Hawthorne boulevards.

Herman Halpert, operations manager for the firm, said the new two-story structure will contain more than 40,000 square feet of shopping area.

Located opposite the South Bay Shopping Center, just west of the San Diego Freeway, the new Torrance store will be the sixth operated by the 44-year-old retail firm in Southern California.

That '45 Advice No Good; Walker, Lee Story Ample Proof

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Despite dire warnings of "Don't stay — get out! In six months Lakewood will be a ghost town!" they stayed — and now they are recognized as the largest residential sales firm in the world.

It was back in 1945 following World War II that the real estate firm of Walker & Lee, Inc., was getting this advice. But because the organizers still had the daring and vision which had brought them to Lakewood in 1941, they remained, and expanded.

DeWITT LEE

Gross sales set a record exceeding $100 million last year; and soared to $56 million in the first half of 1963.

This pioneer real estate firm, which originated Lakewood City and many of the annexed sections in East Long Beach, has handled more than 50,000 sales since '41, with 4,515 homes sold in 1962 alone.

Heading the company today is one of its founders, DeWitt R. Lee.

Three major reasons are seen by Lee as contributing to the firm's great growth.

1. "Anyone, individual or a corporation, to be a success in real estate sales must keep before him the fact that he is selling service, not homes. The sales that take place are a result of services rendered."

2. Managerial system, adopted in 1951. Said Lee: "It would be impossible for us to grow or to continue today if it was not for our management team, given specific responsibilities coupled with commensurate authority.

"This management team today totals 30 of the finest men in real estate."

3. Training program. "We prefer new licensees," Lee commented, "and over the years we have developed an on-the-job training program which permits the trainee to competently serve his clients within his first month. Actually, our training program is a constant one and just as necessary to our growth as our daily advertising."

LEE ADDED that "An outstanding example of our management team and our training program is

Old World Style Chosen for Convention Ballroom

NEWPORT BEACH — Jamboree Hall, new 1,000-seat convention and banquet ballroom under construction at the Newporter Inn, will be designed in the authentic Spanish Mediterranean old world style, it was announced Saturday by owner George D. Buccola.

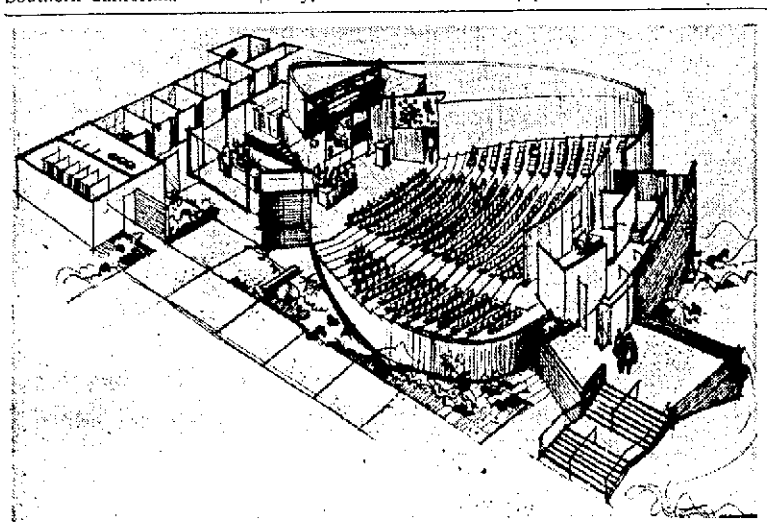

"The separate 12,000 sq. ft. building at the entrance to the multi-million dollar Inn will have iron gates, wrought iron chandeliers, fine paintings, terazzo flooring and white and gold drapes," Buccola added.

"WE HAVE DECIDED to turn the hall into the showplace of Orange County," said Buccola. "It will contain the finest lighting equipment and soundproofing. It is being designed for elegant balls, banquets, private meetings and parties, theatrical productions."

Jamboree Hall will seat 1,017 people theater-style and will contain the newest convention and exhibition equipment available. The building will have a portable stage, backstage area and dressing rooms.

Completion date is scheduled for early October. Jamboree Hall is part of the $22 million dollar expansion program which will triple the facilities and grounds at the Inn.

Hope Buys at Elsinore

ELSINORE—Comedian Bob Hope has purchased an 841 acre horse ranch from actor Audia Murphy in a million dollar deal, according to Adolpho Perez, ranch manager.

The land lies between Railroad Canyon Road and Murieta Road and is adjacent to Del Webb's Sun City retirement project.

Hope reportedly plans to get thoroughbred horses from New Zealand this fall for his ranch breeding program.

University May Buy 510 Acres From Irvine Co.

The 1,000-acre University of California Irvine campus, in the Corona del Mar hills, Newport Beach, may be enlarged by purchase of 510 acres from Irvine Co., which donated the campus property.

Brad Atwood, community affairs representative for UCI, disclosed that the acreage proposed to be acquired by the university would be for faculty housing.

He said it is part of 660 acres earmarked by Irvine Co. planners as a housing areas aimed primarily for university professors and lecturers. Atwood said that no price has been talked—and no agreement has been reached on purchase — but the negotiations are under way.

The UCI campus is due to be opened in September 1965 for 1,000 students. The campus expects 27,500 students maximum enrollment by 1990.

INDUSTRIAL PREDICTION!

Remote Control Operation Seen in Factory of Future

The manufacturing plant of the future will be a totally unmanned, completely automated facility operated by remote controls, in the opinion of Frank L. Whitney, designer of industrial facilities and president of Walter Kidde Constructors, Inc., New York, engineers and builders.

Whitney predicts that tomorrow's plants will be characterized by the ultimate step in the industrial revolution — the complete separation of men and machines.

Plant designers, he says will plan two distinct types of facilities: centralized control centers and decentralized manufacturing plants combined with distribution centers.

* * * *

FOR EXAMPLE, a company may locate its manufacturing plants in such widespread cities as San Francisco, Birmingham, Ala., and Hartford, Conn.; and all three plants may be governed from a single control center located in a Chicago skyscraper.

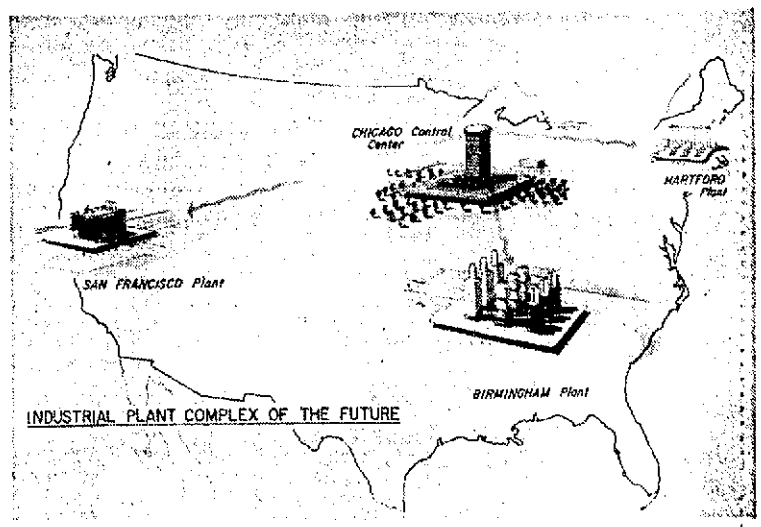

The centralized control center will house all technical, managerial and clerical employes who will operate the manufacturing plants by remote electronic controls. Other than these sophisticated devices, control centers will house none of the machinery of production.

* * * *

MANUFACTURING plants, on the other hand, will require the services of virtually no personnel except for a small maintenance staff.

Whitney believes that despite advanced automation, the industrial complex of the future will require as many, if not more, employes than

LONG DISTANCE MANUFACTURING
Plant of the future concept shows unmanned, totally automated production facilities in San Francisco, Birmingham and Hartford operated from a single control center in Chicago. All company personnel, except for small maintenance staffs, would be housed in control center. Futuristic facility is envisioned by Frank L. Whitney, engineer and builder.

C of C Film Series Will Show Operation Abolition

"Operation Abolition," the controversial 45-minute film-strip depicting the riots which took place on the steps of San Francisco's City Hall in May of 1960, will highlight the 11th week of Liberty Theater presentations, beginning Monday.

The film, which was taken as the House Committee on Un-American Activities conducted its hearings on Communist activities inside the City Hall, has been viewed by millions of Americans throughout the United States.

Sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Liberty Theater presentations are shown weekly at three locations: on Mondays in the Alice Birney Auditorium at 710 Spring St.; on Tuesdays in the Patrick Henry Auditorium at 3720 Canehill Ave.; and on Wednesdays in the J. H. McGaugh Auditorium at Bolsa and Bay Avenues in Seal Beach.

* * * *

OTHER FILMS on next week's program with "Operation Abolition" will be "Challenge to Citizenship," "A Citizen's Responsibility," and "It's Your Decision" (Part II).

The concluding series of films will be shown Aug. 26-27-28.

Further information on Liberty Theater filmstrips may be obtained by phoning the Chamber's Public Affairs Division.

IRVINE OFFICER

current facilities. "The main difference," he said, "is that the color of the worker's shirt will change from blue to white."

The first step toward this totally automated facility can be seen in some electric generating stations and processing plants, he points out.

* * * *

AUTOMATED FACILITIES of this nature will offer great advantages both to corporations and employes, according to Whitney.

No longer tied to manufacturing sites, control centers can be located in more congenial surroundings — closer to areas that offer cultural or climatic advantages.

And, once the worker is separated from his tools, the designer of the control center is no longer confined by the limitations dictated by production machinery.

As a result, employes will have larger and more attractive work areas. Advances in illumination and air-conditioning will also result in more light and stricter humidity and temperature controls.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, companies will be better able to locate their production facilities closer to natural resources or markets, saving vast sums in warehousing and distribution costs.

In the type of facility envisioned by Whitney, warehousing, which now often consumes tremendous acreage, will become negligible.

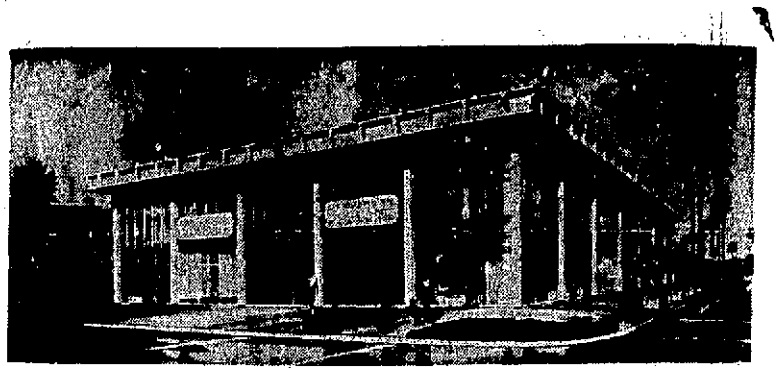

Raw materials will be brought in by conveyor, pipeline, or some other automatic method, and deposited right on the production line.

Computer technology will enable production managers to tell far in advance exactly when they will need definite quantities of component parts or in-process stores and how much of an end-product to produce. Most of the warehousing will be for finished goods and even these may be carried away automatically—without storage.

* * * *

THE ELIMINATION of warehouses at manufacturing sites, the return to multi-story administration buildings for control centers and the separation of these two types of facilities will mark the end of the sprawling suburban complex, Whitney says.

"Our blighted city cores may prove to be ideal locations for some of the compact manufacturing plants or high-rise control centers, and I urge urban redevelopment planners to give serious consideration to this possibility," he adds.

Bright Future Seen for Orange County Plant

SANTA ANA—Otis Elevator Company's Defense & Industrial Division last week marked its first year of operation in Orange County with an optimistic outlook for the future from Edward B. Lindaman, western operations manager.

Noting that cancellation of the Skybolt missile program during the plant's first year had some adverse effect on its growth rate, Lindaman said prospects for the next 12 months are "outstanding" barring any further drastic dips in the defense economy.

* * * *

FUTURE GROWTH of the Otis plant, located at 3519 Warner Road in Santa Ana's Segerstrom Industrial Tract, is based upon its experience in development and production of ultra-reliable aerospace ground support equipment.

Projects currently in the planning stage, Lindaman said, include manufacture of high-reliability cables for space programs, wire harnesses for test consoles, automatic test equipment and servo-analyzers.

The 38,000 sq. ft. electronics manufacturing plant is the Western Division headquarters of the Otis D&I group serving 11 Western states. Home office of the division is in Brooklyn, New York.

Steady Rise in Farm Land Values Seen

Farm and ranch land values in California will continue their upward climb for years to come, according to L. H. Wilson, president of the California Real Estate Association.

"For every person who scrambled for an acre of California in 1860, 43 stand here today, competing for the same acre," he said recently.

"New population comes to California at the rate of 1,700 a day," he added. "Mountains and hills comprise 75 per cent of our land. Only 25 per cent is readily usable for farms, homes and cities."

He said the birthrate increases the state's population by 7,000 each week, that "we need 2,300 more houses weekly, our highways carry an extra 4,800 cars every week, and that every Monday 2,800 children become old enough to start school."

Imagine what this competition is doing to the value of land, Wilson said. "In some areas, the increase is 10 per cent per year."

Firm Gets Contract From West Germany

Gilfillan Corporation officials have announced in Los Angeles the receipt of a contract in excess of $4 million from the government of the Federal Republic of Germany for the production of "Quad-Radar" ground controlled approach radar landing systems for the West German Air Force.

The new order is in addition to the previously announced funded backlog at July 1, 1963, of $34,400,000, up from $23 million a year earlier.

The aircraft landing aids to be built in Los Angeles are due to be delivered during the next year.

Vice President Now

William R. Mason has been elected vice president of The Irvine Company in charge of engineering, according to company president Charles S. Thomas.

Prior to joining Irvine in December, 1959, as administrative engineer, Mason was with Arcadia Metal Products of Fullerton as chief engineer. He lives on Lido Isle at Newport Beach.

A $380,000 building permit for a kitchen and cafeteria was issued recently to Los Angeles builder C. L. Peck by the local building department.

Plans call for a mammoth 22,533 square foot unit that will house food preparation equipment and enough tables and chairs to handle the estimated 10,000 employes after the center reaches ultimate development. The complex is located at the northeast corner of Bolsa Avenue and Bolsa Chica Road.

$100,000 Plus Club Has More Contractors

More contractors joined the $100,000-plus club for new construction contracts in 1962 than in any previous year on record, reports Engineering News-Record.

There were 10,717 contractors enrolled in the club in 1962, topping the preceding year's total by 1 per cent.

Membership in the million-dollar-and-over class grew more rapidly last year than in either the medium or smaller contractor set.

Contractors obtaining at least one million dollars worth of new contracts in 1962 increased 3 per cent to a record 4,032. But the 4,469 who posted from $100,000 to $500,000 fell slightly. They remain, however, the biggest single group active in the heavy construction market.

FIGURINE AT GROUNDBREAKING

Bruce Gelker, who is building $1.5 Saddleback Inn at Santa Ana, lets the "lady" have the scoop. She is figurine of "Gypsy," circus lady of 83 years ago. She'll be part of Inn's Early Americana decor.

Elks Share in Ceremony at Santa Ana

SANTA ANA—Officers of the Santa Ana Elks Lodge No. 794 were on hand for the recent groundbreaking of Bruce Gelker's $1.5 million Saddleback Inn.

The 130-room motor-hotel is to occupy three acres in the 1600 block on East First St. adjacent to the Elks Club, with the two enterprises sharing their facilities to accommodate as many as 1,200 persons at one time.

According to Gelker, his sprawling three-story Saddleback Inn, whose architecture was inspired by the old ranch home of Don Bernardo Yorba, will house some of the finest specimens of Early Americana worked into the decor of the public rooms and into its luxury guest rooms.

* * * *

ONE OF THE rarest historical objects of art to be used in the Saddleback's restaurant is "Gypsy," an 83-year-old lady who traveled the country by riding on the side of a carnival wagon when it was the fad to use carved figurines for advertising purposes. Handsomely carved of wood she stands at a petite five feet and is garbed shockingly enough in colorful embroidered jersey and full bloomers.

Gelker reported that already 90 per cent of the Saddleback Inn's exclusive shops and services have been leased with a planned opening of the Inn to be April 1, 1964.

Named after old Saddleback Mountain in whose shadow all of the county's history evolved, Gelker intends that his Saddleback Inn will be the first major structure in Orange County to incorporate the county's history with that of California's, giving the visitors a look at authentic Western Americana as it gives them some of the finest services offered in the country.

Garden Grove Realtors Will Hear L.B. Panel

The Garden Grove Board of Realtors again will host the panel of educational authorities from Long Beach City College when that panel appears Tuesday to bring to the board the latest developments in real estate techniques and developments in real estate licensing, especially with reference to recent legislation.

The college's Business and and Technology Division headed by Dr. Keith James, is accepted as being the most extensive and intensive real estate education program of its kind in the nation.

* * * *

MODERATING the panel will be Gene Hoffman, Long Beach realtor. Accompanying him will be his brother James C. Hoffman, Jr., a professional real estate appraiser and instructor in real estate appraising. He has been teaching this subject for the past 13 years.

With them will be Barry Laffoon, loan expert and teacher of Real Estate Financing at the college. Laffoon has been in real estate financing for 21 years, has taught financing for nine of them.

* * * *

THE FIELD of commercial and investment properties will be covered by E. Tennyson Moore, owner of Moore Realty. One of his offices is located in nearby Anaheim, and he is a member of the Garden Grove Board of Realtors as well.

He has been a featured speaker on the subject of real estate education at the state level, and also has appeared at numerous conferences, institutes and conventions throughout the United States as well as California.

President Dick Casterline will preside at the 7:30 a.m. meeting which is held at the Cape Cod House and the program will be presented by W. W. Stewart, vice president.

Home Financing to Be Discussed

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club will have a speaker from the Great Western Savings & Loan Association Thursday morning.

Frank Bird will talk on "Residential Financing." As there are many new ideas along this line, his message is expected to be of utmost importance to all real estate personnel.

The club meets at 8 a.m. at the Midnight Sun, 5925 Cherry Avenue.

The custom homes range in price from $76,000 to $200,000.

Interior decor of the four-bedroom, four-bath, single-story home was designed by Ted von Hemert, of Laguna Beach.

This home is elegantly done in a Modified Mediterranean styling utilizing custom-made wool carpet in the entry hall, living room and master bedroom.

* * * *

THE LARGEST of the two model homes, a two-story, four-bedroom plus maid's room with four and one-half baths, was designed by Thaden Interiors of Corona del Mar.

The color selection of this home effectively utilizes the natural golden and orange colors of sand and sun and the greens of the Upper Newport Bay.

John Mcnab, sales executive, revealed that since Dover Shores opened four months ago, more than $7 million worth of real estate has been sold.

In addition to this, $7.5 million of custom homes are presently under construction at this luxurious development.

* * * *

RECENTLY, in a period of five days, the Dover Shores sales force sold 17 bayfront homes and six view lots for a total sale of $2,300,000.

John MacLeod, chairman of the board, Macco Corporation-Macco Realty Co., commented that the most expensive leasehold lot sold during the five-day period was for $42,100 and the highest priced home sold for just under $100,000.

The majority of buyers in this case were repeat Macco and Irvine Company homeowners who are presently living at Cameo Shores, Cameo Highlands, Irvine Terrace and Bayshores.

ANAHEIM—Gering Plastics Comany of Kenilworth, N. J., has announced near completion of a 67,500 sq. ft. manufacturing plant and warehouse here to produce vinyl and polyethylene plastic products.

Electronics Firm Adds Director

SANTA ANA—Election of Fred A. Taylor, a partner of Kidder, Peabody & Co., to a new directorship has been announced by Burgess Dempster, chairman of the board and president of the Electronic Engineering Co. of California, 1601 E. Chestnut Ave.

FRED TAYLOR

Stockholders of the engineering company have approved an amendment to the corporation bylaws changing the membership of the board of directors from 7 to not more than 10.

The Kidder, Peabody organization has been active as EECO's investment banker since 1956.

The Electronic Engineering Co. designs and manufactures products and systems in the fields of electronic instrumentation timing, data handling, automatic programming, and hazard control. Engineered Electronics Company Division manufactures digital components and switches.

Lee Points to Factors in Success

the district sales manager of the Lakewood-Long Beach offices, Oliver Speraw. In addition to his company duties, Mr. Speraw also serves as a member of the board of the Long Beach Water Commission and an instructor in real estate for Long Beach City College."

Lee also pointed up the firm's growth plans, which he said include "two additional offices each year and continued concentration upon increasing and improving our services.

* * * *

"NO SERVICE organization can survive on self-satisfaction. They either improve or they eventually disappear."

Lee is almost a native Californian, coming to Modesto from Tacoma, Wash., at the age of 2 with his parents. His father was active in farm sales and subdivisions.

Young Lee was graduated in 1920 from Stanford University with a degree in economics. He sold farm and city properties in Modesto area until 1923, when he joined the David Barry Co., developer of part of the Wilshire District near the Miracle Mile.

* * * *

FIVE YEARS LATER, he joined the Janss Investment Co., participating in development of Westwood Village, Westwood Hills and Holmby Hills.

Joining Janss at the same time were Robert K. Walker and Ruth P. Shepherd; and 13 years later Walker, Shepherd and Lee combined forces with John Griffith . . . and the firm of Griffith, Walker & Lee was formed.

The new company obtained 600 acres from the Montana Land Co. and built 300 homes northeast of the intersection of Carson Street and Bellflower Boulevard.

In 1948, the firm was dissolved after having developed 5,000 properties ranging from Harvey Way on the north to Spring Street on the south.

* * * *

BUILDING HOMES for war workers in that period also required the firm to purchase and operate a bus service to the shipyard. It also published its own newspaper, the Lakewood City News.

In 1948, the firm was reorganized as Walker & Lee, Inc., and it was decided to deal only in sales.

With only one office and 17 salesmen, there followed phenomenal growth.

A young saleman who joined up in 1949 was named manager of the New House Department two years later. He was Frank Hart, graduate of Pomona College and a World War II veteran. His father and uncle were developers of thousands of acres of citrus farms into La Habra Heights, North Whittier Heights and the City of Vista.

* * * *

APPOINTMENT of Hart signaled start of the managerial system which now sparks the company. In 1953 he became general sales manager, which position he still holds. He also now is executive vice president.

The firm opened its first resale office in Orange County in 1954, although he had dealings in the county long before that.

Continued growth finds the company now with 15 resale offices plus an average total of 35 subdivisions ranging from Ventura to San Bernardino.

Rucker Co. Supplies Reactor Component

Clark E. Rucker, president of the Rucker Co., announced in Los Angeles last week that his firm had been awarded a contract by Atomics International, a division of North American, Inc., to supply highly specialized Impulse Drive Air Cylinder Assemblies to be incorporated in the Reactor Transient Experiment (SNAPTRAN) project.

The SNAPTRAN project is part of the Atomic Energy Commission's Aerospace Nuclear Safety Program which will evaluate the safety of the rocket-borne SNAP nuclear reactor power systems.

* * * *

EACH OF THE Rucker units, custom fabricated from stainless steel to extremely critical tolerances, constitutes a self-contained device which includes a stored energy accumulator system, cylinder and valve arrangement.

Internally, the bore of the cylinder is micro plated, while threads and specific piston parts are gold plated to reduce friction.

The cylinders, fabricated by Rucker, are attached to impulse machines which will be used to operate the control drums of a SNAP 2/10A reactor used in the SNAPTRAN system. Such a device is necessary to examine and simulate reactor transient performance under abnormal conditions, or of the type which can result in the reactor's destruction.

* * * *

THE FIRST of these systems recently was shipped by Atomics International to the National Reactor Testing Station, Idaho, for a series of tests that will determine inherent shutdown characteristics of the reactor in the event of a sudden change in environment.

The function of the Aerospace Nuclear Safety program is to evaluate radiation hazards which might occur before, during and after the launch of a nuclear reactor into orbit.

Fabrication of this highly specialized component was accomplished in the Rucker Company's Berkeley manfacturing facility. Contract administration and project coordination were handled through the firm's Los Angeles office.

DOUGLAS DC9 'HOT LINE'

Facsimile transmission system spanning 2,600 miles between Douglas Aircraft Division in Long Beach and the de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. in Malton, Ontario, is speeding up vital interchange of DC9 engineering data. John C. Brizendine (left), DC9 program manager at Douglas, and William Jackson, his counterpart at de Havilland, use international data link while discussing design details of the DC9 wing and empennage, which the Canadian firm will produce under subcontract to Douglas. Clear reproductions of such data as engineering drawings, illustrations and columns of figures can be relayed with speed of electronics to facilitate technical discussions between the two firms. Instantaneous communication systems consists of a Datafax machine—a modern electronic "scratch pad"—augmented by a direct telephone line. Production of the short-to-medium-range DC9 began recently at the Douglas Aircraft Division.

HBA Group to Build 'Low Cost' Community

An advanced low cost housing community will be built, starting this autumn, by 40 builder members of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties just off Mills Avenue near Telegraph Road in the East Los Angeles area, it has been announced by Ray A. Watt, HBA president. Planning for the 40 homes to be constructed is in the final stages.

These houses, all single family dwellings, some detached and others in town house arrangement or groups, will be constructed on a cluster housing layout with large open landscaped green areas on a five-acre tract.

* * * *

STREETS WILL be kept to a minimum in the community so that most of the open spaces will be used for increasing play areas, yet there will be ample parking spaces provided.

Homes will sell for approximately $12,000 with monthly payments under $100 which will include principal, interest, taxes, and maintenance.

"We plan to break ground on the project within the month," Watt said. "Many details of the program are unknown at this time because we have much final planning to complete, but we can report now that we are definitely under way on a schedule after a year of research and study by a dozen HBA committees, headed by Larry Armour, Anaheim home builder, as chairman.

* * * *

"THIS IS A demonstration project. We plan to show true low cost housing for families with low incomes who cannot afford to buy most of the homes being built today but who desire to have a home of their own and raise their families in pleasant surroundings."

HBA builder members plan to show, by using the latest techniques of land planning and architectural concepts, that comfortable and highly efficient communities can be built to meet the financial limitations of low income families.

Pools Dot Grove by Hundreds

The "wild blue yonder" line from the U.S. Air Force's theme song should be "wild blue down yonder" if an aerial view of Garden Grove is any indication.

Private swimming pool construction in the city is big business and getting bigger all the time. City building department officials reported almost 200 backyard pools have been built thus far this year.

The rate has been climbing from a low of 14 in January to 40 last month. In the first week of August almost a dozen pool permits were issued, making it the biggest type of development in the city for the seven-day period.

During the week, major construction permits were issued to the following:

Mesa Palos Verdes Offers Great View

In planning Mesa Palos Verdes, the $38 million community high atop Palos Verdes Peninsula, the Ray Watt engineers and land planners skillfully maintained the hillside atmosphere with a curved street pattern that provides "child safe" cul-de-sacs that prohibit fast and excessive traffic.

Panoramic views of the ocean, Catalina Island and the fabulous city skyline are features of this unique and secluded area, and the distinctive private entrance to Mesa Palos Verdes is an appreciated extra that discourages unwanted visitors.

A beautiful entry way has a ten-foot window overlooking a garden court. Four bedrooms are on the upper level, including a king-size Master bedroom with private dressing-room - bath combination, and a large second bath.

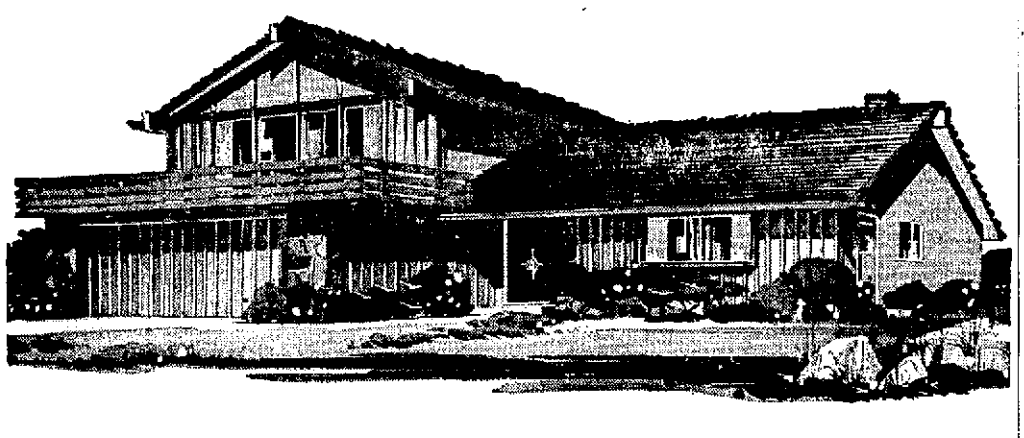

The lower level has rumpus room with wet bar and a powder room, and buyers not only have a choice of all interior colors and cabinet finishes, but of many different exterior elevations as well.

Macco's Homes in Eastbluff Overlook Upper Newport Bay

CHECK PROJECTS FROM AIR

Aerial research is planned at Orange County Airport by the Macco Realty Co. management team prior to flying to their newest development, Eastbluff in Upper Newport Bay. Research and development flights are conducted on all Macco developments. Left to right are John Parker, president; H. L. (Jack) Caldwell, vice president and general manager; R. R. James, manager of marketing and sales, Lupe Amaya is pilot.

John Parker, president, Macco Realty Co., one of the largest builders and developers in the nation, announced that reservations are now being taken at the new Macco development at Eastbluff overlooking the Upper Newport Bay. The one and two-story and split-level homes are priced from $26,650 to $35,000, with conventional financing.

The new Macco Realty homes offer three, four, and five-bedrooms with a choice of six floor plans and 21 distinctive exteriors in a totally new type of planned community on Irvine Ranch property.

* * * *

THE HOMES are the first to be built at the new Eastbluff development and have a commanding view of the countryside, Upper Newport Harbor, the Santa Ana mountains, the new University of California at Irvine and the surrounding Newport Beach-Balboa area.

Macco Realty Co., developers of the highly-successful Dover Shores luxurious community on the West Shore of Upper Newport Bay ($6,298,000 worth of real estate sold in four months and $7 million of custom homes presently under construction); and John D. Lusk and Son, Inc., have split dead center 150-acres of the 550-acre Eastbluff property and each of the two companies are handling their own construction and sales on his half, exclusively. Under the direction of Macco's John Spayde, project superintendent, Macco crews are doing the earth moving and providing the site development for both firms.

* * * *

MACCO'S NEW homes offer 1,450 square feet to 2,500 square feet and are on lots with a minimum of 7,000 square feet with all underground utilities. The firm has scheduled 240 homes.

R. R. James, Macco manager of marketing and sales, states that out of the 85 residences rising in the first unit, 60% have already been reserved.

Eastbluff ultimately is expected to have a population of approximately 7,000.

According to John Spayde, "The Eastbluff development represents the first step in the opening of a vast new area of expansion for Newport Beach. It is a departure from developing communities in or near the heart of Newport Beach, yet the city is visible from the view lots at Eastbluff and easily accessible for commuting."

Urban Renewal Will Help Save Historical Shrines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When urban planners turn their bulldozers loose in a slum neighborhood, the average citizen views the operation as a cleanup job intended to erase an acre or so of blight.

Others with a sense of history occasionally see something else in these sad-looking collection of hovels. They see the ghosts of another era —a time when these scarred and crippled neighborhoods were the very essence of elegance and gentility.

Often in the midst of the rubble, a city has found a memory of its historical heritage worth preserving.

* * * *

THE URBAN RENEWAL Administration (URA), which helps pay the bill for slum clearance, is encouraging this movement.

The agency has published a pamphlet showing how the public housing program can be used to rescue historically-significant structures standing in the path of the wrecking crews.

The URA emphasizes that federal funds cannot be spent to restore these buildings. However, a general slum clearance program can be planned in such a manner as to help save them and accent their importance.

For instance, dilapidated structures and other unsightly objects can be removed from the land where the historical shrine is to be rehabilitated.

Also, the public housing program can be used to improve access to these buildings by constructing sidewalks or roads.

* * * *

GRADING, landscaping and street lighting all can be worked out in a slum clearance project in such a way as to enhance a certain neighborhood or building which the city wants to save because of its historical importance.

The URA points out that to qualify for such improvements, each of these neighborhood plans must meet the standards set up under regular public housing laws.

Generally, it must have collapsed to the point where public action is necessary to restore it to sound condition.

In other words, the URA is not sponsoring projects aimed primarily at preservation of historical structures. But a community's regular slum-clearance program can be tailored to include this goal.

Doctor Says Nip Good for Nap

NEW YORK (UPI)—A nip to help you nap? Yes, reports one New York physician.

Dr. Herbert L. Gould, writing in "Medical Times," suggested that one remedy for the tension that causes sleepless nights is a nightcap. A hooker of cognac, whisky or other liquor you like produces mild euphoria and "taken in moderation, can quiet an apprehensive, overwrought individual and give him a restful night, he said Dr. Gould described "moderation" as one to three ounces.

Urge Check-up on Tot's Hearing

CHICAGO (UPI)—A loss of hearing is a leading factor contributing to child maladjustment, reports the Hearing Aid Industry Conference. It says recent tests among juvenile delinquents in Los Angeles showed 32 per cent suffering from hearing impairments. The conference urged parents to take their children for hearing check-ups annually.

Convenience to Highways Big Factor in Picking Plant Sites

What does modern industry want when it picks a new plant site?

The answer: four basic requirements—location near a highway, an abundant labor supply, good land and proximity to markets.

In this order — highway proximity, labor, land and markets — these were the plant location factors mentioned most frequently by 1,363 plants of all types and sizes cooperating in a two-year new plant location study by the Rockwell-Standard Corporation, of Coraopolis, Pa., and the ATA Foundation.

* * * *

THE STUDY explored, and subjected to measurement, the latest trends in plant location to produce a factual background with which trucking executives and trucking associations can be of maximum aid to industry and community planners in plant location decisions.

Although the plant location questionnaire was an important part of the study, it was preceded by intensive research which disclosed population growing and moving as never before, dramatic technological and esthetic developments in plant design, and more geographic orientations of plants to their markets.

* * * *

A FEW HIGHLIGHTS from survey findings:

In addition to the highway, labor, land and market factors which ranked first to fourth in frequency-of-mention, other factors lined up as follows: 5—availability of rail service; 6—availability of raw materials; 7—favorable state and local tax structure; 8—favorable leasing-financing; 9—abundant water supply; 10—proximity to related industry; 11—existence of building at site; 12—community's cultural-recreational assets; 13—nearby vocational training facilities.

Factors 6 through 11 were very important in some instances but varied from industry to industry while the importance of the first four factors — highways, labor, land and markets — remained consistently high throughout most of the response group.

The trend in location was strongly from city to suburbs and small towns and rural areas. Very few reported moves in the other direction.

GARDEN PARK ESTATE
Master bedroom with natural wood-burning fireplace featured in the popular two-story model. All bedrooms have large walk-in closets.

Fireplace in Master Bedroom Is Big Attraction to Buyers

Officials of Garden Park Estates, located at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway, report that a popular selling feature of their two-level home is the large, natural wood-burning fireplace in the master bedroom.

"This catches the attention of many home-shoppers, especially the wives," they say, "and we've even sold several homes on the strength of the bedroom fireplace alone."

The aesthetic appeal, they feel, is primarily the number one reason for the overwhelming popularity of the master bedroom fireplace and use of the finest stone and rock available is another. "Most everyone likes the idea of falling asleep by the glow of a friendly fire burning," they say, and this influenced their decision to include one.

* * * *

THE LARGER bedroom has a view-all, walk-in closet, as do the other four bedrooms—making it possible to select a wardrobe without the usual stumbling around in cramped, dark closets.

* * * *

A NETWORK of freeways surround the area: including the Santa Ana, the Garden Grove and the San Diego Freeway.

"But it's those big, beautiful bedroom fireplaces that get to the buyers many times," they say.

Financing is arranged to meet individual needs. Garden Park homes range from $18,800 to $25,950 complete. VA terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs; also Cal-Vet loans and conventional terms are accesible. A choice of 30 to 35-year FHA loans make these outstanding homes within reach of almost any budget, the developers say.

Buyer Interest Continues in Second Unit of Lark Village

Sales in the second unit of Lark Village, a new Fountain Valley community, continue to match the record breaking pace set in the first unit, according to Charles W. Hester, developer.

In the two months since the subdivision first opened, more than 80 homes have been sold, he said.

Lark Village has 1 and 2 story homes of 3, 4 and 5 bedrooms, family rooms and 2 full baths. The homes are priced from $20,950 to $25,900 and can be purchased for as little as $395 down, plus costs.

Among the interesting innovations in Lark Village is a "Future" room in the 2-story models. This mammoth 19' x 26' room can be used as a rumpus room now and as the family grows it can be converted into 2 bedrooms, or 2 smaller bedrooms and a playroom. This area has a bath plumbed for future use.

* * * *

LARK VILLAGE lists among its outstanding features block fencing for the rear and side yards, underground sprinklers in the front, built-in Westinghouse range and oven, wall-to-wall carpeting, sunken living room, massive wood-burning fireplaces, mantle over fireplace and distinctive ash paneling. There is a wide variety of floor plans and exteriors.

City Pay Survey Shows $22,500 Salary Near Peak

Only 142 city officials in 35 state have yearly salaries $22,500, according to the American Municipal News.

The publication said a survey showed 53 mayors and city managers received that much or more; 89 other municipal administrators also were paid that much or more.

In 17 states, no city official received that much.

As for public corporations, 41 persons get salaries of $22,500 or more. Highest pay reported was $60,000 a year for the New York Port Authority manager.

Who Says 'Bungling Bachelors'?

They Clean-up on Myth ... Neatly Solve Housework

GOODHOUSEKEEPING expert Al Larson, Press-Telegram sports writer, relaxes in his neat abode—for a minute. He, like many other bachelors, has found perfect solution to apartment upkeep. "Send everything out—and go out yourself." By a number of such ingenious means, bachelors manage to do minimum of housework while gaining maximum credit as alone-homemakers.

By MARY NETH

There isn't a woman who can resist chuckling over the housekeeping incompetencies of the single male.

"Those poor helpless darlings, they do everything backwards," trill the gals in tones of cheery condescension.

"Why most don't know a dust pan from a frying pan—watching them clean is a scream."

Few men take issue. The majority happily give the gals full credit for outshining them around the home.

But, there are some women who won't go along with this view.

They label the long-standing caricature of the bungling bachelor as the worst type of old wives' tale.

Their opinion carries a good deal of weight, too.

For, these staunch supporters of the alone male (who does his own dishes, mops his own floors, dusts his own TV), hold the apartment keys.

Yes, landladies are in unabashed accord when it comes to monkey-wrenching the idea of bachelor inefficiency.

In fact, they say it's the single gals who are singularly messy.

THIS SHOCKING news came out during an interview with local apartment house managers.

Said Gladys Compton, "I always show bachelors' apartments to prospective tenants. Girls' rooms are more apt to be cluttered—to look a bit makeshift."

"Men are generally easier to get along with," said Mrs. Harry Johnson. "They don't leave clothes on the line, or complain about the furniture and they fix things themselves."

"I return their deposits with a smile," said Mrs. Don Lynott. "They leave the apartments clean as a whistle—we don't have to repaint and redecorate."

What's the secret to this purported male good housekeeping?

It took a little probing to find out.

Interviewed: some representative bachelors, (they modestly denied top homemaking skill), a number of puzzled single girls, (they had no idea how the men got rated so high) and some talkative landladies (an occasional peek out the blinds has netted them some nifty information as to who really does the dusting).

The conclusion: women, you are being hoodwinked.

To men housework's a game—a game of wits.

THE FOUR basic rules for bachelor clean-living are as follows:

1. Keep things to a minimum: a basic wardrobe, a couple of high-brow magazines, an ashtray.

"The less you have the less you have to clean," points out bachelor Arthur Wehrman, who likes Spartan decor for that reason.

"I got along great with a bed and bench plus cushions until the neighbors 'took pity' and moved in some furniture. It complicates the cleaning—but I guess they did get tired of my borrowing their patio chairs," he says.

(Anyone can see that the poor working girl has lost out already. She has cartons of cosmetics, oodles of under-pinnings and closets of clothes to contend with—and being feminine, she probably can't resist picking up a few little on-sale decorator items.)

2. This second step is a fine example of male ingenuity. The idea probably comes from the children's toy chest. It's the same principle.

"It's first impressions that count," says Arthur Carrol. "Doing away with surface clutter is half the battle."

TO DO THIS Wehrman keeps a couple of drawers free to "scoop things into when the doorbell rings." Another bachelor

United Way Gives Gloom Go-By

Mrs. Maurice Kent and playmates

Volunteers for Long Beach's United Way office, 1213 Cedar Ave., represent just about every type of occupation, religion, race and outlook one could think of.

With one exception.

There are no pessimists.

"So many good things go on here, that a pessimist just can't help turning optimistic," says Clara Andrews, executive director.

The organization, now officially titled Long Beach Area, Los Angeles United Way, is probably better known to local residents by its former name, the Community Volunteer Office.

"We have in no way changed our program, only our source of fund raising," explains Mrs. Andrews. "Before, money came through local contributions alone, now we receive it through county-wide drives."

Just what is the program of this organization of optimists?

"COMMUNITY betterment," says Mrs. Andrews. "That probably sounds a little stuffy—let me assure you it is not.

"This is too personal an operation to take on the earmarks of a charity machine."

The office, which serves as a clearing house for volunteer labor for 83 separate agencies here, makes use of anyone willing to contribute time. Volunteers range from school children to retired persons.

What do they do? Everything from reading to the bedridden to teaching lively tots how to dance the hula.

The office, in fact, operates something like a talent bureau. Applicants for volunteer service list their aptitudes, the hours they can contribute and their interests.

"We never fail to find a job that someone can do. Everyone in the world is needed somewhere—it's just a matter of finding the right spot," says Mrs. Andrews.

Take for example volunteer Mrs. Maurice Kent. A mother of two, she doesn't have a tremendous amount of free time—but she's happy to donate what she can.

Every week she serves the community for a half-day.

Her talents? They draw from her whole background of experience.

Before she was married she was in banking for many years. She contributes this knowledge to volunteer jobs like auditing books and typing.

Her role as a mother puts her in good stead when it comes to helping out at the Well Baby Clinic or a local nursery.

Mary Gladys Moore, retired college teacher, finds work at nursing homes the most satisfying. For the past two years, she has given patients the invaluable feeling that someone does care.

As a volunteer driver for the handicapped, George Wallace, retired salesman, can't seem to resist making little side trips of extra kindness.

On his own, he has helped many a passenger look for an apartment and then after one has been found, he can be found on the scene lugging boxes to and fro.

"You can see that we can be very proud of our volunteers," says Mrs. Andrews, "They are a wonderful group."

The United Way is also proud of the new community services it has been able to add through the years.

One of these, the Community Calendar, has proven a great success in its two years of existence.

More than 340 clubs and local organizations now list activities with it. Gone are the days when groups found themselves in competition for public attendance. Now everyone knows what's going on in town and when and where.

The first band of community volunteers appeared in Long Beach during the war years.

In 1948, the Junior League put the plan into peace-time operation. Then, after its need was proven, the Community Chest took over.

According to Mrs. Francis M. Lowry, president of the board of directors, the organization saves taxpayers about $100,000 a year and doesn't displace a single wage earner in doing so.

Now in its 16th year, the United Way, is an institution that's definitely here to stay.

"There is nothing as wonderful as voluntary good-will," says Mrs. Andrews. "If you have a moment of free time, come and see us and we'll prove so.

"We particularly invite pessimists."

CHESS BOARD plus friendly volunteer means respite from boredom for polio patient Jean Cook. A United Way worker for past two years, Mary Moore, right, a retired teacher, visits local nursing homes twice weekly, finds satisfaction in giving.

ORGANIZED WORRY:

Easier to Cope Together

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Now hear this, you worrywarts:

—To be a worrier with status in today's child-centered society get organized. Worry along with other parents — a switch on "Sing Along With Mitch."

—To worry alone deprives you of status and cheats you of the benefits of worrying together. Besides, there's safety in numbers.

Make no mistake about it. You must worry if you're raising children. If you don't fret and wrinkle the forehead about the offspring, neighbors, friends and relatives—buttinski types—are liable to think you haven't enough sense to be concerned about your children.

They may even say you neglect them.

* * * *

HISTORY'S sort of on their side. Responsible parents always have been concerned about their children.

Now we know that worrying together's "in" and worrying alone's "out" because an expert says so.

The expert this time is Mrs. Eva H. Grant, editor of "The P-T.A. Magazine."

She said thousands of Americans will be worrying together this fall when they show up for the more than 16,000 study - discussion groups organized in local Parent-Teacher Associations nationwide.

While they worry together instead of alone?

* * * *

MRS. GRANT answered the question this way:

"Not only has children's physical growth speeded up, but their mental and emotional development has also accelerated. Any eight-year-old boys knows more about cosmic rays, Castro and communism than his smartest counterpart of 25 years ago knew about science, political leaders or political doctrine."

Now since junior knows so much about Castro, castor oil, cosmic dust and such, the P-T.A. proposes to offer timely guidance in the new family life program it has scheduled for launching this fall.

The outlines for the study-discussion — organized worry—will be carried in the "P-T.A. Magazine," Mrs. Grant said.

Suggestions for "helping children cope with stress" will be offered in one phase of the program.

Another discussion topic centers on this conscience-pricking question — "who does Johnny's homework?"

Mrs. Grant said problems of the affluent child, the conformist teen-ager, the potential school drop-out and other worrywart subjects will get attention, too.

* * * *

THE ARTICLES, to be used as springboards for discussion—er, organized worrying,—will be authored by authorities in child psychology, education and other fields.

The aim of all this organized worrying, sponsored by the P-T.A.: To help parents learn more about children and their upbringing.

This is what the P-T.A. has dedicated itself to since its founding in 1897. Only today's worries are different—and changing.

"At one point," Mrs. Grant said, "we may be concerned about Johnny's learning to cross the street safely and before we know it, we're wondering whether he can hadle the family car.

"One day we're worried about his not being nice to the little girl next door, and all too soon we're afraid of his being intimate with the girl down the block."

No parent, you see, can insure himself against failure in the job of parenthood. The least you can do: Make sure you don't fail out of ignorance about what the job demands of you.

Parents who gradute from the upcoming "worry together' fests may expect to learn competence and earn confidence.

Mrs. Grant said so. And she said both are equally important in the job of raising children today.

HOT WEATHER, COOL PLANS

Localites Slate Fall Dates

By JEAN SANDERS

It may be warm and lazy-summer day weather, but for some far-thinking groups, it's none too soon to make basic plans for gala autumn events. One such group is the Nightingales Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital.

With Oct. 5 set as the date for the annual benefit Nightingale Ball (this year slated for the Edgewater Inn), Jean Lockett is setting wheels in motion Tuesday with a luncheon in her Park Estates home for the patrons and patronesses committee.

Initial ball plans will be made that day by Mmes. Jackie Lucas, Clinton Evans, William Carls, Robert Dilday, Montie Magree, Violet Akin, John Kelly, Melvin Masterson Jr., William Minshall, Harrison Moore, Edward Grant and Jack Augsburger.

* * * *

With the sparkling world of Grand Opera as the backdrop, elaborate plans are underway for what the committee vows will be THE party of the year.

It's the annual gala heralding the opera season in Los Angeles and is the inspiration of the Opera Committee of the Long Beach Auxiliary of Southern California Symphony Association.

That may be a mouthful, but party plans for Sept. 13 are nothing short of fabulous.

Inspired by Long Beach's 75th anniversary, Florence Cole and her capable committee has chosn The Gay Nineties as the theme, and those bidden will receive stunning invitations to "A Night of Wine and Roses", in the Stanley D. Weiss home and gardens, where the wine will flow as smoothly as a soprano's high C.

There was Dr. Max Negri, see, out in the stable of his new manse in Rolling Hills, attired in such disreputable garb that even a stablehand wouldn't speak to him. And there was Gloria, panting and struggling while unloading seven giant bags of groceries.

Swell time for 80 friends to descend, but that's the way it was at their surprise (and how) housewarming. Dee and Sumner Trent, along with Dan and Joanne Moon of Torrance, were responsible for the guest list, which even included some Negri kin from Sacramento — and how were they to know the negris weren't lolling about the estate taking in the view of Catalina on one side and LA on the other?

Since everyone brought dinner makings, Gloria didn't have to get at those grocery bags. Besides, the surprised new homeowners had to get acquainted with the Dalmatian puppy the horde brought for the six small Negris.

Corky Severson is having a ball on this current trip with his mother, Ethel, and grandparents, Artie and Albert Stevenon. In Rhodes, one of the picturesque Greek Isles, he climbed astride a donkey for a clop-clop juant to the Fortress of Lindos (where "Guns of Navarrone" was filmed).

The traveling localites fanned out from Cairo for a trip to Ismalia where they saw caravans of Bedouins and their camels along the way, and they drove along the Suez Canal to Port Said, an accomplishment in itself, since special permission is required to make the trip and the family saw only three cars in 100 miles of Suez driving.

Dropping a line stateside from Ireland, they say they have already been in Istanbul, Rome, Florence, Zurich and London.

* * * *

Any summer visitor at Joey and George Hardie's better watch out. If he doesn't know it by now, he may get put to work with spade or hammer. For the past three summers the Hardie's have been redoing some portion of their home in Belmont Heights. This season finds them with no garage, and complete terracing and landscaping in progress. All ye be herenow forewarned.

In the afterglow of the International Beauty Congress, talk still bubbles on about the contestants and the parties given for them before all the excitement culminated in the brilliant spectacle itself.

One of the many parties for "our" girls and the delightful foreign entries was given in the upper floor of The Chandelier by Messrs. and Mmes. Kenneth E. Wentworth, C. W. Alexander, Vern L. Parker, John O'Steen, plus Ivan Boisen.

Honored guests at the tables, decorated with red, white and blue floral pieces, were 16 American and 15 foreign girls and their hostesses.

Among the guests paying them rapt attention were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bigman, Marvin Cloyd, and Messrs. and Mmes. Jesse M. Allen, Leonard Brock, Martin Vignovich, Wayne A. Dunn, Joseph Witzerman, James R. Hale and David Kofahl.

Reminiscent of the last of the big spenders are Gloria and Lee Eldred and Barbara and Jim Evans who have been playing bridge for the past 10 years, making periodic trips on proceeds from the bridge kitty.

Their sojourn this weekend took them to Las Vegas where they will risk the entire bundle—which is nearing $200—on one roll of the dice.

Diaries are strictly personal business, but John and Dorothea Pritchard couldn't help peeking to learn how the vacation they'd planned for their seven small fry was taking hold.

They had equipped a Dodge bus with sleeping accommodations when they left Mason City, Iowa, for Long Beach, and the children, ranging from 7 to 14 years old, each was presented a diary to record the experience. Single notation one day in the 7 year old's: "Daddy was good today."

Parking the huge vehicle at Grandmother Jennie Pritchard's, they borrowed her car for sightseeing in Beverly Hills, Disneyland and all the usual attractions; then took to the skies for a quickie trip to San Francisco.

The California trip has been in the planning stage for two years when the seven Pritchard kids began saving like sixty. It was a big day when Daddy went to the bank with them and they withdrew more than $500 to help out with trip expenses and sightseeing.

* * * *

There must be something about living in the Naples area of Long Beach that gives an itch to roam the seas. Sniffing all that salt air every day, no doubht. At any rate, plying the ocean swells at this very moment is the SS Roosevelt, with Neopolitans Ann and Roy Medigovich among the passengers on board. After a merry bon voyage party on shipboard just before it pulled out of the harbor Saturday, the pair can look forward to four months of seeing the world in other ways she is lived.

Although they will do their traveling mainly by ship, a camel looms into the picture too — undoubtedly one of those humpy creatures lurking around Egypt's pyramids.

After a flight from Paris to New York, the Medigovichs will select a new Cad in Detroit and motor in comfortable style to Rhode Island for a visit with Ann's family before sightseeing their way home.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Lavelle, Scranton, Pa., was attended by his brother, Lt. James Lavelle, best man, and Lts. James Cooligan, Edward Cercone, Robert Schuster and Dave Severence, ushers.

A reception followed at Allen Center Officers Club. The newlyweds will reside in Costa Mesa after Sept. 1 when they expect to return from a jet trip honeymoon to New York, Scranton, Pa., and Miami.

The new Mrs. Lavelle was graduated from Lakewood High School and U. of Oregon where she affiliated with AOPi, Phi Theta Upsilon, Decoys and was a majorette with the university band. Her husband was graduated from the University of Scranton and served for three and a half years as an officer with the U.S. Marine Corps.

College Park Church of God was setting Friday evening for the mariage ceremony joining Peggy Ann Nash and William Spivey.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Nash, 3701 E. 10th St., and Mrs. Janice Spivey and Ben Spivey, Long Beach.

The bride's gown of silk organza featured a sabrina neckline on a lace bodice. A crystal crown held her bouffant veil and she carried white orchids with roses and stephanotis.

Miss Jill Moore was maid of honor and Mrs. Frank Buck, the bride's sister matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lynda Mackie, Terri Lee Stockman and Mrs. Kenneth Nash.

Jene Spivey attended his brother as best man and the 350 guests were seated by Robert Jones, Phil Nash, Frank Buck, and Kenneth Nash, the bride's brother.

I, P-T Rules for Bridal Stories

It's the season for peau de soie and stephanotis! Brides-to-be, when you are planning your wedding, please keep in mind our two requirements for the placement of your wedding stories. Information received after the wedding has taken place can NOT be used.

1. Get our printed wedding form questionnaire and return it BEFORE the wedding.

2. If a picture is desired, a black and white photograph of the bride is best. The picture glossy finished 8"x10" should be turned in with the completed wedding form BEFORE the wedding.

Diana Sharp Bride in Formal Ritual

First Baptist Church of Lakewood was setting for the marriage ceremony Saturday evening in which Diana L. Sharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marque M. Sharp, 4317 Palo Verde Ave., became the bride of Robert S. Anthony of Whittier.

The new Mrs. Anthony wore a gown of white lace extending into chapel train. Her bouffant veil fell from a small pearl crown.

In Error on False-Card

Some players never false-card. Others false-card every time they get a chance. The winning technique lies somewhere in between. In addition there are many occasions when a false-card is downright silly.

South concealed his nice club suit in the bidding and when West got off to a club lead things looked bright indeed. East played the nine and South promptly false-carded himself right out of game and rubber.

South won with the ace of clubs, led the nine of diamonds and finessed. East took his king and looked around for the right lead. A club return appeared hopeless. Obviously West had not led from either queen-jack-ten or king-queen-jack-ten of clubs so South was marked with at least the ace-king-queen of that suit. A spade shift did not look very good either but the heart suit showed distinct possibilities. East led the two of hearts.

South	West	North	East

2 ♦	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 N.T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ 3

South's jack lost to West's queen and the ace dropped his king. A third heart lead gave East tricks with the ten and eight and left poor South high and dry on the rocks.

* * * *

IF SOUTH had simply won the first club with the jack East would have had a tough problem. The three of clubs could easily have been fourth best from a suit headed by ace-queen-ten or even ace-king-ten.

The Bachelor's Game

bought an expensive looking Chinese screen for the same purpose. "It's amazing how much junk you can push behind it," he says.

But, cleverest of all, was the mule who just "hates dishwater hands." He built a window box outside the kitchen sink. When dishes stack up, he stashes them there—pulls the blind and prays for rain.

(Again the gals are defeated. The ones we talked to, needed every available inch of drawer, floor and closet space as it was and the idea of outdoor dishwashing didn't appeal.)

3. This is perhaps the most important clue to male apartment care: don't be there.

"I eat out about 50 per cent of the time," says Edward Jamieson. "I spend most of my time away," says Al Larson.

(The single girl is trapped again. When she entertains, the party is at her apartment. She's expected to show off her home-cooking skills and, let's face it, if she isn't invited out, she's in for the evening—glumly cluttering up the place.)

4. Last, but far from least, in the bachelor's bag of tricks: be helpless and have girl friends.

"WHEN I NOTICE that things are really getting pretty bad, I invite a girl over," says Ed Grieve. "They are real cute about showing me how to mop the floor and wash down the stove and all. I generally make it up to them by getting tickets to a show or something."

("That's a pretty smart ruse," commented single girl Joanne Weinhoff. "Yes, and when my boy friend sends things out—guess where he sends them," says Betsy McWilliams. "My apartment looks like a Chinese laundry—his is neat as a pin.")

Landlady Mrs. Lynott sums up the whole matter of male versus female housekeeping like this.

"It's an unfair battle. The men just sort of camp-in, the girls really use their apartments."

Who would she prefer to rent to?

"Bachelors of course. They may present a bungling front, but when it comes to efficiency they're tops. They delegate authority—that means they find girls to do the dirty work."

So, gals take care. Follow mother's advice and NEVER go to a man's apartment. He may not have etchings but he probably does have dust under the coffee table AND a vacuum.

Her veil of silk illusion was held by a seed pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered by gold orchids.

AFTER A FASHION

Chins, Bulges Go Undercover

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

FALL'S sportive look (above) covers chins and gams, camouflages the bulges. Suit by Adele Simpson. Toga-wrap dress (right) has new layered look, is great for girl without enough natural padding. By Ben Reig.

This is a season when most any woman can camouflage her figure problems, whatever they may be.

Designers have taken pity on the female with flabby arms, pouchy chins, too ample seating capacity and too fatted calves; or, on the other hand, the poor girl with more angles than curves.

Styles for fall and winter also are concerned with the poor sport, the extravagant spender, the stay-at-home and the gadabout.

* * * *

FOR THE poor sport is the much-touted sportive look, a trend in casual comfort which does about everything but put rosy cheeks and muscles on the world's most languid women.

The vogue includes hacking jackets, tennis sweaters, also ski jackets and walking skirts in tweedy woolens, rugged suedes or smooth leathers and furs. But none of these garments is meant to see a barn, a court, a slope or a dusty trail.

A part of that sportive theme is, the turtle neck which takes in all those chins; boots and heavy stockings, which eliminate a glimpse of gams; also easy skirts which cover a multitude of calorie sins, and sleeves that hide slack-fleshed upper arms.

* * * *

THE GIRL without enough natural padding has the layered look on her side, another chapter in the sporty style story.

She can build from the inside with skinny pants, jumpers or skirts and turtle neck blouses.

Over that: sleeveless blouses, preferably fur; jackets and coats. She can add inches, pounds and curves—until she is bent from the weight of it all.

* * * *

IT'S A GOOD year, too, for the big spender.

Opulent creations shriek their cost without any of that under (price) stated look. Take buttons, if you can afford them. On certain little slack dresses they come from Tiffany's, with wholesale prices of $3,000 each.

And buy fur, if you can. But not in any garment so practical as a coat. The woman who doesn't give a hang about the cost can stock up on little princess dresses in white mink, or sable overblouses. She also can stuff her accessory boxes with babushkas of Russian broadtail, her hat boxes with fox and leopard.

* * * *

THE WOMAN who never wants to go anywhere can be the chic-est female in town.

With limitless checking accounts she can summon to her doorstep sumptuous sculptured velvet gowns, or chiffon negligee-like apparel with ostrich plumes, or Oriental pants zany with beads and fringe, or the fanciest white satin ju-jitsu suits in existence.

All to stay at home in.

* * * *

AND THE GIRL who never is at home will find plenty to pack in her luggage this fall.

Lightweight, wrinkle-proof costumes which roll into little space and which mix and match and change their character from breakfast till ball time are in most of the couturier collections. Designers understand the problem. They are on the go, too.

* * * *

WHAT ABOUT a pretty girl with no bad habits to make agreeable and no figure faults to improve upon?

She'll have no fashion worries either—for, on her, whatever-looks-good-ordinarily will look even better.

But she'll have competition this season from those imperfect women whose imperfections, if they show at all, only make them more interesting.

Writers' Picnic

Long Beach Writers Club will have a picnic at Bixby Park from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday. Members will bring their lunch plus table service. Coffee will be served by the hospitality committee headed by Maurine Warren.

WONDERFUL WASHINGTON

To New Post in Australia

By VIRGINIA W. KELLY
I, P-T Washington Bureau

Lincoln White, a tall Tennessean with a cotton blossom accent, is going to Melbourne, Australia to serve as United States Consul General.

A one time reporter for his home-town paper, the Chattanooga Times, Linc White has been with the Department of State since 1939. He has served as director of the Office of News of the State Department since 1955.

He and Mrs. White will sail for Australia on the "Monterey" on Sept. 19. He told this reporter he plans to savor every minute of the ocean voyage and of his forthcoming four year tour in Australia.

STARS of the news media and the State Department were invited to a supper and reception to honor the Whites. The hosts were the former Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding (formerly of the Associated Press) and Mrs. Berding.

The Berdings have owned a large house and garden on fashionable Foxhall Road for many years. Bars and buffets were arranged on the veranda and in the garden. A ceiling fan (so popular in the south and the Far East before air conditioning) spun lazily on the veranda.

Andy Berding writes books and lectures. His last book was "Foreign Affairs and You." Another book is ready for publication.

* * * *

LINC WHITE'S State Department successor, Richard I. Phillips attended the party. A career foreign service officer, a Latin American specialist, and linguist, Mr. Phillips is also tall and affable.

Mrs. John Foster Dulles, widow of the Secretary of State, said she had recently returned from the Middle East. She enthralled us all by saying she had met Lawrence of Arabia (many years ago) and that he was a small man, in no way resembling Peter O'Toole, of the motion picture.

David Waters, press officer for the State Department's Office of Protocol; and Edward R. Murrow, director of the U. S. Information Agency, and Mrs. Murrow were there.

Cards to Benefit Catholic Missions

Immaculate 129, Young Ladies Institute, will have a card party Tuesday at Holy Innocents Parish Hall, 20th Street and Pasadena Avenue.

Bridge, pinochle, canasta and 500 will be played. Refreshments will be served at 7:30 with games to begin at 8 p.m. Money from the event, which is open to the public, will be donated to Catholic missions.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Does L.B. Want Grand Opera?

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

In reading the glowing reports of the Los Angeles music critics about the recent very successful opera productions at the Greek Theater in Los Angeles, and especially anent the item that the three performances were sold out weeks before, the thought has possessed me—why can't we have a short season of opera in Long Beach? The old pessimistic attitude that opera is not popular today, has been disproven many times, and right here around us.

Our near neighbor, Laguna Beach, is presenting seven performances of grand opera this month: "Rigoletto," "The Marirage of Figaro" and "Madame Butterfly." This is their second season of grand opera in the Irvine Bowl. For four years now the Los Angeles Opera Company has presented grand opera in highly successful productions, also to sold-out houses.

* * * *

IN A CITY like Long Beach with a population of more than 350,000, its vast oil resources, its lavish and costly International Beauty Congress; not to mention the cost of the anticipated World's Fair, it is incredible that we have not had a grand opera season. Instead of the questionable experiment of a month-long spring music festival, why not concentrate on a spring season of grand opera? And I mean "grand" opera with name starts, not amateurs, in the lead roles.

All about us is a rich abundance of outstanding talent. Dorothy Kirsten has just concluded three performances of "Madame Butterfly" at the Greek Theater with overwhelming acclaim, and she lives in near-by Palos Verdes. Our Long Beach Symphony, as in the cities of Europe, could be the excellent orchestra for opera productions.

* * * *

THE TOWN of Downey has been noted by musical authorities for its superior symphony orchestra. Its conductor, Mario Cajati, who has had much opera experience in Italy was assistant to Toscanini, is actively interested in producing a Long Beach Opera Company. He informed that he would use only stellar names in the leading roles, and Long Beach singers in the lesser roles and chorus. He would like to present four operas: "Carmen," "La Boheme," "Madame Butterfly," and "Rigoletto." I asked him what such productions would cost and he estimated around $20,000 a performance.

It would be interesting to get my readers' reaction to such a project and I would welcome letters on the subject.

Check the Schedule Before Gallery Visit!

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

We have a moral this week: always check on time and days before planning an expedition to a gallery or museum. Full of anticipation last Monday, another mother and I packed the youngsters in the wagon and set off for the Pavilion Gallery in Balboa. We were looking forward to a show of three Claremont painters: Paul Darrow, Doug McClellan, and Roger Koontz.

* * * *

ALAS, ALL was locked up; a sign on the door said gallery hours are Wednesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. Things being what they are with vacation schedules, we don't know if we can make it down before the show closes on Sept. 22, but it should be a good one. (The gallery will be closed Aug. 23 through 28 and Sept. 1 through 3.)

However, we did find another gallery, the Albatross, at the other end of the same street at the foot of the fishing pier. While these hours are Thursday through Sunday, 3 to 10 p. m., the gallery is surrounded by workshops—sculptors, jewelers, painters, etc., and we were able to prevail on some of them to let us in the gallery.

* * * *

WILLIAM STURDEVANT of La Jolla is represented by an impressive array of sculptures, some paintings, and 16 really fine copperplate etchings. Sturdevant's sculpture is baroque and, were it music, would be termed "bravura" style. He does heads of prophet-types and animal heads, largely in alabaster, high-lighting the graining and color of the stone.

Sturdevant's etching are in crisp style, beautifully drafted, and have evocative personalities, such as bird-like creatures of fantasy.

* * * *

PHYLLIS BAILEY shows many skillful drawings, largely of women, strongly influenced by her former teacher, Francis de Erdeley, as well as Daumier and Toulouse. They are highly skilled studies in charcoal, conte, and inks. Several are carried on into oils.

John Dove, a current student at LBSC, has several sculptures in the show. One is made from the root of eucalyptus, carved, oiled, and polished. Another is of ceramic and refers to female forms.

There's much to enjoy, artwise, in Balboa . . . for those who go down at the end of the week.

Sellers Film at LBSC

"The Mouse That Roared," starring Peter Sellers and Jean Seberg, will be screened in Long Beach State College Little Theater Saturday at 7 p.m. and again at 9 p.m.

It is the tale of what happens when the tiniest nation on earth, The Grand Duchy of Fenwick, invades the U.S.A. because of a wine dispute. A California wine firm has produced a cheap imitation of the Fenwick product, threatening the duchy's entire national economy.

* * * *

The Fenwick prime minister, played by Peter Sellers, decides to declare war on America, lose, and be repatriated. The Fenwick field marshall, played by Peter Sellers, invades New York City with an army of 20 archers. An important grand dutchess, played by — you guessed it — Peter Sellers, collaborates with them.

Involved in the invasion is the capture of a scientist and his super-powerful "Q-bomb." Jean Seberg and David Kossoff compliment Sellers who outdoes himself in the three roles. "The Mouse That Roared" is one of the best comedies to come out of Britain in several years, according to New York critics.

Box office admission is $1.25 for the last film presented by the Long Beach Film Society in its summer series.

Name Catalina Art Festival Judges

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Three Southern California painters have been named as judges for the Catalina Art Festival to be held Sept. 21 and 22 in Avalon.

Emil J. Kosa Jr., Claude P. Parsons and John W. Hilton will select the winners from the hundreds of paintings displayed in the outdoor event.

Kosa has been painting for 40 years and is a member of the National Academy. Parson, a leader of the American school, paints with firm line and brilliant palette; Hilton is of the "desert school" of California painters.

Bill Bender, who has been exhibiting in New York galleries for the past five years, will judge the children's and youth art exhibits.

A total of $1,500 in prizes will be awarded.

One award of $150 will be made for the best Catalina Island landscape by a non-resident artist. To make it possible for contestants to paint the interior scenic areas of the island, festival officials have arranged special bus rides Sept. 16 through 20. Reservations are necessary. Artists may book space on the buses by calling Avalon 640.

Other prizes are for $400, $200 and $100; popular prizes chosen by the public, $50, $35 and $25; 10 special awards of $10; and 10 honorable mentions.

Any one may enter the festival competition, but all entries must be delivered by hand—no shipping—on Saturday, Sept. 21 between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Paintings must be taken to the Catalina Art Association on Crescent Street. A fee of $2 per entry will be charged. Judging will take place that afternoon.

The auditorium will be modified and redecorated to give it a typical summer theater effect. A round stage, 34 feet in diameter, will be installed; the floor will be fully carpeted, and arm chairs will be installed to bring seating capacity to 3,000. Last row of the seats will be only 15 rows from the stage, spokesmen say.

They Love Window Stopping

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

About three summers ago, Phyllis Turman, noticing the stream of foot traffic past her Peninsula apartment, decided it would be fun to have something fun in her front window for the children to look at.

The window displays now have become a beloved institution in the area, with visitors from many other communities. And it isn't just the children who enjoy it.

"It is a very rewarding hobby," says Miss Turman. "Everyone is too serious about life these days. I do enjoy seeing people smile or laugh a little when they pass by."

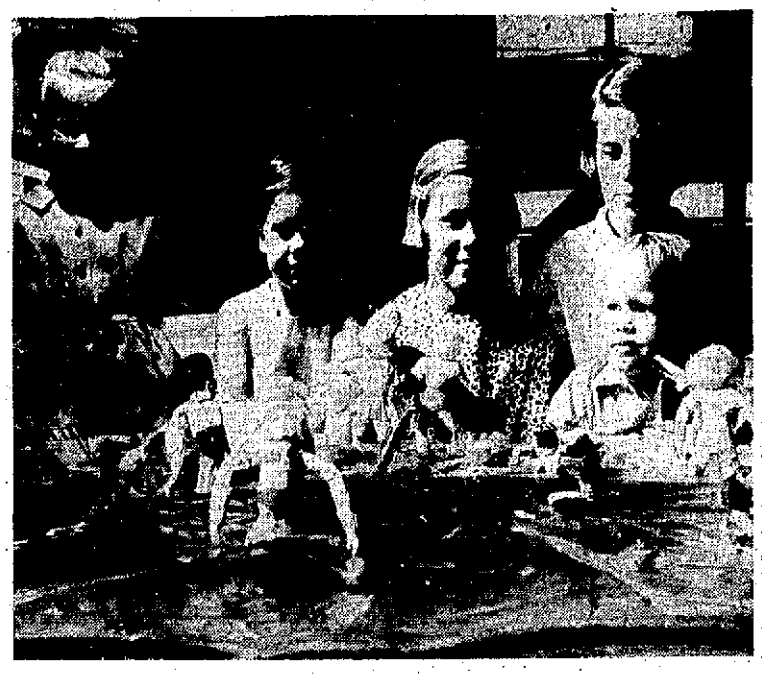

Two of the biggest boosters for Miss Turman's window displays are her landlords, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mills.

"Wonderful people," their tenant says.

* * * *

WHEN Miss Turman started her project the window had six panes of glass divided by strips of wood. Mr. Mills was so enthusiastic that he replaced it with a single pane "because he thought she could decorate it better."

The current display is a beach scene with blue cellophane water and real sand and shells. The tiny figures are made of crepe paper with marshmallow covered heads. Every detail of life at the beach is shown in minute detail, with umbrellas, beach mats and gaily striped back rests on the sand and surf boards and inner tubes in the "water."

AT THE BEACH

These neighbors love Phyllis Turman's window at 59-B 65th Place. Miss Turman has a changing display that is currently a humorous beach scene. The children are (from left) Susy Martin, Priscilla, Cynthia and Gretchen Weede and Christopher Martin. They find the window lots of fun and so do their summer night-strolling elders.

One family group gets particularly appreciative laughs from parents going by overburdened with beach gear. Father is struggling along with umbrella and beach chairs; exotic beach hatted mother has a tiny picnic basket, the thermos and a utility bag and the three children straggle behind with rolled mats, towels, more beach bags and a tiny pink baby!

AT NIGHT the window is lighted with miniature lights strung with clam shells and sand dollars.

Miss Turman's talented fingers started their work with crepe paper shortly after she was stricken with polio.

"No poor me, please!" she exclaimed, when interviewed.

Severely crippled, her friends put her to work making party favors and table decorations.

Now completely recovered, Miss Turman has the ideal job for a beach lover. She swims and frolics with her admiring young neighbors by day and works a late shift at the Bank of America clearing house.

Of the many elaborate and time consuming displays made by Miss Turman, one that got the most giggles was the simplest. Between productions she spotlighted two silly little ceramic lions with fur ruffs and real whiskers sitting under a crepe paper palm tree.

What the happy passers-by didn't know was that the leering lions were taken right from Miss Turman's dinner table where they held the salt and pepper.

Not the Gift, But Cost That Counts!

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is from a large family, and at Christmastime and birthdays and special occasions one or the other of his brothers or sisters will buy an expensive gift for his parents and then present us with our share of the bill.

My husband pays and says nothing.

Now, Molly, we have had many arguments over this. I would much prefer spending our money and buying gifts that we pick out—which, of course, means getting gifts we can afford.

Do you think I'm unreasonable in this? Should I hang him back on the family tree?—BROKE AND DISGUSTED

DEAR B. AND D.:

What do you mean, hang him back on the family tree? Sounds to me he's never been plucked therefrom!

It's ridiculous to let his brothers and sisters dictate in this matter. You have every right to select your gifts yourselves. But, Disgusted, have you thought that failing to go along with the others might embarrass your husband, even if it doesn't you? Maybe he's just trying to be a good sport, so don't get too mad with him.

However, I wouldn't blame you one bit for trying to persuade him that maybe his folks would actually prefer the individual thought on your part. There, you can see I'm trying not to take sides!—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I are confused about dinner and supper. Is dinner the chief meal of the day, or is your noon meal regardless of what you have to eat? If your evening meal is dinner, when do you have supper?

I call our noon meal lunch, and the evening meal dinner. My husband says that's not right. Please set us straight, won't you?—MRS. N.G.

DEAR MRS. N.G.:

Actually, it is easy to be confused because in certain sections of our country dinner and supper differ somewhat from dinner and supper elsewhere.

Dinner, however, no matter whether served midday or evening, is the large meal of the day. Supper is always the evening meal, always lighter than dinner, and served sometimes early evening, oh, say, after a concert or some such, later in the evening.

Lunch, of course, is always the light midday meal. Is this clear or am I confusing you more than ever?—M.M.

Card Party Set

Alfred J. Maloney

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Maloney Is Tops at Round Steak

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

He's a man who knows his business from stem to stern. In fact, he'd better know it!

Today's Chef of the Week, Alfred F. (Al) Maloney, has recently been appointed manager, Bethlehem Steel Company's Shipbuilding Division, San Pedro Yard. He succeeds (Chef) W. A. Harrington, at both the "yard" and the barbecue.

Maloney actually parlayed the necessities of World War II into his present position at Bethlehem Steel, working days and studying nights. He came to the San Pedro Yard in 1941, in the production control department. In September of '42, he was appointed junior test engineer. Three years later he became sales engineer, and in 1962 was given the appointment of assistant manager.

* * * *

BORN in East St. Louis, Ill., the family moved the Phoenix, Ariz., when he was 10. His Dad was in government service, and they again moved to San Diego just in time for him to enroll in high school. He remained to graduate before coming to Long Beach Junior College. He brought with him his football prowess which had its beginning at San Diego High.

Maloney then enrolled at USC where he majored in industrial engineering. His degree took him to Bethlehem. With the largest floating dry dock in Southern California, Bethlehem has invested 7½ million dollars, in the last two or three years, modernizing the San Pedro yard.

A member of the Long Beach Yacht Club, Maloney belongs to the Society of Naval Architects, the Propeller Club, and, "marine-wise," to the Long Beach Bilge Club.

He and Dorothene, (Mrs. M.), have a son Michael, 18, a graduate of St. Anthony's High School who plans to enroll at Notre Dame this fall, and a daughter, Patricia Ann, 12, a student at St. Bartholomew.

MALONEY is the opposite of a "putterer" — he's a "sitter" if there's any kind of sports event showing on the TV screen.

But . . . can he ever barbecue! In fact, the Maloney Steak began 12 years ago. Dorothene always asked the butcher for a top round steak, 2 inches thick. After a time, the butcher queried her about it . . . that cut being rather unusual. She passed along her recipe—he tried it—liked it, and began recommending it. He dubbed it Maloney Steak.

Now, 12 years later, he's still selling it like crazy.

MALONEY STEAK

2 tsp. meat tenderizer
½ cup salad oil
½ cup red table wine
2 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. marjoram leaves
½ tsp. coarsely ground pepper

Pierce both sides of a 2-inch thick top round steak and sprinkle with meat tenderizer. Place meat in shallow pan. In a bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Pour over steak. Let stand at room temperature for 8 hours, turning often to marinate well. Remove from marinade and grill over hot coals 12 minutes on each side for rare. Carve steak in thin, diagonal slices for serving.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Calling All Travelers!

DEAR ABBY: Please give the gas station folks a break and ask the vacationing public to have mercy on us. They drive up, grab a hose and rinse off their cars. It doesn't bother them that they make a mess for others to walk through. They want their windshields cleaned, but don't need gas. And they've bought their oil by the case somewhere else. They even ask to borrow your tools. They pile out in droves to use the restroom. Sometimes they spend half an hour in there—changing clothes. Our regular customers can't get in for the free loaders. In a nice clean business like a liquor store, the customer spends more in 30 seconds than he does at a service station for a 500-mile trip. And the clerk doesn't have to clean windshields, check lighter fluid or anything. The customer doesn't expect a thing except the right change and a paper bag to put the bottle in. He even gets oiled on his own time and off the premises. Thanks a lot. —"LEFTY"

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who needs help desperately. I consider myself lucky because I have a nice family and we have everything we need. My big problem (and please don't laugh) is that I have a mustache. Boys are always telling me I need "a shave." Even some of my girl friends have tried to tell me in a nice way that I'd be pretty if I got rid of that mustache. I don't want to shave it off, and I'm afraid to use some of the stuff I see advertised because I've heard it could leave my upper lip rough like a man's beard, or maybe it would leave scars. Can you help me?—MUSTACHED

DEAR MUSTACHED: You are a very wise young lady to consider so carefully the results before attempting to remove unwanted hair from your face. Ask your mother to take you to a skin doctor, and let HIM tell you which method is best for you. There are many.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: You say there is no discrimination in cities. Well, you are 100 per cent wrong. At this very moment there is discrimination against hiring overweight people for stenographic work. I went on interview after interview and was turned down. I was finally told outright that I wasn't hired because of my weight. I am only 27 pounds overweight and am trying to lose it. But in the meantime I have to live. If given a chance, I'm sure I could do as good a job as any thin girl. This is certainly not the land of opportunity for the heavy-set person.—STARVING

DEAR STARVING: While "appearances" do play an important role in job-getting, a 27-pound roll shouldn't disqualify you for every job. There must be other factors.

DEAR ABBY: We run a restaurant and have hired a good prfessional organist. We have a few patrons who like to play "a couple of ditties" on our organ when they come in. When they ask, we hate to turn them down, so we tell them to go right ahead and play a "PIECE OR TWO." The trouble is, once they sit down we can't get them to quit. It offends the hired organist, and besides, the other patrons don't enjoy these amateurs as much as the amateurs think they do. Other restaurant owners must have this problem, too, Abby. Will you print this with your answer and help us all?—BOX NO. 660

DEAR BOX: The way to solve your problem is to put a stop to it before it starts.

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Tending Home Fires

Counter Action

Keeping the home fires burning is mostly a matter of heating up something for dinner these days. And, with electric ovens and plug-in appliances, sometimes the heating up doesn't even require a flame.

But, this doesn't by any means indicate that the little woman has abdicated the kitchen. She's still there (up to four hours a day, according to some surveys).

And, unlike grandmother, who had little other than homemaking to do — she's got a million and one other projects to take care of, too.

So, bring on the time saving gadgets and glamorous gimmicks.

Under $1

ELEGANCE is the word these days. It's not enough just to simmer a stew on the back of the stove. When it comes to company dinners, the family expects dining-out glamor at home. Now, with summer melons in the market what could add a more sophisticated note than to serve them in a cocktail or salad cut up in professional looking balls. Easy to do with a gadget made just for the purpose.

And, melons served sliced with a dash of lemon or lime can be elegant, too. That is, if you've a collection of little melon spoons on hand. Of stainless steel, they come with hardwood, teak finished handles—are styled in Scandinavian type simplicity.

Under $2

TOP OF the stove mop-ups take up lots of precious time. Why not fit the burner with a bib? Of aluminum, these practical bibs fit under coil; keep drips from turning into hard-to-get-off stains. Just lift off and rinse out.

* * * *

Look, no lid? No need to grab for one when it comes to draining liquid from a pan. There is a more efficient way. Use a pan drainer. It's easier to hold on to—slotted just right to do job.

* * * *

Building a better mouse trap IS the American way of life. Now, a manufacturer has come out with a better egg slicer. It has handle, is lots easier to manage than the old-fashioned variety. A must for sliced egg fanciers, indeed.

* * * *

DO YOU LOSE spoons in the bottom of bubbling pans? Well, you needn't. Buy a stainless steel pan spoon. It's fashioned to hang on side of on-stove pot; always there, ready to use.

Gravy bowls are great . . . only trouble, by the time dinner is served the gravy is cold. Elegant gravy chafing dish solves this saucy problem. Of chrome, dish will blend with any dinnerware; is attractive addition to table. Candle heat keeps gravy hot; go-with ladle makes it easy to serve.

OUR COVER

"Water skiing is a snap," says Chuck Stearns, who defends his national title before hometown fans next week in Long Beach Marine Stadium. Apparently Chuck believes what he says because, although he is only 24 years old, he has won the national championship five times—not to count a great many other honors. In competing at Marine Stadium, Chuck is returning to the spot where he made his first clumsy efforts to stay afloat. And where he won his first trophy. Jerome Hall tells more about this aquatic champion and the coming National Championships in his story, "The Babe Ruth of Water Skiing" on Page 7.

In typically Latin outburst of joy, Sophia Loren hugs knees of husband, Carlo Ponti, at bit of good news.

MOVIES

La Bella's Problem

By William Sunderland

United Press International.

SHE HAS everything—except a husband. One of the world's most beautiful women, an Oscar on her mantlepiece, contracts for at least two years of films, the starring part in a Broadway play under discussion.

This is Sophia Loren, the Italian actress who once was a skinny little girl named Sofia Scicolone living in the slums of Naples.

Sophia is the second actress in the history of motion pictures to command a salary of $1 million for a picture. That's what she is getting for "The Fall of the Roman Empire." It was Elizabeth Taylor who first hit the million-dollar-mark for "Cleopatra."

She lives with a man she loves—and who loves her. It could be called one of the happiest marriages in the world of films, except he is not her husband—at least not in the eyes of the Italian law.

SHE HAS been married and then had the marriage annulled in an effort to untangle the almost unbelievably complicated legal situation revolving around her and producer Carlo Ponti.

Sophia, relaxing in a chair in her antique-furnished Roman apartment, has a simple answer to the situation.

"No matter what the law says, we are married because being married isn't a matter of standing up before a judge or a priest and having him say words. It's a feeling—and I feel married," she said.

"My husband, my ex-husband, my fiance—or whatever one should call him—and I don't discuss the problem. It simply upsets us and there is nothing to do about it anyway.

"It is a difficult and complicated matter and I really don't have any hope of a solution. It will just go on and on and on and I don't have any hope of there ever being a solution."

SOPHIA, now 28, married Ponti by proxy in Mexico in 1957. But Ponti, nearly twice Sophia's age and several inches shorter than her statuesque five feet, eight, had been married before—to an Italian general's daughter named Giuliana Fiastri. Before marrying Sophia Loren, he obtained a Mexican divorce.

But in Italy, no divorce is legal.

Charges of bigamy were filed in the Italian courts against Ponti—not by his former wife, however. In Italy, any citizen may file such charges, even without having his name made public.

If convicted, Ponti faces a five-year jail sentence and Sophia an equal prison term as being a party to bigamy.

After innumerable court hearings—any court action in Italy goes on for years—the couple decided to get the marriage annulled, strictly as a legal maneuver. Their relationship remained the same.

The Mexican annulment was handed down last year.

THE PROBLEM now is that the Italian prosecution claims the annulment is not valid.

Another touchy point is her acting as godmother to the first baby of her sister, Maria, who married jazz pianist Romano Mussolini—son of late Italian dictator, Benito Mussolini.

Several days after the baptismal ceremonies, a Catholic theologian from Milan, Msgr. Giovanni Battista Guzzetti, said Sophia should never have been permitted to act as godmother because she is a "public sinner."

Sophia said she has enough film contracts to take up her next two years and then she may do a play on Broadway.

"It's still in the talking stage, so I can't say much about it—except that, naturally, I'll be playing an Italian woman."

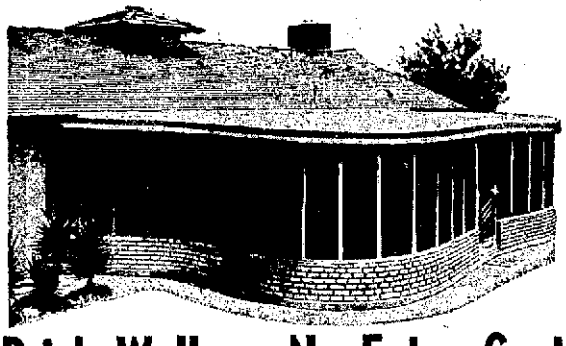

She added, "Certainly, winning the Oscar (for "Two Women") was a high point. But looking back over the years I don't regret anything.

"I learned something from everything—and particularly from the bad things.

"About the future, I don't know. I like surprises."

Tradition of Ships' Figureheads

Undraped figure of a girl graces the bow of MV Bolinas, named for small California town well known to mariners.

By Frank H. Black Jr.

ONE OF the oldest and most colorful traditions of the sea would have been lost if it had not been for the Norwegian owner of a shipping line whose vessels call at the Port of Long Beach.

Thomas Olsen, head of the Fred Olsen Line, revived and has maintained the ancient tradition of placing figureheads on the bows of ships.

And since he placed the first one on a ship in 1936, there have been 49 more Olsen vessels sailing the high seas with large, bronze statues of people from history and mythology on their bows.

THIS TRADITION goes back to when man first ventured out on unknown seas and he felt the need for some kind of magic omen to keep him safe. Thousands of years ago the Chinese painted large, gleaming eyes on the bows of their junks to watch for the dangers of the sea. The Egyptians and Phoenicians often had birds of prey for figureheads to protect them from sea monsters.

And Leif Erickson, probably the first white man to touch on new world shores, had a figurehead on the bow of his oaken ship.

The grand era of this tradition was in the 19th Century when nearly every ship afloat was adorned with women in various stages of undress, generals, figures of state, mythological characters and creatures, Indians and animals.

One of the most famous ships during that period was the Cutty Sark. This noble ship of white sail had a scantily clad maiden for a figurehead, her name coming from the Scotch and Anglo meaning "short chemise."

When the romantic days of sailing ships came to an end and motor driven vessels became supreme, figureheads were no longer considered necessary. In the machine age, man no longer felt the need of figureheads. Ships were equipped with radio and were no longer completely subjugated to the vagaries of the weather.

WHAT ENABLED Olsen to revive the figurehead tradition was a structural change in ship design around 1935. Bows were changed from a sharp to a rounded or "soft-nosed" design, which was ideally suited for the placement of figureheads.

Olsen had several reasons for bringing back the figureheads. He wanted "to preserve an old and beautiful tradition from the days of white sails and to give an opportunity to Norwegian artists to display their art throughout the world."

And in the machine age, he wanted to give a style and a personality to his ships.

The first Olsen vessel to carry a figurehead was the MS Bayard, named for the famous French knight of the 15th Century.

Ship that bore the name of Simon Bolivar also carried his figure at her bow. Craft sank, figurehead was salvaged.

A regular caller at the Port of Long Beach is the MV Bolinas with an unclothed woman on the bow.

THIS OBSCURE little town was selected for a ship's name because, while it is little known to landsmen, it is known world-wide to mariners. For all ship radio messages coming from the Pacific are beamed there and then relayed up and down the West Coast.

When an official of the Olsen Line said that the figure of the nude woman had no specific meaning relative to Bolinas, this writer suggested that no woman should be without some significance—especially one without any clothes—and this one on the Bolinas should symbolize "The Spirit of Radio Waves."

The suggestion has been sent to Olsen headquarters in Oslo.

Some of the other ships calling regularly at Long Beach are the MV Bataan with a Philippine maiden in honor of the province where many Americans fought and died during World War II; the MV Bonanza with an Indian referring to the early West, and the MV Buffalo carrying the dashing figure of Buffalo Bill.

SOME OF the more exotic ships are the Baghdad with Scheherazade looking out over the waves; Balkis, which is the real name for the Queen of Sheba, and the Bolette with another undraped female figure in a scallop shell symbolizing the birth of Venus.

Perhaps the most obscure figurehead is that on the Borgland. It is an owl. The explanation is that the owl is watching the ocean from his nest in the "castle" or Borg.

One of the majestic figureheads was on the Bolivar, with the great South American liberator in marching pose. The Bolivar broke up and sank while on her maiden voyage to Dublin Bay. But the figurehead was salvaged and is now in the Welfare Hall of the Akens Shipyard in Oslo.

Chuck Stearns of Long Beach wears a heavy mantle . . .

The Babe Ruth of Water Skiing

By Jerome Hall

With skis turned sideways to his high-speed course, national water ski champion Chuck Stearns does one of tricks that has taken him to top.

WHEN THE history of water skiing is written it might begin: "One day a man fell out of a motorboat, clinging to a rope . . ."

When the world is ready for a chronology of water skiing, it should begin with the name Chuck Stearns.

Chuck is the Walter Hagen, the Knute Rockne, the Babe Ruth of this sport.

That's a heavy mantle to heap upon a lad barely 24 years old, but it's one he's earned.

In the brief history of water skiing as an organized sport, there is no one to compare with Stearns, who next weekend will put his talent on display for the home folks when the national championships are held at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

A LOT OF water has passed under Chuck's skis since the day he first said "Let's buy a boat, dad. That looks like fun." It was in Marine Stadium that he made his first clumsy attempts to stay aflont. It was there he won his first trophy. And unless there's an upset of major proportions, he will have what he considers his most important victory there next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In the 10 years since Chuck first went splash, he has risen to a position unchallenged by any other in his sport—past or present. Among his accomplishments:

- He has won the national championship five times.
- He has won the Grand National Catalina ocean race six times.
- He is the only one ever to win all three categories of competition in the U. S. finals.
- He singlehandedly brought national recognition to West Coast aquatics.
- He has won the tricks event in the Nationals the past five years.
- He has turned his talents into big business. Chuck Stearns water skis are sold the world over.

IT'S EASY TO SKIM through a list like that without realizing its magnitude. Consider, for example, the Catalina ski race, an annual test of stamina put on by the Long Beach Boat & Ski Club and recognized as one of the more difficult races in the world. It's a round-trip, nonstop race. Chuck has won it six of the eight times he has entered and holds the record of one hour and 14 minutes for the near-70-mile course.

He failed to win twice, once due to an ankle injury and the other time because his navigator made a slight miscalculation and missed the island. If the Coast Guard hadn't hailed them down, Chuck might have established a record for water skiing from Long Beach to Fiji.

Chuck recently won the U. S. Masters tournament held in Georgia in such impressive style that he was immediately selected as the captain of the four-man, two-girl United States team for the World Meet three weeks from now in France.

WATER SKIING has provided him with the chance to see the world by sea without joining the Navy. Earlier this year he made a month-long trip to Australia at the persistent requests of the Down Under skiers. Chuck didn't want to go because it cost him enough school time that he didn't graduate from Long Beach State College this year, but the Aussies were very persuasive. They sent money. Enough to cover a delightful tour of the South Pacific that included a gala holiday in his honor in Tasmania.

Chuck Stearns probably is the only water skier who has been cheered for going Down Under.

Several saronged sirens of the South Seas tilted their hibiscus petals in Chuck's direction, but he escaped with bachelorhood intact. A handsome, muscle-rippling, sun-tanned fellow with financial reserves of some magnitude, he is a popular target.

When he is not in college or slithering across foreign waters, Stearns conducts a ski school at Salton Sea, where he promises, even to ungainly neophytes, that he will have them zipping along at 25 miles per hour after only 30 minutes of tutoring.

Chuck has achieved financial security with his skiing—one of a handful of true pros in the country. In addition to his school ($15 per hour) and his name-line skis which are manufactured by one of the largest ski makers in the nation and sold all over the world, Chuck could wipe out a lot of people's total indebtedness with what he could get for pawning his trophies.

HE HAS WON nine sets of silver tea service, for example — the kind that cost upwards of $1,000. And for the six times he has won the Catalina race he has acquired trophies that cost about $1,500 each. And there are dozens of smaller silver cups that would melt down very nicely.

"I'd never sell any of them. It's a matter of honor," he says, but he admits he did compromise slightly. He gave one of the silver sets to his sister for a wedding present the past summer. And with no other sisters or brothers heading toward nuptials—and with no inclination toward them himself—those big teapots are beginning to pose a problem.

Because of the day that Chuck said to his pop, "Let's get a boat, that looks like fun," life has been a breeze and a salt spray for the Stearns family. His father, Bill, has retired to manage Chuck's business affairs. The elder Stearns was a building contractor, but now will take a house-building job only "if we can see water from the lot the guy is building on."

Chuck views this week as probably the most important in his life. He says, "I remember 1960 was the turning point for me. They said it was impossible to win all three firsts in th Nationals." But he did it.

"Nothing could surpass that, except winning the Nationals in my home town," he avers.

There had been talk that Chuck is over the hill, probably ignited by his third-place finish in the tricks event in last year's U. S. Championships. Chuck also got only a third in the jumps, but a first-place finish in the slalom gave him enough points to take the over-all championship and regain the national crown that he also won in 1960, 1958, 1957 and 1955.

BUT CHUCK has so totally controlled the sport that those two third places, especially in the tricks which is his forte, started rumors.

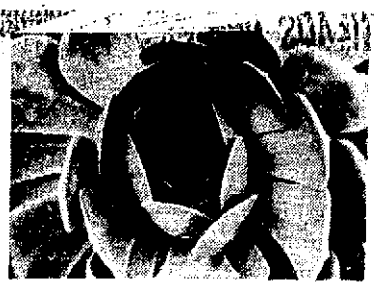

Young Stearns was beginning to believe them. "It's going to be tougher to win (the Nationals) this year," he said before competing in the Masters tournament in Georgia in June. When Chuck returned with the Masters crown he said, "I was amazed at how easy it was."

If next weekend's tournament is as easy, next month he may regain the world title that he won in 1959 in Milan, Italy. That would mean another $1,000 teapot.

Just what he needs.

Stearns has added teaching to his capabilities and operates a school of water skiing at Salton Sea. Here, he starts a young student skier.

Viewed by millions but never read . . .

His Newspapers Are Props for TV and Movies

By Jack B. Kemmerer

Typical examples of newspaper headlines printed to order for movie and television studios are examples of work of Hollywood's Earl Hays Press.

IN THESE DAYS when "bigness" is a virtue, some newspaper chains have combined circulations that probably run into the millions. Yet, there's a publisher in Hollywood with a single Linotype machine whose newspapers are seen by more people than all of the large chains combined.

The small-time, big-time publisher is Earl Hays, proprietor of the Earl Hays Press in Hollywood. His newspapers, hardly ever reaching an edition larger than 50 copies, are viewed by uncounted millions throughout the world—viewed but never read.

It is to the Earl Hays Press that the movie and television studios come for their journalistic props—the fictional newspaper editions that the screen hero or villain just happens to see on a newsstand or in the arms of a ragamuffin crying, "Wuxtry." The headline comes up at you in a rush to fill the screen with the depressing announcement that the hero's fiancee has run off with the villain; war has been declared; or the Titantic has sunk.

EARL HAYS started in the commercial printing business many years ago back east and moved to Los Angeles where he got in on the ground floor of the then new motion picture industry by printing titles and small inserts. When talkies appeared on the scene titles became obsolete and Hays continued to print inserts and started what is now the largest collection of printed material in private hands.

Earl Hays checks his work and prepares to print a facsimile of a newspaper page on his letter press. Millions see his work in films and on TV.

In his files are such items as Russian telegraph blanks, baggage checks from just about all over the world, foreign birth certificates in languages ranging from German to Arabic, liquor labels, legal forms in various languages, tickets for the trans-Siberian railroad, tickets for the crossing of the Atlantic of the German Zeppelin, goods labels, Mexican marriage licenses and thousands more.

The Hays Press is ready for any contingency. If the order is for a replica of a Berlin, Paris, or Tokyo newspaper, Hays can take from his files the "Berlin am Mittag," "Ce Soir" or "Yomiuri-Hochi" to duplicate authentically masthead, style and content. In the shop are about 8,000 original cuts of various types and there are better than 5,000 original newspapers. The oldest original copy on file is of the Boston Chronicle dated 1769 and there is also an original copy of the London Times of 1799 announcing the death of George Washington.

THE INSIDE pages of an Earl Hays edition are usually blank, but then, in the movies, who wants to go beyond the tell-all headlines? Most of the newspapers seen on the screen are mythical and non existant, to avoid the possibility of lawsuits against the studios, and a careful check is made to avoid possible infringement of copyright. However, when headlines deal with actual historical events, authentic copies of the respective papers can be used.

At his request, nearly all of the states supply Hays yearly with a replica of their current automobile license plates, which often are numbered "00-000." These plates are used whenever a film script calls for an out-of-California location, in which case Hays makes up dummies printed on heavy cardboard which match the original plates in size, color, and layout. When these dummies are mounted on an automobile, it is impossible to tell them from the real thing.

Through the years, the stock item for which there seems to be the biggest demand is the announcement of the 1918 Armistice with the headline of the attack on Pearl Harbor running a close second.

Hays values his collection of more than 2,000,000 printed items at more than $50,000 and doesn't believe there is anything in the printing business that he can't supply on short notice—except, maybe, a few $1,000 bills.

Photos by the Author

Hays also maintains a file of more than two million original printed items and his shop can and does reproduce an amazing number of odds and ends.

ROUSTABOUT WITH ELECTRIC EYES

Robot Explores for Offshore Oil

By Lou Jobst

A ROBOT roustabout with electronic eyes and ears is extending petroleum operations to the bottom of the sea off the California coast.

The 10-foot, tubular-shaped mechanical and electronic oil field worker is the creation of Shell Oil Co.

Shell is using the robot, sometimes called "Oscar, the monster roughneck," to explore its offshore holdings.

"Oscar" was used to drill a number of wells off Santa Barbara and will be put into use later this year when Shell begins drilling in 266,800 acres of continental shelf recently awarded the petroleum company by the Federal government.

THE SHELF LAND is part of 800,000 acres of offshore area between Point Conception and the Oregon border that the Federal government is opening to oil drilling and exploration.

Shell paid $11.4 million for its 49 parcels. All of the land is located outside the three-mile limit and most is under more than 200 feet of water.

Geologists believe there are oil-bearing strata on the shelf with a potential yield of up to 900,000 barrels of oil per day.

Shell has been exploring the offshore areas for years and is a pioneer in the development of scientific undersea oil operation equipment.

AMONG THE company's developments is the electronic drilling ship, Eureka, which can maintain a stationary position on the surface despite wind or weather or wave conditions.

The Eureka is the mother ship of "Oscar."

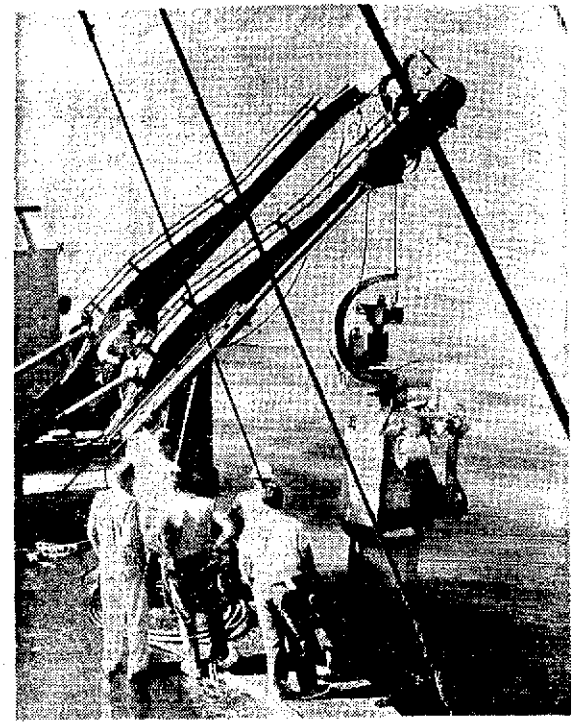

The robot is operated by remote control from the surface and is equipped with an arm that can turn lock screws, operate valves, grip pipe and hoses and wield a brush and other manual tools.

The robot is also equipped with a television camera and sonar gear which feed an endless sight and sound picture to monitors on the surface.

"The robot means we can open entire new fields of underwater wells," explains a Shell official.

THE ROBOT oil worker also could be used to drill off the Southern California coast, but there are other complications.

The state of California claims all submerged land out to three miles beyond the Channel Islands, a coastal chain which includes San Clemente and Santa Catalina and which extend 20 to 40 miles offshore.

"Oscar," the undersea oilman, is lowered over the side of a Shell Oil Co. vessel of the California coastline.

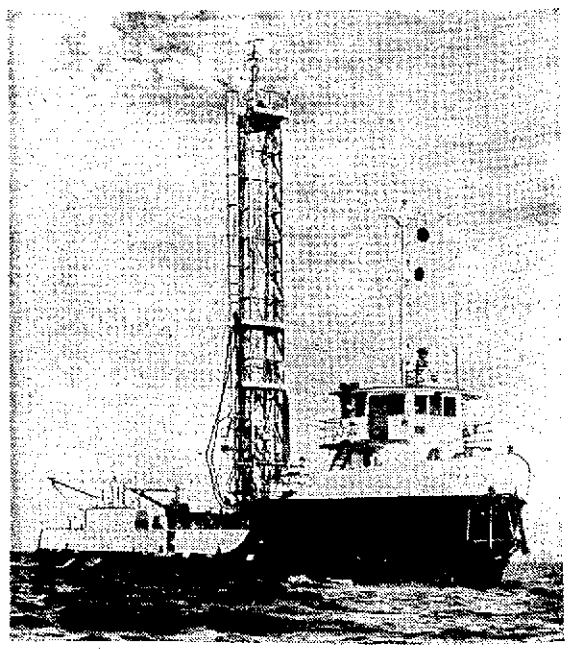

The federal government claims the state can only rightly claim three miles offshore from the mainland and three miles around each of the islands.

The situation does not exist in northern waters where there are no islands.

WHILE MUCH of the California coastal shelf is relatively shallow, down to 200 feet, and can be reached from "Texas Towers," such as those seen off the Southland coast, the robots were necessary to open up operations in the deeper areas.

The robots cost about $250,000 apiece and have been engineered and designed to work on well equipment at depths down to 1,000 feet.

A second generation of robots, the first of which is completed, will also be able to perform such complicated tasks as laying pipe and retrieving equipment from the ocean floor.

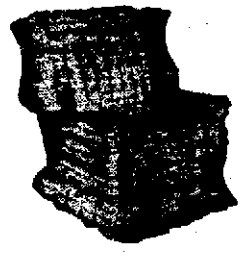

Shell's ship, Eureka, can hold fixed position on surface and is mother ship for robot and other equipment.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Special for Young Moderns

By Stella George

MODERN young couple with two small daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lindsay, 4500 Cerritos Dr., have developed for themselves a custom home that, from every point of view, is especially adapted to their needs and their way of life.

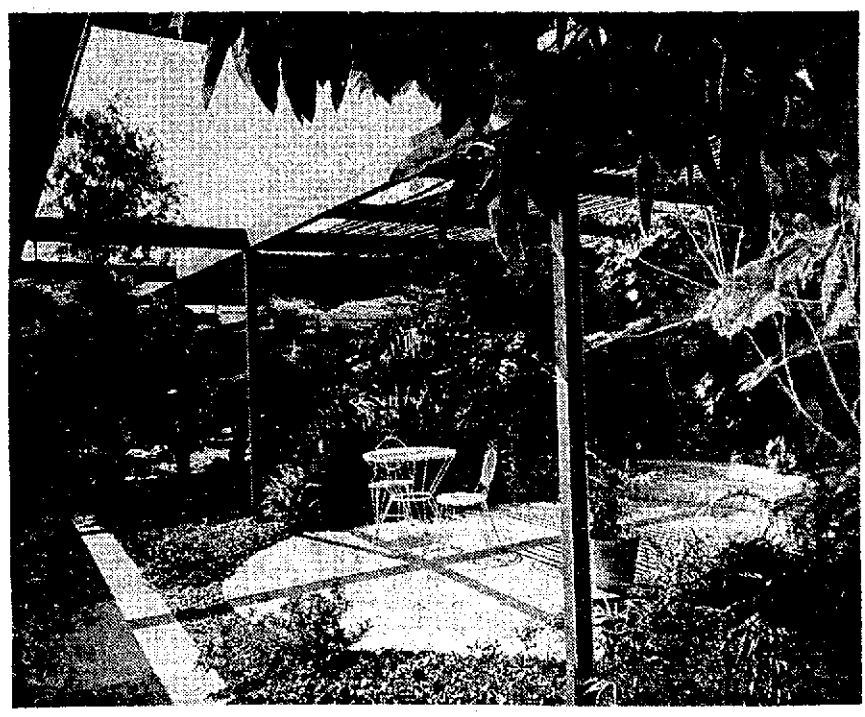

A long walkway, adroitly landscaped on either side, leads to the front door. This opens directly into living room, and interest is focused on a garden seen through a glass wall.

The living room is simply but appropriately furnished with a peacock blue couch and chairs and a coffee table. This grouping is set in an alcove which faces the main portion of the room — thus adding spaciousness to the area. A fireplace dominates the far end of the room and the ceiling is beamed.

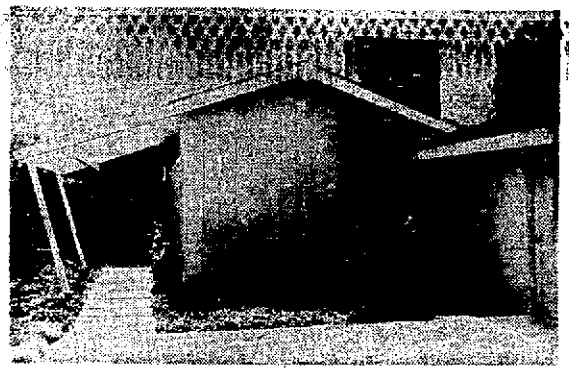

The hallway to the left leads to the kitchen and family room areas designed especially well for a young modern family. The kitchen faces the family room with a separating dining bar with stools on the family room side. The kitchen is not overly large, but it is so well planned that there is ample room for preparing and serving, and room to spare.

AS MIGHT be expected in a family such as this, much of the "togetherness" is spent in the family room, which has been planned accordingly. There is a built-in desk with cupboards and bookshelves above. A sewing machine, when closed, is an attractive table. There is ample space in the room for sit-down dining around a small square table. There is also plenty of room for a piano. Window seats provide seating space for family and guests. And, like the living room, there is the view of the garden.

Bedrooms are compact, well-furnished, and master

In planning the garden, Lindsay arranged for areas designed for children and for adults. This is a view of the adult portion. A playhouse features youngsters' area.

A long walkway leads to the entrance to the Lindsay home. Landscaping makes this approach most pleasant.

bedroom has access to the garden.

The Lindsays planned their home and garden themselves, and the garden is so well done that Lindsay has been called upon to help friends design their own landscaping.

The garden has been divided into adult and the children's areas. Directly outside the living room glass wall is a concrete area with a louvered roof surrounded by tropical plants and furnished with a tete-a-tete table and chairs. Gravel surrounds the patio and at the right are steps that lead to a walk, giving a feeling of being in the country where paths lead to—who knows what?

TO THE LEFT, more shrubs, more plants, an overhead lantern which glows cheerfully at night. Although this is a man-made garden, it leads as though through a wooded area—then, suddenly, to the children's playground. Neighborhood children know this site well.

There is a playhouse and an artists' retreat, complete with easel, in one corner and shaded by trees. In the summer there is plenty of room for a portable swimming pool to be set up alongside the play house.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Two Stories Solve Space Puzzle

By Jules Loh

ANY HOUSE hunter who has tried to reconcile a large family with a moderate budget is well aware of the big problem.

You can find a house with four adequate bedrooms. You can find a house with adequate living area. But putting the two together all too frequently requires more square footage than a medium sized pocketbook can handle.

Architect Herman H. York has solved the problem in House of the Week B-81, an adaptation of two-story colonial design brought up to date to accommodate today's need for more space.

The house has four bedrooms and 2½ baths, all in 1,653 square feet of habitable area. The one-car garage adds 269 square feet, and the overall dimensions are a modest 44 feet 8 inches wide and 26 feet 1 inch deep.

ITS UNCLUTTERED and extremely functional floor plan also makes for simplified large-family living as well as serving the equally precious cause of economy.

A 25-foot-long room designed for both kitchen and family living runs from front wall to rear wall, equally accessible to both the main entrance foyer and rear service areas.

For more formal relaxation, a dramatic 12x21-foot sunken living room (with an optional fireplace) likewise extends the depth of the house and flows through sliding glass doors to the rear terrace (another optional feature).

Separating the two rooms is a spacious foyer which features a powder room—equally accessible to both living areas. The foyer also leads to the dining room, which means any room in the house may be entered without having to pass through another room.

UPSTAIRS, another central hall plan equally simplifies traffic circulation. The main bath is placed directly at the top of the stairs, convenient to downstairs traffic as well as to all four roomy bedrooms. The second upstairs bath, with a stall shower, adjoins the master bedroom.

"Any family that needs four bedrooms also needs plenty of room to live comfortably the other 16 hours in the day," said York. "Extending the living room to one side provides the bonus space—enough of it to accommodate a garage as well."

York also suggests that, if desired, the living room could be opened to the dining room simply by eliminating the wall and substituting a railing, and perhaps a step-down. Incidentally, note the dramatic railing between the living room and foyer.

While the plan shows a one-car garage, an additional nine feet will provide enough space for two cars, plus extra storage space in the rear.

THE SERVICE entrance to the house is on the side through the garage rather than in the rear. There is a rear entrance, of course, off the terrace which is only one step down from the sunken living room. Entry on the side, however, assures backyard privacy as well as convenience with sacks of groceries, milk deliveries and so forth.

The kitchen of B-81, with its L-shaped work area, likewise is designed for housewife convenience. And look at the unusual position of the wall oven—recessed into the garage storage space rather than extending into valuable room space. The area above and be-

Attractive and roomy, this colonial home has a sunken living room extending along side, providing necessary area for a large family. House includes four bedrooms.

Sandwich With a Special Touch

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Chicken or turkey, pineapple and Parmesan cheese sauce make something "special" of this appetizing sandwich.

APPROPRIATE for suppers or luncheons whenever folks drop in unexpectedly, Pineapple Chicken Sandwiches, Parmigiana add zest to the occasion. Dill weed accents the chicken slices (or turkey, as you wish) and a slice of pineapple rests regally atop the sandwich. Rich cheese sauce adds more delight, and avocado slices and ripe olives form the garnish.

The sandwiches are quick and easy to prepare and the sauce may be made ahead of time, if you have prior notice, and reheated quickly just before assembling the sandwiches.

The recipe:

Pineapple Chicken Sandwich, Parmigiana

¼ cup chopped green onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ cups half and half
1 egg yolk
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 (1-pound 14-ounce) can pineapple slices
8 slices buttered toast
Dill weed
Sliced cooked chicken or turkey
Salt and pepper

Cook onion in butter until soft but not brown. Blend in flour and salt. Slowly stir in half and half. Cook, stirring, until sauce boils and thickens. Quickly beat a little of the hot mixture into the egg yolk; return to sauce in pan and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Blend in cheese. When ready to assemble sandwich, drain pineapple. Place buttered toast in 8 individual bakers or arrange all slices in a large shallow pan. Sprinkle lightly with dill weed and top with sliced chicken or turkey, being as generous as you like. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Top each sandwich with pineapple slice. Spoon on hot sauce. Place under broiler until hot and glazed, about 5 minutes. Garnish with peeled avocado wedges and ripe olives, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

4 tblsp. white wine
minced parsley to taste
garlic powder to taste
6-8 lobster tails
dash oregano
dash paprika
pinch thyme
pinch giner
8 tblsp. butter (dot tails with butter)

Prepare boiled lobster tails. Crack and peel. Place in casserole then add all above ingredients. Place in 325 degree oven and bake until thoroughly heated. Serve on hot bed of rice.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Zoo Heart Ills Increasing

By Ben Zinser
Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

SOCIAL AND economic pressures in an increasingly urbanized society may be partly responsible for the growing incidence of hardening of the arteries.

This is suggested in the journal Circulation, by Dr. Herbert L. Ratcliffe, professor of pathology at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

He has found a tenfold increase in heart disease in eight years among mammals in the Philadelphia Zoo. There has been no change in the animals' environment except an increase in population density combined with more complex social relationships.

For the first time, deaths from heart attack have begun to appear in the zoo population.

IN EXTREMELY hot weather, bottled carbonated drinks can be hazardous, an Albuquerque doctor warns in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

On hot summer days the bottle may explode, he explains. He cites the case of an 80-year-old woman who lost vision in one eye from flying glass shards, showered from a bottle that exploded in 95-degree weather.

LIFE-THREATENING blood clots that form in an artery can sometimes be removed by a new method employing a long rubber tube with an inflatable balloon at the tip.

Cincinnati researchers say the technique works this way:

The catheter is inserted into the affected artery and threaded past the clot. Then the balloon is inflated with fluid. Next, with the expanded tube tip behind the clot, the catheter is pulled back in a single sweep, raking the clot along with it.

Dr. John J. Cranley says he and his associates at Cincinnati's Good Samaritan Hospital have performed the procedure 15 times during the past year. Only local anesthesia is required.

PREVALENCE of cough diminishes with higher temperatures and sunshine, according to a two-year study conducted in two large Dallas, Tex., hospitals.

On the other hand, barometric pressure has no effect on cough frequency.

Researchers found that a north wind causes coughs to go up. Humidity and rainfall also increase coughing.

The report is in Schering Science Bulletin.

THE EYES of young diabetics should be checked once a year, researchers at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York recommend.

Increased pressure inside the eye, a condition that often precedes glaucoma, has been found in 7 of 41 diabetic children, the doctors report. Borderline pressures were found in four other juvenile diabetics.

One of the children proved to have definite glaucoma and eventually required surgery. Glaucoma can cause blindness if not discovered and treated in time.

Ordinarily intraocular pressures are checked only in persons above 40 years of age, when glaucoma is most apt to occur.

CAPSULES: Allergic reactions to papaya are uncommon, but they do occur, report two Delhi, India, researchers in Annals of Allergy. . . . Poor persons have 25 per cent more cancer than rich persons, a new report discloses. . . . Nuclear medicine continues to grow, the Atomic Energy Commission reports that 450 radiologists and hospitals have been licensed to use radioisotope treatment devices in the U. S. . . . A British scientist thinks the radiation effects of tobacco smoke should be studied further with the thought that they may play some role in the development of lung cancer. Sir Ernest Marsden, reporting in Nature, tells of finding differences in radiation effect in various tobacco products.

Bisquick

It's your shortcut to homemade...because we've already measured and blended six basic ingredients for you. Here are my favorite recipes.
Betty Crocker

PANCAKES

2 cups Bisquick 1⅓ cups milk
1 egg

Beat smooth with rotary beater. Grease griddle if necessary. Turn when bubbles appear. Makes about 18. Use 2 cups milk for thinner pancakes.

COFFEE CAKE

2 cups Bisquick ¾ cup milk
2 tbsp. sugar 1 egg

Heat oven to 400°. Mix ingredients. Beat vigorously half min. Spread into greased 9" round pan. Sprinkle with mixture of ⅓ cup brown sugar, ⅓ cup Bisquick, ¼ cup cold butter, ½ tsp. cinnamon blended with fork until crumbly. Bake 20 to 25 min.

For richer batter add 2 tbsp. more sugar, 2 tbsp. melted shortening or vegetable oil.

MUFFINS

Mix ingredients as for Coffee Cake. Fill greased med. muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake 15 min. Makes 12.

VELVET CRUMB CAKE

1⅓ cups Bisquick 1 tsp. vanilla
¾ cup sugar 1 egg
3 tbsp. shortening ¾ cup milk*

Heat oven to 350°. Grease and flour 8" square or 9" round pan. Mix ¼ cup of the milk with other ingredients. Beat 1 min. med. speed on mixer or vigorously by hand. Stir in rest of milk; beat ½ min. Pour in pan. Bake 35 to 40 min. While warm, cover with topping.

Broiled Topping: Mix 3 tbsp. soft butter, ⅓ cup brown sugar, 2 tbsp. cream, ½ cup coconut, ¼ cup chopped nuts. Spread on baked cake. Put about 3" under broiler until brown, about 3 min.

Over 3,500 ft. altitude, add 2 tbsp. milk. Bake at 375° 25 to 30 min.*

FRUIT SHORTCAKE

2 cups Bisquick 2 tbsp. sugar
¾ cup cream* (if desired)

Heat oven to 450°. Mix ingredients with fork to soft dough. Beat vigorously 20 strokes. Knead 8 to 10 times on lightly floured board. Roll dough ½" thick. Cut with 3" floured cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet about 10 min. Split shortcakes: spoon fruit between and over layers. Makes 6 shortcakes.

Or use ⅓ cup milk plus ¼ cup melted butter.*

BISCUITS

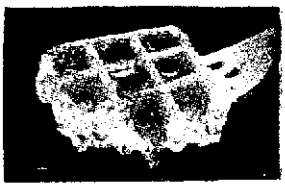

2 cups Bisquick ⅔ cup milk

Heat oven to 450°. Stir to a soft dough with fork. Beat vigorously 20 strokes until stiff but sticky.

For Drop Biscuits—spoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake 10 to 15 min. Makes 12 med. size.

For Rolled Biscuits—roll dough on cloth-covered floured board. Knead 8 to 10 times. Roll ½" thick. Cut with floured cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet 10 to 15 min. Makes 12 2" biscuits. For richer biscuits add ¼ cup soft butter or shortening to Bisquick before milk.

WAFFLES

2 cups Bisquick 1⅓ cups milk
2 tbsp. melted shortening* 1 egg

Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Makes three 9" waffles.

DUMPLINGS

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Late Darwins Lost

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Do the admission requirements of some of our colleges and universities discourage potential talent?

ANSWER: Unhappily, yes.

College admission requirements do have that effect when they exclude youngsters who develop later than others.

Dr. John Tyler Bonner, Princeton University biology professor, comments:

"Because of the sudden increase in world population, universities are taking only the students with high grades. One must have flowered at school, before college, to be accepted. There is nothing in our system that recognizes the Darwins that flower after college."

His point is reinforced by Dr. Ernest O. Melby, professor of education at Michigan State University:

"We waste a million kids a year. We admit students largely by grades and measures of verbal intelligence, yet current studies show that high IQ students are not necessarily those most creative."

It is an observable fact that slow starters often go farther and achieve more than fast starters. Educational and business policies which fail to take this into consideration do a disservice not merely to the individuals concerned but to the nation, itself, as it seeks to maintain a leadership of brains in this competitive world.

QUESTION: Is faulty hearing often a cause of slow learning?

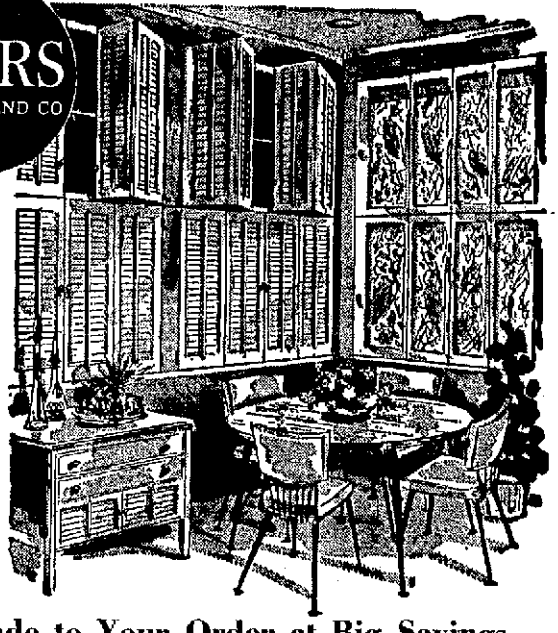

ANSWER: A California State Department of Mental Health survey revealed that from 3 to 4 per cent of school-age children do not have normal hearing.

We have seen no study of the effect of poor hearing on learning, but obviously the child who misses parts of instructions is at a marked disadvantage.

Before next September, every school-age child should get a thorough medical examination, including an eye test and a test of his hearing.

Striking eagle decoration, about 28 inches square, is designed to enhance the front door or adjoining wall.

By Bill Meyerriecks

A STRIKING, modernistic design to brighten up the front entrance area of your home is offered in this issue of Sketchbook. It's a finely designed modern American Eagle plaque for display in the entrance way or on an adjoining exterior front wall. Surprisingly, many homeowners take the most obvious spot of their home for granted and seldom freshen the entrance. Here's the chance to do it—and for less than $2 worth of material.

The charm of the eagle plaque is in its design and its simplicity. Each segment of the eagle is shown full size in the Sketchbook plan for you to trace and cut. From the plan you'll learn what little aluminum and wood material you'll need, how to shape the aluminum for the wings and cut the wood for the eagle's body and nameplate.

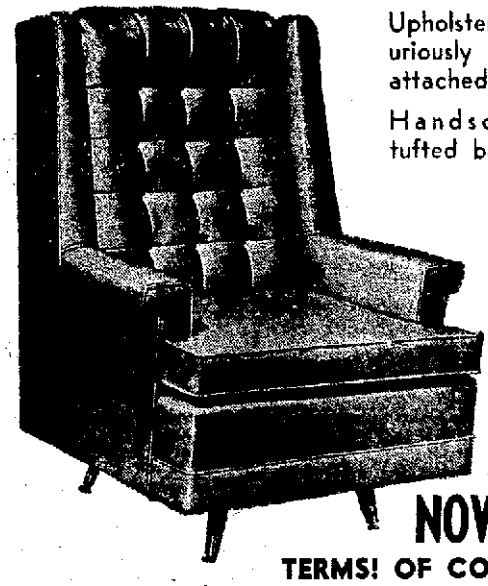

To order plan, specify S-121 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Garden Brightener

STRIKING PLANTER with three stepped-up trays is pictured above with Sibyle Collier, NBC-TV actress. Colorful flowers become even more attractive in this bright unit which is a true accent for a garden or lawn. The planter is made of exterior plywood and will last for years. The three steps make possible a variety of plantings. Wheels make it mobile for use around the premises. Any amateur shop enthusiast can make this unit when he uses a full-size pattern—No. 318—available for $1 from Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., PO Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Beautiful Swivel Chair

Upholstered in genuine Vinelle. Luxuriously D-E-E-R. Soft foam filled attached pillow back.

Old Mine Comes Back

By Retta Ewers

LONG thought dead and all but buried, figuratively speaking, a Riverside County gold mine has come alive again.

The mine, near the main highway between Perris and Elsinore, is guarded by signs that warn: "Stay Out — Private Property."

In 1962, Howard J. Hunt and Adam Natalie leased the ground and started preliminary exploratory work, forming what will be known as the Hunt Mining Company, with Hunt and Natalie as co-owners.

THE ORIGINAL shaft went down to a depth of 575 feet but was so filled with debris and fallen timbers that no effort was made to excavate it. Instead new shafts, drifts and stopes will be started on other spots of the acreage included in the lease.

Hunt and Natalie have plans to erect a new stamp mill, eventually a manufacturing plant at the site.

First work will be on the tailings of the dump, which previous operatives thought useless, but which assays $20 per ton. With the mill 200 tons may be processed daily.

The ore from this mine is called "Arseno-pyrite," which means it is mixed with a certain amount of arsenic. The recovered gold crystallizes and forms into shape like iron pyrites.

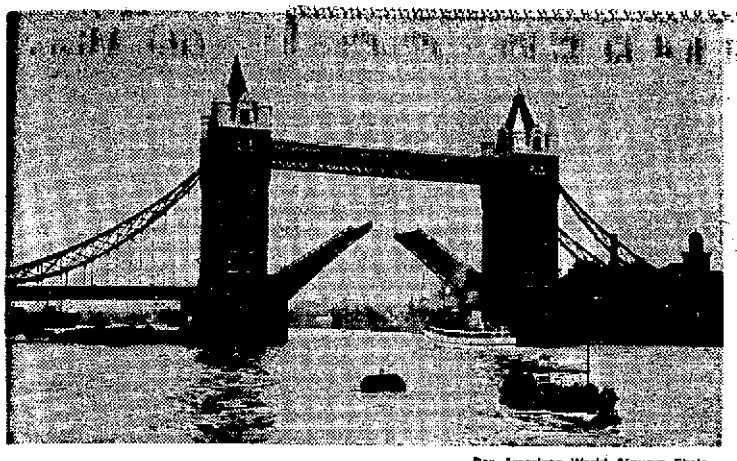

HISTORY states that gold was first discovered at the Good Hope by a Frenchman named Mache, in 1874, with a group of Mexican miners from Chihuahua, Mexico. This may be true, but evidence of mining in the Gavilan Hills prove that Spaniards were recovering the precious metal long before 1874. Old arrastres are still to be seen where the ore was pulverized.

Mache's men used an arrastre, a crude, primitive method or process in which the ore was crushed in a circular, rock-bottom pit, by a huge rock dragged around by a mule or burro.

Water That Lawn!

Lack of water is probably the most universal reason for a lawn that won't stay green. Fertilizer is necessary, too, but more often than not you'll find that water will green up a lawn.

There are several reasons why water is lacking. Most obvious, of course, you don't water enough. More than likely, however, you don't water deeply enough when you do and/or the soil is so compacted that water won't sink in. In the latter case, a coring tool will remedy the problem. Ask a nurseryman about this.

Tower Bridge is one of the famous landmarks of London, a city that has an individuality unique around the world, a city steeped in tradition.

LONDON ...a world by itself

By Eddy Gilmore

I DON'T LIKE London. I love it. Next to Selma, Ala., it's the greatest city in the world. But being bigger than my home town, it has more to offer.

I wouldn't fight about London, but I'm perfectly willing to shout about it.

Residents describe its climate as three months of winter and nine months of lousy weather.

This is a blessing in disguise, for if its seasons were benign, the residents of all the other places—after sampling London — would want to move here.

Already, too many call it home.

It doesn't possess the superficial charms of the feminine capitals of Europe, but there's an elegance and satisfaction about it that lingers like vintage wine on the palate of the heart.

LONDON'S sooty streets are like mellow pages of time and the Thames is liquid history.

Hundreds of houses still standing remind of the thousands of fascinating people who've lived here, and those who live here now: the statesmen and soldiers, sailors and pirates, artists, writers, composers, poets and actors, world-builders, pirates of finance, the great beauties, the cockneys, the wonderful eccentrics. In short, the Londoner.

The tobacco shop keeper of Lambeth who, the morning after the Luftwaffe blasted out all his doors, windows and half a wall, put up a sign that read:

"Business as usual—we like fresh air."

Or the superb arrogance of the Duke of Wellington who was halted by a stranger at a Mayfair ball.

"Mr. Smith, I believe," said the stranger."

"Sir," replied the Iron Duke, "if you believe that you'll believe anything."

Or the second son of a west country earl who was stopped on the street by an acquaintance who happened to be a parlor pink.

"Featherstonehaugh," began the esthetic leftist, "I hear you don't like me."

"Don't like you?" spluttered the surprised aristocrat. "Why, you have the wrong information. As a matter of fact, I never think of you. If I did, I'm sure I should loathe you."

WALK THE STREETS — and the best time to walk them is at night—and history rumbles behind the walls beside you.

There behind that modest door lived Alexander Fleming, the shy man who discovered penicillin.

And here at No. 4 Chesterfield St. Beau Brummell once taught the Prince Regent how to tie a tie.

At No. 147 New Bond St. lived Nelson and at No. 150, Lady Hamilton.

No. 79 Pall Mall is the house that King Charles II gave Nell Gwyn.

Ramble through the quiet streets of Chelsea, pass the houses in which lived Rossetti, Whistler, Carlyle, Swinburne, Meredith, George Eliot and dozens of others.

And where but London would there be an address like:

2 Tite St.?

Further on, the house in which lived Oscar Wilde.

Everyone knows the obvious places —and they, of course, make London, but other corners contribute, too. Especially the unusual ones.

IN BAYSWATER stands London's smallest house—the frontage is 3 feet 6 inches wide.

What city has a "season" like London's?

It begins in early May with the private view of the Royal Academy's annual show.

This is followed by a gay pageantry of events, unrivaled in the scope and magnificence by any other city:

The Eton-Harrow cricket match at Lords, the citadel of cricket.

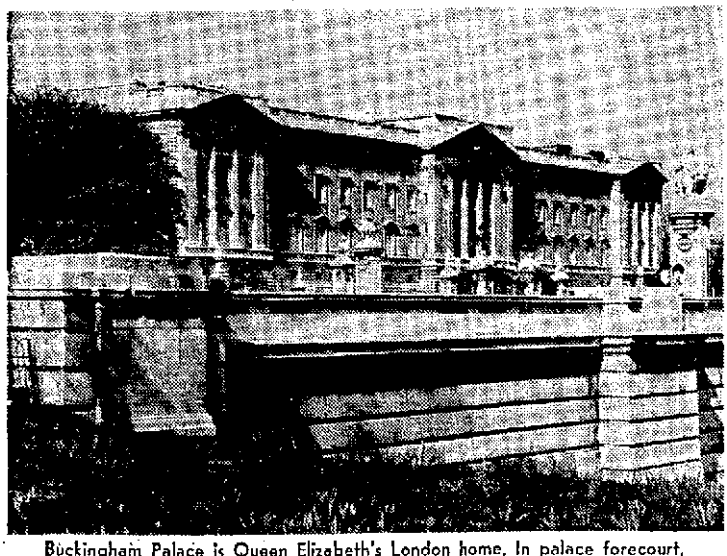

Royal Ascot, with the royal family in attendance.

The Chelsea Flower Show.

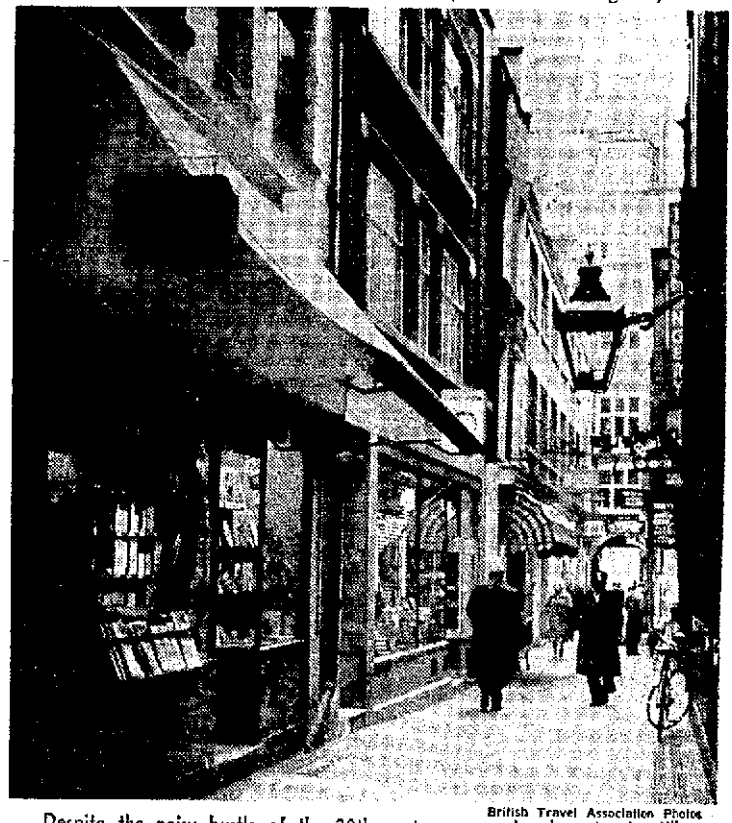

The water sports at Henley.

Epsom Downs.

Buckingham Palace is Queen Elizabeth's London home. In palace forecourt, one of Europe's most famous ceremonies occurs—Changing of the Guard.

Despite the noisy bustle of the 20th century, some London streets still have Dickensian flavor—like Crown Passage (above), near Piccadilly Circus.

L. A. to New York, Via Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WESTERN Air Lines has come up with a novel travel idea that should catch the fancy of a flock of coast-to-coast flybugs hereabouts.

It's called the "Mexico Circle Trip" and if you fly from Los Angeles to New York under the plan, you can visit Mexico City for very little additional cost—and in some cases for less. And you jet all the way.

Instead of flying direct, you would streak via Western to Mexico, stay as long as you wish to sightsee, go nightclubbing and stuff in the fine restaurants there, and then continue on to New York by Eastern Air Lines.

Total flying time is only two hours, 25 minutes greater from Los Angeles. Roundtrip aircoach fare to the Mexican capital is only $51.65 more from Los Angeles than the direct roundtrip fare to New York.

IT IS POINTED OUT that if you normally fly coast-to-coast in first class accommodations you can, by converting to air coach, make the circle trip for $32.25 less than you normally pay.

If you insist on traveling first class in both directions the additional tab still is only $73.70—a saving of more than $100 over the regular first class fare to the Mexican capital.

And don't forget to get a tourist card before you go, plus a smallpox vaccination certification and proof of citizenship. You'll need them for reentry into the United States.

ANOTHER new way to visit Mananaland is to combine the swiftness of air flight with the enjoyment of an escorted bus tour.

Greyhound, in conjunction with Mexicana Airlines (CMA), has worked out a plan whereby you may, with only 15 days to spare away from your job, get a pretty thorough look-see of Mexico City, Taxco, Cuernavaca and other portions of this fascinating land.

You fly from Los Angeles International to Mexico City and there join Greyhound's regular Escorted Tour of Mexico, with return trip by highway up the west coast of Mexico; or, you may join the Escorted Tour bus in Los Angeles and travel to Mexico over that country's central highway, and return by air.

Highlights of the bus line's now famous three-week Mexico Escorted Tour are retained in the new 15-day air-bus combination tour.

The bus trips leave Los Angeles every Sunday. If you wish to take the first portion of your trip by air, departing time is late Saturdays from Los Angeles International. Twin accommodations cost $326.50 per person.

IF YOU HAPPEN to visit Smiths Falls, Ontario, Canada, before October, it's possible you might hit an unexpected jackpot.

Redwoods Tour

Greyhound bus tours through the Redwood Empire will leave San Francisco Aug. 27 and Sept. 10.

Four-day escorted trips include the historic Valley of the Moon, the Mendocino Coast, Clear Lake, Eureka, and the majestic redwood groves of Southern Humboldt County.

Reservations are available through local travel agents or Greyhound offices.

Show, Anyone?

If you're Broadway-bound to see a stage play, but with little time on your hands, you are an ideal candidate for American Airlines' Hit Show Overnighter Tour.

The "Holiday On Wings" package provides hotel accommodations with private bath and an orchestra seat for matinee or evening performance of a Broadway musical, drama or comedy.

Depending on which one of the six first-class Manhattan hotels the visitor chooses, rates range from $18.75 to $24.50 per person for twin-bedded accommodations, and from $20.50 to $29 for a single, with show tickets included. Air fare is additional.

You can book your New York theater tour package at the same time that you make your American Airlines flight reservations.

During August and September, the local chamber of commerce twice monthly picks an American family visiting this town of 10,000 population to be the "Tourist of the Month."

If you're lucky you get a civic reception, have your picture taken, are interviewed by press and radio, taken on a tour and finally are guest of honor at a luncheon. After the luncheon, the merchants of the town load you down with gifts!

STOCKHOLM also will greet you royally, but in a different way.

If you wish you now may meet a Swedish family with mutual interests through "Sweden at Home," one of Scandinavia's popular "Meet the People" programs, says a Scandinavian Airlines System spokesman.

And for the latest in sightseeing and entertainment hints, a telephone call to "Miss Tourist" can help you fill out your daily schedule.

PACIFIC RAILROAD Society is sponsoring a train (Santa Fe) excursion to Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico, Aug. 30-Sept. 2. Both coach and sleeper accommodations will be offered. Side trips will include Meteor Crater, near Holbrook, Ariz., and the Ponderosa Pine country of Arizona. You can get the details by calling NOrmandy 2-8971.

Niagara Dwarfed

South Africa's Howick Falls, where the Umgeni Rivers cascades in one sheer drop twice the height of Nigara, offers a magnificent subject for vacationing camera fans, reports the South African Tourist Corp. The falls are located just a short distance from the city of Pietermaritzburg, capital of Natal.

Air-Minded

There is more scheduled air service to and within Alaska per capita than any other place in the world. There is one aircraft for every 156 residents compared with 625 in Nevada and 4,545 in New York.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

AVILA, SPAIN

"Am a widow of middle age, going in September to Europe. Several questions: Can I drink ice water in hotels and good restaurants?"

I DON'T drink tap water in France, Italy, Spain, Portugal. I do the British Isles, Germany, Austria, Switzerland — but I ask first. It is not resented if you ask, "Is the water all right to drink?"

Best bottled water in France is Evian; Spain it's Solares; I forget Portugal but they have one; and the BEST is Fiuggi in Italy. (If you read the label, you'll find one of the endorsements is from Michelangelo.)

Look at other tables in the restaurants. You'll see Europeans ordering bottled water —though most of them will drink only wine.

"No. 2., I am used to regular hours. How can I get used to later meals?"

I GUESS you get used to them because you have to. The latest is Spain. Dinner seldom starts until 11. And dining rooms don't even open until 10. However, I have discovered the Spanish go to hotels or little restaurants about 6 and stoke up on the meal they call the "merienda" — sandwiches and snacks. This holds you until evening dinner.

In other countries — (not Portugal)—dinners are usually between 8 and 9.

"Do I have to have typhoid shots?"

NO, BUT I DO, and all my family. I also keep everybody up on the three polio sugar cube vaccine, and tetanus. You have to have a smallpox vaccination within the past three years to get back in the U. S. and into some other countries.

Be sure to have your doctor sign the yellow card with the record of shots. And then have it certified by a city or U. S. Public Health department. Some countries will shoot you all over again if it isn't stamped.

I seem to misplace my yellow card a lot. Consequently, I've been pulled out of line and bayonetted in back rooms of airports all over the world. All health departments are afraid jet travel will spread something before they can catch up with it. They needle you just to be sure.

"And No. 3., I am going one way by boat, home by plane. How do you change your money in this case?"

THE PURSER has foreign currency to change for your dollars. By planes, there's always an airport bank. If you arrive when it's closed, tip in small American money — the porter can change it.

But don't tip hotel maids and other people in American coin. They can't change it. Only airport banks will accept coin — usually.

"YOU SUGGESTED carrying $1 bills for changing at last moments. We found no place to use them and wound up, all four of us, with money belts stuffed. . . ."

Well, I don't mean carry a million dollars. Carry two $1 bills for every border you cross. Maybe a $5 for every border, too. What happens is this: You've cashed in your money of the country. You pass through customs. You find yourself in a waiting room of the airport. It has a duty-free shop and a restaurant.

If you have to change a $20 traveler's check for a glass of beer, you wind up with more of the same money. That's where the $1 bill shines.

"We are a couple motoring through Switzerland and Italy. Any suggestions for hotels and restaurants? Any special place not mentioned in the guide books?"

FOR ITALY, there is a Michelin Guide. Buy it in large book stores in Europe. It's in Italian. But the symbols (easy to read) are explained in English, in the front. Gives the best advice on hotels and restaurants.

For Switzerland, I use TWA Travel tips (50 cents at any TWA office). Covers the big cities, shopping advice, etc. I never had a poor hotel or mediocre restaurant in Switzerland. They are excellent.

For something unusual? You'll find a week at Lugano on the Swiss-Italian border very rewarding. And in Rome, take a taxi at night to the Piazza del Pantcon.

Gettysburg: the Agony and Glory

THIS IS CHARLES McCURRY'S jacket painting of Anne Boleyn, whose story is told in Norah Lofts' new novel, "THE CONCUBINE" (Doubleday, $4.95). The British author of the trilogy, "The House of Old Vine," "Bless This House," and "House at Sunset," lives with her husband and son in Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk, England.

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

JACK McLAUGHLIN'S "Gettysburg: The Long Encampment" (Appleton-Century-Crofts, $6.95) probably is the best single volume of the shelves full of books written about the great battle.

Packed into 244 pages are 200 photographs (some published for the first time) and 60,000 words. There are books that give more of the details of the titanic struggle, and some that more thoroughly discuss tactics and strategy, but none that come so close to evoking the terrible flavor of the bitter clash that killed or wounded 33,000 men on the rolling green carpet of the Pennsylvania countryside around Gettysburg.

Frequent flashes of prose-poetry, reminiscent of Stephen Vincent Benet, transport the reader to those three days of long, long ago when men gave no thought to monuments or speeches or even to the day of the week.

And the aftermath is here. Where most descriptions finish with Pickett's charge and Lee's misery-ridden wagon train retreating to the swollen Potomac, McLaughlin's comes back to the battleground to witness the cleanup of the foul-smelling carnage.

Thousands of bodies—men and horses—to be buried. More thousands of wounded to endure the agony of primitive surgery.

Four and a half months later, Lincoln gave perhaps the greatest speech in the English language, but was disappointed. Most newspapers dismissed his "foolish" remarks. Some of the wounded still were there in the field-tent hospital.

Recounted are the highlights of succeeding years: the reunions, the dedications — speeches by Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt. The mystery and pain, the grandeur and finality of Gettysburg still live—will always live.

HOW DOES one become one of the richest men in the world?

A man who should know, American oil billionaire J. Paul Getty, describes his rise to capitalism's highest peaks in the autobiographical "MY LIFE AND FORTUNES" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $5.95.)

Getty, fatalist, adventurer, rugged individualist and steely-nerved opportunist, makes it candidly clear that life in such a lofty place is not all roses.

An oil field worker who became a millionaire at 23 and was little known outside the world of high finance and industry until a few years ago Getty has had an unhappy private life, five marriages ending in divorce. His business left him little time for his five sons.

He leaves little doubt he could have done without the fame that belatedly followed his vast fortunes.

"THE WAR AND COLONEL WARDEN" by Gerald Pawle (Knopf, $7.95) is a brand new perspective on one of history's best documented figures. Winston Churchill.

These are the wartime recollections of Colonel Warden, Churchill's code name, by Lt. Cmdr. C. R. (Tommy) Thompson, Sir Winston's personal aide and confidant from 1939 to 1945.

Churchill's day-to-day adventures and historic journeys are described in intimate detail as are his personal relations with other Allied leaders and those of his own "inner circle."

This portrait of Churchill the man—physically fearless, obsessed with gadgetry and secret weapons, his obstinate, unbendable will and singular ability to perceive the bold and subtle patterns of history—adds significant stature to one of the English-speaking peoples' greatest leaders.

NEW FRANCOISE SEGANS were bound to crop up after the successes of that French enfante terrible. Dacia Maraini is Italy's contribution to Saganism and her prize-winning novel "THE AGE OF MALAISE" (Grove, $3.95) need take no back seat as a primer of teen-age sex.

Young Miss Maraini's Enrica, like the Sagan heroines, finds the world bleak and empty, and her solution for boredom is the bedroom. A law student, Cesare, seduced her when she was 15, and while Cesare keeps on conquering her Enrica finds time for a procession of lovers on the side. Callous Cesare is the kind of lad who phones his fiance while Enrica lies beside him. There are so many sexual scenes that they become abstractions. But la Maraini is a deft writer and holds one's attention.

THERE WAS, as every aficionado of modern art knows, Camille Pissarro, but there were also, as not so many know, seven Pissarro children, some of whom were talented painters in their own right. Lucien, the eldest son, was the best of the younger Pissarros. W. S. Meadmore's "LUCIEN PISSARRO" (Knopf $6.95) turns out to be not just a biography of a man, who after all, was not one of the greater glories of French art. It is an intimate glimpse into the entire Pissarro menage.

WILLIAM BLATTY

Everything from the State Department to college football and abstract architecture are satirized by William Peter Blatty in his new novel, "JOHN GOLDFARB, PLEASE COME HOME!" (Doubleday, $3.50). Blatty is the author of "Which Way to Mecca, Jack?"

Whatever Became of Camilla?

Camilla Wicks rose to world fame as a violinist. She now plays role of mother but remains active in music.

By Irma McCall

FROM VIOLIN virtuoso — playing command performances for kings — to young homemaker, Long Beach's Camilla Wicks has made a happy transition. The wife of Robert Thomas, regional manager of a California Electronics firm, she is now the mother of four and lives in Dallas.

Hailed by many critics as the world's greatest woman violinist, Camilla was 3 when her violinist father, Ingwald, placed an instrument in her hands and gave the girl her first lesson. Her mother, Ruby, accompanied on the piano.

One year later Camilla astonished listeners by playing a Vivaldi concerto from memory, but her audience little dreamed that this child's musical genius would enrapture the capitals of Europe. When she was 7, she played a Mozart concerto with the Long Beach Chamber Symphony Orchestra. At 8 she played Bach and Mendelssohn in her own recital.

AFTER SEVEN years under her father's tutelage, Camilla studied with famed Louis Persinger at Juilliard School of Music in New York. While most teen-agers were watching TV, sipping soft drinks and dancing the moment's craze, Camilla was practicing four hours a day.

Mornings she attended Progress School until high school graduation, showing brilliance in science. Principal Frances Nielsen says, "I remember Camilla, as a sweet, thoughtful girl, gracious to everyone. After triumphant concerts she was humble and unspoiled. I wish she could have enjoyed annual outings with her classmates—to Orange County Park, to Catalina, but under rigid discipline she sacrificed fun for her art." One teacher still pictures Camilla playing badminton, barefoot on the playground.

"Her parents (who now live in San Clemente) always told Camilla that her talent was God-given and that she should use it for the good of humanity," relates Mrs. Leah Seykora, a family friend. "The young artist has lived up to this high aspiration."

In 1941, the fortune in Camilla's Chinese cookie must have foretold — "You will travel. Your success will be sensational!" Seven European concert tours, hundreds of performances in the United States, marriage and children, afforded a thrilling life.

THEN, in 1959, she decided to take a quiet interlude so that she could spend more time with her family. Her children, Angela, 10; Paul, 8; Erik, 6, and Philip, 4, enjoy music and all play the piano. This summer they will welcome a brother or sister.

"I doubt if there is any fantastic musical talent among my youngsters, as surely it would have emerged by now," says Camilla, "but they do show marked musical tendencies."

Although a mother, she finds time to keep up her practice and to teach violin. Helping a few promising musicians is both a satisfying and creative endeavor for her at North State Texas University where she is resident violinist. In October, she played an important recital for a Dallas charity affair. For fun she included a difficult virtuoso piece, Ravel's Tzigane, proving that the quiet years have not impaired her brilliant skill.

"What is the most thrilling memory of your tours?" she was asked.

She might have answered: "My New York debut in Town Hall . . . Playing in the Hollywood Bowl under Stokowski's direction . . . My many appearances with the New York and the Chicago Symphonies . . . My first European tour which took me to London, Paris, Milan, Barcelona, Zurich, and many other cities, 88 concerts in all . . . Recording for RCA Victor, and 100 releases in Europe . . . My memorable visit with Jan Sebelius at his home in Finland . . . A command performance for the Norwegian royal family."

INSTEAD she said, "It is too difficult to answer! There were so many high points, playing in the world's greatest concert halls with the most respected orchestras and conductors, premiering new works, being congratulated by royalty, being respected by composers and colleagues.

"But I think the essence of the thrill of concert life all boils down to a single multiple experience — the time one stands, drained of all you have given that evening, on the particular stage — loving the people you have played for and that you now hold in a special moment of rapport—listening to their cries for "Encore!" — seeing the mass movement of the audience to cluster around the stage — feeling unworthy of all this and yet knowing something important and great has just happened to you and to the people out there, which in time will dim and perhaps be forgotten, but now exists and breathes as a tangible thing.

"At this moment one delights in playing the musical favorites of the people down by the footlights, the sweet melodies, pieces bringing memories to each of them. In Europe, especially, I remember times when curtain calls numbered up in the 20s and encores up to 10.

"However, even all these memories are just part of the great, combining, rich, multifaceted life that holds so much each day. And I could tell any number of marvelous things that have happened completely unrelated to music.

"All in all, I seem to be lucky in pursuing a really satisfying combination of home life and music!"

The World That Is London

Trooping the color in high summer.

The tennis at Wimbledon.

Covent Garden.

The International Horse Show.

AND AT THE end of the season, the outdoor beauty of the races at rural Goodwood.

A long, never-ending procession of places to see. Places where things have happened, a great many of them quite horrible, but a part of London's history.

The Houses of Parliament . . . Westminster Abbey . . . the Tower of London . . . Covent Garden with its first production of "The Messiah" with Handel as conductor in 1741 . . . the National Gallery . . . Buckingham Palace . . . Windsor Castle . . . Clarence House . . . the Old Bailey . . . the Inns of Court.

Dickens' London. A lot of it is still here.

Walk along Baker St. on a foggy night and there's the place where Sherlock Holmes was supposed to have lived.

THERE ARE good reasons for complaint about London's drinking laws, but maybe you couldn't have pubs without them. Pubs with such names as:

Dirty Dicks in Bishopsgate.

Johnson's Cheshire Cheese on Fleet St.

The Intrepid Fox on Wardour St.

And the clubs—the Englishman's last refuge from women.

The betting book at one of them still records a wager wherein one member bet another that he would—if he lost the bet—name his unborn son after whatever horse happened to win the Derby.

By the time Derby Day came around the hot horse was a nag named Pot8oes.

Imagine a son named Pot8oes.

Fortunately for the reckless bettor, Pot8oes didn't win. He came second.

High on the list of things to recommend London is the Briton's tenacious admiration for the underdog, his inborn passion for fair play, his natural courtesy, his charming, unconscious and almost naive patriotism.

NO CITY'S citizen can laugh at himself quite so well as a Londoner. In fact, a part of the British character is that ability to poke fun at himself and his institutions.

But—and this is a very big three-letter word—no fun of the royal family, please—at least from a foreigner.

About 270 years ago Tom Brown wrote:

"London is a world by itself."

And I love this world.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on LAVENDER?

—G. L., Long Beach.

G. L.: LAVENDER based on the 12th century English occupational term "lavender" means "launderer." The original Lavender was in charge of the laundry for a great medieval castle. Thirteenth century records list Cecilia and Peter Le Lavender of Cambridge. The Lavender coat-of-arms has three sparkling fountains on a vertical silver and red stripe on a shield tinted red on the upper half, silver on the lower.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on McGEE.—Mrs. A.S., Long Beach

A.S.: McGEE, a Scotch surname, has the same ancestry as the famous Clan MacKay. The clan founder, Eymor MacEye, lived on the heather covered highlands over eight centuries ago. MacEye, MacKay and MacGee meant "sons of the man with strong intellect." Descendants who used the name MacGee had a stronghold and castle at Balmaghie in Kirkcudbright, southwest Scotland. The MacGee shield is black, emblazoned with three silver leopard faces.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly explain WARD.—M.W., Lemars, Iowa

M.W.: WARD may be either English or Irish. In England it was the term for a trusted warden or guardian of a castle gate in medieval centuries. Thirteenth century records list Warin Warde of Cambridge and Simon Le Warde of Buckingham. The English Ward shield has a gold cross with a flower at the end of each arm, centered on a blue background. The Ward's religious motto "Sub cruce salus" translates as "salvation by way of the cross." John Ward of Haverhill, Suffolk, England, came to Massachusetts in 1640. The Irish clan name Mac-An-Bhaird, deciphered as "sons of the ballad-singer," was modernized as MacAward and Ward in the 1500s.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the source of HALLER?—H.H., Long Beach.

H.H.: HALLER implies that the family were once residents of the German Saxon city of Halle. The Saxon term Halle described the town location, which was on the site of an ancient "Halle" or meeting hall. The coat-of-arms of the Hallers of Saxony has a golden griffin (a mythical cross between lion and eagle) centered on a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on BARNES.—I.B., Artesia; D.D, Long Beach.

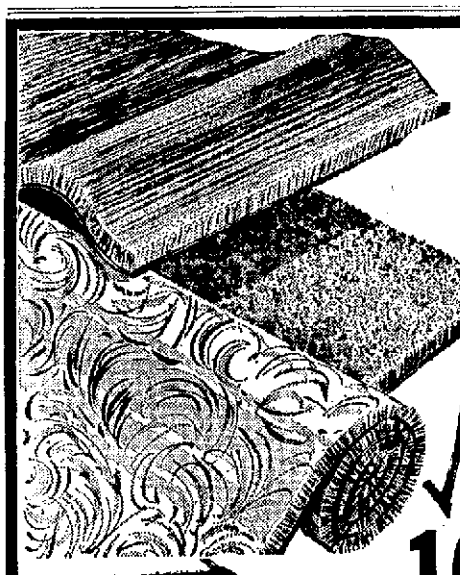

I.B., D.D.: BARNES designated a family who owned a number of "bere-erns," or "barley storehouses" in early Britain. An alternate origin for Barnes was the Norse-English baptismal name Biorns-son meaning "son of the bear." One Barnes ancestor was lord mayor of London in 1371. The family shield from Cambridge is black, decorated with two gold bars below three gold coins. Descendants were land owners in south Pennsylvania in 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background on DE WEESE.—A.D., Long Beach.

A.D.: DE WEESE is a Dutch dialetical spelling of the north German term "Wiese" meaning meadow or pastureland." De Weese indicated "family from the meadow," which was their first home location. The De Weese lineage was native to the east Dutch province of Gelderland. Their coat-of-arms has a broad green stripe across the center of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on ROGERS.—D.R., Long Beach.

D.R.: ROGERS began as the proud Germanic warrior title Ruod-gar, interpreted as "famous spearman." Saxon settlers brought Ruod-gar to England in the 8th century. A remote ancestor, Rogerus, is in the 11th century English census, the Domesday Book. The Rogers shield granted in 1260 has three black stag deer centered on a silver background. The Rev. Nathaniel Rogers and his wife Margaret came from Essex, England, to Boston in 1638.

PET PARADE

Year-Around Cat Care Pays Off

Not exactly the way to carry a cat, but Chris Cummins shows size of some of Siamese cats at upcoming shows.

By Eleanor A. Price

FIRST cat show of the season is scheduled next Saturday and Sunday at Orange County Fairgrounds, Costa Mesa, under the auspices of Western and Intra-Valley Cat Clubs. UCF rules and standards will be in effect and judges will be Don and Barbara Yoder of Missouri, Herb Gosling, El Monte, and Jack S. Foster, San Leandro.

Announcement of the show brings to mind an axiom of the cat world, that year-around conditioning of felines pays off. Keep kitty free of external and internal parasites, and brush off all dead hairs daily. Show cats often are bathed a week or two before an event, but you can use a dry shampoo such as corn meal, fuller's earth, or a special store product. Rub in well with your fingers, then brush out with a firm-bristled brush. Put a bit of brilliantine on a brush and groom kitty until he shines.

MOST CATS enjoy good health all their lives. But occasionally real trouble appears. One area that is hard to medicate is the cat's mouth. If teeth do not come in properly, surgery may be needed. If lip and mouth sores appear from cat fights, lack of vitamin G (niacin), or from various infections, you have a problem, for cats do not like to have their mouths swabbed. Make a solution of sodium perborate (same as for humans), soak a ball of cotton in it, and place the ball so the cat bites it when you squeeze his jaws. Do this this twice daily. (Discontinue immediaely if condition worsens. Some animals are allergic to sodium perborate.

Half hydrogen peroxide and half water is a good antiseptic, but the cat in swallowing some of the solution will probably vomit.

A cat with a sore mouth won't eat and his taste buds don't function, so he loses weight rapidly. A thin solution of corn syrup or honey can be force-fed. Several times daily, also tiny balls of raw hamburger with a bit of mashed carrot and baby cereal. Try to place the meat one ball at a time on the back of the pet's tongue. Have someone massage his throat so he will swallow.

KEEP the cat's system clean so his mouth will heal faster. If necessary, give him an enema, or make a laxative of senna. Cleansing foods include charcoal tablets, infusion of parsley leaves, celery chopped fine, celery juice, carrot juice, raw grated apple, greens such as cress or bird seed sprouted on a wet sponge or thick wet towel.

Never give mineral oil as it may get into his lungs. To prevent or work loose hairballs, feed a weekly dose of one teaspoonful salad oil or white noncarbolated petroleum jelly. Or let the cat lick up the fat from a can of sardines. Use these products between meals, not at mealtime.

Your veterinarian may suggest niacin injections or antibiotics.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Is a man still in service ever called a "veteran"? A. J.

A. There is no legal definition of the term "veteran." Through usage it has become identified with persons who have been discharged from the armed forces. The term "serviceman" is usually applied to a person still in the armed forces.

Q. How long after our own first tests of the atomic bomb did Great Britain explode its first one? B. H.

A. The first U. S. test was made on July 16, 1945. The first British atomic bomb was tested Oct. 3, 1952, in the Monte Bello Islands, about 50 miles northwest of Australia. It was the world's 35th known atomic explosion, as the U. S. had by that time announced 31 tests, and three Russian atomic explosions had taken place.

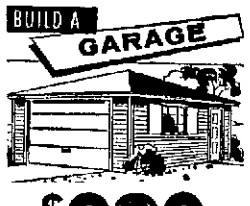

Q. In the 1950s, what names were used for U. S. foreign aid programs? J. A.

A. In 1948 the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) was established, to carry out the Marshall Plan. In 1951 the Mutual Security Agency (MSA) succeeded ECA. In 1953, the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) took over MSA's functions. FOA was abolished in 1955, upon the establishment (in the State Department) of the International Cooperation Administration (ICA), which took over FOA's non-military programs. The Department of Defense was put in charge of military aid programs.

Q. How is rock salt obtained? D. S.

A. It is mined in much the same way as soft coal. Shafts are sunk to the rock salt bed and the salt is hoisted to the surface, crushed, screened, bagged, and loaded on cars. Mining operations include undercutting, sideshearing, drilling and blasting, loading and transporting.

Set against a green background, Oriental Poppies will bloom spectacularly in an unusually beautiful picture.

Spectacular Poppies

By Murtha Hurley

FOR SHEER brilliancy and spectacular show Oriental poppies are unmatched. In recent years many new beautiful colors have been added. Colors are rose, salmon pink, lavender, Indian copper red, the usual scarlets and white.

The handsome flowers contribute a rare splendor of bloom throughout May and June. Planted either singly or in masses they dominate any part of the garden devoted to their growth.

AS CUT FLOWERS they make stunning tall arrangements. Cut the flowers early in the morning. Before putting them in cold water, dip the stems up to an inch deep in hot water. When so treated the flowers will last several days in arrangements.

Oriental poppies are among the few hardy perennials that are best set out in late August or early September. If planted or divided in the spring, they will not bloom the same year.

The planting hole for each root should be three inches deeper than the length of the root. In preparing the hole, loosen the soil several inches below where the root will go.

The root is placed upright with the crown three inches below the ground level. Fill in with good soil up to the crown, then pour in water until the soil is well saturated. Then fill it with dry light sandy loam over the crown to the ground level but do not pack down.

THE PLANTS prefer a rich, deep, heavy soil. They resent being disturbed when once established. Give the roots plenty of space to spread in a sunny location. Set roots twelve inches apart.

They will need to be staked. Do this early and sturdy, erect stems will result.

Oriental poppies enjoy plenty of food and water. After blooming, cut them back in fall. Give them a dressing of manure which will serve both as a mulch and as a feeding. Keep seed pods removed. The plants go dormant in August. They will be well established in fall for next year's blooming.

Fairy Ring has been very prevalent again this year over many parts of the country. It can be identified by a ring of fast growing dark green grass surrounding sickly brown-colored grass in the center. The rings vary in size and after excessive moisture, toadstools will often be found growing in them. It is one of the most difficult turf diseases to control because the fungus which cause it is deep in the ground.

The proper procedure for eradicating this disease is to spray with a fungicide as soon as possible after the disease has started because it spreads rapidly and will destroy the whole lawn if not controlled. A liquid fungicide containing copper and ether, or a wettable powder combining copper, zinc and chromium have both proven to be very effective in combatting Fairy Ring.

After the treatment, the lawn should be fortified with a light fertilization to help it in making a vigorous and prompt "come back."

Get More Bloom from Lily of Nile

By Joe Littlefield

AGAPANTHUS is easily grown and provides attractive white or blue flowers, the strap-like evergreen leaves remind the gardener throughout the year that he should supply generous amounts of water. The plants like a mulch of manure, and should be fed several times during their active growing season. A balanced plant food, containing less nitrogen than phosphoric acid, plus some potash, and with some trace minerals added, helps plants grow and bloom.

The plants must have sun or more sun than shade to encourage blooming.

Too much nitrogen may cause lush succulent growth at expense of flowers.

One of the new types of lilacs with flowers and fragrance like the eastern lilac is Lavender Lady lilac. It, too, is deciduous.

Lavender Lady lilac should be planted in full sun and with the top of the root ball six inches below soil level. This causes plant to send more growth. Fertilizing with a balanced plant food is recommended right after blooming.

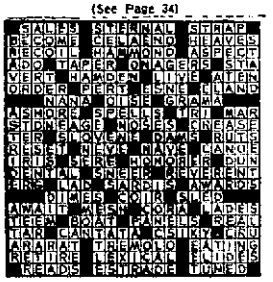

Water the plant deeply and frequently throughout the summer. Stop all watering in September. If no rains by December, start watering. If rain is sufficient, don't water additionally.

Spread one-half sack of steer manure around the plant early in December after soaking the soil thoroughly. Slowly but deeply soak the ground afterwards.

Agapanthus or Lily of the Nile is a desirable perennial that needs sunshine, water and plenty of food.

Divide Daisies

Shasta daisies like being divided every two or three years and August is a good month to do it. You can also plant new Shasta daisies from nursery stock, this coming fall, so save room for some possible new forms which you don't already have. You can ask your local nurseryman what's new in this line.

Something of Lasting Value

Los Angeles' Greek Theater, which has attracted throngs with distinguished live entertainment.

By Robert Ellis

ONE of the Southland's most popular entertainment emporiums — the Greek Theater in Los Angeles' Griffith Park —got that way not by comedies and stock Broadway plays but by presenting the finest available musical comedy, opera, ballet, drama and individual performers.

Now in its 11th year of operation, this once unwanted, neglected, outdoor city-owned theater soon will play host to ticket holder number 3 million who will laugh and applaud this type of distinguished live entertainment under the stars.

Present fare at the theater, which is located at 2700 N. Vermont, is "A Man for All Seasons," a drama that captured both London and New York, the two leading theater capitals of the world.

THE GREEK Theater Association has been different from its very start. Its force and guiding philosophy, once expressed by its general manager, James A. Doolittle, is: "Not simply to provide amusement for a given period each summer but to leave within everyone who attends something of real and lasting value."

Something of real and lasting value: these are the key words which steer the course of the association, and they have paid off.

Statistics show that in 1952, at the start of its contract with the city, the Greek Theater could be and was obtained by the association for a rental fee of $1,000 for the season; 10 years later, at the conclusion of the 1962 season, a rental that established the highest season's fee ever paid for an outdoor theater anywhere in the world—$54,024.

THAT LAST statistic means 297,291 people — 90 per cent capacity and 40,000 more persons than the previous season.

Presentations for the coming seasons will include a visit of Viennese opera and the Grand Kabuki Theater of Japan—and a dream of Doolittle: Shakespeare — the production of the finest plays in the English language amid the tree-and-star studded surroundings.

RAINER DICKMAN

Wine Is Included

IT IS definitely a false rumor that only people wearing suits of armor can be admitted to the posh Ivanhoe Room in the basement of the Lafayette Hotel, Broadway at Linden Avenue.

That story got started because the Ivanhoe Room is decorated with all the metallic effects of King Arthur's era, including swashbuckling swords, shields, maces and other pleasant weapons of battle. But it's not a war-like place at all and one needn't wear iron pants for protection.

One thing a person should definitely take to the Ivanhoe Room, however, is a good appetite. The menu there is devoted exclusively to gourmet steak and broiled lobster, with the guests enjoying the privilege of selecting those items from a refrigerated glass counter. All varieties of charcoal steaks are prepared by chef Joe Dunham, priced at 45 cents an ounce; minimum serving, $4. Epicures are always delighted when they discover that Rainer Dickman, personable catering manager for the hotel, includes the following appetite glorifiers with each entree: individual decanters of red wine (two glasses per customer); chilled relishes, tossed green salad, fine Idaho baked potato and coffee. If a guest likes delectable large mushrooms, cooked in wine, they are available a la carte.

Gorgeous is the word for the redecorating projects completed recently on two of the Lafayette's large banquet and party rooms. The French Room (formerly the Cavalier Room) was redone in French provincial with gold and olive accents. The Boulevard Room was done over in a smart modern French style.

Ben Casey: Romance vs. the Operating Room

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There isn't much opportunity to hold hands in an operating room, so Ben Casey's video girl friend is going to try a new approach.

Dr. Maggie Graham, played by Bettye Ackerman, is switching from anesthesiology to neurology so there will be more time to spend with smiling Dr. Casey, as played by Vince Edwards.

Bettye, a charming actress who also happens to be married to that show's Sam Jaffe in real life, is happy to be making the change if for no other reason than to escape having to pronounce "anesthesiologist" every day of her life.

VINCE EDWARDS AND BETTYE ACKERMAN . . . Anesthesiology Gives Way to Love and Neurology

But behind all this confusion lies reason of a sort.

* * * * *

THE WRITERS had run out of ideas on how to bring anesthesiologist Graham into the stories, inasmuch as such medicos spend most of their time administering anesthetics in the operating room.

Therefore they switched Maggie to neurology, which affords her the chance to confer with Casey on patients and personal matters.

Blushingly, Bettye admitted that Ben and Maggie are supposed to be lovers on the series but they can't show their feelings flagrantly for fear of upsetting hospital routine, not to mention viewers and the jolly old American Medical Association.

* * * * *

"THE CHANGE will involve me more with the guest stars and with other members of the regular cast," Bettye said during a lunch break.

"A real female neurologist is going to meet with me to talk over the profession so I'll have a better feeling for the sort of problems she encounters. It will also help me with the terminology."

Because both Bettye and Jaffee (he's Dr. Zorba) play physicians on the series, their home life is somewhat medicinal, too.

"We spend a lot of time talking about the cases on the show," Bettye admitted. "And we've built up a whole shelf of medical books and case histories.

"Playing doctors certainly has increased my admiration for medical men and hospitals, but I'm glad it's not my profession."

* * * * *

BETTYE'S ROLE sometimes is mistakenly referred to as that of a nurse, but it doesn't bother the actress at all. However, it does look better for Casey to be playing footsie with another doctor than a poor defenseless nurse.

"I don't think they'll highlight our romance any more next season than they have in the past," Bettye said. "After all, how far can they go with it before people would expect them to marry?"

If that's the case, they might as well have left Miss Graham in the operating room, where romance takes a back seat to brain surgery.

The Great Network Quiz Show Returns

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here we go again. ABC, a television network, is bringing back the quiz show in a big way. As you may remember, this whole institution departed the American scene in a rather big way in 1958.

But this one promises, swears, crosses its heart and hopes to die if it doesn't have ironclad, copperbound, foolproof rules and bylaws to keep it from climbing the rigging like some of its daddies used to do.

The new quiz program begins Sunday, Sept. 15. Its name is "100 Grand." It's built around the idea that this country contains a lot of people who follow various hobbies with such a passion that their knowledge equals or surpasses that of professionals.

* * * *

IT WILL PIT amateur experts in various fields against a series of professionals in those fields, the latter being selected by chambers of commerce in various cities. The contestants make up their own questions to throw at each other, and finally the viewing public will submit questions for the last round.

The rules and provisos would choke this whole newspaper, if printed, and anyway you'll be hearing them on the air soon enough. The idea is that after "six weeks of rising tension" an amateur can win $100,000 in the "Ultimate Challenge Round," a phrase that may become as familiar as "isolation booth" and "new plateau" once were.

ABC selected this program after rejecting 131 other ideas for a nighttime quiz show. Its creator and executive producer is a remarkable man with red hair, a red mustache and beard, sandy eyelashes, blue eyes, a beaming disposition, and 225 pounds hung onto a 6-foot-2 frame.

* * * *

HIS NAME is Robert Harley Stivers. He played fullback for Duke University before the war and then went into the Air Force and piloted B29s in raids on Tokyo. He is the man who introduced, in a singular act of pioneering, fresh orange juice in cartons to a thirsting nation.

He jumped from advertising to the orange juice business, ran it from nothing to $20 million in three years, and sold out in 1955. He works until midnight every night ("my hobby is work") and takes his staff home with him on weekends to study new business ideas, several of which are likely to burst upon us during this decade.

And now about this quiz show: "We have what we think is a pretty good list of amateurs already lined up," he said.

"We've been working six months on this show, and no matter how hard you've worked, it always gets frantic when you get close to opening.

"We'll put 10,000 questions in one week into an IBM machine for coding of questions and senders, and it will take 300 judges just to validate the 10,000 questions. I've got 12 deans from major universities who are just one part of our staff.

"The contestants and the MC will be in a huge plastic bubble, unable to see out, or hear from the outside. Our MC will be Jack Clark, who has been substitute MC on 'Password.' You need a man for that job who is in complete command of himself at all times."

BLOT ON CIVILIZATION

British Actor Looks Down His Nose at American TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—English star Robert Morley, visiting this country to make a new movie, labels American television an abomination and a blot on civilization.

Looking down his magnificently arrogant nose, Morley clearly despised everything about our video programs.

"It's terrible," he said. "Except for women wrestlers there is hardly and attempt at culture on American television. And the constant interruptions by advertisers are an insult to any civilization.

MORLEY

"It's frightfully impertinent to tell viewers they must buy products in order to enjoy 'free' television. This sort of thing really shouldn't be allowed.

"Television in your country is a disgrace to the people."

Morley was under the impression that he was offering sound advice to the unfortunate colonials by scolding our television tastes.

"Your TV has far-reaching consequences," he went on strongly.

"Your television is the first thing a visitor sees when he enters his hotel room or someone's residence, and that's a simple fact. Very often it is the last thing he sees before leaving America.

"It makes a simply wretched impression—the commercials and all. The people who make the products advertised on television are the biggest bunch of crooks in the world.

"They remind me of the men selling neckties on the street with a crowd gathered round them."

MORLEY WAS GENTLY REMINDED that English television includes a commercial network now which advertises all manner of British products, and includes some American shows.

"Television in England is excellent, far superior," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

"And it must be remembered that our two networks run about 112 hours a week, and of that number perhaps 30 hours are devoted to American programs—the cream of your shows such as 'Bonanza,' 'Perry Mason' and 'The Lucy Show.' All quite good, you know."

Never lacking an opinion, Morley favors English actors over their America cousins.

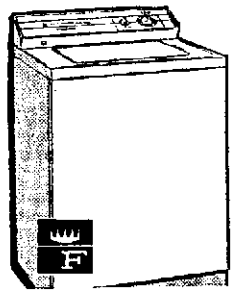

"The world's best actor? I'm absolutely amazed that anyone should be considered a greater actor than myself."

Video Finally Plunges Into Racial Issue

B' RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — To network television executives, heaven is a place where there are loads of big news stories, none of them controversial, and all of them enabling video to show off its technical facility. In this paradise, stories like space journeys and coronations are "in"—and matters like the desegregation conflict "out."

It is a pastoral scene—no sponsors heading for the hills, no angry partisans hollering bloody murder from all direction. Nothing, in short, that touches the viewer where it really counts, in his heart and home. Unfortunately, the desegregation story won't go away, and the networks, apparently having recognized this, finally have begun what appears to be a headlong plunge into the areas of evaluation and summation rather than just spot coverage.

ABC-TV led the way last week, using its old Howard K. Smith time slot to kick off a five-part weekly series on the racial crisis, with reporter Ron Cochran as the anchorman and host, properly serious throughout without being unduly grave.

It may be significant that the program was not sponsored.

* * * *

BUT THIS was just the start of the network's plunge. On Wednesday, for instance, CBS-TV will present a one-hour examination of coverage of the desegregation problem by the various news media. There have been some charges that network news reporting has been slanted to the Negro cause.

Here are other forthcoming special programs:

On Sept. 2, NBC-TV is planning an unprecedented three-hour night-time show examing many aspects of the Negro issue throughout American history, up to and including now. The entire prime-time lineup on NBC that night—"Monday Night at the Movies," Art Linkletter's show and "David Brinkley's Journal"—will be pre-empted. By coincidence, this also is the same night that both NBC-TV and CBS-TV expand their evening news report from 15 to 30 minutes daily; and there are some nasty folk who suspect NBC has scheduled its big special to draw attention away from CBS.

On Sept. 26, NBC-TV will also present an hour special on race relations in Washington, D. C., a predominantly Negro city. And on Oct. 28, ABC-TV will air what is billed as an actual on-the-scene "inside story" of the June integration crisis at the University of Alabama, an hour-long show, involving President Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and Gov. George Wallace — and, according to ABC, filmed at moments of decision.

A SHOW WITH NO ACTORS?

Calling All Police Chiefs: Check Your TV Makeup

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If you catch your local police chief wearing makeup this summer don't jump to conclusions or make any snide remarks. You're liable to wind up in the cooler.

Not only that, your constable may be looking back at you through the television set next fall.

A new television documentary series will feature real live cops in 52 major American cities going about the job of revealing the details of their most difficult cases.

Titled "The Lee Marvin Show," the new series leads viewers over the motivations of each case and includes interviews with victims, criminals, witnesses and of course, the cops (which is where your policeman may be caught with the tell-tale powder and paint).

LEE MARVIN

Actor Marvin will appear as moderator, host, observer and what he considers a public service role.

"The show isn't limited to crime," says Marvin. "It will include various forms of police work, rescue, maintaining and enforcing the law, race relations and the battle against the elements.

"I thing viewers will be impressed by modern police departments at work. They're altogether different from the fictional ones that have filled so much television time in the past."

Marvin himself is guilty of portraying the rough, tough cop in his defunct series, "M Squad."

RUEFULLY, HE ADMITS the real McCoy is more exciting.

"In a way I feel like I'm performing a public duty with this show," the actor said: "It will help improve the image of police departments throughout the country.

"I think the show will increase public faith in the men who keep our homes safe from criminals."

The syndicated show has been signed up by some 60 stations thus far. And unlike most network programs, "The Lee Marvin Show," will film 52 segments the first year instead of the usual 39.

"This is the first time that police departments will really go out of their way to cooperate with a TV series," Marvin said.

It is also a "first" for an actor. Marvin will be free to appear as a guest star in other video programs or to make a movie or appear on Broadway whenever the mood seizes him.

According to his contract Lee need only narrate each show, which he says takes him about a half-hour, leaving the rest of his time free for other activities.

"There is no acting in this show for me," he continued. "My job is more or less like that of Ed Murrow's on his old show. At least that's the approach I hope to use."

JACK BENNY takes on a complacent foe—one of the Marquis family chimpanzees—in a rebroadcast of "The Family Hour Specials" Monday on channel 2 at 9 p.m.

LEON AMES tries to persuade his wife, Frances Farmer, that they should give a young deaf mute a job on their farm in a rebroadcast of "Tongues of Angels" on "Reckoning" Wednesday at 10 p.m. on channel 2.

Drama Makes a Comeback on Radio KABC

Between daytime soap operas from "Ma Perkins" to "Portia Faces Life" and nighttime's "Lux Radio Theater" and "First Nighter," radio of the past was one dramatic offering after another.

Suddenly they all disappeared from the airwaves, and listeners were left with a selection of mostly conversational formats, informative shows, "top 40" platters and long-haired musical recordings.

But on Sept. 2, radio drama will make a comeback on station KABC, with two shows each night and three on Sunday afternoons.

Included in the dramatic series are "Theater Royal" with top British stars, "Horatio Hornblower" starring Michael Redgrave, both "Lives of Harry Lime" and "Black Museum" with Orson Welles, Clive Brook and "Secrets of Scotland Yard," and Marius Goring in "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

In a sort of lend-lease arrangement, local drama fans who have missed their American radio heroes will be treated to other top British actors including Laurence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, Alec Guinness.

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Who was the last non-Italian Pope?—David Gold, Passaic, N.J.

A. Adrian VI of Holland, 1522-23.

Q. William Vassall, the British Admiralty clerk who sold secrets to the Soviet Union after being compromised as a homosexual—wasn't he once convicted of molesting an 11-year-old English boy? How could the British employ such a man?—David Watts, Concord, N. H.

A. You are mistaking William Vassall for his brother Richard, who was so charged and convicted.

CHARLES BOYER

Q. Is Charles Boyer still married to Pat Patterson? Isn't this something of a record for Hollywood?—D. S. K., N. Miami Beach, Fla.

A. They were married in 1934, have a son Michael who works at Four Star TV productions. For Hollywood it's something of a record.

Q. Is it true that Shakespeare's wedding was a shotgun wedding? I need the information for a term paper.—J. P., Lancaster, Pa.

A. Yes, according to many authorities.

Q. Who said, "The misfortunes hardest to bear are those which never come"?—F. Wirsig, Richmond, Va.

A. James Russell Lowell (1819-1891), American poet, essayist, editor and diplomat.

Q. Is singer Frankie Avalon paying off on a paternity accusation?—H, P., Newark, N.J.

A. He makes regular support payments.

Q. I would like to know from which U.S. medical school Dr. Stephen Ward, mentor of Christine Keeler, was graduated.—G. T., London, Eng.

A. No medical school, but from the Kirksville College of Osteopathy in Missouri in 1938.

MAURICE HERZOG

Q. Is it true that the French have a minister of sport? If so, who is he?—Allen Wilshire, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. True. France's High Commissioner of Youth and Sports is Maurice Herzog, first man to conquer Annapurna, the Himalayan peak. His job: to organize government-sponsored youth clubs, athletic facilities, camping trips, etc.

Q. The rumor has been widespread for months that Marilyn Monroe's last phone call before her suicide was to the Attorney General, Bobby Kennedy. Is this so?—P. Ward, Washington, D.C.

A. No, it was to her psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson.

MAYA PLISETSKAYA

Q. I know this is a matter of opinion, but among critics who is considered the world's greatest ballerina? I mean among those ballerinas now living and working. — Louise Weber, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Probably Maya Plisetskaya, 37, prima ballerina of Russia's Bolshoi Ballet. Critics compare her to the great Ulanova.

Q. I would like to know if the American public has ever been told how the CIA under Allen Dulles set up and paid for the West German Federal Intelligence Agency headed by Reinhard Gehlen. Were we ever told that this organization was infiltrated by Red agents who transmitted to Moscow all our top secret information?—T. L. P., Falls Church, Va.

A. The American public is told practically nothing of CIA activities, because such disclosure would nullify the Agency's effectiveness. As for Russian infiltration of the Gehlen organization, it was amazing. Three of the organization's most trusted men, Heinz Felfe, Hans Clemens and Erwin Tiebel, turned out to be Soviet agents, who in 10 years delivered more than 15,000 photos of the Gehlen files to Soviet contacts in East Germany.

Q. What is the age of actress Patricia Neal? Is she now married? — John Baker, Lowry A.F.B., Colo.

A. Patricia Neal is 37. She is married to writer Roald Dahl.

OPEN TO DISCUSSION

do British girls make

Jane Partridge (l.) works for International Beauty Show, Elizabeth Eddy for American Book Publishers Council, Davina Crawford (r.) for Broadway producers.

The invasion has begun.

Each month British girls in droves are streaming into the U.S. to take secretarial jobs.

In the past two years an estimated 2,500 have invaded the Oakland-San Francisco area. Another 500 have moved into Southern California. Approximately 3,000 have immigrated to New York, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Dallas is getting more British secretaries than ever before, and it's just a question of time before the British cuties edge into the business worlds of Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Denver and Miami.

The British secretary in the U.S. today has become the latest status symbol of the rising au courant American executive.

Her distinctive accent, exotic and appealing to the American ear, her polished, dutiful manner, her good-natured, polite deference to authority have made the girl from England an "office catch."

Few American executives will admit that a British secretary is hired specifically to add "class" to the office. But employment agency officials reveal that is the number-one reason why the overseas girls are in demand.

"Years ago," explains one Manhattan personnel chief, "the boss wanted a Picasso or a Klee on the wall. Then he switched to the company limousine, the private office bar, the shower and his own lavatory. Now he wants a British secretary. Maybe it's a fad, but if it is, then without a doubt it's growing stronger, especially among a certain rather sophisticated type of employer such as one finds among advertising and airline men."

Marjorie Hurst, who heads the Brook Street Bureau of Mayfair, an employment agency which has sent hundreds of British girls to this country, claims the U.S. demand for her secretaries exceeds the supply.

"It's really quite simple," she points out. "You Americans like our girls for the same reason British business men like your secretaries. These girls represent the crème de la crème.

"Look at it this way. Any British secretary who comes to the States generally has poise, assurance, determination, self-reliance and a sense of adventure, or she never would have left her own country in the first place.

"These qualities, plus her technical skills, equip her to become a first-class secretary. That is the true basis of her popularity at the present time in America."

Marjorie Hurst and husband Eric. Mrs. Hurst owns the Brook Street Bureau of Mayfair, Ltd., London, which supplies hundreds of British secretaries to U.S. firms.

Listen to Warren Titus, President of the Peninsular & Orient Lines, who employs a British secretary: "I think," he says, "that a good secretary is a good secretary regardless of her nationality. But there are some differences between British and American secretaries. The British girls exude a great deal of poise and graciousness. They are more reserved, more conscious of the relationship between employer and employee. And they seem to me to be much more careful about their speech. They articulate well.

"I hired Rita Magnus not because she was British and certainly not as a status symbol, but simply because there was a shortage of good secretaries at the time—there still is—and Rita could do the job."

Rita Magnus, 33, bright-eyed and brunette, is probably typical of the average British secretary working in this country. "I've been in America five years," she reveals, "and before I came I worked for several years in the steno pool at the Bank of England in London. They were very, very strict.

"I find in San Francisco, American employers are very much easier to get along with. They place less reliance on hidebound traditions. If you prove yourself, that's all that matters. And you prove yourself through your work. People are more easygoing and informal here. It was shocking to me at first to hear employees call their bosses by their first names, but now I think that's kind of nice—informality but not familiarity. You can work for 50 years for one man in England and still be calling him Mister."

In addition to the informality and friendliness of better secretaries?

Patricia Hill (l.) works for San Francisco Insurance Co., Dinah Boyd for Minneapolis-Honeywell, Susan M. Saffrey (r.) for American Book Publishers Council.

American employers, what British secretaries like best about working here is the increased pay scale. They receive more than twice their British salaries.

Take Davina Crawford, 23, now secretary for the Broadway stage producers Cy Feuer and Ernie Martin. "Before I came to America," she says, "I worked as a secretary for the North British Locomotive Company, a Scottish outfit with a suite of London offices. I was getting a very good salary, considerably above scale, 15 pounds [$42.00]. Here I get $95 a week. And your standard of living is so much better. I share an apartment in midtown Manhattan with two other girls. We have hot water, central heating, wonderful shops and the weather—well, compared to London weather, it's a dream. And in the summer I share a cottage on Fire Island. It's a much better life you have in this country for the average working girl."

Are there really any differences between British and American secretaries? According to the British, there certainly are.

Monica Duston, secretary to Walter Henschel, public relations executive for Braniff Airlines in Dallas, says, "I believe our training is a little more strict than that of American secretaries. A British secretary generally has a steno speed of 100 words per minute and a typing speed of 60."

Elaine Aldersley-Williams, a secretary for McCann-Erickson in New York, believes that the average British secretary is more conscientious and diligent in her work than her American counterpart. "I think," she explains, "that we are brought up to take work more seriously. We do not feel imposed upon when our employer asks us to do something extra."

Says Dinah Boyd of Minneapolis-Honeywell, "The fundamental difference is in our method and manner of speaking. The British secretary on the telephone is easy and clear to understand. I think that's the outstanding factor behind our popularity. Our accent in this country is a novelty. That's why we appeal to employers."

Valerie Lewis, 24 (see cover), who works for International Bond & Share in San Francisco, reports that a British secretary rarely expects to find any social life or to make social contacts in her job. "As a result she doesn't pay nearly as much attention to her clothes and appearance as the American secretary who hopes one day to marry the boss. British secretaries rarely do marry their bosses. We are mildly class-conscious."

Warren Titus, president of Peninsular & Orient Lines, with secretary Rita Magnus. Titus finds British girls more reserved than Americans, more speech-conscious.

Marjorie Hurst, who took 60 American secretaries over to England last month and had her employment agency find them jobs there, is undoubtedly an authority on the essential differences between British and American secretaries.

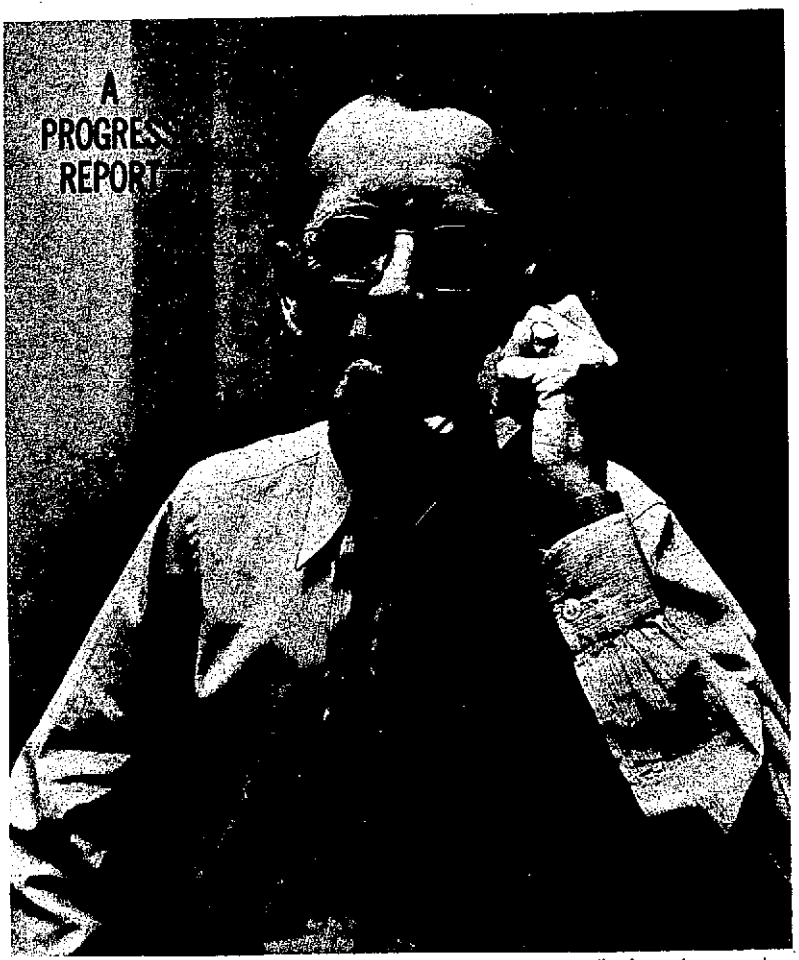

"There is no doubt," she declares, "but what British girls on the whole are more diligent and more amenable to taking orders than American girls. And frequently, too, they are better trained. But the American girl assumes more responsibility. She has more know-how. She can handle pretty nearly any situation. She's more versatile, and she certainly dresses more smartly for the office.

"British secretaries dress drably. I think it's because they don't have as much hope of ensnaring a man. The American girl constantly has her eyes open for a husband, and that's why her appearance is so chic and smart. Her marital opportunity might lie in her office.

"American girls are accustomed to a fast and rapid tempo of work, great bursts of energy and informality. British girls work at a much more leisurely tempo. But in the end both get about the same amount done.

"As for the accents," Mrs. Hurst continues, "the American is just as exotic in London as the British is in New York. American secretaries are very much in demand throughout the entire world, because they are glamorous, stylish, independent and competent."

Right now, however, it's the British secretary who's the current rage in American office effects. To the male American ear, her voice presents a more cultured, businesslike tone reflecting an attitude of diligence, respect and reserve. L. S. ■

Everything's "A-okay," says Lester Evans, 77, Coconut Grove, Fla., to caller from phone service.

LIFESAVING phone calls for older people

by SID ROSS

A telephone buddy system for aged live-alones, first reported by PARADE (November 18, 1962), has mushroomed all over the country, saving lives and bringing help, cheer and emotional security to thousands of elderly people.

Inaugurated in Saginaw, Mich., by Mrs. Clara Sample McClure as Reassurance Service, it has spread to more than 300 communities. Here's how it works: a daily call is made at a specified time to an elderly person living alone. If the call is not answered, an immediate investigation is made.

In some places a public-spirited individual foots the telephone bill, in other towns the community takes over and in some cities a nonprofit answering service keeps in telephone touch with the elderly.

Dr. Wilma Donahue, chairman of the Department of Gerontology of the University of Michigan, recommends this service for nationwide adoption. She says:

"This creative yet unusually simple solution provides needed security for old people who want to live alone and not be a burden on others. This service is a practical guardian for the well-being of old people who want to live independently and with dignity."

THE WAY IT WORKS

To show how these telephone life lines work, here are two examples, both in Florida and both inspired by PARADE's article.

For one dollar a month, old people in the Miami area can subscribe to Friendly Neighbors, Inc., a nonprofit telephone answering service run by Francis Zeller, 24 years old and blind. Sponsored by the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce Committee on Total Employment, Friendly Neighbors not only helps the aged, but also employs handicapped workers to do the phoning.

Dr. R. M. Applebaum, of South Miami, was instrumental in bringing the Saginaw idea to this area. He and Mrs. Florence Fox, chairman of the Dade County Committee on Total Employment, together with other residents, worked out a double-benefit plan —help for the aged and work for the handicapped.

Subscribers to Friendly Neighbors (and to other phone plans) fill out an application form which lists nearest relatives, chronic diseases, if any, physician's name—and the time they wish to be called. This record is kept by the answering service in case of emergency. One subscriber in his late 70's says, "I'm not afraid of being alone any more."

Mrs. Louva Hilliard, a 66-year-old widow, says, "I've got high blood pressure. It's dangerous. But with this service I feel relieved and reassured."

An 86-year-old widow, Mrs. Lillian R. Hale, likes to live alone so she can do as she pleases; but she finds it comforting to get a daily phone call. "I like someone calling me to check if I'm all right and haven't fallen and hurt myself," she says.

Just 250 miles away in St. Petersburg, Fla., a public-spirited citizen, Jack G. Powell, operates Check-Mate, a free phone checking service. Powell, whose business includes operation of an ambulance service, not only provides twice-daily phone calls to over 75 subscribers, but also delivers prescriptions and sends an ambulance if needed. He relates an incident in which Check-Mate saved a life.

"We called a subscriber three times and got no answer, so we sent a radio car out. When we got there the man was having trouble breathing. His fingers were turning blue. We called an ambulance, administered oxygen and rushed him to the hospital. He would have been a goner."

If you're interested in helping start a similar service to provide "reassurance" to the elderly in your community, write for information to PARADE, Dept. L, 733 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

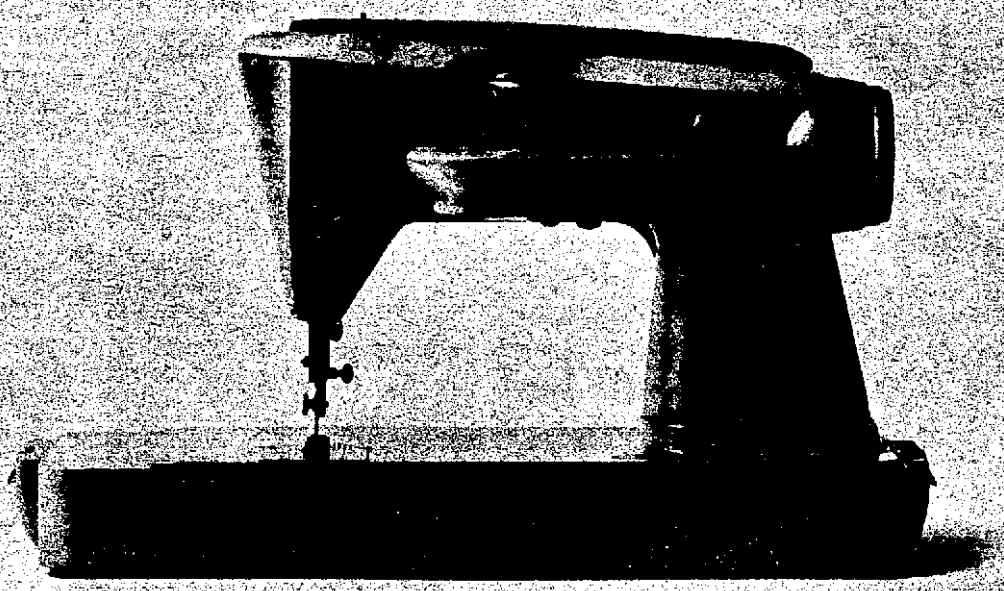

Center of Friendly Neighbors' activity in Miami is phone room where handicapped workers make daily telephone checks on subscribers.

Ambulance provided by the St. Petersburg reassurance service takes woman to hospital. After calling several times and getting no answer, the service investigated and found that client had suffered a stroke.

CLAIRE GIANNINI HOFFMAN

A WOMAN IN A MAN'S WORLD

by LLOYD SHEARER

Most women who are appointed to the boards of directors of large U.S. corporations are successful in-fighters—ambitious, aggressive, able, driving and competitive businesswomen.

Last week, however, Sears, Roebuck, one of the world's largest merchandising chains (approximately 1,745 outlets), pulled a switch. To its board, for the first time in its 77-year-old history, it elected a sweet, genteel, soft-voiced, attractive, housewifey widow of 59.

Her name: Mrs. Claire Giannini Hoffman.

Her lineage: Daughter of famed, controversial chain-banker, the late Amadeo P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America—the world's largest, with 837 branches, almost $14 billion in resources.

Her husband: The late Cliff Hoffman, one-time all-American Stanford University football great, later popular San Francisco stockbroker, who died in 1954.

Her credentials: Previous service on the Bank of America board (since 1949); 40 years of long and arduous service for a dozen community charities, but most of all an inherited obsession with the welfare of the working man; a sincere and empathetic understanding of the problems besetting the nation's women, working and otherwise.

POPULAR DIRECTOR

Says Austin Cushman, shrewd, razor-sharp, progressive Sears chairman: "We've elected Mrs. Hoffman to our board of directors for some very selfish reasons: Seven out of every 10 Sears customers are women. We've got 124,000 female employees. The plain truth is that no one understands women like another woman. Mrs. Hoffman is not the kind of woman who antagonizes members of her own sex. She's not high-powered or high-pressure. She's done personnel work for the Bank of America for years, and I honestly believe she's one of the best-loved and certainly one of the most popular directors of the bank. She has that rare ability of establishing an instantaneous rapport with people."

What Claire Giannini Hoffman intends to bring to the merchandising business is what her father brought to banking —humanization.

Before A. P. Giannini founded his Bank of Italy (later, the Bank of America) in San Francisco in 1904, banks in this country were cold, austere mausoleums, consisting largely of bars and cages, services for the rich, and forbidding, unapproachable officers.

A. P. changed all that. In his bank, he had the bars and cages removed. He positioned the desks of his officers out front, hired Italian-speaking officers who could converse on friendly paisano terms with the immigrants who flocked to San Francisco at the turn of the century.

He introduced the system of personal loans, personal investment advice, family trusts, a dozen other banking services today taken for granted.

"Money," he used to advise his only daughter Claire, "is of value only when it works for people, when it allows them to improve their lot in life."

All her life Claire Giannini heard paeans of praise about "the people."

When her father got in proxy fights, he took his battle to "the people." When government officials sought to put the squeeze on him, he appealed to "the people." When the vaults of his bank lay heavy with cash, he counselled his charges, "Encourage loans. Get it out to the people." In the early 20s when some bankers were charging California farmers 12 per cent on loans, A. P. cut his rate to 6 per cent. "Never take advantage of the people."

Before he died in 1949, Giannini founded the Bank of America-Giannini Foundation and endowed it with $509,235, half his personal fortune, to provide educational scholarships for "my boys and girls of the Bank of America." Throughout his life he gave away many millions. When he died he left an estate of $489,278. Of this sum, $50,000 went to various charities, the rest to his foundation.

DEEDS NOT WORDS

In his will, he wrote to his executors: "Like St. Francis of Assisi, do good—do not merely theorize about goodness. This is my wish. . . ."

With that sort of paternal heritage, what kind of woman would you expect Claire Hoffman to be? As the daughter of the man who founded the world's richest bank, you might well expect a social butterfly or a husband-collector in the Barbara Hutton tradition.

Claire Hoffman is no such creature. She is a down-to-earth, feet-on-the-ground, spade-calling, second-generation American. She dresses her age, knows the value of a dollar, has suffered in a 14-year span the heartache, the loss of 7 of the most important people in her life—father, brother, husband, mother, three others.

Although her father sent her to the best schools (Rosemary Hall, Conn., Mills College, Calif.), he didn't pamper her.

"He believed," she says, "as I do, that young people should stand on their own two feet, that suffering and effort build character, that the best men are self-made, that no man should take a wife unless he's prepared to support her.

"The man I married was a great athlete. But he worked his way through college. He waited tables, he worked on the docks as a stevedore. He helped support his mother and educate his sister as a nurse. He worked for four years before we could get married, and when we did, it was in 1930, right in the Depression.

"He was making $250 a month and we lived on that for a good long time, so I really know what it is to make both ends meet. We lived in a little rented house in San Mateo for 11 years, and we paid $125 a month rent, and all we had left to live on was $125. I know firsthand what it is to scrape, what a few extra dollars means to the average housewife.

"My father used to talk to me a great deal. In our home we just ate, slept, drank and breathed bank and people, and Father used to say that one way to achieve happiness is to take on the problems of others, then you don't think so much about your own.

"I think that's why there's so much unhappiness in the world today. So many people think only of themselves and of the easy life.

"I hear so many parents say they don't want their children to go through what they did. They want to spare them hardship and anxiety and worry. That's not how you build character. Let children face problems and overcome them.

"I'm convinced that business organizations must make their first concern the good of the people they serve. I lecture at orientation and training programs at the bank. And I tell this to our trainees over and over again: Be interested in people; serve them and others will serve you.

"I know there are managerial injustices," Mrs. Hoffman continues, "especially where women employees are concerned. I've seen women capable enough of training an army of men passed over just because they were women. They're loyal, devoted, competent and invaluable. Why aren't these women made vice-presidents? Why aren't their abilities recognized?"

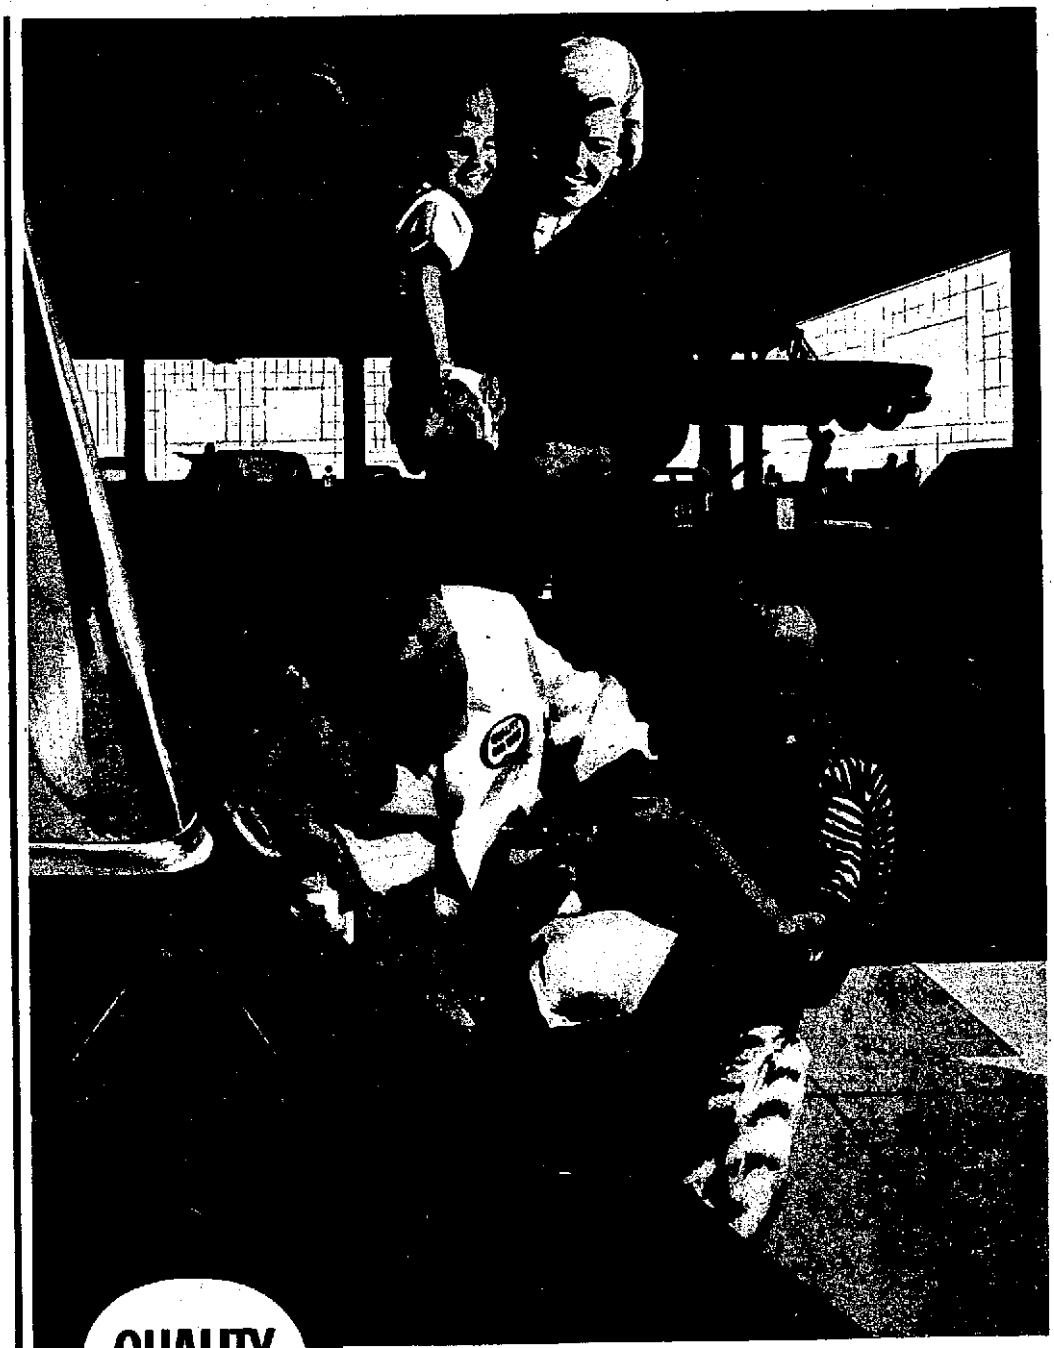

Mrs. Hoffman is no militant feminist. She believes simply that anybody who is capable, regardless of sex, should hold the job for which he or she is qualified.

MAN COMES FIRST

"Fundamentally, I say that God made man first, and man was made in such a way that he must be first if he's a man at all. Any woman who adjusts herself to this thinking and accepts it will get along much more easily in the world than if she fights the thought that she's a woman and not a man. A woman has her place. She can be influential. She can rise. But she must do it as a woman."

Claire Giannini Hoffman is convinced that the corporation boards on which she now serves—The Bank of America, largest merchandiser of money in the world, and Sears, Roebuck, largest merchandiser of goods in the world—boast two of the nation's most accessible, enlightened and idea-receptive managements, where her thoughts will be given every consideration.

"My father," she says, "used to tell me: 'Whenever you buy a stock, Claire, put it away, forget about it. But keep your eye on management.' Now I'm part of management, the public's eye is on me, and I don't intend to let anyone down."

SAC's B-58 bomber relies on a woman's voice for air safety.

a new idea to prevent AIR CRASHES

Joan Ririe records air warnings in the Northrop Corp. studio.

■ Some day in the very near future, if you ride the commercial airlines, your life may be saved by a 31-year-old California mother.

The voice of lovely Joan Ririe, housewife, singer and one-time movie starlet, is already warning B-58 pilots of the Strategic Air Command when plane trouble occurs—and telling them what to do about it. At home in California, Joan is at a loss with a pop-up toaster, yet the fate of $14,500,000 aircraft and their crews rests in her hands.

Her voice is a key element in a revolutionary new aircraft warning system developed for SAC by the Northrop Corporation. Known as VIPS—Voice Interruption Priority System—it immediately alerts the pilot to danger and dramatically reduces reaction time when his plane is in trouble.

Supersonic aircraft don't give the pilot a second chance. If something goes wrong he has only moments to decide what to do. Yet because today's jet pilot is surrounded by a multitude of control panels containing scores of warning lights, some of these have been known to go undetected for as long as 30 minutes. If the warning concerns something minor, no immediate crisis exists. But if a major problem is involved, death and disaster could result.

Furthermore, even after the warning light is spotted, it has taken pilots an average of 12 seconds to determine what is wrong and what to do about it. With VIPS, reaction time is reduced to about 3 seconds. And this difference, at supersonic speeds, can well be the difference between life and death.

Here's how the system works.

A tiny 8-pound package of pre-recorded warnings reports and analyzes 50 different hazard situations. If a malfunction occurs, the pilot is automatically told of the trouble and advised what action to take. The advice is repeated until the trouble has been cleared up.

first things first

The voice which reports the problem is that of Joan Ririe. A crisp yet calm and reassuring female voice, it cuts through the male chatter of crew members or ground control. Not only does Joan tell the pilot exactly what the trouble is, but if trouble comes in bunches, she tells him what to worry about first. Only when the gravest danger has been dealt with does she advise him how to deal with the next one.

Northrop technicians went to great lengths to find the right voice for VIPS. They knew that for instant recognition it had to be the voice of a woman. They also knew that it would have to comfort and assure rather than alarm. A SAC pilot's nerves might be shattered by a high-pitched voice shrieking, "Check for left engine fire!"

Joan Ririe was a natural for the job. She had been on radio, television, in movies and on the legitimate stage since age 5. Her voice was right, and she knew how to project it—though it's doubtful that she ever expected to project it to an altitude of 50,000 feet.

Today, when not tending her young children, Joan sings with her husband's orchestra under her maiden name, Joan Elms. And in the meantime, her voice is music to pilots in trouble all over the world.

A system similar to VIPS is already being used to monitor Minuteman ICBMs, eliminating the necessity for crews in the underground silos in which the ICBMs are stored. Soon, a Joan Ririe may be safeguarding your life as you fly your favorite airline.

And ultimately Joan, or another aerial backseat driver, may instruct our astronauts on their way to the moon.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BEN-GURION'S RESIGNATION.

Seasoned diplomats expect David Ben-Gurion, recently resigned chief of the Israeli government, to return to office within a year or two. They say he is the one indispensable man in the Israeli setup. Reason Ben-Gurion resigned: internecine warfare within his own party. His comrades wanted him to launch a campaign against the West German government because German scientists are working for Nasser in Egypt. Ben-Gurion is convinced that it is more important to make future friends of the Germans than to treat them as past enemies.

WILL DAVID BEN-GURION RETURN TO OFFICE?

RED TRAVEL LURE.

Owners of West European hotels, nightclubs and restaurants are disturbed at the increasing number of American tourists spending their cash behind the Iron Curtain. This year for the first time, Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Hungary and East Germany are making a determined effort to lure the U.S. traveler by promising low, regulated rates and no outrageous gypping.

INNOCENTS ABROAD.

American women traveling in Europe this summer should be aware of a new beach racket. Here's the way it works: Two personable young men approach a girl on the beach. They strike up a pleasant conversation. Presently one man invites the girl to go for a swim. While she does, the other searches her handbag for money, jewels, other valuables. Of late the racket has been particularly pernicious on the island of Majorca.

EASE MIXED MARRIAGE LAWS.

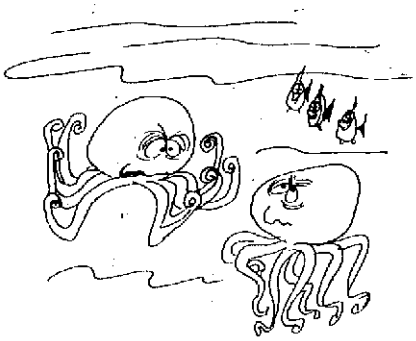

There is a possibility that the Roman Catholic church will shortly make some concessions on the problems of mixed marriage. Best bet: it may allow a repetition of a wedding between a Catholic and a non-Catholic in the church of the non-Catholic. Until now it has insisted that a Catholic priest perform such weddings and that the ceremonies may not be repeated in any other religion. Recently, when Prince Juan of Spain married Princess Irene of Greece, he was granted permission to marry in both Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox rites.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

EDITOR'S NOTE: Paul Gilbert, born in Alexandria Bay, N.Y., has never from the age of 7 known any life other than show business. His father was an English music hall comedian, his mother a French circus aerialist. As a child he was apprenticed to a group of South American circus performers. When he was 17, he suffered a 65-foot fall from the high wire, and his career as an aerialist was over. After a year of hospital recuperation, he decided to make comedy the keystone of a new career, and for the past 20 years Paul Gilbert has been specializing in laughs. He has worked in all the leading night clubs of the nation, has appeared on all the top TV variety shows, and for a comedian has established some sort of record by marrying eight times. Herewith some of Gilbert's favorite funnies.

by paul gilbert

An alcoholic friend of mine was recently out on the town most of the night. When he finally staggered home around three-thirty in the morning, his wife met him at the door. She took one look at him and exclaimed, "Drunk again!"

"Really?" replied my friend, with surprise. "Me, too!"

A whole herd of buffalos was stampeding across the plains. Suddenly the lead buffalo hesitated and was quickly overtaken. He was knocked down and trampled on by the rest of the herd. The last buffalo was kind-hearted and stopped to console his fallen friend. He solicitously asked, "But why did you stop so suddenly?"

"Well," replied the lead buffalo, "I thought I heard a discouraging word."

One thing I'll never understand about inebriates is why when one of them has had a few drinks too many, his friends always say, "Give him coffee—give him coffee."

Let's face it—all they're going to get is a wide-awake drunk!

A lady was complaining to her neighbor that her 12-year-old daughter was a beatnik.

"She hangs around the house all day in dirty blue jeans and a sweatshirt, reading poetry and playing jazz records," said the mother. "This I don't mind . . . but a beard?"

My neighbor's little boy came joyously running home from school one day and insisted that his mother buy him a gun-belt, holsters and a set of pistols.

"What are they for, dear?" questioned the puzzled mother. "Certainly you're not going to tell me you need them for school."

"Oh, yes I do," replied her son. "Our teacher said that tomorrow she will teach us to draw!"

A farmer called the veterinarian for some free advice, saying: "My horse sometimes walks normally and sometimes seems to have a bad limp, and I am wondering what you might recommend?"

"The next time your horse walks normally," advised the vet, "hurry up and sell him."

Definition of a psychiatrist: A man you pay to ask you questions your wife would ask you for nothing.

A long-lost friend called me one day to say that he was in town and would I come over to see him.

"Sure," I replied. "Where are you staying?"

"I'm at the Hotel Plasma," he said.

"You must be mistaken," I told him. "Isn't it the Plaza?"

"No, it's the Plasma," he answered, "where they bleed you!"

GUDRUN BJARNADOTTIR . . . Easy on the Makeup

BRIGHTEST STAR OF GALAXY

Top International Beauty Starts Her Glamour Reign

By CHARLES SUTTON

The suspense and surprise all over, lovely Gudrun Bjarnadottir, Miss International of 1964, settled down Saturday to a job for which she seems eminently fitted — that of being a reigning beauty queen.

The long-stemmed beauty awoke shortly after light filtered through her Breakers International Hotel window and, before you could say Keflavick, her home town in Iceland, she was looking freshly demure for visitors who came knocking at her door.

Friday night had been a tumultuous, exciting shocking experience for Gudrun —so shocking, in fact, that she broke into tears when officials tapped her for the International Beauty Congress title.

* * * *

"I DIDN'T think I had a chance," she confessed. "When it happened, I didn't believe it at first."

Saturday, Gudrun not only believed it—she looked it. She wore a simple blue sheath dress and, despite only three hours sleep the night before, looked flower-fresh in it. There was nary a shadow beneath her deep gray-green eyes, and her peaches - and - cream complexion fairly shone in the morning light.

* * * *

SITTING ON the edge of a queen-size bed, with her legs crossed nicely, Miss Bjarnadottir admitted she'd been quite nervous all through the pageant — though outwardly, she said, she appears to be the cool and collected type.

She also disclosed that she almost didn't enter the contest.

"I had been having terrible headaches and I really didn't feel up to it," she explained. "But Mrs. Swanson (Mrs. Sumi Swanson, her chaperone, of 4029 Pine Ave.) and my parents persuaded me that I should go if only for my countrymen. They said I owed it to the people in Iceland. I feared I wouldn't be able to take the grind."

* * * *

FOR THE FIRST three days of the pageant, the headaches continued, she said. Indeed, she still gets them intermittenly.

The daughter of a fishing boat builder in Iceland, Gudrun has been living recently in Paris, where she works as a photographers' model.

Her sideline is acting, and she wouldn't mind it one bit if Hollywood beckoned. However, none of the studios have approached her yet, she said.

Romance?

"I'm not interested in marriage," she stated firmly, thereby adding more mystery to an already mystifying issue.

* * * *

GUDRUN'S first comment on the subject was made Friday, following her coronation. "I don't want to discuss my personal life."

Officers from the United States Navy served as escorts for the ladies as their hostess - chaperones ringed the ballroom.

One young ensign was heard to comment that "it looks like an admiral's inspection." But the perfume, music and flowing formals took effect as the evening progressed and the Navy demonstrated "close formation drill," much to the delight of the beauties.

Light Plane Rams Wall; Pilot Killed

A Huntington Beach man was killed and another seriously injured when their light single - engine plane skimmed treetops in the San Bernardino Mountains and crashed against a cement-walled reservoir.

Killed was the pilot, Richard Olson, 34, of 15442 Baffin Circle. His passenger, Robert B. Stanford, 28, of 5681 Mangrum Dr., was taken to San Bernardino County Hospital with multiple fractures and head injuries.

Friends said the pair left Sunset Airport in Huntington Beach in a Fairchild trainer "just to go flying." The Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Agency were investigating the cause of the crash.

Olson operated a radio-TV repair shop in Fullerton.

Meredith's Graduation Set Today

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Barring unforseen developments, James H. Meredith will receive his bachelor's degree today from the University of Mississippi.

The 30-year-old Meredith, a slightly built Negro from Kosciusko, Miss., became the first known member of his race to attend the 115-year-old university last fall when he was enrolled by the force of federal arms.

* * * *

GOV. ROSS Barnett, who last fall tried repeatedly to block Meredith's admission, attempted last week to prevent Meredith from receiving a degree from the same school where the 61-year-old governor got his law degree.

But the State College Board, ruling body of Mississippi's public institutions of higher learning, voted 6-5 to allow Meredith to receive his diploma.

At issue was a statement Meredith issued last June after a sniper assassinated Negro leader Medgar Evers at Jackson, Miss.

* * * *

MEREDITH called for a "general boycott of everything possible by Negroes" as a protest against the racial situation in Mississippi.

"A Negro's life is not worth the air it takes to keep it alive in Mississippi," he said.

Barnett, in seeking to stop Meredith's graduation, contended the statement violated a university rule against inflamatory pronouncements.

Members of the State College Board said they feared Ole Miss would lose its accredition if it denied Meredith a degree because of his statement.

GOVERNOR EDMUND G. BROWN and wife are received by Pope Paul VI in a special audience at his summer palace, Castel Gandolfo.

INVITES RETURN VISIT

Brown Meets With Pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) —Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California Saturday met with Pope Paul VI and invited the Pope to visit his state.

A spokesman for the governor said the Pope threw out his arms in a wide gesture which seemed to indicate "Who knows?"

THE POPE said he was happy to receive the invitation but did not say if he would accept, the spokesman added.

Brown, a Catholic, shook hands with the Pope rather than kissing his ring as is the customary practice for Catholics received in papal audience.

He gave the Pope a book entitled "Beautiful California," which is well illustrated with color photographs of the Golden State. The Pope told him he would look forward to reading it.

The spokesman for Brown said the governor had found the Pope a much more striking figure than his photographs indicate and had described him as a "very kindly" man.

AFTER leaving Castel Gandolfo, located in the Alban Hills 17 miles southeast of Rome, Brown went to Rome to meet with Italian Foreign Trade Minister Giuseppe Trabucchi.

After attending church today, the governor leaves Rome by air for Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia.

Race-Relations Meet Disrupted by Interlopers

By MARK CLUTTER and VINT MADER

A scheduled human relations meeting to discuss the integration issue in the South Bay areas was broken up at Torrance High School Saturday night by a cadre of heckling demonstrators who hooted the program to a halt.

Late Saturday night, after Torrance police declared the meeting "illegal," some 1,000 persons refused to leave and attempted to carry on the meeting.

The group, accused by the panel moderator of being from the ultraright-wing John Birch Society, succeeded in overwhelming a proposed panel discussion of the Centinela Bay Human Relations Committee.

As the riotous disruptions continued at an uncontrolled and violent pitch, C. H. Catterlin, Torrance city prosecutor who was to have been moderator of the panel, declared the meeting adjourned.

* * * *

POLICE Lt. D. C. Cook then proclaimed the meeting an illegal assembly and officers began attempting to clear the hall of the dissident claque and the legitimate participants alike.

Catterlin, president of the South Bay Bar Association, said later that "the leaders of this are the Birch Society."

The disruptive program began early with loud demands from the floor that the gathering be launched with the singing of The Star-Spangled Banner, in addition to the already-scheduled Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and a religious invocation.

The crowd stood and sang

Long Delay Forecast on Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) —Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Saturday Senate consideration of civil-rights legislation will be delayed until late September in an effort to get other important bills passed.

Mansfield outlined in an interview a program calling for Senate action on measures to keep the debt limit at $309 billion, to authorize foreign-aid spending and to permit ratification of the limited test-ban treaty — before any civil-rights measure is brought up.

The Senate is expected to take up the House-passed debt-limit measure Tuesday.

Mansfield said regular departmental money bills will be taken up as they are cleared by the House and approved by the Senate appropriations committee. He said he also hopes to win passage of an educational-aid bill, but did not say which of several pending ones it would be.

Although Mansfield did not say so, this seemed to reflect an administration decision to try to get approval of most of the legislation it regards as absolutely necessary before heading into an expected work-stopping filibuster on civil rights.

Bus Crash Injures 34

TROY, Ala. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus smashed into a bridge abutment and crazily overturned into a creek near here Saturday while trying to avoid colliding with a car.

First reports indicated at least 34 persons were injured, but there were no immediate reports of any fatalities.

PIED PIPERS CAN GET OFF RELIEF ROLL

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)—If you build a better mousetrap — and mighty quick — the residents of Conejo Valley will beat a path to your door.

A recent drought has driven thousands of little field mice into this Southern California residential area, and the invasion has residents going to every corner market and hardware store for mousetraps. Stocks were depleted over the weekend, while one firm said it was ordering traps by the gross and selling them like hotcakes.

Haiti Rebels Report Aerial Foe Downed

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Haitian rebel forces reported Saturday night they had shot down one of two air force planes which they claimed President Francois Duvalier sent against their positions around the town of Mont Organise in Haiti.

Paul Verna, spokesman for the rebel forces led by former Haitian Gen. Leon Cantave, said the plane was shot down after a two-day pitched battle around Mont Organise, an interior city which the rebels claim they have captured.

Verna said he got the news from rebels by courier.

He said Cantave and his rebels retreated into the mountainous area around the city after inflicting heavy losses on special army and tactical units of the Duvalier government.

He put the government losses at 125 killed, and the rebel fatalities at 5.

For the past several days there have been reports of heavy fighting in the coffee-growing areas between government troops and Cantave's forces, variously numbered as between 250 and 500 well-armed men.

Cantave, a former general in Duvalier's army who fell out with the Haitian president, headed a force of exiled Haitians that landed near Cap Haitien in Haiti Aug. 5 in a move to topple Duvalier.

1,000 Attend Coming-Out Fete for First Lady's Half-Sister

By FRANCES LEWINE

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Debutante Janet Jennings Auchincloss, with a surprise boquet from President and Mrs. Kennedy, was the star of an elaborate seaside coming-out ball Saturday night.

The introduction to Newport society of 18-year old Janet, half-sister of First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy, touched off a weekend of partying here. The biggest party of all was the Venetian Ball, with 800 to 1,000 guests invited to dance until dawn in honor of Deb Janet at the 75-acre Hammersmith Farm, home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss of Washington.

The rambling, gray-shingled 19th-cenutry Victorian summer home on Narragansett Bay was a beehive of activity as New York decorators and caterers culminated months of planning to give it the flavor of Venice, the city of gondolas, music and romance.

The gay decor included two huge marquees with Venetian canvas tops—one for dancing and one for dining—set up on the lawn overlooking the water.

A 40-foot gondola, with red and black velvet trimmings, provided the bandstand background for Meyer Davis and his society orchestra, who had played only the night before for the Newport coming-out Blue and Silver Ball of Janet's close friend, Josephine Pearson Taylor of Camden, S.C.

The musicians were provided with the costumes of gondoliers and told to emphasize sentimental Italian tunes. All the young girls received a golden mask on a stick and the young men escorts were given authentic straw hats, worn by gondoliers in Venice and imported from there especially for the ball.

The Auchinclosses invited some 300 guests to dinner first and a list that reportedly came to 1,000 for the ball beginning at 11 p.m. and traditionally continuing until dawn — with pancakes and scrambled eggs featured at the buffet tables.

A Who's Who of Society from Newport, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia gathered for the event, including ambassadors and Janet's two roomates from Miss Porter's exclusive

Bombs Wound 20 in Barroom

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Two hand grenades were lobbed into a Congolese bar in downtown Brussels late Saturday night.

First reports said at least 20 persons were wounded, several of them critically.

E. German Guards Victims of Own Mine

ALTENBURSCHLAR, Germany, Sunday (UPI)— Two East German border guards, their legs blown off by a Communist land mine, crawled to freedom in the West Saturday night.

The border guards were talking to the mayor and some residents of this village across the barbed wire fence "iron curtain," West German border police said.

When they walked back to resume their patrolling duties, they stepped on one of the anti-refugee mines in the "death strip" adjacent to the border, police said.

"The explosion ripped off the leg of one border guard, while the leg of the other fellow was still dangling there," police said.

On their elbows, they crawled back to the fence ad across to West Germany, police said.

Both men were rushed to the nearest hospital.

L.A.C. Says:
A Miserable Mess of Fraud and Collusion

"It is a credit to the U.S. Justice Department that the government is placing the full force of its strength into an investigation of the crime syndicate." This glowing tribute to Attorney General Robert Kennedy and his FBI is based on the hoped-for curtailment of the nation-wide crime syndicate being exposed by Joseph Valechi, whose life is threatened because he squealed on his fellow gangsters.

* * *

At about the same time we read the above comment we also read a U.S. News article telling of the corruption in the Attorney General's home state of Massachusetts. But we have not heard of his taking any action to disclose and stop the corruption that has been rampant in that state all his life—and which is shown to be rampant today among its political hacks.

The U.S. News article reads as follows:

"A congressional report described land-buying for the federal-aid highway system in Massachusetts—President Kennedy's home state—as a 'miserable mess.' Fraud and collusion were so widespread, the legislators asserted, that the cost to the taxpayers may be reckoned in terms of millions of dollars. The report was issued on July 30 by a special subcommittee of the House Committee on Public Works. It is the strongest denunciation yet of irregularities in the $50 billion federal-state highway program.

"Democrats and Republicans on the subcommittee joined in declaring that miscreants in Massachusetts have perpetuated the perverse philosophy that public funds exist solely for the support of rogues and sycophantic and invidious political hacks. The report cited evidence of collusion among fee appraisers and between appraisers and attorneys for property owners, padding costs of right-of-way acquisitions. One example: One piece of land taken contained a converted street car diner and 10 parking spaces. For this, $155,000 was paid—where the original estimate was $21,000."

It will be recalled that, in last year's election, another Kennedy was elected as senator for that state—on the slogan that he could get more for that state than his opponent. The above report from the House Committee on Public Works indicates that vast sums of federal highway funds are going into that state. But it would seem there is collusion and fraud connected with their administration.

The Justice Department with the President's brother in charge, deserves credit for its continued efforts to prove the ruthless misuse of union power and money by Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa. It attempted to by-pass many states and personal rights in its harassment of the steel companies. But it seems to accept the conditions in Massachusetts as normal—which based on is past history, it is.

There have been highway scandals in other states. Many of them have been prosecuted and men sent to prison. Wherever there is such collusion and theft of federal money, such action should be taken. That is why it is distressing to read of the Attorney General's own state being exposed by a Congressional Committee without assurance from the Kennedys that the mess will be cleared up. I fear the reason is that it has long been a way of life in that state, so why be disturbed about it. My answer is that the best way to clean up corruption nationwide is to start by cleaning it up at home.—L.A.C.

(L.A.C.'s column, by L. A. Collins Sr., like other columns, is an expression of personal opinion and does not necessarily reflect the considered opinion of this newspaper.)

Young Demo Meet Told West Vital

BERKELEY (AP)—Western Young Democrats were told Saturday they now are more politically important than ever before.

"The vast westward migration has made this so," Gov. Grant Sawyer of Nevada said in an address to the western conference of Young Democratic Clubs of America. Thirteen Western states were represented.

"Political and economic power is shifting to the West," Sawyer continued, "and in years to come this section of the country will dominate national affairs."

* * * *

BOTH Sawyer and Allen Howe of Utah, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, spoke disparagingly of the Young Republicans of America who met recently in national convention in San Francisco.

Howe said the California YR organization is "recognized as John Birch Society-dominated." The society is regarded by some as an organization of far-right extremists.

Sawyer said YR meetings "have been dominated by a wave of far-right extremism which has as its goal the abolition of most of the social progress this country has experienced in the last thirty years."

* * * *

AT A DINNER meeting Saturday night Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., in a prepared address, urged the young Democrats to resist any attempt at diverting their party from what is called its liberal philosophy.

Sawyer reviewed President Kennedy's record and predicted a Democratic victory in 1964.

"Democrats have the candidate and the record to put before the public next year, without fear that either will be found wanting," he said. "The President is building a program which we can present to the American people without apology. It needs no window dressing to prove that the people's best interests lie with the Democratic party."

* * * *

AGAIN referring to the growing political power of the West, he concluded:

"We Westerners are going to flex our new political muscles in a positive way—the reflection of President John F. Kennedy and a Democratic Congress, thus assuring continued progress for a sounder, safer, more powerful and more enlightened America."

The conference ends today.

Model Airplane Hits Man, Hurts Him Seriously

VAN NUYS (CNS)—A 35-year-old Woodland Hills man is in serious condition at Valley Receiving Hospital from injuries suffered Saturday when an out-of-control model plane smashed into his back.

Attending physicians said Allen Latta has multiple rib fractures, a possible collapsed lung and has required a blood transfusion.

Police said Latta was refueling his model plane at the Sepulveda flood-control basin at the intersection of Sepulveda Boulevard and the Ventura Freeway.

Suddenly another model plane, weighing 12 pounds and radio-controlled, got away from hobbyist Ken Murakami, 35, Monterey Park, and hit Latta in the back.

President, First Lady Are 'At Home'

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy passed up his customary Saturday cruise to stay at home with his convalescing wife. But he had a date for a golf game later in the afternoon with an old friend.

The President is spending his seventh week-end in a row with Mrs. Kennedy and the two children at their seaside retreat on Cape Cod. He arrived Friday by jet from Washington.

The White House yacht, Honey Fitz, moved up to the Kennedy family dock late Saturday morning. But White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, announced that Kennedy would not board it.

"He plans to stay around the house," Salinger said.

And he planned to golf with his house guest, New York investment banker Charles Spalding.

Conrad Asks GOP Truce for Primary

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, Saturday called upon fellow Republicans to support a plan aimed at cutting intraparty fighting during next year's presidential primary election.

Conrad, minority floor leader, said information of a united uninstructed delegation, not pledged to any candidate, would avoid fighting between conservative and moderate elements of the party if no major candidate filed in the primary.

He noted that no delegation could be pledged to a candidate without the candidate's permission, but said groups could form delegations labeled conservative or moderate and claim they represent the thinking of a given candidate.

Teen-Agers Held for Arson in $2-Million School Fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Two teen-agers were arrested Saturday after one of them admitted setting a $2-million fire that destroyed Stanford Junior High School.

Police detectives arrested Robert Reese, 17, at his mother's home before fire crews had finished mopping up the blaze. They said Reese admitted starting the fire at the school which he formerly attended.

They said Reese implicated William Crawford, 16, as an accomplice. Crawford, like Reese, was charged with arson and burglary, but he denied that he was involved.

Fire Chief Thomas A. Diese said that except for the school cafeteria and five portable classrooms, the 30-year-old school was a total loss.

Sacramento Schools Superintendent F. Mervyn Lawson said the two-story brick building had been built for $330,000 but would cost $2 million to replace. He said it had been insured for the full replacement value.

Accordionists to Convene Here for 3-Day Meet

Several hundred young accordionists will converge here Friday for the annual three-day Western States Accordion Festival, sponsored by the Accordion Association of Southern California.

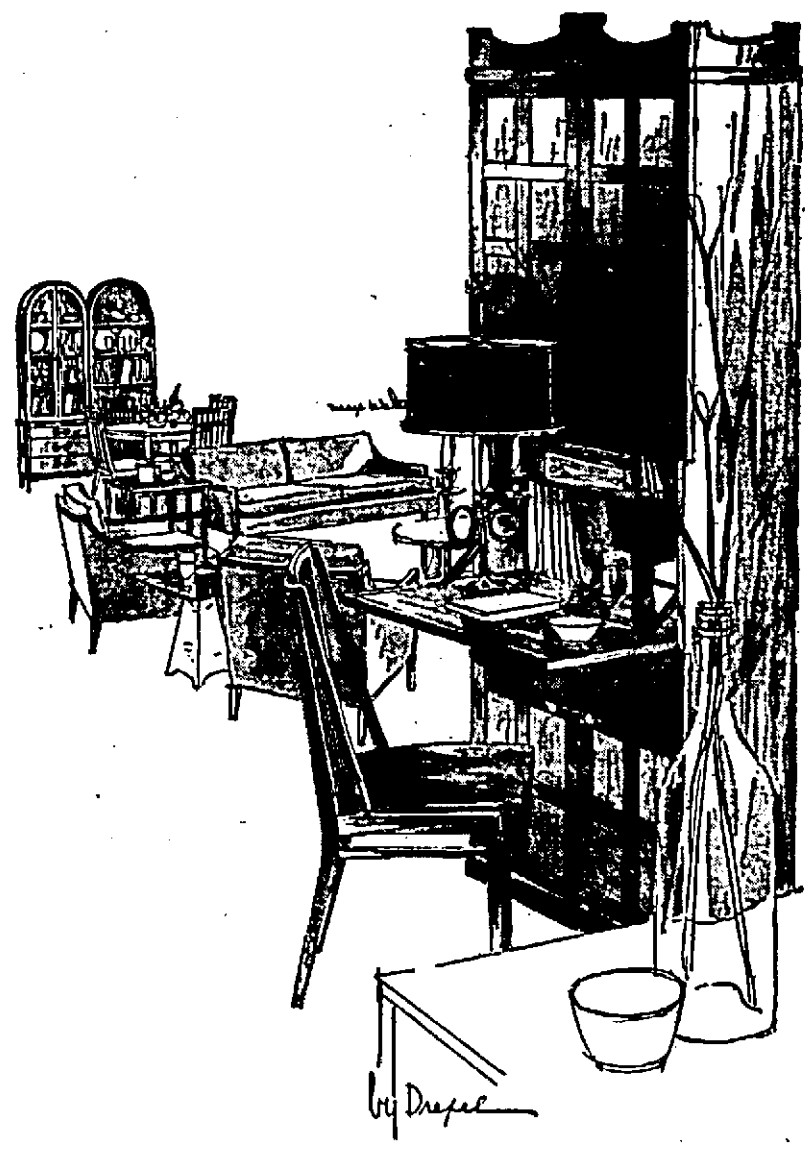

The school-age competitors will be vying for trophies and cash prizes, and will compete in several different categories, according to Leo Adler, spokesman for the association.

The festival, which is open to the public, will be held in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

MAYOR EDWIN WADE has smug victory smile while Staff Writer William Jones seems still to be looking for the typewriter through his dark glasses in typing duel. Wade coasted to victory in contest judged by Lauris Jones (with baton), conductor of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra.

'POLITICS!' SCREAMS REPORTER

Mayor's Hunt 'n' Pecks Sets Writer on Cadenza

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The third and last in the season's Starlight Serenade Pop Concerts at 8 p.m. Aug 27 in Bixby Park will include "The Typewriter," a work which calls for a virtuoso soloist at the console of the Underwood Grand. Choice of soloist boiled down to hunt-and-peck artist Mayor Edwin Wade and Reporter William Jones. Symphony Orchestra conductor Lauris Jones auditioned the two—and here is Reporter Jones version of how politics was his undoing.)

By WILLIAM (SUGAR FINGERS) JONES

Cats, the truth is that I took a dive in the 23rd bar.

B-waangg went the typewriter key when I punched "?." There the question mark hung shamefully stuck between home and the ribbon.

Gamely, I tried to get my buckling fingers up to the "½." But the one-half got stuck-up too and the music played on while I was played out.

I threw in the typewriter ribbon. Whatinell, everybody knew the mayor had already canceled all appointments for the concert date, an act which would have caused any official at Los Alamitos Race Course to ask for a saliva test.

The judge, Lauris Jones, was saying something like: My mayor's won, my mayor's won, my mayor's won.

Wade himself was saying something to me like: It's a shame, it's a shame, it's a shame. He was saying it smart-like.

The crumbs didn't even give me the courtesy of a 10-note count.

LOOKING BACK now, I'm sure I could have had "?" and "½" working if Jones had given me a mandatory eight-note count.

It was a frameup from the beginning. The typing duel was held in City Hall and with city-owned typewriters. And, man, those two cats, Lauris Jones and Wade, carried on like brothers before the first keys were even banged.

While the mayor held up a conference in Council Chambers, he proceeded to rob me in an adjoining room.

It wasn't all one-sided though. I created a high note when I made my musical debut in black beret, dark glasses, checkered coat and tan hush-puppy shoes.

I tell you I almost blinded that mayor into defeat.

But, instead, the darkness fell upon me. Those sunglasses just ain't cut out for indoor sports.

BEFORE THE contest—psychiatric-like or something, I cracked my knuckles and did a few rapid push-ups with my fingers to limber up. Wade looked like he was staring at the new city budget.

"Maestro," I said, a capella, "how about warming me up with something like 'Flight of the Bumble Bee?'"

"Better make it 'Mary had a Little Lamb,' Fatso," my faithful camera-bearer, Chuck Sundquist, bellowed.

I shed the suggestion and said, "Let's get started, on the Key of "G." And I banged "G."

Wade—who meanwhile was practicing on something significant like, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party"—waded into the contest with a loud "#."

BY THE 15th bar, Wade's right showed his excellent training in shaking hands with the voters while I was sticking to the easier stuff like "C," "A" and "T." Wade tore into it like he was facing the rapid transit problem and speeded up.

As the paper's music critics Julien Musafia, or Rachel Morton would have said of me: "One would have expected to find a more infectious enthusiasm generated by the cheerfulness and vivacity of the music, but instead one found the element of abandon deserted and replaced by an appalling conglomeration of harsh notes and missed opportunity" and so on.

Wade was not acting like a guy who's licked the customhouse battle and was typing out: "Y-O-U—A-R-E—L-O-U-S-Y." Weakly, I hammered back: "S-A-M-E — T-O — Y-O-U, — B-U-D-D-Y." In the fatal 23rd, Wade won hands down—hands down on "Q#$%F&L@."

. . . And there I was—flat on my cadenza.

Scouts Kayak on River Trip

By KEN KNIGHT

STANTON— Seven months of preparation and planning ended at dawn today as a band of 31 Boy Scouts and their seven leaders began a 100-mile trip in kayaks down the Colorado River.

With all the precision and punctuality of an invasion, members of Stanton Boy Scout Troop 82, loaded their brightly painted kayaks aboard special trailers and left from their homes Saturday.

Today, the boys will practice on the river and learn how to handle their canvas-covered plywood boats, before they start the journey downstream. They will travel from Blythe, Calif., to Yuma, Ariz.

• • • •

DURING the cruise, the boys, their leaders and an accompanying outboard motor boat will cover about 25 miles-per-day on the river.

Each evening as they reach a predetermined camping place, supply trucks already will have arrived and set up camp.

The section of the river that the boys will travel is one of the quieter portions of the Colorado. Currents will not exceed six miles per hour but there is always the danger that a hidden tree or log could snag a kayak, ripping the boat's cover.

"All of our boys are good swimmers and two of our troop learned to swim this summer so they could make the trip," Scoutmaster Paul (Monty) Montgomery proudly commented.

During the past seven months, the backyard of Montgomery's home at 3400 W. Orange Ave., Anaheim, looked as if it were sprouting kayaks.

• • • •

"THE BOYS and the leaders made their own kayaks, painted and decorated them here," Montgomery said with a sweeping motion of his hand toward the canvas-clad craft that had yet to be loaded on the trailer that would take them to the river starting point.

"With the materials people donated and with us doing our own work, the kayaks cost us only about $15 apiece.

"The boys will give another $10 each which will go to buy supplies and gas for the outboard boat which will go with the kayaks."

Each day as the boats go down river, two supply trucks must travel by road to reach the night stopping places.

"Roads are pretty rugged in some areas and on a couple of stops, the trucks will have to travel about 125 miles in a roundabout way to make the 25 miles that the kayaks will cover on the river," explained Montgomery.

• • • •

LEADERS ON the trip, in addition to Montgomery, are Don Rusling, Bill Whitaker, Bud Groom, Arnold Hoffman and Steve Parks.

"Now that we have the boats, boating will become a regular activity for us," Montgomery said.

"We are already planning to kayak down the Kern and Sacramento Rivers and on Bass Lake."

STANTON BOY SCOUTS from Troop 82 are ready for the river as they stand with paddles by the kayaks they made for their six-day trip down the Colorado River. The scouts are the first from Orange County to make the trip and have been planning it for seven months.

Race-Peace Conference Broken Up by Hecklers

the anthem, but other demands that The Battle Hymn of the Republic also be sung did not find a response.

As Catterlin tried to begin the planned forum on integration problems of the South Bay area, the dissident activities in the gathering repeatedly howled down the attempts at discussion.

THEIR eruptions included booing and catcalls at speakers, plus employment of mock, speaker-suppressing applause that brought progress to a standstill.

The members of the panel, representing groups involved in the field of human relations were Robert Burke, California deputy attorney general; Julius Klein, member of the County Human Relations Commission; Anthony Neusom, legal representative for the NAACP; John Rodriguez, president of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Mexican Community Service Organization; G. E. Harrington, assistant counsel for the south regional area of the State Real Estate Commission, and Lawrence Lucks, Los Angeles area supervisor for the State Fair Employment Practices Commission.

AT THE Southwood Riviera Royale housing tract, where the Congress of Racial Equality has picketed for more than a year, sheriff's deputies under Lt. Lloyd C. Bachtelle of the civil division took over the policing Saturday.

Only 11 pickets showed up at the Don Wilson tract and deputies showed them copies of a recently granted injunction limiting their area of march and number. All complied.

Mystery Disease Kills 50 Children

SIAGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A mysterious disease has claimed the lives of 50 children under 10 years old during the past week in one of South Viet Nam's western provinces, the government reported Saturday night.

Health service officials said the disease could not be identified as any known children's disease.

Negro Hits Own Group for Failings

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Negro author Louis Lomax attacked Negroes and whites alike for their parts in today's racial crisis in a speech Saturday at the California Negro Leadership Conference at Stanford University.

Earlier, a San Francisco Negro leader, Dr. Carlton Goodlett, had blasted both major political parties and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown for what he called their "disinterest" in the political role of the Negro.

Lomax said Negroes themselves have not worked hard enough to better their race. He named education as the most important thing toward raising the position of the Negro.

"Any race that drinks as much whisky as we do and buys as many Cadillacs and Continentals as we do, can afford to buy some shares in the future of its children," he declared.

American Nazis Too Soft to Suit Pulpit-Pounding 'States Righters'

By SHERM WILLIAMS
(Copyright, 1962, Independent-Press-Telegram)

As though looking to see if her grandchildren were there, the frail lady with blue-silver hair walked uncertainly into the Open Bible Foundation church in Bellflower early last January and sat down in the second row.

She leaned forward to hear the speaker's opening remarks.

• • • •

THE REV. Conrad Lynch looked over his audience carefully, then bellowed, "We call niggers, niggers, and Jews, Jews."

He looked beligerently at his audience, tucked the thumb of his right hand under his Sam Browne belt in a manner reminiscent of Hitler, then pointed dramatically at the door.

"The faint-hearted better leave now!"

The little old lady let her mouth drop open. But not with shock. "Say it again," she exhulted. "Say it again."

The meeting at the Open Bible Foundation was the first of a series of organizational meetings the National States Rights Party held in Southern California.

The following that built up rapidly addicted itself to uniforms, black boots, shiny World War II helmet liners and Sam Browne belts. Lynch exhorted them not to be pushed around by minority groups—and in his language, anything that wasn't a "white, Christian American—real whitefolk" was in the minority. "It's time to fight back," he shouted.

• • • •

NSRP ranks in California swelled until one fateful night in San Bernardino when Lynch, apparently inspired by his own words, led some of his men in a race-baiting campaign in a local drive-in restuarant which caused a young minority group member to talk back.

In the resulting fracas, one of Lynch's men fired the ultimate weapon, a pellet gun, which grazed his target. Police rescued the valiant NSRP men, hauled them off to the station and booked the disheveled white supremacist on a variety of charges. Convicted and fined, they have been less cocksure lately.

Despite their posturing,

• • • •

THE CALIFORNIA Senate factfinding subcommittee on un-American activities devoted a chapter to the NSRP in its latest report and had this to say:

"This organization is, in our opinion more potentially dangerous than any of the American Nazi groups, as it is interested in activities that are far more vigorous and direct than the picketing that has become so popular in this country during the past few years."

At a meeting of the NSRP in San Bernardino, this writer met George Joseph King, 30, of Long Beach. King, of 1404 E. Second St., was arrested last week during the sale of a .50 caliber machine gun and a British Sten gun to undercover agents in Baldwin Park.

• • • •

HEAD of the Open Bible Foundation Church at 9701 Flower St., was the Rev. George Rigler. He expressed no shock at the statements Lynch made and instead, after offering a prayer at the end of the meeting, suggested contributions to the NSRP cause.

TELEVISION STAR Johnny Carson and his bride, former TV hostess and model Jo Anne Copeland, share champagne at a small reception in his apartment after their marriage in New York.

Johnny Carson Weds TV Hostess-Model

NEW YORK (AP)—Television star Johnny Carson and former TV hostess and model Jo Anne Copeland were married Saturday at Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue.

Carson, 37, has three sons by a former marriage. His bride, 31, also has been married before.

Carson is the star of the National Broadcasting Company's "Tonight" show. His bride daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Copeland of Palo Alto, is a graduate psychology student at Hunter College.

A handful of close friends witnessed the Protestant single ring ceremony. Afterward, Carson held a small recepton for his friends in his apartment.

Carson told reporters he had intended to keep his marriage a secret until he announced it himself Monday night on his show, but a newspaper, the Daily Mirror, learned of it.

Surviving Twin Said Doing Better

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—Tiny David Bartley, the surviving Siamese twin son of Mrs. William Bartley, continued to improve Saturday at Children's Hospital.

A spokesman at the hospital said David is now completely off intravenous feeding and is being fed entirely by mouth.

However, he is still being kept on the post-operative critical list and will still be for several days, the spokesman said.

Funeral services for his brother Daniel, who developed a bloodstream infection and died Wednesday, will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale.

The two boys, born Aug. 10 joined from the naval to the breastbone, were separated in a three-hour operation Sunday at Children's Hospital.

Further Layoffs Threatened in Walkout at Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. officials Saturday said they hoped for an early settlement of a strike in their Chicago Heights, Ill. stamping plant before it led to more layoffs throughout the country.

The workers in the vital stamping plant went out on strike Friday in the midst of negotiations over safety conditions.

Friday night Ford announced it would be forced to lay off 10,000 workers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana plants beginning Monday.

One Ford executive emphasized that the layoffs would not be in assembly line plants. He said, "We are in the changeover period now from 1963 to 1964 models. The layoffs would come at the parts plants mainly."

Ford was scheduled to begin assembly line production of their new models next week at one of their plants. Nine other assembly lines were due to open Aug. 26.

Ford followed the layoff announcement with a warning that "more layoffs would come if the strike was not settled quickly."

Ford here said union members were picketing the Chicago plant, but the spokesman had no idea of the number of demonstrators.

Rusk Vacations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk will vacation this week. He will spend the time in Washington and New York, and possibly a day or so at Camp David, Md.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Early Film Star Barthelmess Dies

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (UPI)—Silent film star Richard Barthelmess, who won a special Academy award in 1928, the first year they were presented, died of cancer Saturday. He was 68.

Barthelmess had been ill for about five years, according to his physician, Dr. William Gaynor.

One of the most celebrated stars of his era, Barthelmess was nominated for the "Best Actor" award in 1928, but lost to the late Emil Jannings.

The special Oscar was given for "distinguished achievement" in two films, "Patent Leather Kid" and "The Noose."

Barthelmess' wife, Jessica, was at his bedside at their home here when he died.

Barthelmess was a moving picture pioneer and one of filmdom's most celebrated stars. More than any other actor of his time, Barthelmess represented the clean-cut American hero—not strikingly handsome but good-looking, gentle yet masculine, modest, unassuming.

FBI Nabs Industrialist

CINCINNATI (AP)—The FBI reported arrest Saturday at Dayton of Emanuel Morton Siegel, 57, of New York, charged with bribery in a $9.5 million contract at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Victor Turyn, assistant agent in charge of the Cincinnati FBI office identified Siegel as vice president of Loral Electronics Corp., with chief offices in the Bronx, New York.

Turyn said Siegel was charged with trying to influence Charles Lopez, chief of the electronics warfare branch at Wright-Patterson, in a decision involving the contract.

Turyn also reported several hundred dollars changed hands in a meeting of Siegel and Lopez as down payment on a promise by Siegel of several thousand dollars.

Okinawa Ferry Sinks

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Heavy waves sank the ferry boat Midori Maru in the East China Sea Saturday and left perhaps 55 persons dead or missing.

Air-sea rescue operations saved 185, including four U.S. servicemen believed to have been the only Americans aboard.

Two bodies were recovered. The rest of the passengers and crewmen, believed to total about 240, were unaccounted for.

News of the sinking was slow in reaching Okinawa and Shannon McCune, U.S. civil administrator for the Ryukyu Island chain, said the success of the rescue operation was amazing. U.S. military aircraft joined fishing boats in saving survivors.

U.S. Plans 'Cold-Cure' Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration proposed Saturday a ban on some 50 to 75 prescription cold cure drugs containing antibiotics.

A spokesman said a six-man panel of outside medical experts had concluded that there is no evidence that these antibiotics have any value in treating the common cold or its side effects.

Today's proposal affects similar prescription products where antibiotics are used in combination with cold remedies.

An FDA spokesman estimated that 50 to 75 products manufactured by 15 to 25 drug manufacturers could be affected by the proposal.

Dictator Trial Speeded

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The 15 magistrates of the Venezuelan Supreme Court cancelled their vacations Saturday to speed up the embezzlement trial of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, extradited from the United States. He could get almost 17 years in prison if convicted.

Informed sources said the magistrates planned to start the trial procedure immediately and possibly would call on Perez Jimenez in prison Monday to present him with the first document—the auto de detencion, or arrest order.

The 49-year-old former strongman president was in an air-conditioned, TV-equipped cell in the general penitentiary at San Juan de Los Morros, 50 miles southwest of Caracas.

U.N.'s Borneo Report Slow

KUCHING, Sarawak (UPI)—The United Nations inspection team seeking to determine if British Borneo really wants to be part of yet-unborn Malaysia made it official Saturday with an announcement that it was unable to complete its work before the scheduled birthdate—Aug. 31.

U.N. spokesman Abdul Dajani said the team's extensive field trips into Sarawak and North Boreno hinterlands would be completed on Aug. 31, but the final report would then have to be prepared for Secretary General U Thant.

6 Die as Home Burns

NIAGARA, Wis. (AP)—Six persons, including a paper company executive, four members of his family and a neighbor girl, suffocated early Saturday when fire broke out in the first floor of a home in this northern paper mill community.

The six bodies were found on the floor of upstairs bedrooms in the home of Howard Comstock. The fire was confined to the first floor of the seven-room frame home, which was filled with smoke.

A 19-year-old son, who had decided to spend the night with friends, was the only survivor in the family.

TEST-TUBE TRIUMPH

Key Molecule Made in Space Breakthrough

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Two scientists have artifically produced for the first time the substance which supplies energy for humans and other life forms, it was announced Saturday.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said "construction" of the molecule adenosine triphosphate (ATP) will have a significant bearing on future explorations of other planets.

* * * *

THE WORK was carried out at Ames Research Center here by Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma of Ceylon and Dr. Carl Sagan of Harvard University and the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory, Cambridge, Mass.

It is the most complex biological molecule yet produced artificially, said the spokesman.

Life forms today manufacture (ATP) by breaking down food and, in the case of plants, through photosynthesis. Heretofore it was believed the presence of the molecule was ample proof of the existence of life.

But the creation of ATP by Ponnamperuma and Sagan was done with a solution of chemicals thought to exist on Earth before life developed.

* * * *

THE SOLUTION was bombarded with ultraviolet rays which easily reached earth four billion years ago, but do not penetrate the upper atmosphere today. From that bombardment came ATP.

The experiment indicates ATP can exist independent of life as we understand it, said the spokesman, a discovery which will have a great bearing on future explorations into space.

No longer will the presence of the molecule on other planets be considered indicative of life. Mechanical devices sending back reports—say from Mars—of the presence of ATP, will now have to search further for proof.

Archie, Rowdy Bartender of 'Duffys' Tavern,' Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ed Gardner, known to millions as Archie, wise-cracking bartender on radio and television's "Duffy's Tavern," died Saturday at Good Samaritan Hospital. He was 62.

Gardner became famous in the 1940s for drawling into the 'phone, in a broad Astroia accent: "Duffy's Tavern. Archie speakin'. Duffy ain't heah."

Death came at 9:50 a.m. Gardner had been hospitalized for two weeks with a liver disease. An autopsy will be performed.

With him when he died were his wife, Simone, and their two sons, Edward Jr., 19, and Stephen, 15.

Gardner, whose Hollywood career began as a producer, often joked about his start as an actor. He originated the "Duffy's Tavern" radio show, but couldn't find a good mug type to play Archie, so he stepped into the role himself.

He originated the Rudy Vallee-John Barrymore radio show and later directed George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bing Crosby, Al Jolson and Fanny Brice in their radio shows.

Gardner was married to actress Shirley Booth for 13 years before he wed New York radio and stage actress Simone Hegeman 21 years ago.

They lived in Beverly Hills.

the 20-year-old model said then.

Pressed further however, she said she had a fiance, and that he was an American living in Paris.

Saturday, having had time to collect her thoughts, Gudrun told a reporter: "Doesn't everybody have a boy friend? Well, I have one too. But I'm not engaged."

Meanwhile, in IBC circles, the rumor was being bruited about that Miss Bjarnadottir's boy friend was a wealthy 30-year-old French nobleman who did not want his name linked with the contest winner at this time.

* * * *

GUDRUN SAID she'll probably visit New York City for a day or two after leaving Long Beach next week. Until then, a whirlwind of activities is in store for her here.

IBC social planners apparently hadn't told the auburn-haired beauty what she could expect in the next few days, because she had no idea of what here schedule was. She wasn't even aware that she'd be attending the Coronation Ball and Banquet Saturday night in the Lafayette Hotel, though she may simply have forgotten it in all the excitement.

Dudrun made several confessions as she tried, unsuccessfully, to polish off half a cantaloupe—her breakfast.

* * * *

FOR ONE thing, she said, she doesn't use makeup. (She only did so during the pageant because she had to.)

"I really don't think young girls should ruin their faces with makeup. There's plenty of time later, when they're older and they need it."

Nor does Gudrun use nail polish, or back-comb her hair, or do all those things that fashionable young ladies are supposed to do—except manage to look quite beautiful.

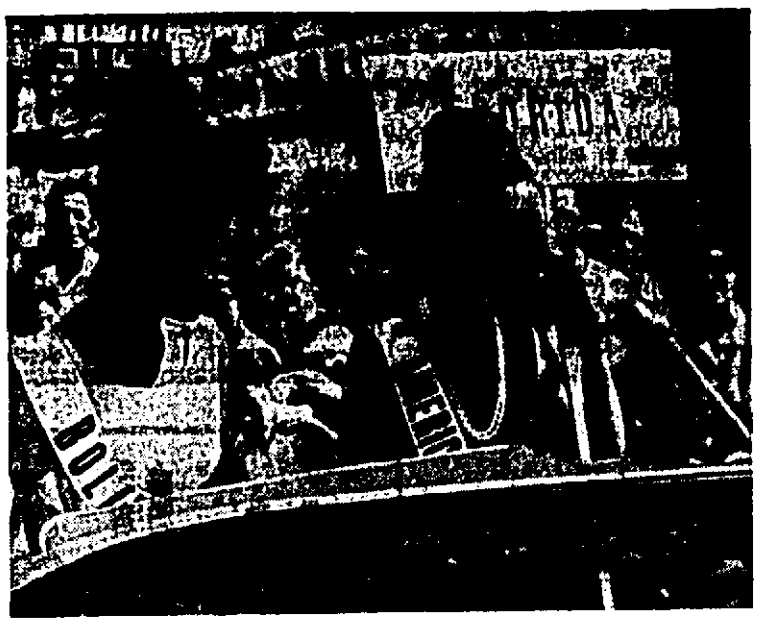

A tall girl—she's five-foot-eight — Gudrun sports a slender mannequinish figure. And, with her modeling background, she bears herself with regal self-assuredness.

* * * *

SHE SPEAKS English with a curious, almost undetectable accent, part Icelandic, part French and part British, the latter coming from her English school teaching.)

Among her diversions are acting (she has trod the boards in Iceland), swimming ("I do a lot of it"), skiing ("I love it") and reading (mostly ancient history).

"But I guess there won't be much time for those things now," she sighed—happily.

FAREWELL TO THE FEMMES

$250,000 Gift From CBS Aids Educational TV

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Columbia Broadcasting System has contributed $250,000 to Community Television of Southern California toward establishment of an educational television station in Los Angeles.

Announcement of the gift was made by Frank Stanton, president of CBS, and Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, chairman of the board of Community Television.

The money will be used to finance operation of an ultra-high frequency station on Channel 28. The station is due to start operations in the fall of 1964.

Oregon Job Office Cuts Employes

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon's Department of Employment, which tries to find jobs for the jobless, can't pay 100 of its own employees and is laying them off.

What's more, said Commissioner David Cameron, the remaining 650 are expected to take pay cuts.

He said a 1½ per cent cut in the 1963-64 federal budget for aid to state employment services was responsible.

German Shepherd Hailed as Hero

CAMOGLI, Italy (UPI) — A German shepherd received the top award here Friday in a contest to honor Italy's most faithful dogs.

Gimmy, the German Shepherd, leaped in front of his mistress, Mrs. Rosaria Gatto when she was attacked by a man with a knife. The dog barely survived a severe knife wound in its chest.

boarding school at Farmington, Conn.

As house guests and sharing the excitement with Janet were her two 18-year-old schoolmates, Susan Clark, whose own debut is next Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Clark of Copperstown, N.Y., and Patricia Starr, daughter of the Ogden Starrs, of Far Hills, N.J., and Antigua, British West Indies.

Janet, dark-haired, dark-eyed and pretty, selected a strapless white organza gown with tiers of ruffles, a motif of lilies of the valley with green leaves at the bodice.

The long dress had straight lines, but flared at the bottom with a riffle.

She had her hair done specially in a high pouf so she could wear a circlet of lilies of the valley in it.

Together with her mother, who picked a yellow silk gown embroidered with white beads for the occasion, and her stockbroker father, in formal attire, a receiving line was arranged in front of a floral-decked fireplace in the downstairs sitting room.

The debutante party for Janet, long on the social calendar, was held despite the tragedy of the death of President and Mrs. Kennedy's newborn son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, eight days ago. The Kennedys personally requested that the party go on as planned and they arranged to send a bouquet to Janet—something she wasn't told about in advance.

Mrs. Kennedy, now recuperating at her Squaw Island summer home, near Hyannis Port, Mass., on Cape Cod, had been a debutante here in Newport, too. When she had her coming-out party at Newport's exclusive Clambake Club, a New York society columnist named her the No. 1 deb of the year, describing her as having "the daintiness of Dresden porcelain."

Mrs. Auchincloss is the mother of Mrs. Kennedy.

Cuba Slow in Planting of Sugar Cane

HAVANA (UPI)—A Cuban official says Cuba is well behind this year in fulfilment of its plan for planting sugar cane.

Raul Herrera so informed the Sugar Technicol Commission of the Cuban Agrarian Reform Institutes Friday.

Herrera, a member of the commission, said that Cuba so far had planted or had ready to plant 83 percent of the cane acreage planned for this year. He said the figure was 97 percent at the same time last year.

"This means we are well behind in relation to last year," Herrera said, "and we want to alert our provincial comrades."

Official reports show that Cuba's sugar crop last year was the lowest since 1945.

Hay Fever Time

By J. W. DAVIS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A time of great misery has come once more to America.

It is the height of the hay fever season, when millions suffer red eyes that itch and stuffy noses that run and sneeze.

There is some relief at hand—medicines, air conditioning, mountain trips and ocean cruises can help—but hay fever is still rampaging.

There is now a National Allergy Month, timed to coincide with the high mark of the hay fever onslaught, Aug. 15-Sept. 15.

* * * *

HAY FEVER is the big thing, numerically, in the allergy army.

It is an inflammation of the eyes and nasal passages caused by sensitivity (allergy) to some particular pollen, dust or other substance.

Hay fever can strike in the spring or summer but fall hay fever, usually due to ragweed pollen is the most widespread.

Surveys by the United States Public Health Service indicate that more than 8 million Americans suffer from hay fever and asthma. Asthma is a complication of hay fever.

* * * *

FOR SOME reason, there are people who look upon hay fever as sort of a joke. This may be because even a pretty girl or a handsome man looks ridiculous while sneezing, and a homely person looks even worse.

The grimness of the situation, however, is underlined by this fact: In the prevalence of chronic diseases, hay fever and asthma are outranked only by heart disease, cancer and arthritis, or rheumatism.

Allergy can develop at any age but children 5, 10 or 15 years of age are more apt to develop allergies than persons in later life.

Allergic disorders themselves are seldom fatal, but the statistics indicate that about 9,000 persons die in the United States each year with asthma as a contributing cause.

* * * *

WHAT CAN be done to to prevent or ease hay fever?

Your doctor, through patient detective work, may determine just what allergies are causing your trouble. Allergens are the substances which develop the painful sensitivity; they can be pollens, molds, dust, animal skin or hair, feathers, some foods, etc.

Once identified, the offending substances must be removed or evaded as completely as possible. You might have to avoid drives in the country during the pollen season. You might have to give away your dog.

It may help much to remove pollens from the air, particularly in your sleeping room. Your doctor may recommend an air filter, perhaps in an air conditioned unit, or an electric pollen remover.

A series of shots will often reduce the sensitivity and prevent further attacks for some time.

Medicines may be prescribed.

* * * *

ON THE point of trying to run away from the pollen that causes hay fever, the Health Service suggests that a permanent change of location should be undertaken only on medical advice.

"If removal to another part of the country is not practical—if too expensive in terms of economic and family stability—air conditioning and other protective devices in his own home may be just as satisfactory."

The health service recommends, to victims who are looking for information about the kinds and amounts of pollen in various U.S. areas, a brochure written by O. C. Durham and called "Hay Fever Holiday."

The brochure is available from the American Academy of Allergy, 756 North Milwaukee St., Milwaukee 2, Wis.

Underwater Sound Beacon to Aid Ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high-pitched atomic squeal is about to be added as a navigation beacon to the din of the ocean depths.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the underwater atomic sound beacon is being developed by the Martin Co. nuclear division under a $110,000 contract.

Heat from radioactive strontium, formerly a waste product of nuclear reactors, will generate steam which will drive oil through a device known as a hydro-acoustic transducer.

From this device will emerge a squeal with an underwater range of 20 miles. In addition to helping ships and small craft get their bearings, the squeal also may prove useful to mark channels and fishing grounds and to warn vessels of reefs, sandbars, and other hazards, the AEC said.

The atomic beacon's voice, as recorded on shipboard listening devices, is expected to stand out above the squeaking of porpoises, the snapping of shrimp, and other submarine rackets.

The device will fit into a box one cubic foot in volume and, because of its atomic power supply will dispense with the electrical batteries and electronic equipment of sonar beacons now in use.

The atomic sonar beacon is expected to cost less than other kinds and to have a lifetime of 10 years. The first test is scheduled at 25-foot depths in Chesapeake Bay early next year. Later tests will be conducted at 200 feet depths near Bermuda.

Judge O. D. Hamlin Retires Sept. 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced President Kennedy has approved the retirement of Judge O. D. Hamlin of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, San Francisco.

Hamlin was appointed to the Appellate Court by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on March 26, 1958. The retirement will become effective Sept. 5.

ON OLD LAND CLAIM

Cherokees to Get $1 Million Bonus

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP) —Cherokee Indians will be able to celebrate a $1 million bonus when they gather here next month to commemorate the founding of the Cherokee nation here Sept. 6, 1839.

The tribe will get $1 million more than it expected from a settlement of Cherokee claims to land taken from them in what is now Oklahoma.

Earl Boyd Pierce, tribal attorney, said the Indian Claims Commission had issued a formal judgment awarded the extra $1 million as 4 per cent interest on a $14.7 million claim approved for the tribe Oct. 5, 1961.

The tribe got the big award for six million acres it was forced to give up in what is known as the Cherokee Outlet, a strip of land across northern Oklahoma. Actual payment of the award was held up pending settlement of offset claims against the total by the government. The money is now being distributed to tribe members.

The 11th annual Cherokee holiday is scheduled here this year on Sept. 7. It is a gathering of Cherokee Indians from all over the country at the site chosen for the tribal capital after the Cherokees were moved from southeastern United States.

'RUNAWAY' PRODUCERS, STARS RETURN

Hollywood on Way Back as Movie Capital of World; 105 Pictures Set

By JACK BALDWIN

Hollywood, on the skids for the past decade as the movie capital of the world is making a comeback.

A recent survey of the eight leading studios and producer-companies indicates there are no less than 105 major feature motion pictures either in production or soon to go into production.

With the return to Hollywood of many "runaway" producers and stars, movie fans will be offered a choice of motion picture entertainment this season ranging from sophisticated horse operas to United Artist's $8,000,000 Cinerama production, "It's a Mad, Mad World," featuring a cast of 76 name stars.

* * * *

CURRENTLY before the cameras at the Burbank studios of Walt Disney are characters—both live and cartoon, featured in "Mary Poppins." The $5,000,000 production stars Julie Andrews making her film debut and has been described as the most ambitious effort of Disney's varied career.

Universal Pictures Company in Universal City is forecasting its heaviest production schedule in the last six years. The company now has a stable of 20 writers at work on 17 different story properties under nine producers.

Backing up its faith in the industry's renaissance, Universal through its parent company, MCA, has started construction of a $10,000,000 development which includes a 14-story building at Lankershim Blvd. just north of the Hollywood Freeway.

* * * *

JACK L. WARNER, head of Warner Bros., has taken personal supervision of "My Fair Lady" one of 22 features comprising an $80,000,000 production program.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will have put nine pictures into production between July 9 and September 16—plus filming five and half hours of weekly television shows.

Further evidence of a re-birth of Hollywood including its surrounding cities, is a recent announcement that MGM will join with 20th Century-Fox and Columbia Pictures to build a massive film production center on a 180-acre site in the Malibu Hills.

Paramount Studios has filmed twice as many pictures during the first six months of this year as it did during the same period in 1962.

* * * *

LAST YEAR 20th Century-Fox lost $40,000,000! Then Darryl F. Zanuck took over control of the ailing company. He recently announced that the company was "in the black" for the first quarter of 1963. He has announced he will film 14 pictures this season in Hollywood. The studio has just completed shooting "Move Over Darling" with Doris Day, Polly Bergen, and James "Maverick" Garner. Also wrapped up is "Take Her She's Mine" starring James Stewart and Sandra Dee.

Columbia Pictures will put into production between now and the end of the year seven feature length movies—four of which the studio labels as major productions. Currently before the cameras is Joan Crawford in "Straight Jacket."

Due to be released by Columbia before the end of 1963 are 10 other motion pictures—in addition to the TV shows being produced by Screen Gems, a Columbia affiliate.

* * * *

WITH ALL the major movie-making companies revealing plans to shoot more and more pictures here at home, it is obvious that the romance between Europe and American producers is on the wane. Producers were lured across the Atlantic by the promise of low labor costs and a favorable tax structure.

However, foreign labor which once cost a third of that paid to domestic labor has jumped to 60 per cent—and more in some countries. This factor plus the language barrier has tended to nullify the advantages of shooting in Europe. Some American producers claim European workers are slower and lack the esprit de corps of non-talent workers here in the U. S.

A number of producers, eager to get certain stars for their productions, carried the mountain to Mohammed. They went to Europe where the stars were living. Moving mountains is costly. To keep production costs in line, the producers have simply sought other stars for the leading roles — stars who agree to work in the U. S.

* * * *

HOLLYWOOD guilds and unions still in the throes of fighting "runaway" production, seem to be winning the battle. A "runaway" is the label pinned on productions which could be filmed here but are taken overseas and produced.

Unique in this respect is Disney's "Mary Poppins" featuring an almost all English cast, in an English story, in an English setting. "Mary" has been dubbed a runaway production in reverse. Reason given by Disney for bringing Mohammed to the Hollywood Hills is because this is where the talent is. He claims nowhere in the world outside of Hollywood do the skills exist among technicians, artisans, and other behind-the-camera workers that would enable him to produce the unique live-cartoon-magic to be seen in "Mary."

Other producers and movie-making studios are beginning to follow Disney's lead. While Disney has and will continue to film abroad "it will be only because of the locale I demand for authenticity," he said.

Jules C. Stein, chairman of the board of MCA Inc., during "Golden Rivet" ceremonies signaling the start of construction on the new multi-million dollar Universal City Plaza, seemed to express the opinion of the entire movie industry when he said, "Historically the very heartbeat of entertainment production and its worldwide leadership have flourished in this area. Southern California, traditionally the world leader in film production, both theatrical and television, will continue to hold and expand this leadership."

DIRECTOR ROBERT STEVENSON lines-up on a closeup of Julie Andrews for a scene in musical-fantasy, "Mary Poppins," $5 million Disney production.

Tot Loses Fight for Life After Fall Into Bed Rail

VAN NUYS (CNS)—A four-month-old boy who stopped breathing Friday but whose heart miraculously continued beating died Saturday afternoon in Valley Hospital.

Little Robert Johnson, Van Nuys, was rushed to the hospital at 9:27 a.m. Friday where oxygen was pumped into his lungs and he was packed in ice to slow down his heart beat, but at 2:05 p.m. Saturday his heart finally failed.

The infant fell from his crib Friday morning and caught his head in a guardrail.

When his mother, Mrs. Brenda Johnson, 17, discovered the baby caught in the guardrail she called the fire department and a rescue crew responded to the home.

Firemen Vincent Pratt, Lyle Lentz and Bruce Watson said when they arrived the child was not breathing and his heart had stopped.

For 15 minutes they externally massaged the boy's heart and gave him oxygen and when the heart resumed pumping rushed him to the hospital.

The baby's father, James R. Johnson, 23, a truck driver, was not home at the time the accident occurred.

ABOUT DENTURE METHODS: "We follow accepted procedures which most dentists practice . . . we use no shortcuts to make prices low." DMV Reports Deaf Drive Farther, Crash Offener

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Deaf drivers have more accidents than those who can hear but can still be termed good drivers, the State Department of Motor Vehicles said Saturday.

Director Tom Bright explained that while deaf drivers accumulate a larger number of traffic-violation convictions, they do not tend to repeat offenses and thus are not more negligent than others.

Bright said that in a study of 721 deaf drivers, it was found that deaf persons drive somewhat more than non-deaf persons. He said one reason might be that driving is one pleasure that a deaf person can enjoy compared to the many he cannot.

New Pope Handles Job With Ease

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The somewhat troupled look so evident in the first hours after his election last June 21 is gone from the brow of Pope Paul VI.

After two months of directing a church of a half a billion believers, the Roman Catholic Pontiff is finding he can carry the load.

A recent Italian visitor to the private Papal library exclaimed:

"He acts like he has had the job not for only 50 days but always."

• • • •

POPE PAUL defined the principal tasks of his Pontificate in his first address — to continue the Ecumenical Council conceived and begun by Pope John XXIII, to work untirely for universal peace without respect to political blocs, to keep open the new pathways of friendly dealings with all Christian demoniations.

Beyond that, the Pontiff, now 65, had made few headlines while keeping to a regimen that has him on the job 18 hours a day.

Many were surprised when Pope Paul announced proptly after his election that the Ecumenical Council recessed last December would resume Sept. 21 — just three weeks after the original resumption date set by Pope John.

A private appraisal by one leading cleric in Rome was: "It shows not so much his intimate knowledge of the Council's workings, which is to be expected, as it does the speed and ease with which he has assumed the Papacy."

• • • •

IT IS DURING the next council session, when 2,500 bishops meet again for a discussion of 17 revised schemata (topics), that Pope Paul is expected to make his first major impact as shepherd of a church striving to bring itself more in tune with modern times.

The Italian press has spared the new Pope the criticism that rightwing papers unleashed against Pope John's "Opening to the East" — his moves to improve church relations with Communist Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The groundwork for seeking a solution to the case of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty has continued quietly under Pope Paul. He also sent two prelates as personal representatives to the July celebrations in Moscow of the 50th Episcopal Anniversary of Russian Orthodox Patriarch Alexei, a gesture unique in Christian history. The Italian press held its tongue.

• • • •

MOST OF POPE Paul's working hours are occupied with preparations for continuing the Ecumenical Council.

He is reported to have told Augustin Cardinal Bea, president of the Vatican's Christian Unity Secretariat, that he wanted a planned council scheme on Christian-Jewish relations to be kept unchanged. The schema is believed to stress, apart from a condemnation of anti-semitism, the traditional Hebraic roots of Christianity.

Pope Paul also is said to be seriously studying a proposal by an Indonesian bishop for creation of a Vatican Secretariat for non-Christian relations. The idea would be to let Catholicism profit from contract with religions such as Buddhism, Shintoism and Islam.

One of Pope Paul's minor triumphs concerns an old baroque habit of expression that not even Pope John could uproot — the constant use by L'Osservatore Romano of the phrase "the Holiness of Our Lord" in referring to announcements.

As of two weeks ago, the Vatican daily dropped the phrase and now uses simply "His Holiness" in prefacing its daily list of the Pope's ecclesiastical appointments.

Call Conference On Export Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has called a White House Conference on export expansion for next month to spur sales of American products abroad. He will address its opening session Sept. 17.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Break in Rail Stalemate a Boost for the Economy

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of a paralyzing nationwide railroad strike was lifted again this week.

It was a break for the economy in a cliffhanger situation that has made business men jittery for months.

The railroads and the five operating unions agreed to binding arbitration of the two key issues in the work rules dispute. This was done at the suggestion of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Issues to be arbitrated are firemen's jobs and train crew makeup.

The arbitration board would be made up of representatives of the carriers. The unions and two public members.

It was expected that other issues in dispute could be ironed out in negotiations.

• • • •

THE DEADLINE for the the railroads to put work changes into effect and for the unions to strike had been Aug. 29.

The controversy centers on "featherbedding" — the railroads' term for what they consider unnecessary jobs. This mainly concerns the jobs of firemen on diesel locomotives.

The railroads eventually would like to get rid of 40,000 firemen and 65,000 employes altogether.

• • • •

CHRYSLER CORP., which racked up an excellent gain in production and sales during the 1963 model year, kicked off 1964 by showing its new entries in San Francisco.

The firm spent $125 million in preparing its new line but the changes weren't startling. Chrysler appeared to be betting that it could keep its sales gain going without radical departures from 1963 styling.

Other automakers soon will be coming out with their 1964s although they won't be put on sale until mid-September.

In the meantime, emphasis will be on cleaning out about 1 million 1963 models which were in dealers' hands Aug. 1.

While the inventory total is the highest ever, it represents only a 45-day supply on the basis of recent selling rates.

Production fell this week to an estimated 18,000 passenger cars, lowest of the year and down from 41,862 last week.

General Motors completed its 1963 model run last week and Ford did so this week. Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker already were building 1964s. Ford starts its 1964 run Monday and General Motors' 1964 production will begin Sept. 3.

• • • •

STEEL production skidded again last week for the fourth straight week. It dropped to 1,748,000 tons, an estimated 56.3 percent of operating capacity.

No improvement in orders was expected until vacations are over and auto makers get their assembly lines running full blast on new models.

Steel stockpiles built up by users as a hedge against a strike that never came off were reported diminishing steadily.

• • • •

WALTER W. HELLER, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, predicted the gross national product—total of goods and services — would record a $580 billion or perhaps a bit more this year, up $25 billion from last year.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council issued a statement saying current economic trends point toward a recession in 1964 unless the government takes decisive action to increase sales, production and employment. It urged a substantial tax cut.

For the sixth consecutive month non-farm payroll employment increased in July. The gain totaled about 1 million persons but because of the increase in the work force the rate of unemployment stayed about the same.

• • • •

BRIEFLY around the business scene: furniture manufacturers expect industry volume to reach a record high this year . . . Johns-Manville Corp. predicts construction expenditures this year will total $85 billion against $82.1 billion in 1962 . . . The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported regular deposits gained $100 million July to a total of $43 million.

COUSTEAU

Sees Atom Bases on Sea Floor

MARSEILLES, France (UPI)—Cmdr. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the French underwater expert, believes the nuclear age military base of the future may be built on the floor of the sea.

Cousteau told a news conference his recently completed underwater exploration of the Red Sea has shown man can live and work for prolonged periods under water.

With the threat of nuclear obliteration now more than a fantasy, the seabed may also provide man with a new type of defense, he said.

"It is certain that the major states could be interested in installing bases under the sea because water is an excellent protection against radiation," Cousteau said.

The famed oceanographer plans to relax for a time and then begin preparing for another exploration next year.

Miracle Coating Replaces House Paint

Textured Coatings of America has developed a remarkable product for exterior walls that virtually eliminates outside painting for many years to come and is factory guaranteed for 10 full years. This product, called TEX-COTE, combines the long lasting properties of fiberglass, asbestos, mica, and perlite to make a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes.

Guided Missiles

Guided Missile Mnufacturers for the United States Government have found TEX-COTE a superior product for insulation of heat shields used in the space programs.

Many thousands of textured coating applications have been made on home, commercial and industrial buildings throughout the world, and these buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all weather extremes.

The United States Government and large corporations, such as Shell Oil Company, Pacific Telephone Company and Thunderbird International Hotels are using TEX-COTE. This remarkable exterior surfacing provides water-proofing, insulation and beauty, far outlasting any ordinary paint.

Comes in Colors

TEX-COTE comes in 12 beautiful decorator colors — and does not change the structural lines of the building. Actually it adds beauty to any home or structure and increases its value.

Water-Proofs, Insulates, Fire Retardant

In addition to beauty, TEX-COTE has the additional advantages of water-proofing and insulation. Through the use of silicones, a modern day scientific advance, a water repellent "blanket" envelopes the entire building so that no moisture can penetrate and damage the interior of the home. Through the use of fiberglass and perlite, highly efficient insulating material, the building becomes cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter.

Applied With a Gun

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment under high pressure. It fuses itself to the wall surface to a thickness 15 to 20 times that of normal paint. It remains flexible and withstands cracking and normal surface expansion and contraction.

Factory Guaranteed

Every TEX-COTE job is registered and factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling. TEX-COTE is the only coating with this unqualified guarantee.

No Obligation

Applications of TEX-COTE are being made in this area by DAPELLO, Inc., licensed and approved applicators and general contractors doing all types of home improvement work. Free information on how easily you may have TEX-COTE applied at low bank terms with no down payment may be obtained by calling collect WE 7-2680 or by mailing coupon below.

SHERIFF'S SPECIAL ENFORCEMENT DETAIL

Saturation Squad

By WILLIAM JONES

Dawn breaks slowly in a mouse-gray chillness and the alarm clock in the pleasant home of Deputy Joe Carbondale rattles reveille.

Carbondale washes away the last traces of sleep from his eyes with icy water. He turns the faucet to hot and shaves cleanly. In 30 minutes, he is on his way to work after somewhat calming his nervous energy with a cigarette and steaming coffee.

Today will be special. All days are special for Carbondale and 45 other Los Angeles sheriff's deputies. All are volunteers of an elite police corps known at the Special Enforcement Detail—special men, specially trained for special missions.

Where will he go after he checks into his headquarters in East Los Angeles? Lakewood, Hollywood, Malibu or the mountainous northern county border? What hours will he work? He doesn't know.

Crime dictates the location. Crime dictates the hours.

You probably have seen Carbondale. A lot of people have seen him.

His has been the grim face in the shadow of a white, crash helmet that was in the wedge formation of officers that broke up a riot.

His has been the sweaty, red face beneath the orange construction helmet in the forest fires to the north.

His has been the intent face under the regulation deputy's cap in the high-powered pursuit car on a stakeout.

• • • •

AT EAST Los Angeles, he checks in with detail commander Lt. Richard W. Pearson and then gets his assignment from operations officer Sgt. Beto Kienast.

"A lot of burglaries in this area," says Kienast, pointing to the map. "Pearson wants saturation. Check into it and, tonight, we'll flood the section with our men in addition to the regular duty cars from the sheriff's station in that area."

Saturation, that is the key word.

Carbondale recalls how last February Deputy William L. Backman of Long Beach and Deputy Frank Hayes of West Covina, both members of the detail, made an astonishing arrest in just such a saturation stakeout. The two men arrested confessed to 60 armed robberies, eight of them in Long Beach taverns.

• • • •

WITH HIS partner, Carbondale checks out the area in SED's bible, a massive notebook with maps and information on each of 13 sheriff's stations in the county. The entire Los Angeles County is their beat.

He checks out the equipment in his speedy car. On top are electronic siren, red light and loudspeaker. By the front seat, brackets cradle the shotgun. In the trunk, are the transistorized power unit, first-aid kit, blanket, flares and even snow chains.

Unlike the one or two channels in regular deputy cruisers, Carbondale has four radio frequencies so that he can contact any station when he darts from one end of the vast county to the other.

The unit prides itself on its special equipment.

At a riot, the SED sets up headquarters in a Mobile Command Post. Orders can be channeled to a saturation squad on foot or a fleet of pursuit cars by six radios, a mobile telephone or the high-powered loudspeaker on the modified bus CP.

For searches of lost hikers or at forest fires, SED can use its Mobile kitchen, a housewife's dream on wheels, which can feed two men or 200 with equal ease.

Backstopping the mobile force is a generator truck which supplies additional power through 11 lines and turns midnight into neon with strong floodlights.

• • • •

BUT THE equipment is not the only thing special. There is the man.

Though Carbondale, actually, doesn't exist—he is the average man in the detail if the word "average" can be used—his existence comes to life each day in the lives of SED deputies.

From a waiting list of volunteers, a Carbondale is chosen after a background investigation, oral interviews and a written examination. He must have been a deputy for at least two years.

"We try to paint the blackest picture for the new man," Pearson said. "And," interjected Sgt. Kienast, "that's the way it generally works out."

• • • •

THERE FOLLOW two weeks of indoctrination, another one or two weeks riding with one of SED's 10 sergeants for a final sizing up.

The deputy — they average 60 units of college police study when they join SED—is given extra training in crowd and riot control, tear gas equipment and general police duties.

The veteran still goes to school or into the field for training problems on the average of 16 hours a month. SED has its own training officer, Sgt. Raul Vasquez, who has schooled himself in everything from high-speed chases to disarming a knife-carrying thug.

Pearson (bachelor of science degree in police science and administration from Los Angeles State) brings out experts in such fields as firefighting and civil defense to beef up the curiculum.

Though under the immediate supervision of Lt. Pearson — who, in turn answers to Area Inspector R. T. Parsonson —the SED man comes under the control of the station commander when he moves into an area.

But he does not issue citations or, generally, answer radio calls in the vicinity. He is there for one specific reason—a riot, a strike where violence may breakout, a mountain search, a fire or because of an unusual increase in stickups or burglaries.

In the past, SED men have guarded Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Khrushchev, baby-sat with the children of the king and queen of Thailand in a Pomona ranch 24-hours a day when the royal pair left for Washington ("we played baseball with the kids") and assisted Palos Verdes when the Greek freighter Dominator went aground.

They are responsible each year for the crowd control operations at the New Year's football game in Pasadena's Rose Bowl. On other holidays, SED men can be found at Catalina Island or Malibu where teenagers band.

Most SED men leave only because of promotion or to go into the detective bureau. In his two years with special enforcement, Pearson can recall only one man who quit for personal reasons.

The guy's wife screamed about the hours.

Beach Combing with Malcolm Epley

AS happens every year, there's a little beefing about the decision of the IBC judges from persons who had favorites who didn't get the nod.

And that brings us back to a comment here the other day pointing out that of course, the IBC winner can't be everybody's "most beautiful woman in the world." There are millions of women who are somebody's most beautiful women.

The swain, kissing his girl in the soft light of the harvest moon, doesn't need a Vincent Trotta or an Alberto Varga to tell him who is the most beautiful woman in the world.

HAVE you noticed that favorite litter spots are at points where motorists are forced to wait for protracted periods for the lights to change.

Having all that time on the hand, they use some of it to empty their car ashtrays.

Beside the pavement at the notorious long-wait intersection of Pacific Coast Hwy., E. 7th St. and Bellflower Blvd., for instance, is a great scattering of cigarette butts, bits of paper and other items typical of the contents of auto ashtrays.

The noted intersection contributed to in-car tidiness and outside litter.

GENEROSITY of L.B. area people has been well demonstrated in the response to the appeal for the Vaughn fund—the fund to help the family of three little girls killed in a senseless auto wreck on Atlantic a while back.

With the West Side Lions Club, the Elks Club and the post office employes group taking charge, the fund has grown to about $5000 and around $6000 is the anticipated maximum. Fund sponsors think that will be about adequate.

A committee from the sponsoring groups will handle disbursement of the fund. Postmaster Dave Selcer will serve on the committee representing the postal service group, which alone has raised more than $2100. William Vaughn, the father, is a post office employe.

IN amazingly short times, startling things happen to the countryside hereabouts. Housing projects, village shopping centers, or manufacturing plants, spring up in areas which, only a short time ago, looked as if they were permanently set for agricultural purposes in a rural atmosphere.

This was brought to mind by a visit to Meadowlark Country Club the other day. Since last I was out there housing projects have crept to the very edge of the fairways. The character of the area has changed so that one who hasn't been there for a while has some trouble figuring out just where things lie.

Alongside certain fairways fields of bean plants used to await the out-of-bound ball, and finding a little white pellet in a bean field is a job.

Now, a ball following a similar unfortunate course is likely to go through a window. Finding a ball in a living room might not be so difficult, but somewhat more embarrassing.

Seeing the countryside disappear brings something of a pang, but that's the way it is in our region.

DRIFTWOOD — The chef at Breakers International provided Irish stew for a late evening chawfest for the visiting girls. And for counsel and advice, he turned to a very appropriate authority —Olivia White, Miss Ireland of the IBC. . . . A Samoyed female residing with the Schuster family at 4986 N. Stevely in L.B. gave birth the other day to 11—that's right — 11 puppies. Mrs. Schuster says she thinks that's probably a record—and she's probably right.

Past Presidents of Officers Club Honored

Past president pins were awarded recently to the following chief officers of the Long Beach Chapter of the Retired Officers' Association:

Capt. Louis Verbrugge, USN; Col. E. L. Stewart, USA; CWO L. L. Marshall, USMC; LCDR W. F. Lewis, USN; LCDR J. F. Geis, USN; Major H. H. Dudley, USA and LCDR D. L. Webster, USN. Mrs. Elizabeth Warne accepted the pin presented to her husband, Lt. Col. William Warne (USAF), who died recently.

The group meets the first Thursday of each month at Allen Center. All retired officers of the services are invited.

Missouri Picnic Next Sunday

"Show-Me-Staters" will hold their annual picnic Aug. 25 in Bixby Park with Bill Boyd, manager of the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee and a Missouri native, scheduled to make the welcoming address.

The program will open at 12:45 p.m. with a concert by the Marvin Marker Junior Concert Band.

READY FOR NEW CAREER

Ex-Marine Finishes 4 Years at LBSC; He Started at 42

By ROBERT WILCOX
L. P-T Education Editor

When the 42-year-old retired Marine first showed up at Long Beach State College in September 1959, students thoughts he had arrived early for homecoming.

But Al Rinehart, smartly attired in a business suit, unexpectedly stepped into the freshmen admission lines with the gally clad girls and bright-eyed youths.

His slowly receding hair was flecked with gray. He'd been married 21 years, had two fast-growing children and a supressed middle-age yen to fish the cool streams of his native Washington.

Restlessly he had switched occupations twice in three years since leaving the corps before deciding vaguely to become a language teacher. A magazine article had lured him to Long Beach State.

"You won't last a semester," warned his college adviser.

• • • •

AL HAS CHANGED some in four years and so has the college.

The late-bicoming scholar heads home for Washington Wednesday with the end of the summer term. He's completed five years of college in four, compiled a near A-minus average. At 46 he's ready to start a new career.

But his best marks were made outside the classroom.

At first his youthful colleagues didn't know how to take the ex-major who joined the Marine Corps before most of them were born, served in the South Pacific during World War II and had a daughter nearing their age.

Al worked hard for acceptance. He joined campus clubs, wrote for the school newspaper. "I wanted the whole college experience."

• • • •

HE GOT MOST of it. In all, he amassed 14 scholastic-service awards, including the college's highest service honor. He was elected president of two campus organizations. He was listed twice in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Last year he was picked as the school's outstanding graduate.

Al moved his family to Long Beach, battled financial problems by getting a part-time job for awhile against his wife's wishes. He was "saved" in his graduate year by a $500 grant from the Alphi Chi Omega alumnae clubs and the Crippled Children's Society.

As a 44-year-old junior, Al found his career among some handicapped children in a speech correction clinic at the school. "I learned how much could be done for them."

Next September he will start teaching speech correction in the Naches, Wash., public schools hard by his hunting and fishing country. "But I'll still be Long Beach State College's biggest booster," says its belated new alum. The feeling's mutual.

Diabetes Group Honors 2

Mrs. Joseph Shuff, residential chairman for the "Dollars for Diabetics" fund drive last March, and Rear Adm. Lawrence E. Ruff, U.S. Navy (Ret.), Southern Area chairman, have been honored with citations from the Diabetes Association.

Dr. Charles R. Brantingham, local podiatrist who is chairman of the Long Beach Society of the Diabetes Association of Southern California, presented Mrs. Shuff and Admiral Ruff with the awards. They were honored for their effective work in the fund collection drive here.

Announcement also was made by the Southern California Diebetes Association that Dr. Brantingham has been elected to a three year term as a member of the DASC board of directors.

The fund campaign was the first major program staged by the organization in the Long Beach area.

"This disease is the seventh most common cause of death in the United States," Dr. Brantingham pointed out. "One out of very 70 persons has diabetes and for every person who has it another person is a victim but does not know he has the disease. There are more than 108,000 persons in Los Angeles County alone who have diabetes, including 5,400 children.

EDITORIAL

World's Fair in Transition

IN THE CONCLUSION of his "Review of Accounts and Records" of the California World's Fair, City Auditor Murray T. Courson makes significant note of the city's growing interest in the affairs of the fair organization.

This interest, he said, had been somewhat limited, but with the Long Beach electorate's approval of the use of tidelands oil funds to guarantee the fair's construction bonds "the city will, of necessity, assume additional responsibilities in the form of mandatory and trust obligations."

Mr. Courson's timely remarks reflect a transition in the status of the fair organization.

IT BEGAN SEVERAL YEARS ago as a private non-profit corporation, and its operations, so long as they met legal requirements of the state, were pretty much its own business.

The organization moved, however, toward a quasi-public situation when it asked for and obtained a lease for the fair site from the City of Long Beach. Under this arrangement it proposed to use public property for a site for its operations and to construct buildings which would later be turned over to the city for municipal use. This brought the city in as an interested party, not to manage or control the operations of the organization, but to make certain that they conformed to standards properly required of an occupant and lessee of city property. To some extent it made the city a sponsor of the fair with a sponsor's responsibilities.

This transition went further when the fair organization asked the city to conduct an election, looking toward a request from the State Lands Commission to use tidelands funds to guarantee the fair organization's bonds, or other financing, for the construction program. The Council called the election, the voters approved, and a program of this nature is now under negotiation.

This contemplated use of public funds makes the fair a fish-bowl operation. The consideration of the negotiated program by the City Council and the State Lands Commission requires a close observation of the fair operations to make certain they are sound, efficient and clearly in the public interest.

A vital argument for the projected program is that a well-conducted and successful fair will produce ample revenue to finance the entire construction program and thus avoid the actual use of any of the tidelands "guarantee" fund. As official sponsor of the program before the Lands Commission, the city has a responsibility to see that it is a well-conducted and successful fair that will do the revenue-producing job.

MUNICIPAL management of the fair is neither required nor desirable, but there is, on the one hand, a responsibility for the city to review and check on fair operations, and on the other hand, a need for the fair organization to recognize the city's necessary interest and its own responsibilities to the city.

It is a unique relationship, but one that should work out satisfactorily if there is a cooperative spirit and an understanding of problems and responsibilities on both sides. In this connection, it should be noted that the fair group months ago made some changes in executive committee membership and took other steps recommended by the city manager's office.

All of this must be kept on a strict business basis. Politically-motivated meddling in the fair business could be most harmful. The fair organization must have the management know-how and the personnel to do the job properly. Incidentally, the more open and free publicity the fair group gives to its business operations, the better.

FREDERICK W. COLLINS

Capital Tensely Awaits Aug. 28

WASHINGTON—It is perhaps not too early to report that this town is in a state of rising apprehension and intensifying controversy as the date approaches for the mass demonstration here on Aug. 28 in behalf of Negro rights and employment equality.

One of the circumstances feeding both the apprehension and the controversy is the fact that at the moment, no one really knows what is going to happen. But even if one accepts the optimistic premise that there will be no violence, Washington already has an advance sense of being subjected to a tremendous pressure, from the prospective advent of 100,000 or more demonstrators.

People are quite deliberately and openly making plans for either escaping or hiding. There is the man who has arranged to leave Washington on Tuesday, the 27th, and return on the 30th. He will go to New York and "consult with his home office." But he is leaving Washington solely and simply because of the demonstration.

• • • •

UNDER SOME CIRCUMSTANCES, a city the size of Washington can accommodate a sudden concentration of 100,000 outsiders. It happens every inauguration day. But the element of potential friction and violence makes this a very special case. Washington has not forgotten the sudden eruption of race violence at a high school football game last Thanksgiving Day. Nobody really thinks that a plan of organized violence exists on either side of the Aug. 28 demonstration. But no one can wholly dismiss the possibility that a spark may ignite a train which would blow up the powder magazine.

• • • •

ENDLESS ARGUMENTS fail to shake the proposition that if these people want to assemble here, then they are fully within their rights. It may be said that if they maintain peace, they will not have hurt their cause. If they do not maintain peace, they will have hurt their cause terribly.

It may be said that this is a fearful gamble for President Kennedy. Let it be assumed that he spoke in full good faith and from adherence to profound principle when he welcomed the plan for the march. If by some tragic mischance the city should be turned into a shambles on that day, Mr. Kennedy would have a very hard time recovering.

Watch Out for That Next Step—It's a Dilly!

DAVID LAWRENCE

Puzzling Arguments Offered Urging Test Treaty Approval

WASHINGTON—More puzzling than any of the words themselves in the pending treaty limiting nuclear tests are the strange arguments being made urging its ratification.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, who represent the military judgment on which the security of the country is customarily based, say frankly that they have had their doubts but that, on the whole, they now think the disadvantages in ratifying the treaty are out weighed by the advantages. They insist, however, that the United States not only carry on a vigorous program of underground testing but that it stay ready on short notice to resume atmospheric testing if the Soviets abrogate the treaty.

LAWRENCE

All this is difficult for the average person to understand, and many members of Congress have wondered whether political pressure has been applied to persuade the Joint Chiefs to support the treaty. In fact, in a Senate committee hearing this week, the question was asked if the Joint Chiefs responded to "pressure." This was emphatically denied. But the mere raising of the question indicates that in the backs of the minds of some senators is a feeling that the high military officers do not dare to incur disfavor. Indeed, recently a Chief of Naval Operations was not reappointed and, while it was denied that he was punished for expressing his views before Congress on a controversial issue, the idea prevails that he did disagree with the administration and paid the penalty.

THE CAMPAIGN to get the treaty ratified is typical of what happens when a political issue is involved, but it is not characteristic of the kind of discussion that usually takes place when purely military matters are being considered. It is doubtful whether any high military man would venture openly to question the wisdom of ratifying the nuclear-test treaty.

Another puzzling development is the attitude of the nuclear scientists. While a large number favor ratification, it is significant that Dr. Edward Teller, often referred to as the "father of the hydrogen bomb," is vehement in his opposition. Efforts are being made by the administration to pooh-pooh his objections as of secondary importance, but his testimony — just published — has served to increase the doubts prevalent on Capitol Hill.

Dr. Teller says that testing in the atmosphere is important in order to catch up with the techniques in which the Soviets are ahead of the United States. He says that nuclear explosions in the air are the key to developing missile defenses. If the Soviets feel they are at an advantage, they can threaten attack and gain political concessions by such a threat. They could invade small countries at will, knowing they would not be risking war with the United States. So, Dr. Teller insists, tests in the atmosphere and in outer space are absolutely essential to America's future safety.

There is considerable speculation as to why the Moscow government reversed its previous decisions and suddenly decided to go ahead with a plan it had earlier rejected. It is suggested that the Soviet experts may be planning someday to mount a mock attack by, say, 500 missiles high over Russia and counter the attack with a display of their anti-missile defense system. Dr. Teller thinks they might even invite American experts to watch the test. If the test happened to fail, the Russians would have lost only the treaty, but he thinks that, if the scheme worked, they would then be able to say: "Now, you see we have an excellent defense and can absorb any attack you can send against us. There is the proof. Now please do this and that, etc."

On this point alone—inhibiting U.S. development of a missile defense—Dr. Teller feels the treaty is dangerous to the United States.

Secretary of Defense McNamara feels that America possesses the power of a devastating retaliatory attack that could destroy Russia. America can rely on that potential power, however, only as long as the Soviets do not develop a system whereby missiles from the United States or its bases on land or water are intercepted and nuclear materials are disintegrated in flight. That's the true worry of the scientists who disagree about approving any treaty while it halts testing in the atmosphere.

• • • •

AS FOR FEARS of "fallout," testimony has been given that these claims have been exaggerated and that the radioactive substances which drop from the air after nuclear tests have not been anywhere near the maximum limits at which the nuclear "fallout" becomes dangerous to mankind.

So the whole issue is far from clear, and probably many weeks of debate in the Senate will ensue before final action is taken.

Turks Stuck With Bill for Big 'Tom Dewey' Steel Mill

ISTANBUL—The Inonu administration in Turkey is not happy about the big "Tom Dewey" steel mill it's getting from the United States. It's called the Tom Dewey mill because the former Governor of New York got a legal fee of $150,000 for helping to negotiate the deal.

PEARSON

The present Turkish government can't do much about the steel mill — because it involves the United States and highly placed former officials of the Eisenhower administration who OK'd a huge $129,600,000 loan to build the mill at Eregli.

This loan—one of the biggest in Development Loan Fund history—was extended by the DLF under the Eisenhower administration when Vance Brand was its director. Immediately after retiring from the loan fund, Brand went to work for the Koppers Company, one of the firms which benefits most from the Turkish steel mill.

The three American firms building the huge Turkish project are: Blaw-Knox, which is manufacturing the rolling mills; Koppers, which is doing the engineering and ordering the equipment; and Westinghouse.

Vance Brand, retired as director of the Development Loan Fund at the end of the Eisenhower administration and after extending the huge loan for the Turkish steel mill, then promptly blossomed out as a consultant for Koppers. From a modestly paid government servant he has become a tycoon, has been elected a director of Koppers.

Brand made several trips to Turkey while director of the Development Loan Fund, the last one being on Jan. 9, 1961, 11 days before Ike left office, at which time Brand participated in a celebration of the start of the new project.

Koppers, Westinghouse, and Blaw-Knox all work together in Pittsburgh, and in close cooperation with the Mellons, who are big contributors to the Republican party; also with the Hanna interests, whose top executive, George Humphrey, was Secretary of the Treasury under Eisenhower.

Today, in Turkey, the Inonu government is finding that the steel mill will cost almost double the $129,600,000 development loan.

It also notes that just across the Aegean Sea Greece is constructing a steel mill, plus an oil refinery and a petro-chemical plant, with private capital—$160,000,000—thanks to the initiative of Tom Pappas of Boston and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

EVERY summer and fall a delegation of congressmen, with wives, treks through Turkey and Greece on U. S. MATS planes, spends counterpart funds drawn from the U. S. consul or embassy, buys beautiful presents at the Istanbul bazaar, and frequently sends them home through the diplomatic pouch — all at the taxpayers' expense.

Meanwhile, the wives of American Air Force personnel, Army officers, and diplomats are anchored in one place for two years at a time. They cannot use government planes.

If You Go Near Sacramento, Get Firm Grip on Your Wallet

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Legislative battle lines are re-forming over several of the issues that caused fur to fly at the 1963 session.

The Brown administration already has dropped the word it will seek a countywide school equalization measure at the 1964 budget session. A withholding tax collection system and a death penalty moratorium, two other controversial proposals that bit the dust at the 1963 session, also are expected to come up for another vote by the 1965 session.

McCAUL.Y

The Brown administration didn't even wait for tempers to cool from the hot 1963 summer special session before plumping for the countywide school equalization plan again.

Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, acting governor, announced that the 1964 campaign is in the works on equalization when he signed the special-session bill for another $50 million in school aid.

Said Anderson: "It is urgent that the method of distributing state aid to districts be reformed before any further increases are granted . . .

"The state must fulfill this responsibility by insisting that distribution reforms—the most important of which is countywide equalization—be enacted before new aid increases are made."

The administration plan is to soak the rich school district by giving it a smaller share of state aid. The additional funds made available would go to poorer districts.

Anderson and others are attempting to sell the soak-the-rich-district concept by implying that equalization can be accomplished without any additional funds.

In a two-page press release on educational financing, Anderson says: "If we can get these reforms enacted—and I am confident we can with the help of education groups, district officials and parents—the way will then be clear to make further increases in state aid to education from funds already available for that purpose."

The statement is misleading.

LONG BEACH Unified School District figured it would suffer a net loss if a Los Angeles County equalization program went into effect under the proposed 1963 ground rules. That means that Long Beach taxes probably would have been raised to make up for the loss.

The result: Long Beach taxpayers would wind up footing the bill for school programs elsewhere.

But the concept of raiding Long Beach and other urban areas for funds is a popular one these days in Sacramento. Long Beach also had a narrow brush with a proposal to penalize Long Beach Unified School District for the federal funds it receives for educating the children of federal employes. That provision finally was beaten after a round of legislative battles.

• • • •

IF YOU DRIVE to Sacramento from Long Beach these days, better keep both hands on your pocket book and both eyes on proposed new legislation.

Robin Hood was considered a bandit when he stole under the guise of giving to the poor. In Sacramento they no longer call it banditry. The new term: equalization.

Let's Put Blame Where It Belongs

EDITOR:

In a recent letter R. G. Palmer complained that our Long Beach busines men contributed to unemployment because they buy foreign made products.

Let's face some cold facts and put the blame for much of our unemployment where it belongs, right in the laps of the unionists. Strike after strike for higher wages have raised the cost of production and prices. Hence our export trade has been dropping steadily and our importations are increasing because people with common sense buy what, where and when they can buy the cheapest.

The way to correct the mistakes the unionists have made is to teach our workers to create more salable goods at less cost. Then more people will have jobs because we will sell more of what Americans produce.

Lenin's Prediction Coming True

EDITOR:

There is much talk and discussion about Communism today, and I believe that it would be a good idea to trace the early history of the movement.

The first organization of note with the ideas which we now call Marxism was a group called the "Illuminati" which was founded by a man named Adam Weisharyst in a German university. The organization called for three basic things: abolition of private property, destruction of religion and abolition of patriotism and nationalism. The Jacobins of France were part of this movement.

Marx put these ideas into writing and other groups met in Switzerland in the late 1890's to carry out this world scheme which this small, but powerful and wealthy group was out to put in practice. The money and many of the revolutionaries who were to accomplish the Bolshevik conquest of Russia came from the United States and were channeled through Germany during World War I.

Today we are faced with a world which has been about half taken over by these conspirators and with a policy which is based on weakness and appeasement, we may find the conquest of the world by them in the 1970's, just as Lenin predicted. There is still time, but it will soon be too late if we don't soon wake up and do something about it.

U.S. Should Stop, Look and Listen

EDITOR:

The citizens of the United States might be wise to stop, look and listen before urging the signing of any paper with Russia's Nikita Khrushchev.

A report on Aug. 3 from Miami, Fla., stated, as reported by refugees from Cuba, that over 200 men, women and children had been killed by poison gas as used by Castroite troops commanded by Russian officers.

Also the refugees reported that in the Escambray Mountains in Las Villas Province the Russians had ordered gas attacks on the guerillas hiding there.

We supposed there was a law against the use of poison gas in any part of the world, but here again law and order makes little difference to Nikita Khrushchev.

Canadian Liked IBC, Hospitality

EDITOR:

As one of the 250,000 people and a visitor in your midst who lined the route to watch your 12th annual International Beauty Congress parade, I was thrilled and much surprised to see such an event take 3½ hours, run off so smoothly and without mishap. Great credit should be given to the IBC officials in charge, and more especially to the officers and police of Long Beach for their courtesy and help.

I have visited many places and have yet to find the cleanliness, friendliness and hospitality I encountered in Long Beach. This is better publicity than your Chamber of Commerce could give. This was our second consecutive visit to California in two years. We visited Disneyland which is something out of this world.

We take back happy memories of an enjoyable holiday well spent in Long Beach.

DATING L.B. HISTORY
A Diamond Jubilee Feature

October, 1542 — Cabrillo, the Spanish explorer, sailed into the Catalina channel. He and his men visited Santa Catalina Island and later came close to the mainland. They saw "many smokes" believed now to have risen from fires set by Indians to facilitate rabbit drives. They called San Pedro Harbor Bahia de los Fumos, "Bay of Smokes."

1771 — San Gabriel Mission was founded. The Mission for many years exercised loose control over Indians who resided in great numbers in the present-day Long Beach area.

1784 — The governor of Spanish California granted to one Manuel Nieto a vast area from the sea to the mountains, including the land on which Long Beach and surrounding cities later developed.

Military, Civilian Officials Urge Pact Signing

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy will abrogate the limited nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia and Britain "overnight" if the Soviet Union violates it in any way. He also will order prompt resumption of U. S. atmospheric tests.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave this ironclad pledge under oath to three congressional committees last week as the pact banning all except underground tests began a tortuous ratification journey through the U. S. Senate.

* * * *

RUSK CONCEDED the treaty may contain marginal risks. But he said the greatest risk was the continued nuclear weapons race with Russia. He also conceded that Moscow might breach it if that served its own ends. But he said Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and his colleagues had "looked into the pit of the inferno" in the Cuban missile crisis last fall and saw for the first time that "nuclear war is an operational matter."

"In this," Rusk added, "you don't play the game called 'chicken' with the lives of millions of people around the world."

As to preparations for weapons tests, he said they could proceed under the treaty "up to the point of explosion itself." Nor, he said, would peaceful atomic projects be hampered.

Rusk and other administration witnesses, including Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and the heads of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Atomic Energy Commission, were under firm injunction by the President to answer publicly or behind closed doors every question posed by senators. This was to prove there was nothing to conceal in or behind the treaty.

* * * *

SO THOROUGHLY did the Kennedy team arm itself against inevitable questions, that only a handful of dissidents seemed dissatisfied. Among these was Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

McNamara did more than Rusk to ease the senatorial minds. He said top military leaders were fully consulted on the test-ban negotiations. Then he electrified the legislators by declaring the United States has "tens of thousands" of atomic warheads ready for delivery, is manifestly superior to Russia in nuclear power, and would risk little in ratifying the treaty.

McNamara minimized the military worth of the Soviet Union's 100-megaton H-bomb as opposed to the vast number of smaller American bombs "which can be launched with precision." He said the United States would pursue underground tests—two of which were conducted in Nevada last week—and will stay at peak readiness to resume other tests which the treaty would outlaw.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the AEC, said the U. S. would be able to continue weapons development, including warheads for missile defense, and that AEC laboratories would be "in a state of readiness" at all times to resume atmospheric testing. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said the joint chiefs were agreed that the pact was "compatible" with U. S. security interests. He denied there had been any "arm-twisting" to bring them into line.

The strongest dissenting voice came from Dr. Edward A. Teller, "father" of the H-bomb, whose testimony was heavily censored. He warned of "military disadvantages" and asserted the treaty "cannot be completely policed" and would impede development of U.S. missile defenses. This last was challenged by McNamara.

* * * *

IN GENEVA, the United States also announced it was ready to accept a Soviet proposal that East and West exchange ground observation posts to reduce the risk of surprise attack, provided Russian conditions are canceled. But Rusk told a press conference that he does not see any across-the-boards settlement with Moscow on the broad range of cold war disputes.

The Canadian government finally agreed to accept U.S. nuclear warheads for its plane and missile defense bases—an issue that had toppled the Diefenbaker regime. The warheads will remain in American or NATO custody after stockpiles are established.

The United States and Russia agreed meanwhile on a joint program of experiments with weather and communications satellites starting next year and to contribute satellite information to a world magnetic survey in 1965. The program was first proposed at Geneva in June, 1962.

A SIZABLE federal tax cut loomed for all Americans if the House and Senate will go along. The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee voted to cut income tax an average of 20 percent starting Jan. 1—though this would be offset in some brackets by fewer legal deductions.

The Federal Reserve Board reported meanwhile that industrial production picked up enough steam in July to cancel out a steel industry slowdown and show a slight gain. And the Labor Department reported that non-farm employment in July jumped to 56.6 million, the sixth consecutive month of improvement.

In other news spheres the State Department reported that the U.S. Coast Guard and military planes had witnessed the "kidnaping" by Cuban authorities of 19 persons, apparently fleeing Cuban refugees, on a British island off the coast of Cuba.

Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, told the Senate that the John Birch Society and other "radical right" organizations are a deadlier threat to democracy than American Communists. He said there were nearly 1,000 such organizations "distributing wildly irresponsible literature."

For the first time in history, the State Department approved the extradition of a former head of state to face embezzlement charges in his own country. Involved was former dictator Marcos Perez Jiminez of Venezuela who once ruled with an iron hand. He is accused of looting the Venezuelan treasury of $13.5 million plus political murders. Perez had been in jail in Miami. He was turned over to Venezuelan police.

In Congress the House passed and sent to the Senate a $1.2 billion bill to provide matching grants and low-interest loans to spur the building of laboratories classrooms libraries in public as well as private colleges.

First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy went back to Hyannis Port, Mass., from Otis AFB Hospital where she had undergone surgery for the birth of her third child, Patrick, who died of a respiratory ailment. Her doctor ordered her to curtail all White House activities until after the first of the year to protect her health. Mrs. Kennedy told hospital officials she still hopes to have more children.

In New York City, Navy Yeoman 1/C Nelson C. Drummond, 34-year-old Baltimore negro, was sentenced to life in prison on charges of stealing and selling classified defense documents for $24,000. Drummond was arrested in company of two Russian United Nations aides.

Laguna's Opera Season Premieres With Its 'Rigoletto' Sung in English

By RACHEL MORTON

The 1963 summer season of "Festival of Opera" opened auspiciously at the Irvine Bowl in Laguna Beach Friday evening with a performance of "Rigoletto" by Verdi, sung in English.

The opera was repeated Saturday night, and next Friday and Saturday "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart will be given. The season will close with three performances of "Madame Butterfly" on Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

* * * *

IT IS a most commendable effort on the part of Laguna's musical elite to produce a second season of grand opera and to present it sung in English. The distinguished and enthusiastic audience attested its appreciation.

When I noted how moved was the audience by the emotional scenes in the opera, I was convinced for all time that opera sung in English is what makes an audience in our country really enjoy a performance, because then, at long last, they know what it is all about.

Eugene Ober, musical director, conducted a large and excellent orchestra with good control, but with not much fire. The men's chorus was outstandingly fine in balance and tone quality. The sets of the first act were lavish, as befitted a duke's palace, with two armored figures in opposite niches of the stage and strolling couples on an upper gallery an innovation. The costumes were rich in color and texture.

But an opera is only as good as its leading singers and in this respect there was great disparity of talent.

By far the finest performance was given by Norma Lynn as Gilda. She will be remembered here in Long Beach for her beautiful singing at first Pops Concert.

* * * *

IT WAS announced in the program notes that this was Miss Lynn's first appearance in a leading operatic role. In that case, she is destined to go far. She has beauty, a limpid voice of lovely quality and exceptional acting ability. After her singing of "Dearest Name" (Caro Nome) the show stopped for a long ovation.

Possessed of a sympathetic baritone voice, Calvin Marsh as Rigoletto gave a sincere portrayal, if not a forceful one.

John Crain, on the other hand had a ringing tenor voice that soared dramatically in the aria, "Women Are Frivolous" and in the famous quartet. As a philandering duke who was supposed to be irresistible to the ladies, his stage presence left something to be desired.

* * * *

BUT John Arnold Ford as the wicked Sparafucile combined both a magnificent bass voice with fine dramatic acting and his excellent English diction got across the footlights—every word. Remembered for his fine achievements of the past, John Gurney was a convincing and handsome Count Monterone, albeit the once-glorious bass voice has lost much of its luster. As the flirtatious Maddelena, Kathleen deSpain went "all out" in her acting, but her singing seemed colorless.

There was dancing in the first act by young people that was charming.

L. A.-T. Los Angeles Bureau

Two members of the county assessor's office who have been doing things together for more than 50 years just retired together.

Edward J. Blickfeldt of Inglewood and Fred Jones of Los Angeles grew up together in Kemmerer, Wyo. They enlisted together in 1917 on the day World War I was declared. After the war, they moved to Los Angeles within a few days of one another.

Although they went into different lines of work, they maintained their friendship. In 1939, after working both as a printer and newspaperman, Blickfeldt joined the assessor's office. In the early 1930s, Jones joined the tax collector's division. He transferred to the assessor's office in 1945.

Vincent Thomas Honors Planned by Fishermen

Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, veteran California Assemblyman, has been named honorary skipper of the annual Fishermen's Fiesta, scheduled at the Port of Los Angeles, San Pedro, Sept. 27-29, it was announced Saturday.

A boat parade, featuring decorated fishing vessels, will be a highlight of the fiesta. At last year's fiesta, Gov. Edmund G. Brown acted as honorary skipper. He will accompany Thomas in the lead boat this year.

The sea parade will follow by one day dedication ceremonies for the Vincent Thomas Bridge, third-largest in the state and Southern California's first major suspension bridge.

Besides the colorful boat parade and dedication ceremonies, the three-day period will include a land parade, luncheon on board vessels for visiting state officials, a dedication reception and dinner, public dancing, carnival rides and a Navy open house.

Unimart Signs Retail Clerks' 4-Year Contract

Some 200 members of the Retail Clerks Union Local 324 are working under a new four-year contract signed Saturday with Unimart discount stores.

The stores are in Long Beach and Norwalk.

The contract calls for wage increases during the first year ranging from 5 to 17½ cents per hour with automatic pay hikes of no less than 7½ cents each year thereafter.

Local 324 has 10,000 members working in the Long Beach, Southeast Los Angeles and Orange County areas.

Family Outings Offered

The city's busy program of "end-of-summer" family fun will continue this week at school and park playgrounds, according to Dale Hoskin, director of recreation, along with more group summer picnics.

Today the Pennsylvania State Society holds its picnic at Bixby Park and that of the Catholic Naval League will also be held in the same park. Next Sunday the Missouri State Society will picnic in Bixby.

Recreation Director Hoskin points out that the playgrounds family-fun programs often include an opportunity for active participation by parents in such games as softball, volleyball or table games, usually held in the early evening. Often, he said, a picnic or covered dish affair is scheduled for later in the day.

An indoor program is a part of some of the events, including community singing and demonstrations by the children of the various playground activities.

The director listed this week's "end-of-summer" events as follows:

Monday, Signal Hill Playground at 7 p.m.; Tuesday, Fremont Playground at 6:30 p.m., Kettering at 7 p.m., Lee at 6:30 p.m., Sutter at 7 p.m., Burcham at 7:30 p.m. and Hoover at 7 p.m.

Wednesday, Barton at 6:30 p.m., Burnett at 7 p.m., Burroughs at 6:30 p.m., Henry at 6 p.m., Marn at 6:30 p.m., Los Cerritos at 7 p.m., Willard at 7:30 p.m. and Kidd at 1 p.m.; Thursday, Lafayette at 7 p.m., El Dorado at 7:30 p.m., Webster 10 a.m., Stearns at 7 p.m., Houghton at 7:30 p.m., Coolidge at 6:30 p.m., Whaley at 7 p.m., Tucker at 7 p.m. and Prisk at 6:30 p.m.

Hoskin advised residents to contact the playground they with to attend to see if a game or picnic is planned. Directors at schools can not be reached by phone, he said.

ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI

She's Gal Who Can Say 'No!'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—"I'm one of very few actresses," said spunky little Anna Maria Alberghetti "who could retire tomorrow and just never work any more.

"But if I retired what would I do? I don't know how to keep house, or even how to fry eggs."

It was around midnight and Anna was demonstrating that she is still one of our busiest stars even if ANNA she hasn't been on Broadway for a while. She was getting a permanent from a hairdresser working out of an apartment. She was due in Boston to open in "West Side Story" and in between the New York rehearsals for that show, and the permanent, she had been talking to David Merrick about a new B'way show, "Roman Holiday."

"I'm funny in that I believe that waiting for the right part is worthwhile. I can sing in nightclubs, I can do television or I can do nothing.

* * * *

"IF ANYBODY says you can't save a dime because of taxes, they're lying! I have stocks, I have land, I have 400 head of cattle. I'm not a tycoon but I can read a script and say 'No.'

"And it's not that I'm stingy. But we've seen people starve, we've seen pianos traded for a few pounds of flour . . . during the war. Every time I hear a scream now I go white. You see, when my father died, I became head of the family. I was the one who had to take the reins."

Anna Maria said she was not a show-off.

"I have one car, a Mercedes. I bought my brother a Fiat. You knew my sister Carla got married—she beat me to it.

"Now she takes her work as of second importance. I can't. I hope to God the day will come when I can. She doesn't have the drive I have. And I think she's happier than I am because she doesn't have the drive."

* * * *

ANNA MARIA, at 30, is back with her old beau Claudio Guzman, the director, but she said: "Still my work comes first, my work has given me great satisfaction. But maybe if the right man would walk in . . ."

It would surprise nobody to see Anna Maria working again for David Merrick, with whom she battled in "Carnival." They were haggling over a new contract and Merrick said that her understudy, Anita Gillette, who stepped in, was better.

"But we became friends again, and we could work together again. Because he needs talent, and I need a bright producer."

Fractured Flickers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Zany Jay Ward has taken old silent movies and given them new dialogue and will hit the nation with them this fall under the title "fractured flickers."

For instance, John Barrymore as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be portrayed as a soda jerk.

LOOK MA, CAVITIES

This camel seems to have been in the wrong dental group at some oasis. But he will be in the right group when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus opens Wednesday in the Long Beach Arena. Two daily performances are set for the circus daily through Aug. 25.

'La Ronde' Is Saucy at the Off-Broadway

By BUCK LANIER

Saucy, sometimes splendid sex, sent the Off-Broadway Theater's audience home happy Friday night.

The offering was Arthur Schnitzler's controversial and famous "La Ronde," or Merry Go Round.

Set in Vienna in the 19th century, the delightful offering was highlighted by the directing and acting of David Emmes, drama director at Long Beach City College.

It continues tonight at 8:30 and for four weeks—Thursday through Sunday nights.

The actors take you on a sometimes sobering but mostly joyful journey through social stratasex in 10 scenes.

Emmes as the husband is at best in his seduction scenes of his wife, Marlene Silverstein and a young miss, Pamela Dunlap.

The cast's overall enthusiasm, sly dialogue and stage action make for a fine two hours.

White House Library Books Chosen by Panel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scholars and librarians have finally decided after a year of study what books will go into the White House library.

James T. Babb, Yale University's librarian and overseer of the project, has settled on 1,760 titles in almost 2,600 volumes.

Babb was chosen to direct the project by the First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy.

He had the assistance of two renowned historians, Lyman Butterfield of Boston, editor of the Adams Papers, and Julian Boyd of Princeton University, editor of the Jefferson Papers, among others.

• • • •

THE COLLECTION will include Amreicans of every period, style and point of view, from George Washington to James Thurber. Subjects include history, literaure, society, geography, science, sports, religion, folklore, music, art, politics and journalism.

Approximately 400 of the books are already on the shelves of the library on the ground floor of the White House. As is in the case with most of the White House furnishings and art, the rest will have to be donated.

President Kennedy himself appears twice on the list of chosen books. He made it with "Profiles in Courage" and "The Strategy of Peace."

• • • •

HIS OPPONENT in the 1960 presidential campaign, Richard M. Nixon, also made the list with "Six Crises." Three former presidents, Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, are representented with their memoirs.

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, reportedly bounded on and off the list like a table tennis ball but finally made it with "The Enemy Within." This is the story of the Senate Rackets Committee's investigation into improper activities in labor and management. The attorney general served as counsel to the committee.

'Y' Plans Pancake Party

Visitors may eat pancakes, take a swim and tour the facilities at a get-acquainted party of the North Long Beach YMCA, 6095 California Ave., from 4 to 8 p.m. Saturday.

City Councilman R. E. (Pat) Corbett, 'Y' board chairman, said the $1 pancake dinner party is being staged to give North Long Beach residents an opportunity to inspect 'Y' facilities, "because I think many of them may not be aware of what the organization has to offer."

EMERGENCY AID PROGRAM

Ambulance Plans 'Satisfactory'

By DON BRACKENBURY
L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The county's emergency aid program, under which ambulance and hospital service is provided by private facilities under contract, is "effective and satisfactory," according to L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

Hollinger expects to give such a report Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors in answer to a request earlier this month.

The relatively few complaints received over the emergency service is a good indication of its efficiency, Hollinger said.

• • • •

FROM JULY 1961 to July 1963, there were 33 complaints officially lodged against ambulance companies and 38 against contract hospitals. All were investigated by the Department of Charities.

Fifteen of the 33 complaints against ambulance firms and 21 of those against hospitals were proved groundless, Hollinger reported. A number of other complaints were justified, but there were "reasonable explanations" for the difficulties, his report indicated.

In the 13 cases where the ambulance firms were found at fault and the 10 cases where the hospitals at fault, corrective actions were taken, Hollinger said.

• • • •

A POLL of the sheriff's 13 station commanders, who are the primary users of the Emergency Aid Program, indicated reactions ranging from "good" to "outstanding," said Hollinger.

Operators belonging to the Southern California Ambulance Service have expressed satisfaction with what they call "the finest program of its kind operated any place in the nation," according to the report.

The Emergency Air plan was put into effect in Los Angeles County July 1, 1947. It originally was administered by the Sheriff's Department, but since 1951 has been under the direction of the Department of Charities.

The county has contracts for emergency service with 27 private ambulance companies and their branch stations and with 55 private hospitals, clinics and aid stations throughout the county.

• • • •

AS PART of the program, 53 cities contract with the county for emergency ambulance service.

Actual expenditure for the program in 1961-62, Hollinger reported, was $190,506 for hospital service and $185,604 for ambulance service. Persons given aid under the program are billed for the costs, except that the county pays the entire cost for indigents.

Contract cities paid $81,362, or 43.8 percent, of the total cost of the emergency ambulance program in 1961-63.

Average response time — that is, the time it takes to get a person to the hospital after the first call for aid — is less than 20 minutes, according to the report. The majority of the county's population is within an average of five miles from an emergency hospital or ambulance service.

• • • •

HOLLINGER said his only recommendations are that the Department of Charities be given formal responsibility for overall administration of the program; that the sheriff, when requested, provide statistical and background information on level of service and that the county-city section of Hollinger's office serve as liaison representative in negotiations with contract cities.

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to adopt these recommendations.

Sandy 1st to Win 19 in Majors

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

NEW YORK—The New York Mets managed to come up with two runs on some ninth-inning dramatics Saturday, but three Dodger home runs were enough to give Sandy Koufax his 19th victory, 3-2, a high-water mark in the majors.

Ron Perranoski saved the Dodgers' eighth win in 14 games on this trip by striking out ex-teammates Tim Harkness and Duke Snider for the final outs. Coupled with San Francisco's loss, the Dodgers now lead by five games.

Koufax, in achieving the highest win total of his career, shut out the Mets on four singles through the first eight innings and entered the final round with a 42-inning scoreless streak against the NL tailenders.

Sandy's bid for a major league record of 11 shutouts by a lefthander was ruined, however, on his first pitch in the ninth inning. Ron Hunt drilled it into the right-field seats for his seventh home run.

When Frank Thomas followed with a single, manager Walter Alston figured Koufax had had it and called on Bob Miller to face Jim Hickman. Miller accomplished his job by getting Hickman to hit the ball on the ground but second baseman Dick Tracewski failed in his and the Dodgers were deprived of a double play.

* * * * *

TRACEWSKI, who entered as part of the defensive platoon in the ninth, missed touching second base while taking Jim Gilliam's throw from third, but his relay to first was in time to nip Hickman.

Perranoski entered when Harkness was announced as a pinch-hitter for Norm Sherry. Harkness looked at the third strike.

Tracewski next redeemed himself by making a hit-saving play on Duke Carmel's bouncer behind first base, but Ron Fairly juggled the throw and did not have possession when Carmel crossed the bag. Meanwhile, Al Jackson, running for Thomas, made it to third and scored when Perranoski's first pitch to Snider was in the dirt and bounced to the backstop.

Snider went down swinging with the tying run at second base and 21,841 of the New Breed customers screaming as if this were a World Series.

* * * *

PERRANOSKI'S save was his 12th of the year to go with 13 wins and only two defeats. He was working for the third day in a row and for the 49th time this year, thus proving conclusively that he is far from worn out.

Koufax, too, dispelled rumors of arm tiredness as he struck out nine Mets and became stronger with each inning until Hunt homered. Koufax registered eight of his strikeouts in the last five innings.

Frank Howard, John Roseboro and Wally Moon were the home run heroes for the Dodgers, who were winning their third in a row. Each connected against loser Tracy Stallard (6-11), who gave up six hits in his eight innings.

Howard hit his 21st homer

'HELLO, YOU RAT' --BRIAN

SEATTLE (AP)—Paralyzed Brian Sternberg had a visit Saturday from two of the world's great pole vaulters and for one he had this greeting, softened by a delighted grin:

"Congratulations, you rat," he told John Pennel.

World record holder Pennel and John Uelses, first man to top 16 feet by pole propulsion, were the visitors. Doctors allowed them half an hour with Sternberg, paralyzed in a trampoline accident this summer just before he was to accompany the United States track team to Moscow for its meet with Russia.

Uelses replaced him and won the vault in Moscow.

BAKER'S PRO DEBUT RUINED

Vikes Crush Rams, 27-3

By JERRY WYNN

Big-hearted Norm Van Brocklin had a belly laugh on the Rams Saturday night as he watched his Minnesota Vikings register a 27-3 victory before a crowd of 42,966 at the Coliseum.

The garrulous Minnesota coach, who had proposed to start his rookie quarterback star, Ron VanderKelen, didn't even let him into the exhibition game even though the Rams played their ace rookie, Terry Baker, for a full three quarters.

Baker proved as an exciting performer as advertised. He completed 8 of 14 of his southpaw passes, and made one fine run of 16 yards. His debut was marred by two interceptions which quelled Ram drives.

However, it was an interception of a pass thrown by Jon Arnett which broke open a close game early in the fourth quarter. With the Rams trailing 10-3 and driving deep into Viking territory, the Arnett aerial was picked off by a charging Minnesota tackle and returned 68 yards to the Ram 5.

The Vikings soon scored, and added 10 more points late in the game—the final seven on a 64-yard run by ex-Ram Tom Wilson.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, always a Ram nemesis, paced the Viking attack with 11-of-17 completions for 204 yards and one touchdown.

For the Rams, Arnett—playing in place of a flu-weakened Dick Bass—was impressive with 62 yards gained in 11 carries. But the Rams inability to score even one touchdown against one of the weaker defensive clubs in the league, bodes only trouble for the future.

How the game unfolded:

FIRST QUARTER

Vikings 7, Rams 0: A 28-yard touchdown pass from Tarkenton to flashy halfback Bob Reed gave Minnesota first blood with 12:45 elapsed. Reed was the lonesomest man in the Coliseum as he gathered in the pigskin on the Ram 8 with nary a defender 10 yards near him.

The play, a swing-and-up in which a Ram linebacker was guilty of not dropping back on the receiver, capped a 73-yard drive by the Vikings in only four plays. Tarkenton had passed to Bill Brown for 14 and Oscar Donahue for 29. Fred Cox kicked the conversion.

Minnesota had another advance which ended on a missed 23-yard field goal by Cox and an 87-yard touchdown punt return by Bill Butler which was blown dead at the start by a clipping penalty.

SECOND QUARTER

Vikings 7, Rams 3: On the second play of the quarter, Charlie Britt intercepted a Tarkenton toss and returned it 15 yards to the Viking 40.

A cheer greeted Baker as the prize rookie took over at quarterback for the Rams. Keeping the ball on the ground, the Rams made one first down on a nine-yard run by Arnett to the 30. But with a fourth-and-2 on the 22, Danny Villanueva was called in to boot a 29-yard field goal which was perfect.

Baker's second series of downs was one for the comic books. With the ball on the Viking 39, Terry twisted through the Viking secondary on a 16-yard run only to have the play called back on a clipping penalty on Jim Phillips.

* * * *

ON THE second play, Baker passed for the first time and hit Adams perfectly at the goal line only to have Adams drop the ball. But that play, too, was called back on a holding penalty.

Now from the Ram 37, Baker tried a pass to Arnett which also ended up in a penalty for the Rams when Arnett ran out of bounds and then on the playing field in pursuit of the ball.

The Rams had one more threat late in the quarter when Arnett gained 24 yards to the Vikings 30. It ended on an interception of a Baker pass by Tom Franckhauser.

THIRD QUARTER

Vikings 10, Rams 3: After the Rams produced a goal-line stand by holding the Vikings without gain on three tries from the Ram 2, Minnesota settled for a nine-yard field goal by Cox.

The Vikings had marched from their own 44. Key plays were a 30-yard pass from Tarkenton to Jerry Reichow, an 11-yard run by Reed and a successful fourth-

Peterson Errors Aid Roswell Win

By JOHN CASH

Peterson Post, hamstrung by its own errors, was knocked from the unbeaten ranks in the American Legion West Coast Regional baseball playoffs at Blair Field Saturday night.

Roswell, New Mexico, parlayed only six hits with three Peterson errors good for four unearned runs and a 5-2 victory before a crowd of 2,487—largest attendance in the three days of play.

Errors by Jerry Martin and Jerry Flynn enabled Roswell to cut the margin to 2-1 in the fourth, and two walks, a two-base throwing error and two singles gave the New Mexico club a permanent 4-2 cushion after five frames.

The last run came on a triple by Julian Guerra and a single by Tim Whalen in the eighth inning off Ed Clapp, who allowed only one run after relieving Flynn in the fifth.

Peterson's runs in the third came on a single by Richard Dash, a double by Flynn and a single by Oscar Brown. Martin tripled to open the ninth, but that was Peterson's only other threat.

Crewman! Who's He?

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Travers Jolts 3-Year-Olds

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Racing's 3-year-old division was thrown into utter confusion Saturday when George D. Widener's Crewman humbled the so-called Big Three and ran off with the $81,400 Travers Stakes before the biggest crowd in Saratoga's history.

The fact that the first three finishers in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes—the hallowed Triple Crown—were competing in the race made no difference to Crewman, who never competed in any of those blue ribbon events.

Behind him and thoroughly beaten at the finish was Chateaugay, winner of the Derby and Belmont, and Candy Spots, who took the Preakness and is the year's biggest money-winning thoroughbred.

* * * *

CREWMAN flashed home 1½ lengths in front of another outsider, Mrs. Alfred J. Giordano's Hot Dust. Darby Dan's Chateaugay staggered home third, a length back of Hot Dust, and 2½ lengths ahead of Rex Ellsworth's favored Candy Spots. Never Bend, the third of the Big Three, was last.

The fourth place finish was the worst in the career for Candy Spots.

Candy Spots was bleeding from the nose when he finished. Mesh Tenney said Candy Spots was not cut, but was bleeding "from a respiratory ailment."

Van Brocklin Mellows

Since the Yanks have clinched the American League pennant and the Dodger hysteria will resume when O'Malley's Darlings return to the neighborhood this week, let's give football a chance today.

. . . Norm Van Brocklin either is mellowing or is deeply concerned with the recent stroke of his mother in the S. F. area, but the usually fiery Minnesota Viking coach was reluctant to pass judgment on the San Francisco 49ers, which were routed 43-28 by his youngsters last weekend. "They were experimenting," he laughed, when asked if the 49ers were due for a major skid this season.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . His publicity director, John Thompson, wasn't so close-to-the-vest. "My considered opinion is that the 49ers are in for lots of trouble this year," declared Thompson. "They looked horrible against us. Something's wrong with that club this year."

. . . Thompson did point to one big red mark on the 49ers' debit side of the ledger: The loss of Bill Kilmer. (The former UCLA all-America was injured seriously in an auto accident and will be out the entire season, if not forever.) "Kilmer always came up with the big 49er play," explained Thompson. "He wasn't always great, but when the big play was needed, Kilmer came through." John also insisted that the 49ers' loss of Kilmer was as important to the Bay Area club as the absence of Alex Karras to the Detroit and Paul Hornung to Green Bay.

. . . On the subject of lost personnel, the considered opinion throughout the NFL is that Detroit will suffer much more from the ban of Karras than Green Bay will from Hornung's suspension. "Green Bay has the horses to fill in for Hornung," commented one Ram official, "but the Lions can't replace Karras. For that matter, NO team in pro football can immediately replace an all-pro lineman. The good backs aren't that difficult to find. The good linemen are few and far between."

. . . Another minus factor for Detroit this season—the "experts" insist—is that the entire team's dauber is down. The Lions still believe the fines given to other team members—including the highly-respected Joe Schmidt—were unfair. They feel their particular club was discriminated against . . . and in a sense, I can't blame them. (Schmidt and four mates were socked in the wallet by Pete Rozelle for wagers they placed on a game they viewed via television. The fines still seem harsh, but I suppose an "accessory" is just as guilty as the real culprit.)

"WATCH OUT FOR UCLA" was the warning of Thompson, who still retains a closeness to college football, even though he's departed Washington. In his coastal wanderings, Thompson heard everywhere that UCLA was the best-looking AAWU team during spring practices.

. . . In Southland sheets, all we wrote and you read was that USC not only had bigger guns than last season when it snatched the national championship, but newer ones in the form of recruited prep stars. UCLA was overlooked. I dunno. In manpower, UCLA can't approach USC. The only fault I might find with the Trojans is that they could become complacent . . . but with Willie Brown, Hal Bedsole, Pete Beathard, Mike Giers, etc., how complacent can you become to lose?

. . . Thompson reported also that Jim Owens was getting worried at Washington "because his spring recruiting was lousy." Strangely, big Jim lost a lot of his candidates to rival Washington State, the AAWU's newest member who debuted in surprisingly excellent fashion last year. (As Southlanders know, however, WSU's Jim Sutherland is no slouch when it comes to recruiting.)

. . . The Thompson report claimed that Stanford "is a team to watch because of new coach John Ralston's fantastic recruiting and traveling." Ralston's Indians may not cut too much ice this season, but look out in campaigns to come. As for Cal, Thompson could say only, "I haven't heard anything about them." (Which means, Old Blues, you're in for another long season!)

ADD VAN BROCKLIN COMMENT: "Last season I really thought every team in the Western Division—except my Vikings—had a chance to win the championship. This year I think EVERY club has a chance. I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the Rams and us in the top half, either. Our road will be tough because of youngsters, but the Rams could really sail under Harland (Svare)."

. . . Minnesota's youth is expressed pointedly in the fact that Van Brocklin's seven starting defensive secondary men boast a total of eight years' pro experience . . . about one year per person.

. . . Even in their "most improved" department, the Vikings have little experience. That would be the pass receivers. The old Ram and Trojan, Leon Clarke, gives Minnesota experience, but Northwestern's Paul Flatley and Texas' Ray Poage are raw rookies. "But they can hang onto the ball — and I'm going to work them to death," said Van Brocklin. "I'll gamble and hope they cut it this season. I know I've got two great ones in the years to come."

. . . Anti-psychologist department: The 49ers each were analyzed by a professional man before the Viking game . . . then produced their worst performance in recent years. What price "positive thinking" now?

Bunning Stifles Angels, 6-1

By KEN PIVERNETZ

It was another perplexing night for the Angels Saturday at Chavez Ravine—just as it has been for most of this next to last home stand.

Jim Bunning, who has been somewhat of a mystery himself this season, allowed the Seraphs only five hits as the Tigers took a 6-1 decision before a crowd of 7,437.

The win put Bunning's record at only 9-12 this year, but anyone who saw him work against the Angels had a hard time telling it.

Bunning was never in trouble as he allowed only three hits over the first eight innings before the Angels pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth.

Detroit took advantage of Mike Lee's wildness in his first start as an Angel to break the game wide open with four runs in the fifth inning.

Lee, a 6-5 southpaw from Maywood, was given a big bonus by the Giants in 1959, but they gave up on him after only one season when he walked 202 batters in 162 innings at Fresno while compiling a 7-19 record.

It was his first major league game in three years. He's fast—and wild.

Don Wert walked on four pitches to open the game, but was thrown out going to third on Dick McAuliffe's single. However, Al Kaline walked and after Rocky Colavito had popped out, ex-Angel George Thomas singled in McAuliffe with the game's first run.

After that Lee struggled through the next three innings, thanks to some great fielding support.

He walked two more batters in the second inning, but got Wert to hit into a double play. G. Thomas struck out and Bob Rodgers threw to third to double up Kaline an inning later.

Wert lead off the fifth by hitting a home run down the left-field line that just dropped into the stands.

With one out, Kaline walked, Colavito singled to center and Lee was finished. The other Lee (Don) wasn't much better.

Billy Bruton greeted D. Lee with a single to score Kaline and then Gus Triandos and George Smith had run producing hits to clinch the contest.

Bruton tripled with one out in the seventh off of Julio Navarro and came home on a sacrifice fly by Norm Cash to end their scoring for the night.

The Angels got base hits in the first, second and fifth innings, but Bunning had good control and struck out four and had a shutout going until two were out in the ninth.

Rodgers singled home Leon Wagner with the Seraph's only run as most of the fans filed out of the ball park.

Peters Halts Yankees on 4-Hitter, 2-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Gary Peters and third baseman Pete Ward, prime candidates for American League rookie of the year honors, combined their talents Saturday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

Peters, 26-year-old southpaw, checked the world champions' power with a four-hitter. Ward, 24, drove in both the Sox runs with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and with the second of his three successive singles in the fifth.

• • • •

STARTER Al Downing took the loss, leaving him 8-4 and 1-2 against the Sox for the season. Tom Metcalf replaced him in the eighth after Mickey Mantle pinch hit for him and drew a walk, one of four Peters yielded.

MARICHAL FINED FOR THROWING AT GROAT

Musial's Hit Sinks Giants, 8-7

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pinchhitter Stan Musial singled home the winning run in the 10th inning Saturday to give the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-7 victory over San Francisco.

The Giants' ace pitcher, Juan Marichal, was fined $50 for throwing at batsman Dick Groat.

The Giants, after trailing 3-5, broke out in a rash of home runs to tie the game and then take the lead, but Bill White hit his 22nd home run with Curt Flood on base in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score.

Musial batted for relief pitcher Barney Schultz and rifled a hard grounder to left field to score Gary Kolb from second base.

Righthander Marichal was one of a series of pitchers put in by manager Alvin Dark. Marichal made Groat back away from a high inside pitch in the first inning.

Only Way to Get Him Out

Purkey Nips Old Nemesis

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Purkey, who often has had his troubles with the Chicago Cubs, drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly Saturday and got some pitching help for a 2-1 Cincinnati Reds victory over the Bruins.

First it was Bill Henry and then Al Worthington who came to Purkey's rescue when he weakened in the eighth. Joe Nuxhall finished up the ninth.

• • • •

PURKEY had only a 10-14 lifetimes record against the Cubs going into the game but he fanned nine and walked only two before weakening.

Brandt Leads O's to 6-1 Win Over A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jackie Brandt supplied the offensive backing for Steve Barber's 17th victory Saturday night by lashing a 3-run homer, a double and a single to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-1 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics.

The Orioles jolted Ed Rakow for four runs in the third inning. John Powell, who also had three hits, singled in the first run and Brandt homered with Russ Snyder and Powell aboard. It was his 10th homer of the season.

The Orioles added their final two runs in the fifth. Luis Aparicio reached base on an error and moved to third on a stolen base and sacrifice. Powell drove him home with a single and scored himself on a double by Brandt.

Monbo Nabs No. 16, Cracks 3-Year Jinx

BOSTON (UPI) — Veteran righthander Bill Monbouquette pitched his 16th victory to break a three-season jinx Saturday in a 10-3 Red Sox victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Monbouquette, who went the distance for the 10th time, had won 14 games in 1960 and again in 1961 and finished with 15 victories last season.

The Boston attack included a pair of runs-batted-in for American League RBI leader Dick Stuart, who now has 87 for the season.

In-Field and Out

New York Scribes Sniping at Alston

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

NEW YORK—"That buzz you hear is the Dodgers leaning against the panic button."

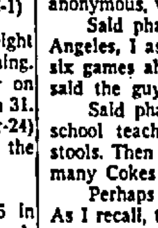

"Will they blow it again?"

"Dodgers out of step in flag march."

"L.A. getting slow hot foot from Mays."

"Alston?—ask the ex-Dodgers."

These are current headlines in New York, where most baseball writers have developed a one-track mind.

ALSTON

Perhaps the cause is from riding the subways.

More likely it is that the Dick Youngs, the Leonard Schecters and the Milt Grosses never will forgive Walter O'Malley and Horace Stoneham for pulling up stakes and leaving New York.

Walter Alston, who never dodges a question, again is dodging pot shots in the dark.

Milt Gross fired Alston in April and bet Leo Durocher would be the manager by July 4. Funny, but Gross hasn't made an appearance in the Dodger clubhouse since April 29.

MAURY ALLEN, like Gross a columnist for the N.Y. Post, renews the anti-Alston kick in an article entitled, "Alston?—ask the ex-Dodgers."

The ex-Dodgers, however, made a plea to remain anonymous, which Allen granted as "their privilege."

Said phantom No. 1: "When we saw them in Los Angeles, I asked them if they would win it. They were six games ahead. You know what one guy told me? He said the guy would find some way to lose it."

Said phantom No. 2: "Alston runs the club like a school teacher. Last year he sat everybody on little stools. Then he lectured us. He said we were taking too many Cokes out of the machine."

Perhaps the stool-sitting session was one of necessity. As I recall, there were several stool-pigeons on the club.

I'M CERTAIN, also, that Alston was "worried about stealing Cokes." He's an honest man.

Isn't it strange that those who cry loudest are afraid to lend their names to criticism?

Duke Snider, at least, has the courage of his convictions. He claims the Dodgers blew the Duke last year because Alston didn't play him during the last week.

What Snider failed to mention was his .278 batting average or his many moods. Snider played when he was good and ready to play.

Tim Harkness, who contributed a .258 average to the Dodgers' near miss, claims the club was "never loose" under Alston. "I'd like to see Casey Stengel manage the Dodgers," he said. "He knows how to keep a team loose."

It's too bad Harkness didn't worry more about that .258 average.

And it's too bad Messrs. Allen, Young, Schecter and Gross don't worry more about the Mets, Yonkers Raceway and the soccer matches at Randall's Island.

Man to Man

WYNN MINOR

By JERRY WYNN

Nineteen years ago, a strong-armed lad from Wilson High paced Long Beach's Samuel Thomas Post to the State Legion baseball championship by pitching complete game victories on successive days.

This week, Harry Minor is on the scene again during the Western Regional Legion Tournament at Blair Field, but this time in the capacity of a player scout for the Milwaukee Braves.

A popular, personable 35-year-old native of Long Beach—once nicknamed Harry the Hoof for his kicking prowess as a star Wilson fullback—Minor has spent 16 years in professional baseball as a player, coach, manager and for the last three years, a scout.

How many baseball games do you see a year, Harry?

"It must be close to 300. From March through September, I sometimes go to three or four games a day, especially when there are tournaments such as this one. In the winter, it's usually two or three a week."

Do you ever go to Dodger Stadium on a "night off?"

"Yes, occasionally. It is important to keep a perspective of what you are looking for as a scout, and you can only do this by watching the major leaguers. A scout is inclined to look for too much in a boy. If a boy is 17, you have to look at him as to what he will be five years from now. It's not easy."

Are you interested in any of the players in the Legion Tournament?

"Quite a few. There is no one premium player, as we call the very outstanding boy, but Peterson has a number of boys with professional potential. Most of them have another year of high school. Looking ahead to next year, there will be plenty of scouts around Long Beach because there are four left-handed pitchers who are fine pro prospects—Bob Wiswell of Poly, the Peterson pitcher; Jim Strickland of Lakewood, Mike Small of St. Anthony and Mike Mantsch of Millikan."

Do you like the present bonus rule in baseball?

"No, none of the scouts do. It's too handicapping because you have to work so hard to sign a boy, and then there's no protecting him from being drafted by another club after a year if the major league team doesn't keep the boy on its roster.

"It also hurts the major league team to keep the boy if he needs more seasoning. Take the Dodgers. They really have a 23-man roster instead of 25. They've got to keep Dick Calmus and list Bill Haas (a bonus first baseman) among their 25 players even though Haas is with Santa Barbara. They would be much better off with Nick Willhite and Ed Roebuck."

What kind of bonus rule would you like to see?

"There should be a limit on the amount of money, say about $25,000. All the clubs would like to see this, but they are afraid the other clubs will cheat. The real important thing is that a boy should sign with the organization he likes best and with which he has the best opportunity, not the one which offers a few more dollars. No other business operates like baseball and gives out money before it is earned."

Then why did you, bidding for Milwaukee, stay practically all the way in the fantastic $175,000 race to sign Bob Bailey?

"The answer is that nobody is worth that kind of money, but the reason is the competition. You like the boy, and so do the other 19 clubs. The price is raised, and you have to compete. The only way to improve your club is to sign outstanding players."

Doesn't it cause resentment among the established major league veterans, who earn about $17,500 a year, to see a boy signed for $175,000?

"Yes, it definitely has a negative effect. But the thing a scout must be certain of is that the boy who gets that kind of money not only has the physical ability, but also the personality and the desire to be a credit to the game. Bob Bailey fits into this category."

What kind of bonus did Henry Aaron receive from the Braves?

"There was none. He was bought from the Indianapolis Clowns, a Negro team, for $10,000 in 1951. The story goes that Mr. Quinn, then the general manager of the Braves, nearly fell off his chair when the scout told him the price. But the scout insisted Aaron was worth it, and Quinn reluctantly consented to the deal."

Are little leagues good training ground for professional baseball?

"In most cases, yes. The more a boy can play baseball, the better he will be. But regardless of how much he plays, he still must have the tools. You can't train a donkey to win the Kentucky Derby."

Would you advise a boy who isn't certain major league material to continue with his schooling in college?

"The difficulty is that neither the boy or the scout can ever be certain. Normally, it is the wise decision to continue with his education."

Why should a boy sign with you, and Milwaukee, ahead of another club?

"Because we are the best organization. We're a little down in the standings now, but it won't be for long. There's plenty of opportunity for a boy with the Braves."

Are you listening, you future Spahns and Aarons? He isn't waving a fat checkbook, but the man to see is Harry Minor.

Rodriguez in Rough Win Over Moyer

Ex-Champ Stops TV Rival in Ninth

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Piston-punching Luis Rodriguez dropped Denny Moyer with clubbing rights in the eighth and ninth rounds then stopped him in the ninth round on a technical knockout Saturday night in a battle of recently deposed champions at Miami Beach Convention hall.

Referee Billy Regan called a halt to the uneven battle at 1:39 of the ninth after Moyer had gotten up glassy-eyed from his second knockdown, obviously unable to continue.

* * * *

THE CUBAN-BORN Rodriguez, gunning for another shot at the welterweight crown he lost to Emile Griffith June 8 at New York, was a big leader on all cards when he began his devastating attack in the eighth.

He nailed Moyer with four smashing rights to the head in the eighth, the last one sending the Portland junior middleweight down for an eight count. Moyer was wobbly when he got up but the bell saved him from further punishment.

A terrific right in the ninth sent Moyer down again. He regained his feet at the count of five but Regan quickly stepped in to end the fight.

* * * *

RODRIGUEZ, a native of Cuba, was far ahead before the bout ever started. The crowd of 2,618 cheered wildly as Rodriguez pranced to the ring, clad in a silk white robe with a red sash and blue lettering on the back.

Three teen-agers in the crowd became so carried away that they rushed the ring and tried to shake his hand while the announcer was talking but police carted them away.

SWEEP NETS SHORT YARDAGE

New York Giants' fullback Alex Webster gains only two yards as unidentified Detroit tackler (under Webster) and Tom Hall (66) team to make tackle in first-period action in game Saturday in Cleveland. Giants won, 24-21.

LIONS FELLED, 24-21

Tittle, in Reserve Role, Lifts Giants to Last-Period Win

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Y. A. Tittle's pinpoint passing set up three touchdowns as the New York Giants edged the Detroit Lions, 24-21, in the opener of a National Football League doubleheader Saturday night.

In the second game, the Cleveland Browns met the Baltimore Colts before a crowd of close to 80,000.

The 36-year-old Tittle hit on 12 of 20 efforts for 175 yards as he kept the Giants clicking after Ralph Guglielmi was unable to move the club in the first quarter.

The winning touchdown came with 4:43 remaining when rookie Nat Craddock bulled over from the one-yard line to end a 60-yard, nine-play drive.

Early in the third period the Giants defensive unit blocked a field goal attempt and Allan Webb picked up the loose ball and ran 92 yards to give the Giants a 17-7 lead.

The Lions scored first with the second quarter only 1:49 old as fullback Pietrosante went 14 yards in a draw-play to end a 58-yard, four-play drive.

Tittle saw action for the first time with 6:05 remaining in the first half and engineered an 80-yard, eight-play drive that ended as Alex Webster ploughed 15 yards to tie the score.

The Giants went ahead, 10-7, when Don Chandler booted a 34-yard field goal with six seconds remaining in the first half.

the sixth to take a commanding lead.

An error, a walk and Darryl Brumley's third single got Colorado even, then Doctor laid down a squeeze bunt, Dave Koonce was safe on a fielder's choice and Gary Adams singled for the final two runs.

Glenn Butler's triple and Marv Long's long fly gave Greeley an insurance run in the seventh.

IN THE morning game, Las Vegas capitalized on losing pitcher Pat O'Leary's three errors to oust Tucson.

Bryan Karn's single and O'Leary's three-base throwing error gave Las Vegas a 1-0 lead in the first, but Tucson tied it in the fourth when Ed Leon walked, stole second and third and scored on George Cota-Robles' sacrifice fly.

Las Vegas got their decisive run in the fifth when Karn again singled, raced to third when O'Leary threw wild on a sacrifice by Sam Pizzo and scored on Fritz Kreuzer's long fly.

Dennis Daboll limited Arizona batters to four hits while fanning 13. Six walks kept him in constant trouble, but his strikeouts and strong fielding support kept Tucson at bay.

Lakers Open Camp Drills for Rookies

Coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers will get an early look at some of the club's top draft choices and rookie prospects when a week-long rookie camp opens at Loyola University Monday.

SCHAUS

Roger Strickland, 6-5 Little all-America from Jacksonville U., Jim King, 6-2 all-Missouri Valley Conference selection from Tulsa; Mel Gibson, 6-3 Little all-America from Western Carolina College; Warren Sallade, 6-4 Little all-America from Westminster College, Pa., and Gordy Martin, 6-7 shooter from USC, will be among the top rookies on hand. Strickland, King and Gibson were the Lakers first three draft choices.

Schaus will drill the rookies daily in afternoon sessions, then will stage informal scrimmages each evening in company with many of the Laker veterans.

The Lakers open their home schedule this year Oct. 30 against Cincinnati.

Patterson Plans for Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson is looking over the field of European heavyweights with a possible mid-November overseas match in mind after definitely deciding to continue boxing.

The former heavyweight champion received a flood of mail from fans urging him to continue his ring career. Although he said in Las Vegas after his second straight first-round knockout by Sonny Liston that he planned to continue, the mail response was the determining factor.

JULIUS November, Patterson's attorney, said Saturday that Patterson was away for the weekend but had resumed training at his Highland Mills, N. Y., camp earlier in the week.

"Right now Floyd is looking over the field of European heavyweights. He definitely will fight again this year, probably in mid-November."

Wilson Hurls 3 TD Passes as K.C. Wins

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Second year quarterback Eddie Wilson passed for three touchdowns and scored one himself Saturday to lead the Kansas City Chiefs to a 35-21 victory over the Oakland Raiders in an American Football League exhibition game.

The game was played as a benefit for Brian Sternberg, former world record-holder in the pole vault who was seriously injured in a trampoline accident early last month.

A disappointingly small crowd of 13,500 saw Wilson sneak over from the one-yard line for the first Kansas City score, then connect on two touchdown passes to Chris Burford and one to Fred Arbannas.

FIRST LOSS EVER

Chargers Upset by Denver, 31-25

DENVER (UPI)—Veteran quarterback Frank Tripucka's long bombs of 75 and 60 yards carried the Denver Broncos past the San Diego Chargers 31-25 Saturday night. It was San Diego's first defeat in an exhibition game since the start of the American Football League in 1960.

Coach Sid Gillman's Chargers had compiled a record of 14 consecutive exhibition victories over a four-year period.

The 35-year-old Tripucka, in his 15th year of professional football, hit halfback Gene Mingo on a 75-yard touchdown pass in the first play of the second half. Then he spotted flanker Bob Scarpitto on a 60-yard scoring play moments later to give the Broncos a 28-3 lead.

San Diego never led. But the Chargers made a game of it from midway in the third period until the final gun.

and-one plunge by Tom Wilson which gained two yards to the Ram 17.

The Rams had taken the ball on the Viking 40 after a 33-yard punt return by Pervis Atkins. Baker passed to Carroll Dale for 31 and a first down on the 20. But the next three downs picked up only 2 yards and the field goal try ensued.

FOURTH QUARTER

VIKINGS 17, RAMS 3: A Ram drive from their own 34 to the Viking 21 ended disasterously when Arnett, trapped in a zig-zag run behind the line of scrimmage, elected to pass. The ball sailed smack into the hands of Minnesota tackle Don Hultz, and the hulking lineman has had his moment of glory as he roared 68 yards to the Ram 5 before being brought down from behind by Baker.

It took the Vikings two plays to score. Reed turned end for 4 and then drove over center for the touchdown.

VIKINGS 20, RAMS 3: Another interception by Minnesota set up an 18-yard field goal by Cox.

Baker had passed to Phillips for 11 and Arnett for 12 to the Viking 38, but his next pass was picked off by defender Lee Calland who returned the ball to the Ram 36. Tarkenton passed to Reichow for 30 to the Ram 6. The Rams held for three downs, and in came Cox.

VIKINGS 27, RAMS 3: With 20 seconds left, Wilson added insult to injury when the former Ram raced 64 yards for a final Viking touchdown. Momentarily stopped at the line of scrimmage, Wilson bolted through and into daylight. Cox converted.

Packer Defense Stops Dallas, 31-10

DALLAS (UPI) — The champion Green Bay Packers turned interceptions into touchdowns Saturday night and old-timer Lew Carpenter scored twice on short runs in a 31-10 National Football League exhibition victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Carpenter, starting his 10th pro season, scored from the one in the second period after a pass interference call against Mike Gaechter put the ball on the edge of the goal line and then slipped around right end four yards for a fourth period score.

Ron Kramer snared a 19-yard scoring pass from quarterback Bart Starr in the first period and Elijah Pitts had a two-yard touchdown push in the second period.

Gary Kroner booted a nine-yard field goal in the final period.

McKinley, Ralston Maul Mexico

U.S. Leads Davis Cup Zone Play

By BOB MARTIN

Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston, full of fight from the first point until the last one, smashed Mexico's famed doubles team of Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox in straight sets Saturday to give the United States a 2-1 lead in their American Zone Davis Cup competition.

The victory, before a capacity crowd at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, was achieved in just an hour and 15 minutes by the score of 6-1, 6-3, 8-6.

As a result of the triumph over the reigning Wimbledon and U.S. doubles champions, America's hopes of avenging last year's 3-2 loss to Mexico are, of course, much brighter than they were at the end of Friday's 1-1 split in singles.

• • • •

RALSTON will take on Osuna in today's first singles event at 1 o'clock in a dramatic match pitting USC roommates against each other.

A Ralston victory would clinch the series for the United States, but, even if he loses, America's chances will be bright. For McKinley will be paired against Palafox in the final match, and the aggressive Chuck never has lost to Antonio in nine singles meetings.

McKinley was sensational in the doubles Saturday and he was ably abetted by Ralston, who did not hit as many spectacular shots as his partner but set up many of them with excellent serves and service returns.

Chuck, "trying to show what he's made of" (in the words of team captain Bob Kelleher) after a disappointing upset loss to Osuna in Friday's singles, was magnificent in nearly every phase of the game Saturday.

He excited the crowd particularly with his many hard-hit and sharply angled volleys and by running around serves to his backhand and slamming them back for winners with tremendous forehand drives.

• • • •

THE TRIUMPH was perhaps even sweeter to Ralston, for a year ago in Mexico City Ralston's service collapsed in the only cup match in which he particiapted and he and McKinley bowed to Osuna-Palafox in five sets.

Dennis had 18 double faults that day and lost his service six times, but Saturday he had only three doubles and both he and McKinley won all their services, many with ease.

Palafox, who had made far too many errors in losing to Ralston in singles, continued to be off his game in the doubles. Osuna was below par, too, in the first set, but performed skillfully in the last two.

"This is Palafox' worst Davis Cup tennis ever," said Mexican captain Pancho Contreras of the 27-year-old cup veteran from Guadalajara. "Tony is in a slump and has a mental tiredness."

Contreras said he thought the recent death of Palafox's father might have something to do with it.

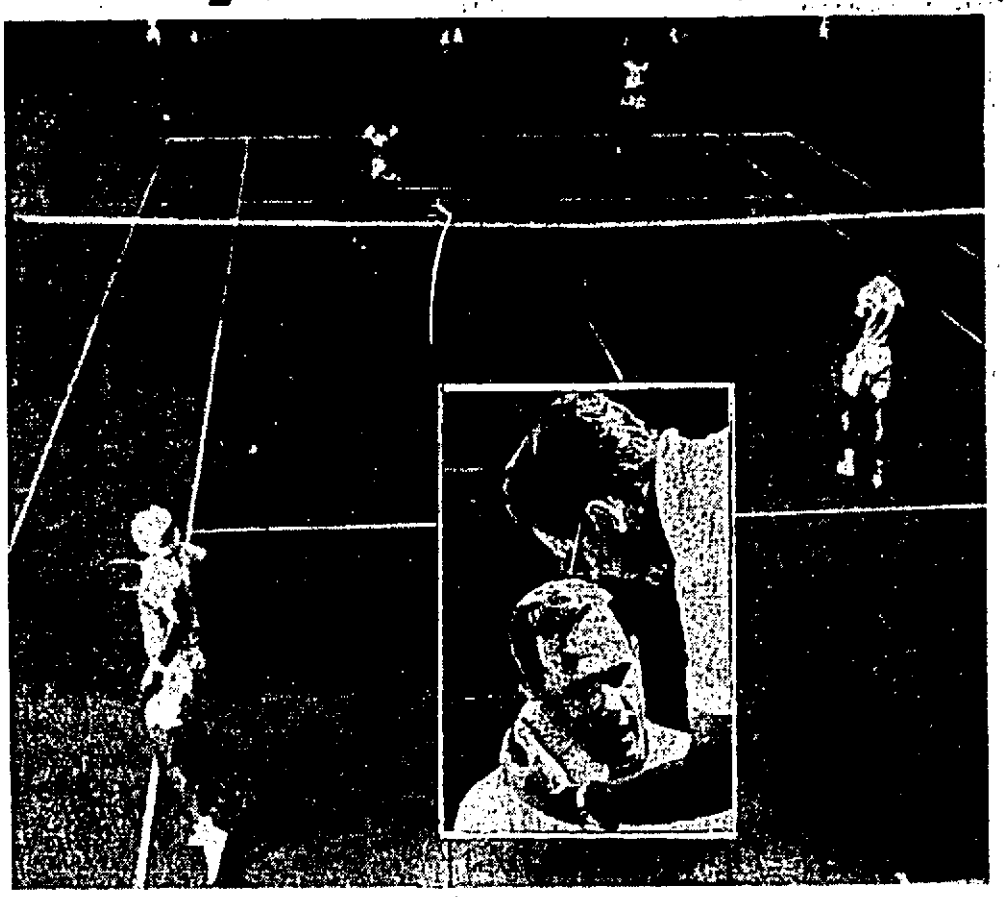

• • • •

BUT THE Mexican captain was not ready to concede victory to the United States.

"Osuna should beat Ralston," he said. "Then anything can happen in the fifth match. I've seen many a big upset. A player can be in a slump like Mickey Mantle one day and then hit a homer the next. I hope Tony hits a home run Sunday."

Warren Triumphant

Jim Warren in the Warren-Coburn-Warren fuel dragster took the top honors before 11,000 fans at Lions Drag Strip Saturday. His time was 166.40 mph in 8.13 seconds. Danny Marks took the No. 1 eliminator with a top run of 161.29 in 9.29.

IT WAS A HOT DAY FOR U.S. COURT STARS

Chuck McKinley, left foreground, of U.S. Davis Cup team makes backhand return across court during Saturday's American zone semifinals competition at L.A. Tennis Club. He and his doubles partner, Dennis Ralston, beat Mexico's team of Rafael Osuna, left, and Antonio Palafox in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, 8-6, to take 2-1 lead. With temperature over 105 degrees on court, McKinley is sponged off by non-playing team captain Bob Kelleher.

U.S. LEADS JAPAN, 21-6

Californians Schollander, Saari Splash Way to World Records

TOKYO (UPI)—A powerful American swimming team set two new world records as it took a commanding 21-6 lead over the Japanese in the pre-Olympic-year three-day dual swimming meet Saturday.

Seventeen-year-old Don Schollander of Santa Clara, Calif., splashed his way to a new world mark of 1:58.5 in the 200-meter freestyle.

• • • •

MINUTES later 18-year-old Roy Saari of El Segundo, Calif., astonished a crowd of 8,000 spectators at the 50-meter outdoor Meiji pool by shattering Australian Jon Konrads' world mark of 17:11 in the 1,500-meter freestyle with a clocking 17:05.5.

The Americans also swept the 400-meter medley relay and Carl Robie, an 18-year-old Yank from the University of Michigan, upset heavily favored Shigeo Fukushima in the 400-meter individual medley.

200-Meter freestyle — Don Schollander (U.S.) 1:58.5 (world record; listed record 2:00.1 by Bob Windle, Australia), Richard McDonough (U.S.) 2:00.4, Ed Townsend (U.S.) 2:01.3.

1,500-meter indiv. medley — Carl Robie (U.S.) 4:32.8, Richard Roth (U.S.) 4:54.4, Shigeo Fukushima 4:55.5.

INVITATION IGNORED

Russians Bypass U.S. Doubles

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Mexico's Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox will defend their men's championship at the 83rd USLTA National Doubles tennis tournament which opens today—apparently without the Russians.

Russian officials had said they would make their debut in the event if the USLTA would finance the trip. The latter body gave the project the green light but when Moscow did not reply to the invitation the draw was made up without the Soviets.

Osuna and Palafox, fresh from their Davis Cup matches with the top American pair of Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston, may well meet them again in the title match a week hence.

The U.S. tandem won two years ago but lost in five sets to Osuna and Palafox 12 months ago.

Darlene Hard, No. 1 American women's competitor who starred in the Wightman Cup sweep of England, will defend the distaff crown with partner Maria Bueno of Brazil.

This pair has won 20 straight tournaments.

Veteran campaigner Gardnar Mulloy of Miami is back to defend in the senior men's. But this time his partner will be a familiar figure from his younger days—Billy Talbert of New York. Talbert is eligible for the senior division for the first time this year.

Commerce Holds Huge Swim Lead

City of Commerce Swim Club held a commanding 81½-point lead into the final day of competition in the Junior Olympic swim meet today at Mayfair pool in Lakewood.

Sammy Lee (218), Lakewood Y Tarpons (122) and Lakewood Dolphins (107½) rank behind Commerce.

Three national Junior Olympic and five Southern Pacific Association records were broken in the third day of action Saturday.

Nitehawks Shoot for State Crown

By CHUCK MEDICK

The moment of glory for the Long Beach Nitehawks may come tonight when they battle Downey in the finals of the state softball tournament at Park Avenue Field. Starting time is 7:30.

Downey advanced to the finals via a 2-0 win over Culver City, which had beaten Pomona, 1-0, in the opener on a no-hitter by Gale Wood. His homer won the game.

Long Beach is the only unbeaten team remaining and thereby could lose one game tonight, win the second and still wind up with the title and another trip to Rock Island, Illinois, for the national championships.

• • • •

EDDIE Waymire probably will get the starting call from manager Joe Rodgers. Leroy Zimmerman and Jack Randall will be ready in case Waymire falters.

The Nitehawks, who won this tournament last year, have received timely hitting from most everyone in their lineup and a continuance of this should produce another crown.

Should the Nitehawks win, there will be a fund-raising game Wednesday at Park Avenue Field against a major opponent yet to be named.

L.A. Aquas Win; Triple by Johnson

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI)—Robyn Johnson, 17-year-old whirlwind from Arlington, Va., Saturday became the only triple winner at the 1963 national AAU senior swimming and diving championships, but had to share the spotlight with a record-breaking medley team from Los Angeles, which won the team title.

Robyn, swimming for Northern Virginia Aquatic Club, collected her third gold medal with her win in the 200-meter freestyle over defending champion Carolyn House of the Los Angeles Club, a triple winner in 1962 who failed to win a single individual event here this year.

The young Virginian was clocked at 2:15.6 in the 200-meter event. That was a full second off the American and national records set by Miss House in the 1962 meet in Chicago. Robyn won the 400-meter freestyle Friday in 4:46.8 and successfully defended her 100-meter freestyle championship Thursday.

• • • •

SHARING the spotlight with Robyn was the 400-meter medley relay team from the Los Angeles Athletic Club which toppled both the American club and national senior records in that event. The team was composed of Cathy Ferguson, Cindy Ford, Marsie Templeton and Miss House.

The fleet mermaids were clocked in 4:44.4 which shattered by 3.1 seconds the American and national mark set last year by the Vesper Swim Club of Philadelphia.

Bennett and Sinclair each won two events, but earned their third records by better times in trial heats. This being a first-ever meet, all top times were records.

JOANNE Netzinger was the biggest pointmaker, winning four events in the 16-18 class, but she had little or no competition.

Butts' Case Goes to Jury This Week

Officials All Rap Character as 'Bad'

ATLANTA (UPI)—One-by-one the top officials of the University of Georgia — including its president — took the witness stand in the trial of Wallace Butts' $10 million libel suit against the Saturday Evening Post.

To each official, Post attorney Welborn Cody put this question: "do you know the character of Wallace Butts?"

Each witness in his turn replied "yes."

"Based on that knowledge, would you say it was good or bad?" Cody asked.

The answer in each case was "bad."

The officials also testified they would not believe the word of Butts under oath.

• • • •

THROUGH IT all, Butts, former head football coach and athletic director at Georgia, sat in stony silence, staring blankly at the witnesses. Occasionally he would blink his eyes. The Butts family—wife and three grown daughters — sat behind the plaintiff.

Butts had known these men for many years, and in the close circle of university life at Athens had been on intimate terms with some of them. Now they were all in a federal courtroom, facing each other from the opposite sides of a lawsuit, with Butts' reputation as a respected member of society and of the football coaching profession riding on the outcome.

This was the scene as testimony drew to an end in the Butts libel suit trial that has stretched over two weeks in the courtroom of federal judge Lewis R. Morgan.

Monday, both sides will complete their closing arguments, Morgan will deliver his charge and the drawn-out, bitterly fought case will go to the 12-man jury.

Riding Out an Alberta Storm

VANCOUVER, B. C. (Delayed) — When old Mother Nature huffs, puffs and hisses in this country, she does it so vociferously that you wonder if you'll survive, especially when you are riding with 42 other persons in an old C46 aircraft, the famed two-engined plane that flew the China Hump in World War II.

We left Great Bear Lake in a normal takeoff and had good weather beyond Fort Smith, which lies on the border of Northwest Territories and Alberta. Then a weather front 50 miles deep and up to 85,000 feet high just seemed to dare the old C46 to give it a try. And TRY was what the crew did.

Lightning forks were streaking to earth all around the old ship which was bumping and bouncing like a cork in white-water rapids. We descended from 9,000 to 4,000 feet and still the electrical display continued, along with the noisy bumping and bouncing.

It was a 30-minute ride that the 40 passengers and even three members of the Pacific Western crew will remember for a long time. Even though the C46 developed leaks in the roof, it came through like a champ.

Sounds dangerous, you ask. No more than the weather fronts which prop-plane pilots in the United States contend with in the Midwest, South and over the Rockies.

IT PROVED ONCE AGAIN to me that when you make trips in the northern bush country, the fliers don't take unnecessary chances. However, when the chips are down and skill is needed, they have what it takes to get from Great Bear Lake to Edmonton, or wherever you may be traveling.

Reviewing the fishing at the lake, E. E. Roberts, Dearborn, Mich., continued to hold the leadership with his 41½-pound mackinaw trout. Fish-of-the-day charts, kept at Great Bear Lodge by operator Bill Haerr, showed these weights for the six days of fishing: 24¾, 25¾, 18¾, 41½, 23½ and 31½.

Harry Hargraves, Santa Monica, was the winner two days, and 15-year-old Ed Dossen, Burbank, with his 31½-pound fish on the final day, was about the happiest angler in camp. Ed, as I previously reported, caught the first whitefish ever taken in Great Bear. It weighed 7¼ pounds, a giant for that species.

Hal Baum, Long Beach, finally got his name on the fish-of-the-day chart with a 3-pound grayling, one that matched my first day's catch. There were larger grayling, however, two of which weighed the same—3½ pounds.

No record was kept of northern pike, which are not too plentiful at Great Bear. One Detroit angler made a side trip to Tree River and got the largest char, 16½ pounds.

THERE WAS NO RHYME nor reason for fish weights at Great Bear. For instance, Roberts' 4½-pounder measured 48½ inches in length and 24¾ in girth. Young Ed Dossen's 31½-pounder was 50 inches long and 20½ in girth.

Without good guides, fishermen could draw blanks at Great Bear. The fish had to be found every day, proving that they were on the prowl for food and spawning grounds much of the time.

Haerr has done such a swell job in training guides that Great Bear Lodge has become famous for its fishing standards and sanitation.

It was a joy to watch our guide, Andre Dolphus, cook lunch (fish always), then scour the utensils until they were mirror-bright. Andre is a second-generation guide at Great Bear. His father, Vic, still tops the 20 guides who spend two months at Great Bear, then move back to Fort Franklin at the start of September.

As for lures, we found that Dardevles of several weights and colors were the most effective. Bob Vernon, my fishing partner, used a red and white Seadevle that was a certain killer for macks. I had one of the same size in orange with black dots that worked almost as well.

Small Dardevles and Abu-Reflex lures were best for grayling. Those who tried fly-fishing found that strong winds did too many tricks to them.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that already Haerr is working on 1964 camp problems. He has ordered the fuel which will be barged in by way of the Bear River, with 9 portage and transfer to another barge, which will take it across the lake after the spring ice breakup.

The staff of Arctic Enterprises also is busy with next year's reservation list. This is handled through Mrs. L. Gordon, office manager, Great Bear Lodge, 829 S. Phillips Ave., Sioux Falls, S.D. Brochures are available for the asking.

Getting back to the wild flight in the storm, the passengers didn't exactly fall on their faces and kiss the ground at Edmonton, but they were happy to see it, believe me!

The next day's journey brought us to Vancouver in one hour and 40 minutes via Trans-Canada's famous Vanguard.

The Vanguard is a prop-jet airliner capable of carrying 121 persons. It is similar in some respects to Western Airlines' Electra. The flight from Edmonton directly across the Canadian Rockies, the Rocky Mountain Trench and then the Selkirk Range defies description.

Also, by way of concluding today's column, I'd like to add that TCA has very beautiful stewardesses. Somebody in TCA really knows how to pick them. And the girls are extremely polite and constantly solicitous of their passengers' needs and comforts. In a word, they are terrific!

Modern Golfers Swing Too Hard--Lord Byron

NEW YORK (AP)—It's not so much the swing that sets modern day golfers apart from the former stars of the game, says ex-king Byron Nelson, it's the rhythm.

"When I was playing regularly we hardly ever hit a ball hard," Nelson said. "We tried to play in a rhythmic pattern, usually well within our capacities. When we were going good we were probably never as good as some of the fellows are today but when we were a bit off we never hit the kinds of slump they do now.

"I think that's the answer to why a fellow like Arnold Palmer needs a rest now and then. It's difficult to see how you can keep up that 'hit it hard' pace week after week."

Michigan Names Lightweight King

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP)—Confident Paul Armstead and a determined Kenny Lane will meet in Saginaw's Veterans' Memorial Park Monday night for what is billed here as the lightweight boxing championship.

Armstead, the California lightweight king, said on his arrival in Michigan last week that Lane was "a little bit over the hill" and boasted, "I could beat him the best day he ever saw."

Lane, who wants to become the first left-handed lightweight champion in history, refused to comment on Armstead's remarks, adding he'll prove he's as good as he ever was when the two climb through the ropes. Lane is 31, Armstead 26.

Whether or not the winner of the bout will be recognized as the champion in other states remains to be seen.

The World Boxing Association stripped Carlos Ortiz of the lightweight crown, then decided to give him a hearing at its Miami Beach convention this weekend.

David I. Gudelsky, chairman of the Michigan Athletic Board of Control, withdrew Michigan from the WBA after it refused to force a title bout between Lane and Ortiz. The WBA's action against Ortiz followed Michigan's departure.

• • • •

GUDELSKY sanctioned the 13-round bout as a world title contest and tried unsuccessfully to get other states to recognize the winner as champion.

Armstead had a few words on the Ortiz situation himself.

"Titles should be won and lost in the ring," he said, "but Ortiz was making such impossible demands for a title fight that nobody could make the bout. He was just ducking. He didn't want to fight me, or Lane, either."

Gunderson After 4th National Am

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — JoAnne Gunderson, whose tremendous driving power is akin to that of professional Mickey Wright will be seeking her fourth title at the tender age of 24 when the 1963 Women's National Amateur Golf Campionship opens here Monday.

The Providence, R.I., defending champion will share the spotlight with Anne Quast Welts of Seattle, and Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, Colo. The trio has dominated this event for the past six years.

Miss Gunderson won in 1957 and 1960 as well as last year. Anne Quast won in 1958 and 1961 while Miss McIntire captured the honors in 1959.

The site of this year's competition is picturesque Taconic Country Club in this small western Massachusetts college town nestled in the Berkshire Mountains. Match play is scheduled through Saturday.

Wright Retains 3-Shot Lead in Swing Parade

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Defending champion Mickey Wright shot par golf Saturday to maintain a three-stroke lead in the $11,000 Albuquerque Swing Parade at the end of 36 holes.

Her two-day card of 69-72—141 put the Dallas golfer in front of second-place Jackie Pung of Daly City, Calif., who had two even-par rounds of 72 for a 144 total.

• • • •

A HIGH wind late in the day at the Paradise Hills Country Club Course hampered late finishers. The best round of the day was a two-under par 70, fired by Marilynn Smith of Tequesta, Fla.

Miss Smith hit 15 greens and sank two 45-foot birdie putts. That was good for a tie for third place with Peggy Wilson of Austin, Tex., who skidded to a 76 after an opening round of 71, and Joanne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., who had rounds of 73 and 72 for her 145.

Miss Wright, who scored a hole-in-one Friday on the 16th hole, said after her round Saturday that she was happy with a par. She had three bogeys and was unable to sink any long putts.

Ace Aids Bayer to Golf Lead

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Big George Bayer, aided by a hole-in-one his second this season—zoomed into the third round lead in the $40,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 12-under-par 201.

The six-foot-five, 240-pound Bayer fired his ace on the 214-yard, par-3 ninth hole to go 11-under, and increase his margin while coming in despite a strong cross wind. His three-round scores are 69-65-67 on the par 35-36—71 Wethersfield Country Club Course.

• • • •

BIG GEORGE, who will be 38 next month, leads Lionel Hebert by two strokes and Wes Ellis, the pacesetter in the first and second rounds, by three.

Bayer, who collected four birdies in addition to his ace, said he was "just trying to hit the ninth green."

Record High for Purses

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Despite suggestions that the PGA golf tour should be curtailed to give the top stars an occasional rest, pro golfers will be playing for the highest purses ever this fall. And few of them are likely to skip many stops.

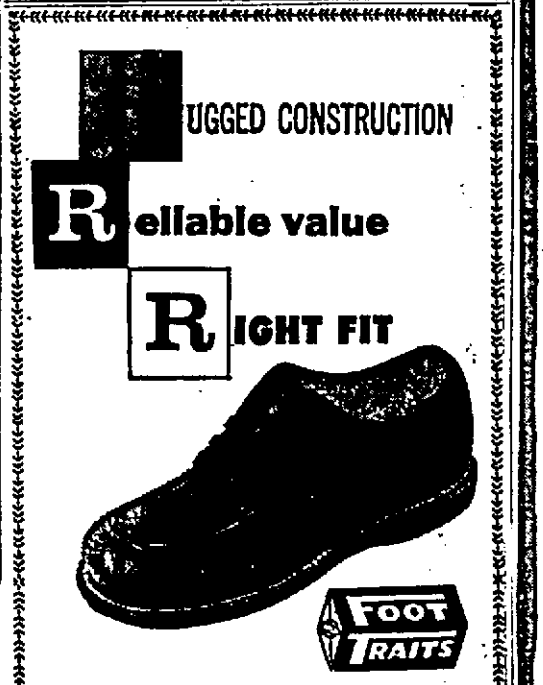

Nine official tournaments, with a total of $422,500 in prize money, plus the biennial Ryder Cup matches against Britain, make up the major part of the fall tour.

That is $105,777.77 more than the 1962 fall prize money although the schedule has been reduced by three official and five unofficial events. The year's total will be $3,344,602.77 in official and unofficial money, $256,832.77 more than in 1962.

EX-VIKE TRAINER

Meyer Named Coach of LBCC Backfield

By KEN PIVERNETZ

New to the Long Beach City College football staff this fall is Jon Meyer, who will serve as backfield coach.

Meyer replaces Phil Krueger, who resigned to accept a similar position at Utah State.

Last year Meyer served as trainer for all the varsity sports at LBCC. He has been a physical education instructor on both the Liberal Arts and BTD campuses since 1960.

MEYER

An all-city selection in football at quarterback and in basketball while at Wilson, Meyer received his higher education at Whittier and Stanford.

In 1959 he coached the Millikan B basketball team to the Moore League championship and compiled a 19-1 won-loss record.

Meyer's selection rounds out the Viking staff that includes Jim Stangeland (head), Rollie Eilerts (line) and Joe Lanning (ends).

• • • •

NORSE CODE: Stangeland looks for about 80 candidates to turn out for the first day of drills Sept. 3. Seven lettermen are returning . . . Biggest job will be to replace Bill James and Mike Giers in the line. . . . First game is Sept. 28 at Vets Stadium against Glendale College.

After a lapse of 11 years, Jaycee football will be back on TV this fall with a full slate of 10 games over channel 13, starting Sept. 28 with the Santa Ana, Calif., game from Azusa Eastern Conference and Western States Conference teams will be featured since the Metro loop voted against televising of its games. . . . KNXT will televise the Jaycee Rose Bowl coast to coast (blackout here) for the first time this year.

Thirty-year-old Santa Ana Bowl has been torn down and construction is now under way on the $744,000 Santa Ana City Bowl on the same grounds. . . . The stadium will seat 15,000 and will be ready by Oct. 1. . . . Santa Ana College, Santa Ana High, Santa Ana Valley and Mater Dei high schools will use the field.

NATIVE DIVER RUNS LAST

Sledge Surprises in Crosby

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—Trainer Bill Reavis, a guy who has been playing the role of "giant killer" in West Coast stakes races all year long, added another dragon to his booty Saturday when he sent out the Dee Dee Stable's Sledge to a surprise win in the $15,975 Bing Crosby Handicap.

Slain in the wake of the 1:08⅗ sizzler for six furlongs turned in by Sledge was the world record holder at the distance, Crazy Kid, who finished fourth, and the 4-5 favorite with the crowd of 19,415, Native Diver. He failed to raise a gallop and finished last in the field that was reduced to six starters with the mid-afternoon declaration of Rapido.

Sledge was never really clear at any stage of the journey, in spite of the fact he was virtually a wire-to-wire winner. Dogging him to the quarter in :21⅘ was Crazy Kid—he hung on to the half that Sledge rattled off in :44⅕. Then Testum took up the fight and fought Sledge right to the wire before losing a half-length decision.

The home you buy may belong to a baby...not to you!

If a minor once owned the property and his guardian sold it without proper court approval, your title will be clouded—and your ownership rights can be challenged.

Safeguard your investment. Do it the same way millions of California home owners have done it—with a title policy issued by Title Insurance and Trust Company. This is protection you can depend on. That's because T.I. is best qualified to investigate the history of California real estate. The proof is in complete up-to-date land records, America's largest staff of title specialists, and experience that dates back to 1893. Meet Your
NORM ISAACS
DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE
"Value-Rated Used Cars"
1090 Long Beach Blvd. HE 6-9624

Norm Isaacs is an old timer in this business; 16 years in the Long Beach area; since 1954 with C. Standlee Martin Oldsmobile; which, since June 1960 to the present, has been DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE.

"Thirty to forty per cent of DICK BROWNING OLDSMOBILE business," says Norm, "is repeat or referral. We hold this record as our claim to many satisfied customers. I believe this is true because of the choice selection of cars, carefully reconditioned, VALUE-RATED pricing, and a realistic warranty. We have recently TRIPLED our used car department at 1090 Long Beach Blvd., diagonally across the street from our new Oldsmobile showroom at 1227 L. B. Blvd. On our new 200-ft. frontage location we are offering a much wider selection of cars and much better service. We invite your inspection real soon."

Norm talks about everything but himself, so we must say that he is a solid Rossmoor citizen, with a lovely family, wife NADEANE, and children, Sandy, Tim and Gary.

TUGS RUSH TO MEND BREAK IN LINE
A harbor dredging project is a long, night and day operation and expensive. So when there's a line break as in above photo tugs rush in quickly to restore normal flow of "fill" sand. Figuring operational cost at $21 per minute, Don Graham, construction chief, is understandably concerned as he looks at watch (inset photo).

BIG DREDGE IN LONG BEACH HARBOR HAS CUTTER UP AND CHURNING

There's Drama in Harbor as Big Dredge Helps Build Pier

By ED KENYON

There was a sudden geyser of water off the stern of the giant dredging barge anchored in Long Beach Harbor.

A three-mile-long pipeline carrying sand dredged from the harbor floor at the rate of 3,000 cubic yards an hour was out of operation.

Air pressure forcing the sand through the pipeline had popped the bolts holding two sections of pipe together.

"There are 10 bolts on each connection, and they're two and a half inches thick," commented Don Graham, superintendent for Construction Aggregates Corp.

• • • •

THE COMPANY operates the dredger Sensibar Bros., which is digging out 33 million cubic yards of sand to create Pier J, a 310-acre finger of land jutting out into the outer reaches of the harbor.

Graham watched as two small tugs raced over to pick up one end of the ruptured line, then began towing it back to the section that extended from the stern of the dredger.

Minutes after the break, workmen were scrambling over the floats holding up the pipe, attaching new bolts in place.

• • • •

"WHEN YOU FIGURE it costs us $21 a minute to keep this operation going," you can see why we're in a hurry," remarked Graham.

Speedy repair work is an important part of the 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week operation to complete the largest man-made pier ever built in time to use it as the site for the World's Fair in 1967.

Target date for completing the dredging operation is Jan. 1, 1965.

• • • •

GRAHAM POINTED to the shaft driving the cutter, which chews up and digests the hard sand on the harbor floor.

"That shaft is 18 inches in diameter, and it's high carbon steel," he said, "But with 7,000 horsepower driving it, that shaft can snap off like a matchstick—and it has several times."

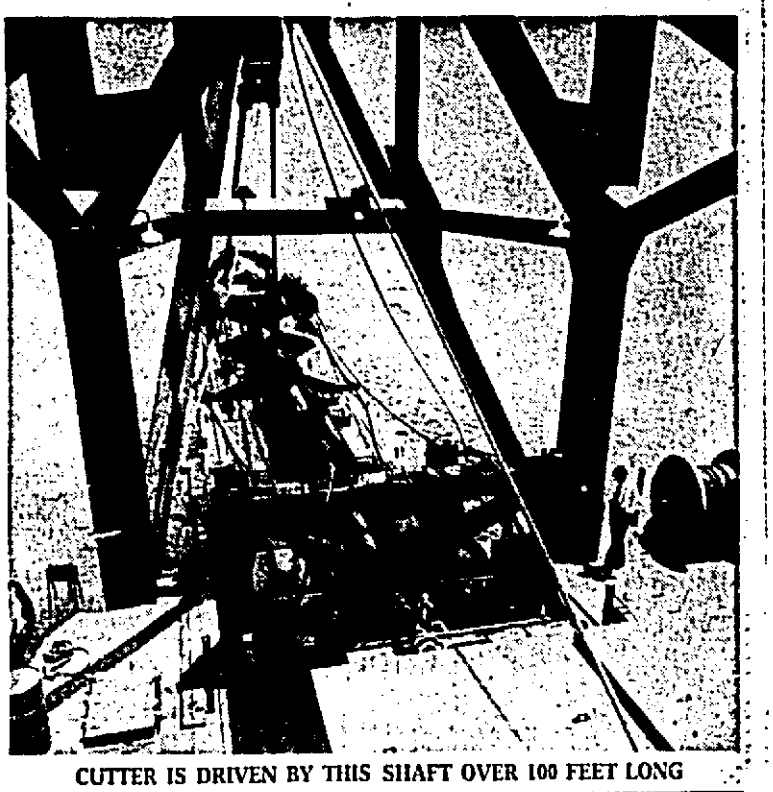

Aside from these breakdowns, the 75 men employed in the operation have to make regular once-a-week changes of the cutter itself.

"We take the cutter off and have it sharpened for re-use," said Graham. "It costs us $2,000 every time we do. Considering that the cutter costs $22,000, that's cheap enough."

Graham turned again to look at the workmen repairing the pipeline break. They were tightening the last bolt.

Moments later the giant engines aboard the dredger (they develop up to 18,000 horsepower) were rumbling again. A steady flow of sand was pouring through the 36-inch diameter pipeline.

Graham smiled. "It'll be close," he said, "but we'll have it done on schedule."

Hail National Home Week; Opens Sept. 8

The 16th annual National Home Week—stellar event of the year for the home building industry—will be celebrated Sept. 8 through 15, with a dazzling display of thousands of new homes in every part of the country.

More than million persons are expected to inspect the impressive new homes to see the delights they offer in greater comfort, pleasure and convenience.

The event, which is the housing industry's equivalent of the annual auto show or the clothing industry's display of new fall fashions, is sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders and its local affiliated associations throughout the nation.

• • • •

THEY HAVE the assistance and support of other elements of the housing industry, including banks and other mortgage lenders, suppliers of materials that go into new homes, nationally known manufacturers, and subcontractors.

National Home Week will be sponsored in Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties by the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, affiliated association of the National Association of Home Builders.

More than 500 model homes, most of them completely furnished, will be presented by builder members of the HBA as the major feature of the National Home Week in the three county area, reports Ray A. Watt, HBA president.

• • • •

"HOME BUILDERS this year again in Southern California offer the best values for the money in the history of the home building industry," Watt said.

"Southland homes provide more in efficiency, liveability, beauty, and ease of maintenance this year. Also records for the past 10 years show that a good home is one of the best investments you can make. Good homes have steadily increased in value $500 a year for many years."

Prospective home buyers will have an opportunity during the week to see the fine features of a variety of homes in many price brackets. They will find that today's new home is larger and provides more space for the money than at any time in history.

They will find, too, that 1963's new homes contain more automatic, electrical, and mechanical equipment to make life easier, have better insulation to reduce heating and cooling bills, and have more luxury finishes both inside and outside.

Gold's Building Torrance Store

TORRANCE — Construction was started the past week on a new Torrance store for Gold's Furniture and Appliances at the interesection of Artesia and Hawthorne boulevards.

Herman Halpert, operations manager for the firm, said the new two-story structure will contain more than 40,000 square feet of shopping area.

Located opposite the South Bay Shopping Center, just west of the San Diego Freeway, the new Torrance store will be the sixth operated by the 44-year-old retail firm in Southern California.

That '45 Advice No Good; Walker, Lee Story Ample Proof

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Despite dire warnings of "Don't stay — get out! In six months Lakewood will be a ghost town!" they stayed — and now they are recognized as the largest residential sales firm in the world.

It was back in 1945 following World War II that the real estate firm of Walker & Lee, Inc., was getting this advice. But because the organizers still had the daring and vision which had brought them to Lakewood in 1941, they remained, and expanded.

DeWITT LEE

Gross sales set a record exceeding $100 million last year; and soared to $56 million in the first half of 1963.

This pioneer real estate firm, which originated Lakewood City and many of the annexed sections in East Long Beach, has handled more than 50,000 sales since '41, with 4,515 homes sold in 1962 alone.

Heading the company today is one of its founders, DeWitt R. Lee.

Three major reasons are seen by Lee as contributing to the firm's great growth.

1. "Anyone, individual or a corporation, to be a success in real estate sales must keep before him the fact that he is selling service, not homes. The sales that take place are a result of services rendered."

2. Managerial system, adopted in 1951. Said Lee: "It would be impossible for us to grow or to continue today if it was not for our management team, given specific responsibilities coupled with commensurate authority.

"This management team today totals 30 of the finest men in real estate."

3. Training program. "We prefer new licensees," Lee commented, "and over the years we have developed an on-the-job training program which permits the trainee to competently serve his clients within his first month. Actually, our training program is a constant one and just as necessary to our growth as our daily advertising."

LEE ADDED that "An outstanding example of our management team and our training program is

Old World Style Chosen for Convention Ballroom

NEWPORT BEACH — Jamboree Hall, new 1,000-seat convention and banquet ballroom under construction at the Newporter Inn, will be designed in the authentic Spanish Mediterranean old world style, it was announced Saturday by owner George D. Buccola.

"The separate 12,000 sq. ft. building at the entrance to the multi-million dollar Inn will have iron gates, wrought iron chandeliers, fine paintings, terazzo flooring and white and gold drapes," Buccola added.

• • • •

"WE HAVE DECIDED to turn the hall into the showplace of Orange County," said Buccola. "It will contain the finest lighting equipment and soundproofing. It is being designed for elegant balls, banquets, private meetings and parties, theatrical productions."

Jamboree Hall will seat 1,017 people theater-style and will contain the newest convention and exhibition equipment available. The building will have a portable stage, backstage area and dressing rooms.

Completion date is scheduled for early October. Jamboree Hall is part of the $22 million dollar expansion program which will triple the facilities and grounds at the Inn.

Hope Buys at Elsinore

ELSINORE—Comedian Bob Hope has purchased an 841 acre horse ranch from actor Audia Murphy in a million dollar deal, according to Adolpho Perez, ranch manager.

The land lies between Railroad Canyon Road and Murieta Road and is adjacent to Del Webb's Sun City retirement project.

Hope reportedly plans to get thoroughbred horses from New Zealand this fall for his ranch breeding program.

University May Buy 510 Acres From Irvine Co.

The 1,000-acre University of California Irvine campus, in the Corona del Mar hills, Newport Beach, may be enlarged by purchase of 510 acres from Irvine Co., which donated the campus property.

Brad Atwood, community affairs representative for UCI, disclosed that the acreage proposed to be acquired by the university would be for faculty housing.

He said it is part of 660 acres earmarked by Irvine Co. planners as a housing areas aimed primarily for university professors and lecturers. Atwood said that no price has been talked—and no agreement has been reached on purchase — but the negotiations are under way.

The UCI campus is due to be opened in September 1965 for 1,000 students. The campus expects 27,500 students maximum enrollment by 1990.

INDUSTRIAL PREDICTION!

Remote Control Operation Seen in Factory of Future

The manufacturing plant of the future will be a totally unmanned, completely automated facility operated by remote controls, in the opinion of Frank L. Whitney, designer of industrial facilities and president of Walter Kidde Constructors, Inc., New York, engineers and builders.

Whitney predicts that tomorrow's plants will be characterized by the ultimate step in the industrial revolution — the complete separation of men and machines.

Plant designers, he says will plan two distinct types of facilities: centralized control centers and decentralized manufacturing plants combined with distribution centers.

• • • •

FOR EXAMPLE, a company may locate its manufacturing plants in such widespread cities as San Francisco, Birmingham, Ala., and Hartford, Conn.; and all three plants may be governed from a single control center located in a Chicago skyscraper.

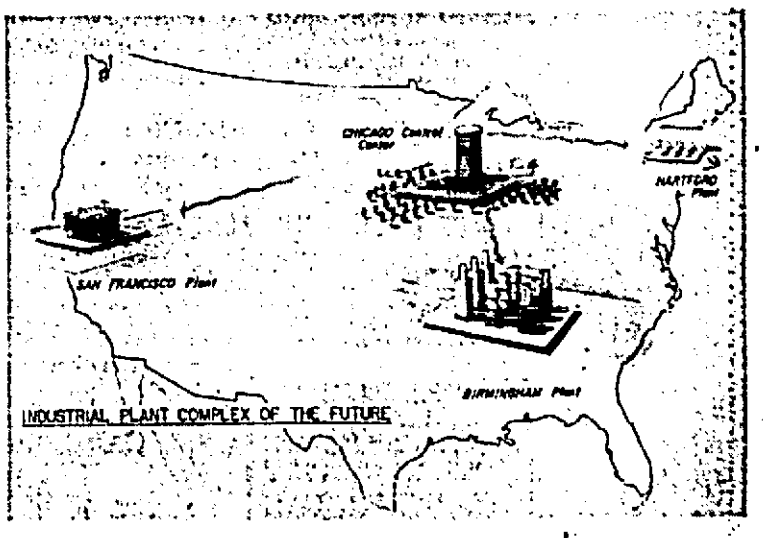

The centralized control center will house all technical, managerial and clerical employes who will operate the manufacturing plants by remote electronic controls. Other than these sophisticated devices, control centers will house none of the machinery of production.

• • • •

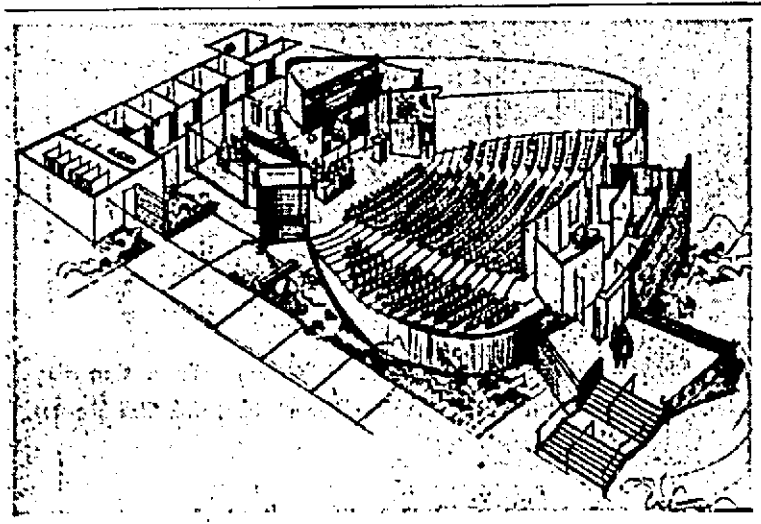

MANUFACTURING plants, on the other hand, will require the services of virtually no personnel except for a small maintenance staff.

Whitney believes that despite advanced automation, the industrial complex of the future will require as many, if not more, employes than

LONG DISTANCE MANUFACTURING
Plant of the future concept shows unmanned, totally automated production facilities in San Francisco, Birmingham and Hartford operated from a single control center in Chicago. All company personnel, except for small maintenance staffs, would be housed in control center. Futuristic facility is envisioned by Frank L. Whitney, engineer and builder.

Architect's cutaway view of Orange Coast College's new science hall shows 374-seat amphitheater (center), preparation rooms (left), rear screen projection and television room (left center), and laboratory assistant's room (right). The $233,846 building will be ready by spring.

C of C Film Series Will Show Operation Abolition

"Operation Abolition," the controversial 45-minute filmstrip depicting the riots which took place on the steps of San Francisco's City Hall in May of 1960, will highlight the 11th week of Liberty Theater presentations, beginning Monday.

The film, which was taken as the House Committee on Un-American Activities conducted its hearings on Communist activities inside the City Hall, has been viewed by millions of Americans throughout the United States.

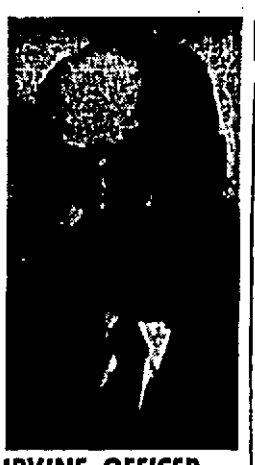

Sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Liberty Theater presentations are shown weekly at three locations: on Mondays in the Alice Birney Auditorium at 710 Spring St.; on Tuesdays in the Patrick Henry Auditorium at 3720 Canehill Ave.; and on Wednesdays in the J. H. McGaugh Auditorium at Bolsa and Bay Avenues in Seal Beach.

• • • •

OTHER FILMS on next week's program with "Operation Abolition" will be "Challenge to Citizenship," "A Citizen's Responsibility," and "It's Your Decision" (Part II).

The concluding series of films will be shown Aug. 26-27-28.

Further information on Liberty Theater filmstrips may be obtained by phoning the Chamber's Public Affairs Division.

IRVINE OFFICER

Mark R. Sullivan of San Francisco has been elected to board of directors of Irvine Co. to fill vacancy created by resignation of Robert H. Gerdes. Sullivan is retired president of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Automation Era Seen in Industry

current facilities. "The main difference," he said, "is that the color of the worker's shirt will change from blue to white."

The first step toward this totally automated facility can be seen in some electric generating stations and processing plants, he points out.

• • • •

AUTOMATED FACILITIES of this nature will offer great advantages both to corporations and employes, according to Whitney.

No longer tied to manufacturing sites, control centers can be located in more congenial surroundings — closer to areas that offer cultural or climatic advantages.

And, once the worker is separated from his tools, the designer of the control center is no longer confined by the limitations dictated by production machinery.

As a result, employes will have larger and more attractive work areas. Advances in illumination and air-conditioning will also result in more light and stricter humidity and temperature controls.

• • • •

IN ADDITION, companies will be better able to locate their production facilities closer to natural resources or markets, saving vast sums in warehousing and distribution costs.

In the type of facility envisioned by Whitney, warehousing, which now often consumes tremendous acreage, will become negligible.

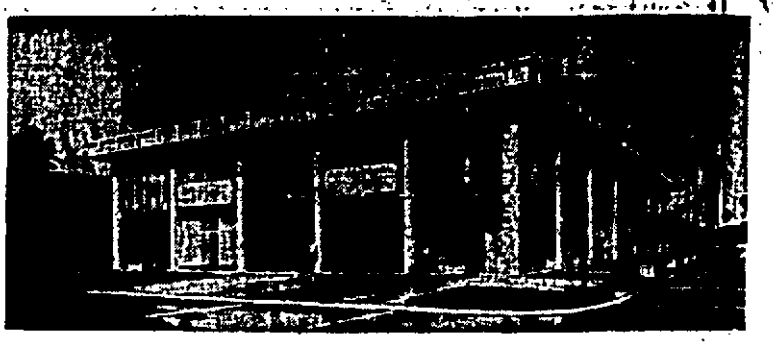

Raw materials will be brought in by conveyor, pipeline, or some other automatic method, and deposited right on the production line.

Computer technology will enable production managers to tell far in advance exactly when they will need definite quantities of component parts or in-process stores and how much of an end-product to produce. Most of the warehousing will be for finished goods and even these may be carried away automatically—without storage.

• • • •

THE ELIMINATION of warehouses at manufacturing sites, the return to multi-story administration buildings for control centers and the separation of these two types of facilities will mark the end of the sprawling suburban complex, Whitney says.

"Our blighted city cores may prove to be ideal locations for some of the compact manufacturing plants or high-rise control centers, and I urge urban redevelopment planners to give serious consideration to this possibility," he adds.

LIDO ISLE BANK UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Work has begun on Griffith Building in Newport Beach's Lido Isle business district. Two-story all-glass structure is going up on southeast corner of Newport Boulevard and Via Lido. Security-First National Bank branch will be major tenant of 28,000-square-foot building owned by Griffith Co. Wilson & Langdon designed it. Completion is expected by end of the year.

BUENA PARK — Building permits for a service station and five swimming pools boosted construction to $42,794 in Buena Park during the past week.

Pacific Plan Opens Lakewood Office

Robert A. McNeil, president of Pacific Plan of California, real estate brokerage firm, has announced the company's initial expansion into the Southern California area.

With 19 offices in Northern California, the Menlo-Park headquartered firm opened its 20th office in Lakewood Shopping Center the past week.

Bright Future Seen for Orange County Plant

SANTA ANA—Otis Elevator Company's Defense & Industrial Division last week marked its first year of operation in Orange County with an optimistic outlook for the future from Edward B. Lindaman, western operations manager.

Noting that cancellation of the Skybolt missile program during the plant's first year had some adverse effect on its growth rate, Lindaman said prospects for the next 12 months are "outstanding" barring any further drastic dips in the defense economy.

• • • •

FUTURE GROWTH of the Otis plant, located at 3519 Warner Road in Santa Ana's Segerstrom Industrial Tract, is based upon its experience in development and production of ultra-reliable aerospace ground support equipment.

Projects currently in the planning stage, Lindaman said, include manufacture of high-reliability cables for space programs, wire harnesses for test consoles, automatic test equipment and servo-analyzers.

The 38,000 sq. ft. electronics manufacturing plant is the Western Division headquarters of the Otis D&I group serving 11 Western states. Home office of the division is in Brooklyn, New York.

Steady Rise in Farm Land Values Seen

Farm and ranch land values in California will continue their upward climb for years to come, according to L. H. Wilson, president of the California Real Estate Association.

"For every person who scrambled for an acre of California in 1860, 43 stand here today, competing for the same acre," he said recently.

"New population comes to California at the rate of 1,700 a day," he added. "Mountains and hills comprise 75 per cent of our land. Only 25 per cent is readily usable for farms, homes and cities."

He said the birthrate increases the state's population by 7,000 each week, that "we need 2,300 more houses weekly, our highways carry an extra 4,600 cars every week, and that every Monday 2,800 children become old enough to start school."

Imagine what this competition is doing to the value of land, Wilson said. "In some areas, the increase is 10 per cent per year."

Firm Gets Contract From West Germany

Gilfillan Corporation officials have announced in Los Angeles the receipt of a contract in excess of $4 million from the government of the Federal Republic of Germany for the production of "Quadradar" ground controlled approach radar landing systems for the West German Air Force.

The new order is in addition to the previously announced funded backlog at July 1, 1963, of $34,400,000, up from $23 million a year earlier.

The aircraft landing aids to be built in Los Angeles are due to be delivered during the next year.

Vice President Now

William R. Mason has been elected vice president of The Irvine Company in charge of engineering, according to company president Charles S. Thomas.

Prior to joining Irvine in December, 1959, as administrative engineer, Mason was with Arcadia Metal Products of Fullerton as chief engineer. He lives on Lido Isle at Newport Beach.

HUNTINGTON BEACH—A "space kitchen" for Douglas Aircraft's huge multi-million dollar Space Systems Center in Huntington Beach will get under construction within the next few months.

A $380,000 building permit for a kitchen and cafeteria was issued recently to Los Angeles builder C. L. Peck by the local building department.

$100,000 Plus Club Has More Contractors

More contractors joined the $100,000-plus club for new construction contracts in 1962 than in any previous year on record, reports Engineering News-Record.

There were 10,717 contractors enrolled in the club in 1962, topping the preceding year's total by 1 per cent.

Membership in the million-dollar-and-over class grew more rapidly last year than in either the medium or smaller contractor set.

Contractors obtaining at least one million dollars worth of new contracts in 1962 increased 3 per cent to a record 4,032. But the 4,469 who posted from $100,000 to $500,000 fell slightly. They remain, however, the biggest single group active in the heavy construction market.

FIGURINE AT GROUNDBREAKING

Bruce Gelker, who is building $1.5 Saddleback Inn at Santa Ana, lets the "lady" have the scoop. She is figurine of "Gypsy," circus lady of 83 years ago. She'll be part of Inn's Early Americana decor.

Elks Share in Ceremony at Santa Ana

SANTA ANA—Officers of the Santa Ana Elks Lodge No. 794 were on hand for the recent groundbreaking of Bruce Gelker's $1.5 million Saddleback Inn.

The 130-room motor-hotel is to occupy three acres in the 1600 block on East First St. adjacent to the Elks Club, with the two enterprises sharing their facilities to accommodate as many as 1,200 persons at one time.

According to Gelker, his sprawling three-story Saddleback Inn, whose architecture was inspired by the old ranch home of Don Bernardo Yorba, will house some of the finest specimens of Early Americana worked into the decor of the public rooms and into its luxury guest rooms.

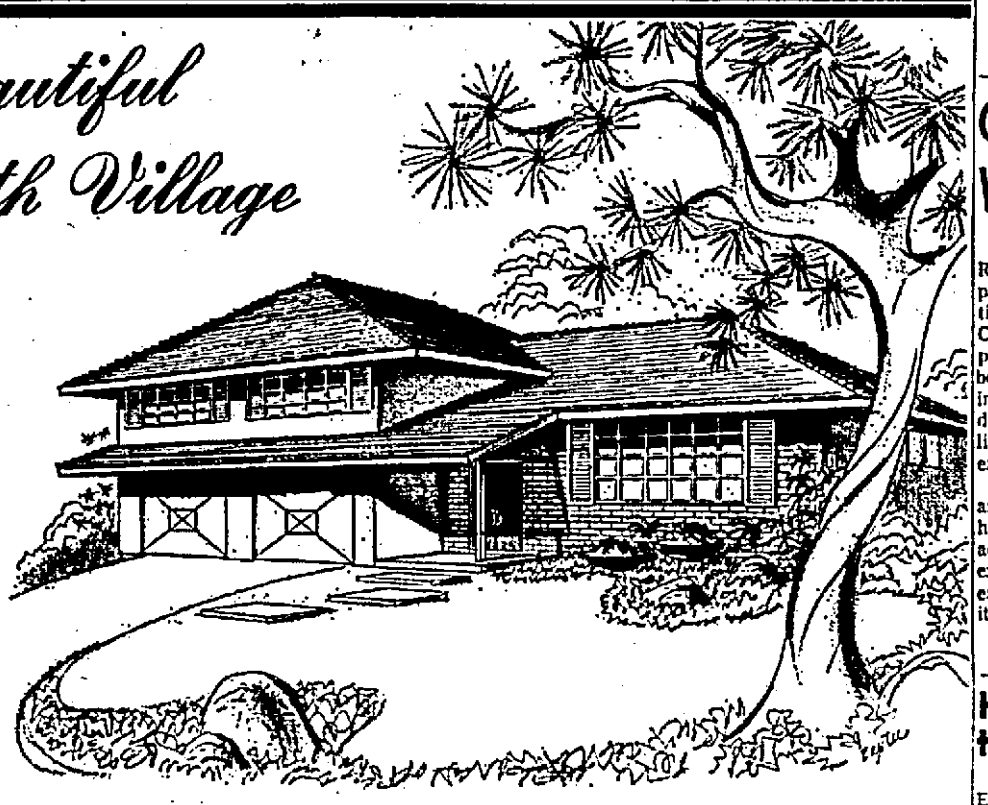

* * * *

ONE OF THE rarest historical objects of art to be used in the Saddleback's restaurant is "Gypsy," an 83-year-old lady who traveled the country by riding on the side of a carnival wagon when it was the fad to use carved figurines for advertising purposes. Handsomely carved of wood she stands at a petite five feet and is garbed shockingly enough in colorful embroidered jersey and full bloomers.

Gelker reported that already 90 per cent of the Saddleback Inn's exclusive shops and services have been leased with a planned opening of the Inn to be April 1, 1964.

Named after old Saddleback Mountain in whose shadow all of the county's history evolved, Gelker intends that his Saddleback Inn will be the first major structure in Orange County to incorporate the county's history with that of California's, giving the visitors a look at authentic Western Americana as it gives them some of the finest services offered in the country.

Dover Shores Luxury Home Models Opened

Two elegant, distinctive and highly individual model homes were opened this weekend at Dover Shores in Upper Newport Bay for families of prestige who wish a luxurious home in one of Southern California's most exclusive residential communities.

The custom homes range in price from $76,000 to $200,000.

Interior decor of the four-bedroom, four-bath, single-story home was designed by Ted von Hemert, of Laguna Beach.

This home is elegantly done in a Modified Mediterranean styling utilizing custom-made wool carpet in the entry hall, living room and master bedroom.

• • • •

THE LARGEST of the two model homes, a two-story, four-bedroom plus maid's room with four and one-half baths, was designed by Thaden Interiors of Corona del Mar.

The color selection of this home effectively utilizes the natural golden and orange colors of sand and sun and the greens of the Upper Newport Bay.

John Mcnab, sales executive, revealed that since Dover Shores opened four months ago, more than $7 million worth of real estate has been sold.

In addition to this, $7.5 million of custom homes are presently under construction at this luxurious development.

• • • •

RECENTLY, in a period of five days, the Dover Shores sales force sold 17 bayfront homes and six view lots for a total sale of $2,300,000.

John MacLeod, chairman of the board, Macco Corporation-Macco Realty Co., commented that the most expensive leasehold lot sold during the five-day period was for $42,100 and the highest priced home sold for just under $100,000.

The majority of buyers in this case were repeat Macco and Irvine Company homeowners who are presently living at Cameo Shores, Cameo Highlands, Irvine Terrace and Bayshores.

Lawyer Named to Hodges Staff

Attorney Earl J. Christensen has been named to the newly created position of assistant to the president of the Rex L. Hodges Co., according to Robert C. Westmyer, president of the realty firm and its many affiliated companies.

EARL J. CHRISTENSEN

Christensen previously was associated with the Trust Department of the Security First National as an investment analyst and assistant trust officer.

"This addition to the firm," said Westmyer, "is one of several professional people that are being added to the staff of the Rex. L. Hodges Co. in keeping with the firm's policy of providing a complete one-stop realty service, offering a staff of professional experts in each of the many specialized fields of the Real Estate business."

Christensen's office will be in the downtown office at 408 East First St. until completion of the new enlarged executive offices now on the drawing board.

Plastics Co. Builds Plant at Anaheim

ANAHEIM—Gering Plastics Comany of Kenilworth, N. J., has announced near completion of a 67,500 sq. ft. manufacturing plant and warehouse here to produce vinyl and polyethylene plastic products.

Larry Gering, president, said that vinyl garden hose and polyethylene film will be produced by the plant's extrusion facilities.

The manufacturing unit also will include equipment to fabricate polyethylene film into such specialty products as bags and liners for industrial packaging, protective covers for household, construction and agricultural uses and consumer products such as floor matting, closet accessories and storm window kits.

• • • •

THE GERING PLANT is located on nine acres of an 18½-acre site at 611 E. Cerritos Avenue. When completed and in operation, it is expected to employ about 120 persons and will service the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Gering's principal plant and administrative headquarters are located at Kenilworth. The company is a department of Monsanto Chemical Co.

Electronics Firm Adds Director

SANTA ANA—Election of Fred A. Taylor, a partner of Kidder, Peabody & Co., to a new directorship has been announced by Burgess Dempster, chairman of the board and president of the Electronic Engineering Co. of California, 1601 E. Chestnut Ave.

FRED TAYLOR

Stockholders of the engineering company have approved an amendment to the corporation bylaws changing the membership of the board of directors from 7 to not more than 10.

The Kidder, Peabody organization has been active as EECO's investment banker since 1956.

The Electronic Engineering Co. designs and manufactures products and systems in the fields of electronic instrumentation timing, data handling, automatic programming, and hazard control. Engineered Electronics Company Division manufactures digital components and switches.

Lee Points to Factors in Success

the district sales manager of the Lakewood-Long Beach offices, Oliver Speraw. In addition to his company duties, Mr. Speraw also serves as a member of the board of the Long Beach Water Commission and an instructor in real estate for Long Beach City College."

Lee also pointed up the firm's growth plans, which he said include "two additional offices each year and continued concentration upon increasing and improving our services.

• • • •

"NO SERVICE organization can survive on self-satisfaction. They either improve or they eventually disappear."

Lee is almost a native Californian, coming to Modesto from Tacoma, Wash., at the age of 2 with his parents. His father was active in farm sales and subdivisions.

Young Lee was graduated in 1920 from Stanford University with a degree in economics. He sold farm and city properties in Modesto area until 1923, when he joined the David Barry Co., developer of part of the Wilshire District near the Miracle Mile.

• • • •

FIVE YEARS LATER, he joined the Janss Investment Co., participating in development of Westwood Village, Westwood Hills and Holmby Hills.

Joining Janss at the same time were Robert K. Walker and Ruth P. Shepherd; and 13 years later Walker, Shepherd and Lee combined forces with John Griffith . . . and the firm of Griffith, Walker & Lee was formed.

The new company obtained 600 acres from the Montana Land Co. and built 300 homes northeast of the intersection of Carson Street and Bellflower Boulevard.

In 1948, the firm was dissolved after having developed 5,000 properties ranging from Harvey Way on the north to Spring Street on the south.

• • • •

BUILDING HOMES for war workers in that period also required the firm to purchase and operate a bus service to the shipyard. It also published its own newspaper, the Lakewood City News.

In 1948, the firm was reorganized as Walker & Lee, Inc., and it was decided to deal only in sales.

With only one office and 17 salesmen, there followed phenomenal growth.

A young saleman who joined up in 1949 was named manager of the New House Department two years later. He was Frank Hart, graduate of Pomona College and a World War II veteran. His father and uncle were developers of thousands of acres of citrus farms into La Habra Heights, North Whittier Heights and the City of Vista.

• • • •

APPOINTMENT of Hart signaled start of the managerial system which now sparks the company. In 1953 he became general sales manager, which position he still holds. He also now is executive vice president.

The firm opened its first resale office in Orange County in 1954, although he had dealings in the county long before that.

Continued growth finds the company now with 15 resale offices plus an average total of 35 subdivisions ranging from Ventura to San Bernardino.

Sale of the 74-unit Ridgewood Apartments in Monterey Park for nearly $700,000 has been announced by Viking Realty Co. of Long Beach. Agents were George Frankis and Roger Howell. The hillside complex has swimming and wading pools.

Rucker Co. Supplies Reactor Component

Clark E. Rucker, president of the Rucker Co., announced in Los Angeles last week that his firm had been awarded a contract by Atomics International, a division of North American, Inc., to supply highly specialized Impulse Drive Air Cylinder Assemblies to be incorporated in the Reactor Transient Experiment (SNAPTRAN) project.

The SNAPTRAN project is part of the Atomic Energy Commission's Aerospace Nuclear Safety Program which will evaluate the safety of the rocket-borne SNAP nuclear reactor power systems.

• • • •

EACH OF THE Rucker units, custom fabricated from stainless steel to extremely critical tolerances, constitutes a self-contained device which includes a stored enegry accumulator system, cylinder and valve arrangement.

Internally, the bore of the cylinder is micro plated, while threads and specific piston parts are gold plated to reduce friction.

The cylinders, fabricated by Rucker, are attached to impulse machines which will be used to operate the control drums of a SNAP 2/10A reactor used in the SNAPTRAN system. Such a device is necessary to examine and simulate reactor transient performance under abnormal conditions, or of the type which can result in the reactor's destruction.

• • • •

THE FIRST of these systems recently was shipped by Atomics International to the National Reactor Testing Station, Idaho, for a series of tests that will determine inherent shutdown characteristics of the reactor in the event of a sudden change in environment.

The function of the Aerospace Nuclear Safety program is to evaluate radiation hazards which might occur before, during and after the launch of a nuclear reactor into orbit.

Fabrication of this highly specialized component was accomplished in the Rucker Company's Berkeley manfacturing facility. Contract administration and project coordination were handled through the firm's Los Angeles office.

DOUGLAS DC9 'HOT LINE'

Facsimile transmission system spanning 2,600 miles between Douglas Aircraft Division in Long Beach and the de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. in Malton, Ontario, is speeding up vital interchange of DC9 engineering data. John C. Brizendine (left), DC9 program manager at Douglas, and William Jackson, his counterpart at de Havilland, use international data link while discussing design details of the DC9 wing and empennage, which the Canadian firm will produce under subcontract to Douglas. Clear reproductions of such data as engineering drawings, illustrations and columns of figures can be relayed with speed of electronics to facilitate technical discussions between the two firms. Instantaneous communication systems consists of a Datafax machine—a modern electronic "scratch pad"—augmented by a direct telephone line. Production of the short-to-medium-range DC9 began recently at the Douglas Aircraft Division.

HBA Group to Build 'Low Cost' Community

An advanced low cost housing community will be built, starting this autumn, by 40 builder members of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties just off Mills Avenue near Telegraph Road in the East Los Angeles area, it has been announced by Ray A. Watt, HBA president. Planning for the 40 homes to be constructed is in the final stages.

These houses, all single family dwellings, some detached and others in town house arrangement or groups, will be constructed on a cluster housing layout with large open landscaped green areas on a five-acre tract.

• • • •

STREETS WILL be kept to a minimum in the community so that most of the open spaces will be used for increasing play areas, yet there will be ample parking spaces provided.

Homes will sell for approximately $12,000 with monthly payments under $100 which will include principal, interest, taxes, and maintenance.

"We plan to break ground on the project within the month," Watt said. "Many details of the program are unknown at this time because we have much final planning to complete, but we can report now that we are definitely under way on a schedule after a year of research and study by a dozen HBA committees, headed by Larry Armour, Anaheim home builder, as chairman.

• • • •

"THIS IS A demonstration project. We plan to show true low cost housing for families with low incomes who cannot afford to buy most of the homes being built today but who desire to have a home of their own and raise their families in pleasant surroundings."

HBA builder members plan to show, by using the latest techniques of land planning and architectural concepts, that comfortable and highly efficient communities can be built to meet the financial limitations of low income families.

Macco's Homes in Eastbluff Overlook Upper Newport Bay

CHECK PROJECTS FROM AIR
Aerial research is planned at Orange County Airport by the Macco Realty Co. management team prior to flying to their newest development, Eastbluff in Upper Newport Bay. Research and development flights are conducted on all Macco developments. Left to right are John Parker, president; H. L. (Jack) Caldwell, vice president and general manager; R. R. James, manager of marketing and sales, Lupe Amaya is pilot.

John Parker, president, Macco Realty Co., one of the largest builders and developers in the nation, announced that reservations are now being taken at the new Macco development at Eastbluff overlooking the Upper Newport Bay. The one and two-story and split-level homes are priced from $26,650 to $35,000, with conventional financing.

The new Macco Realty homes offer three, four, and five-bedrooms with a choice of six floor plans and 21 distinctive exteriors in a totally new type of planned community on Irvine Ranch property.

* * * * *

THE HOMES are the first to be built at the new Eastbluff development and have a commanding view of the countryside, Upper Newport Harbor, the Santa Ana mountains, the new University of California at Irvine and the surrounding Newport Beach-Balboa area.

Macco Realty Co., developers of the highly-successful Dover Shores luxurious community on the West Shore of Upper Newport Bay ($6,298,000 worth of real estate sold in four months and $7 million of custom homes presently under construction); and John D. Lusk and Son, Inc., have split dead center 150-acre bluff property and each of the two companies are handling their own construction and sales on his half, exclusively. Under the direction of Macco's John Spayde, project superintendent, Macco crews are doing the earth moving and providing the site development for both firms.

* * * *

MACCO'S NEW homes offer 1,450 square feet to 2,500 square feet and are on lots with a minimum of 7,000 square feet with all underground utilities. The firm has scheduled 240 homes.

R. R. James, Macco manager of marketing and sales, states that out of the 85 residences rising in the first unit, 60% have already been reserved.

Eastbluff ultimately is expected to have a population of approximately 7,000.

According to John Spayde, "The Eastbluff development represents the first step in the opening of a vast new area of expansion for Newport Beach. It is a departure from developing communities in or near the heart of Newport Beach, yet the city is visible from the view lots at Eastbluff and easily accessible for commuting."

Urban Renewal Will Help Save Historical Shrines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When urban planners turn their bulldozers loose in a slum neighborhood, the average citizen views the operation as a cleanup job intended to erase an acre or so of blight.

Others with a sense of history occasionally see something else in these sad-looking collection of hovels. They see the ghosts of another era —a time when these scarred and crippled neighborhoods were the very essence of elegance and gentility.

Often in the midst of the rubble, a city has found a memory of its historical heritage worth preserving.

* * * *

THE URBAN RENEWAL Administration (URA), which helps pay the bill for slum clearance, is encouraging this movement.

The agency has published a pamphlet showing how the public housing program can be used to rescue historically-significant structures standing in the path of the wrecking crews.

The URA emphasizes that federal funds cannot be spent to restore these buildings. However, a general slum clearance program can be planned in such a manner as to help save them and accent their importance.

For instance, dilapidated structures and other unsightly objects can be removed from the land where the historical shrine is to be rehabilitated.

Also, the public housing program can be used to improve access to these buildings by constructing sidewalks or roads.

* * * *

GRADING, landscaping and street lighting all can be worked out in a slum clearance project in such a way as to enhance a certain neighborhood or building which the city wants to save because of its historical importance.

The URA points out that to qualify for such improvements, each of these neighborhood plans must meet the standards set up under regular public housing laws.

Generally, it must have collapsed to the point where public action is necessary to restore it to sound condition.

In other words, the URA is not sponsoring projects aimed primarily at preservation of historical structures. But a community's regular slum-clearance program can be tailored to include this goal.

Doctor Says Nip Good for Nap

NEW YORK (UPI)—A nip to help you nap? Yes, reports one New York physician.

Dr. Herbert L. Gould, writing in "Medical Times," suggested that one remedy for the tension that causes sleepless nights is a nightcap. A hooker of cognac, whisky or other liquor you like produces mild euphoria and "taken in moderation, can quiet an apprehensive, overwrought individual and give him a restful night, he said Dr. Gould described "moderation" as one to three ounces.

Bank Opens New Offices in L.A.

New Southern California headquarters of the Bank of California, oldest incorporated bank in the West, opened at 550 S. Flower St. in Los Angeles Friday to complete the nation's first coastwide banking system.

Urge Check-up on Tot's Hearing

CHICAGO (UPI)—A loss of hearing is a leading factor contributing to child malajustment, reports the Hearing Aid Industry Conference. It says recent tests among juvenile delinquents in Los Angeles showed 32 per cent suffering from hearing impairments. The conference urged parents to take their children for hearing check-ups annually.

Convenience to Highways Big Factor in Picking Plant Sites

What does modern industry want when it picks a new plant site?

The answer: four basic requirements—location near a highway, an abundant labor supply, good land and proximity to markets.

In this order — highway proximity, labor, land and markets — these were the plant location factors mentioned most frequently by 1,363 plants of all types and sizes cooperating in a two-year new plant location study by the Rockwell-Standard Corporation, of Coraopolis, Pa., and the ATA Foundation.

• • • •

THE STUDY explored, and subjected to measurement, the latest trends in plant location to produce a factual background with which trucking executives and trucking associations can be of maximum aid to industry and community planners in plant location decisions.

Although the plant location questionnaire was an important part of the study, it was preceded by intensive research which disclosed population growing and moving as never before, dramatic technological and esthetic developments in plant design, and more geographic orientations of plants to their markets.

• • • •

A FEW HIGHLIGHTS from survey findings:

In addition to the highway, labor, land and market factors which ranked first to fourth in frequency - of - mention, other factors lined up as follows: 5 — availability of rail service; 6—availability of raw materials; 7—favorable state and local tax structure; 8—favorable leasing - financing; 9—abundant water supply; 10—proximity to related industry; 11—existence of building at site; 12—community's cultural-recreational assets; 13—nearby vocational training facilities.

Factors 6 through 11 were very important in some instances but varied from industry to industry while the importance of the first four factors — highways, labor, land and markets — remained consistently high throughout most of the response group.

The trend in location was strongly from city to suburbs and small towns and rural areas. Very few reported moves in the other direction.

MACCO Macco Realty Company

GARDEN PARK ESTATE
Master bedroom with natural wood-burning fireplace featured in the popular two-story model. All bedrooms have large walk-in closets.

Fireplace in Master Bedroom Is Big Attraction to Buyers

Officials of Garden Park Estates, located at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway, report that a popular selling feature of their two-level home is the large, natural wood-burning fireplace in the master bedroom.

"This catches the attention of many home-shoppers, especially the wives," they say, "and we've even sold several homes on the strength of the bedroom fireplace alone."

The aesthetic appeal, they feel, is primarily the number one reason for the overwhelming popularity of the master bedroom fireplace and use of the finest stone and rock available is another. "Most everyone likes the idea of falling asleep by the glow of a friendly fire burning," they say, and this influenced their decision to include one.

* * * *

THE LARGER bedroom has a view-all, walk-in closet, as do the other four bedrooms —making it possible to select a wardrobe without the usual stumbling around in cramped, dark closets.

* * * *

A NETWORK of freeways surround the area: including the Santa Ana, the Garden Grove and the San Diego Freeway.

"But it's those big, beautiful bedroom fireplaces that get to the buyers many times," they say.

Financing is arranged to meet individual needs. Garden Park homes range from $18,800 to $25,950 complete. VA terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs; also Cal-Vet loans and conventional terms are accesible. A choice of 30 to 35-year FHA loans make these outstanding homes within reach of almost any budget, the developers say.

Buyer Interest Continues in Second Unit of Lark Village

Sales in the second unit of Lark Village, a new Fountain Valley community, continue to match the record breaking pace set in the first unit, according to Charles W. Hester, developer.

In the two months since the subdivision first opened, more than 80 homes have been sold, he said.

Lark Village has 1 and 2 story homes of 3, 4 and 5 bedrooms, family rooms and 2 full baths. The homes are priced from $20,950 to $25,900 and can be purchased for as little as $395 down, plus costs.

Among the interesting innovations in Lark Village is a "Future" room in the 2-story models. This mammoth 19' x 26' room can be used as a rumpus room now and as the family grows it can be converted into 2 bedrooms, or 2 smaller bedrooms and a playroom. This area has a bath plumbed for future use.

* * * *

LARK VILLAGE lists among its outstanding features block fencing for the rear and side yards, underground sprinklers in the front, built-in Westinghouse range and oven, wall-to-wall carpeting, sunken living room, massive wood-burning fireplaces, mantle over fireplace and distinctive ash paneling. There is a wide variety of floor plans and exteriors.

Lark Village can be reached from Los Angeles by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst Street, south on Brookhurst to Edinger Street, then east to models. From Long Beach go out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Boulevard) to Brookhurst, right on Brookhurst to Edinger, then left to models.

Who Says 'Bungling Bachelors'?

They Clean-up on Myth ... Neatly Solve Housework

By MARY NETH

There isn't a woman who can resist chuckling over the housekeeping incompetencies of the single male.

"Those poor helpless darlings, they do everything backwards," trill the gals in tones of cheery condescension.

"Why most don't know a dust pan from a frying pan—watching them clean is a scream."

Few men take issue. The majority happily give the gals full credit for outshining them around the home.

But, there are some women who won't go along with this view.

They label the long-standing caricature of the bungling bachelor as the worst type of old wives' tale.

Their opinion carries a good deal of weight, too.

For, these staunch supporters of the alone male (who does his own dishes, mops his own floors, dusts his own TV), hold the apartment keys.

Yes, landladies are in unabashed accord when it comes to monkey-wrenching the idea of bachelor inefficiency.

In fact, they say it's the single gals who are singularly messy.

THIS SHOCKING news came out during an interview with local apartment house managers.

Said Gladys Compton, "I always show bachelors' apartments to prospective tenants. Girls' rooms are more apt to be cluttered—to look a bit makeshift."

"Men are generally easier to get along with," said Mrs. Harry Johnson, "They don't leave clothes on the line, or complain about the furniture and they fix things themselves."

"I return their deposits with a smile," said Mrs. Don Lynott. "They leave the apartments clean as a whistle—we don't have to repaint and redecorate."

What's the secret to this purported male good housekeeping?

It took a little probing to find out.

Interviewed: some representative bachelors, (they modestly denied top homemaking skill), a number of puzzled single girls, (they had no idea how the men got rated so high) and some talkative landladies (an occasional peek out the blinds has netted them some nifty information as to who really does the dusting).

The conclusion: women, you are being hoodwinked.

To men housework's a game—a game of wits.

THE FOUR basic rules for bachelor clean-living are as follows:

1. Keep things to a minimum: a basic wardrobe, a couple of high-brow magazines, an ashtray.

"The less you have the less you have to clean," points out bachelor Arthur Wehrman, who likes Spartan decor for that reason.

"I got along great with a bed and bench plus cushions until the neighbors 'took pity' and moved in some furniture. It complicates the cleaning—but I guess they did get tired of my borrowing their patio chairs," he says.

(Anyone can see that the poor working girl has lost out already. She has cartons of cosmetics, oodles of under-pinnings and closets of clothes to contend with—and being feminine, she probably can't resist picking up a few little on-sale decorator items.)

2. This second step is a fine example of male ingenuity. The idea probably comes from the children's toy chest. It's the same principle.

"It's first impressions that count," says Arthur Carrol. "Doing away with surface clutter is half the battle."

TO DO THIS Wehrman keeps a couple of drawers free to "scoop things into when the doorbell rings." Another bachelor

GOODHOUSEKEEPING expert Al Larson, Press-Telegram sports writer, relaxes in his neat abode—for a minute. He, like many other bachelors, has found perfect solution to apartment upkeep. United Way Gives Gloom Go-By

Mrs. Maurice Kent and playmates

Volunteers for Long Beach's United Way office, 1213 Cedar Ave., represent just about every type of occupation, religion, race and outlook one could think of.

With one exception.

There are no pessimists.

"So many good things go on here, that a pessimist just can't help turning optimistic," says Clara Andrews, executive director.

The organization, now officially titled Long Beach Area, Los Angeles United Way, is probably better known to local residents by its former name, the Community Volunteer Office.

"We have in no way changed our program, only our source of fund raising," explains Mrs. Andrews. "Before, money came through local contributions alone, now we receive it through county-wide drives."

Just what is the program of this organization of optimists?

"COMMUNITY betterment," says Mrs. Andrews. "That probably sounds a little stuffy—let me assure you it is not.

"This is too personal an operation to take on the earmarks of a charity machine."

The office, which serves as a clearing house for volunteer labor for 83 separate agencies here, makes use of anyone willing to contribute time. Volunteers range from school children to retired persons.

What do they do? Everything from reading to the bedridden to teaching lively tots how to dance the hula.

The office, in fact, operates something like a talent bureau. Applicants for volunteer service list their aptitudes, the hours they can contribute and their interests.

"We never fail to find a job that someone can do. Everyone in the world is needed somewhere—it's just a matter of finding the right spot," says Mrs. Andrews.

Take for example volunteer Mrs. Maurice Kent. A mother of two, she doesn't have a tremendous amount of free time—but she's happy to donate what she can.

Every week she serves the community for a half-day.

Her talents? They draw from her whole background of experience.

Before she was married she was in banking for many years. She contributes this knowledge to volunteer jobs like auditing books and typing.

Her role as a mother puts her in good stead when it comes to helping out at the Weil Baby Clinic or a local nursery.

Mary Gladys Moore, retired college teacher, finds work at nursing homes the most satisfying. For the past two years, she has given patients the invaluable feeling that someone does care.

As a volunteer driver for the handicapped, George Wallace, retired salesman, can't seem to resist making little side trips of extra kindness.

On his own, he has helped many a passenger look for an apartment and then after one has been found, he can be found on the scene lugging boxes to and fro.

"You can see that we can be very proud of our volunteers," says Mrs. Andrews. "They are a wonderful group."

The United Way is also proud of the new community services it has been able to add through the years.

One of these, the Community Calendar, has proven a great success in its two years of existence.

More than 340 clubs and local organizations now list activities with it. Gone are the days when groups found themselves in competition for public attendance. Now everyone knows what's going on in town and when and where.

The first band of community volunteers appeared in Long Beach during the war years.

In 1948, the Junior League put the plan into peace-time operation. Then, after its need was proven, the Community Chest took over.

According to Mrs. Francis M. Lowry, president of the board of directors, the organization saves taxpayers about $100,000 a year and doesn't displace a single wage earner in doing so.

Now in its 16th year, the United Way, is an institution that's definitely here to stay.

"There is nothing as wonderful as voluntary good-will," says Mrs. Andrews. "If you have a moment of free time, come and see us and we'll prove so.

"We particularly invite pessimists."

CHESS BOARD plus friendly volunteer means respite from boredom for polio patient Jean Cook. A United Way worker for past two years, Mary Moore, right, a retired teacher, visits local nursing homes twice weekly, finds satisfaction in giving.

ORGANIZED WORRY:

Easier to Cope Together

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Now hear this, you worrywarts:

—To be a worrier with status in today's child-centered society get organized. Worry along with other parents — a switch on "Sing Along With Mitch."

—To worry alone deprives you of status and cheats you of the benefits of worrying together. Besides, there's safety in numbers.

Make no mistake about it. You must worry if you're raising children. If you don't fret and wrinkle the forehead about the offspring, neighbors, friends and relatives—buttinski types—are liable to think you haven't enough sense to be concerned about your children.

They may even say you neglect them.

* * * *

HISTORY'S sort of on their side. Responsible parents always have been concerned about their children.

Now we know that worrying together's "in" and worrying alone's "out" because an expert says so.

The expert this time is Mrs. Eva H. Grant, editor of "The P-T.A. Magazine."

She said thousands of Americans will be worrying together this fall when they show up for the more than 16,000 study - discussion groups organized in local Parent-Teacher Associations nationwide.

While they worry together instead of alone?

* * * *

MRS. GRANT answered the question this way:

"Not only has children's physical growth speeded up, but their mental and emotional development has also accelerated. Any eight-year-old boys knows more about cosmic rays, Castro and communism than his smartest counterpart of 25 years ago knew about science, political leaders or political doctrine."

Now since junior knows so much about Castro, castor oil, cosmic dust and such, the P-T.A. proposes to offer timely guidance in the new family life program it has scheduled for launching this fall.

The outlines for the study-discussion — organized worry—will be carried in the "P-T.A. Magazine," Mrs. Grant said.

Suggestions for "helping children cope with stress" will be offered in one phase of the program.

Another discussion topic centers on this conscience-pricking question — "who does Johnny's homework?"

Mrs. Grant said problems of the affluent child, the conformist teen-ager, the potential school drop-out and other worrywart subjects will get attention, too.

* * * *

THE ARTICLES, to be used as springboards for discussion—er, organized worrying.—will be authored by authorities in child psychology, education and other fields.

The aim of all this organized worrying, sponsored by the P-T.A.: To help parents learn more about children and their upbringing.

This is what the P-T.A. has dedicated itself to since its founding in 1897. Only today's worries are different—and changing.

"At one point," Mrs. Grant said, "we may be concerned about Johnny's learning to cross the street safely and before we know it, we're wondering whether he can hadle the family car.

"One day we're worried about his not being nice to the little girl next door, and all too soon we're afraid of his being intimate with the girl down the block."

No parent, you see, can insure himself against failure in the job of parenthood. The least you can do: Make sure you don't fail out of ignorance about what the job demands of you.

Parents who gradute from the upcoming "worry together' fests may expect to learn competence and earn confidence.

Mrs. Grant said so. And she said both are equally important in the job of raising children today.

HOT WEATHER; COOL PLANS

Localites Slate Fall Dates

By JEAN SANDERS

It may be warm and lazy-summer day weather, but for some far-thinking groups, it's none too soon to make basic plans for gala autumn events. One such group is the Nightingales Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital.

With Oct. 5 set as the date for the annual benefit Nightingale Ball (this year slated for the Edgewater Inn), Jean Lockett is setting wheels in motion Tuesday with a luncheon in her Park Estates home for the patrons and patronesses committee.

Initial ball plans will be made that day by Mmes. Jackie Lucas, Clinton Evans, William Carls, Robert Dilday, Montie Magree, Violet Akin, John Kelly, Melvin Masterson Jr., William Minshall, Harrison Moore, Edward Grant and Jack Augsburger.

* * * *

With the sparkling world of Grand Opera as the backdrop, elaborate plans are underway for what the committee vows will be THE party of the year.

It's the annual gala heralding the opera season in Los Angeles and is the inspiration of the Opera Committee of the Long Beach Auxiliary of Southern California Symphony Association.

That may be a mouthful, but party plans for Sept. 13 are nothing short of fabulous.

Inspired by Long Beach's 75th anniversary, Florence Cole and her capable committee has chosn The Gay Nineties as the theme, and those bidden will receive stunning invitations to "A Night of Wine and Roses", in the Stanley D. Weiss home and gardens, where the wine will flow as smoothly as a soprano's high C.

There was Dr. Max Negri, see, out in the stable of his new manse in Rolling Hills, attired in such disreputable garb that even a stablehand wouldn't speak to him. And there was Gloria, panting and struggling while unloading seven giant bags of groceries.

Swell time for 80 friends to descend, but that's the way it was at their surprise (and how) housewarming. Dee and Sumner Trent, along with Dan and Joanne Moon of Torrance, were responsible for the guest list, which even included some Negri kin from Sacramento — and how were they to know the negris weren't lolling about the estate taking in the view of Catalina on one side and LA on the other?

Since everyone brought dinner makings, Gloria didn't have to get at those grocery bags. Besides, the surprised new homeowners had to get acquainted with the Dalmatian puppy the horde brought for the six small Negris.

Corky Severson is having a ball on this current trip with his mother, Ethel, and grandparents, Artie and Albert Stevenon. In Rhodes, one of the picturesque Greek Isles, he climbed astride a donkey for a clop-clop juant to the Fortress of Lindos (where "Guns of Navarrone" was filmed).

The traveling localites fanned out from Cairo for a trip to Ismalia where they saw caravans of Bedouins and their camels along the way, and they drove along the Suez Canal to Port Said, an accomplishment in itself, since special permission is required to make the trip and the family saw only three cars in 100 miles of Suez driving.

Dropping a line stateside from Ireland, they say they have already been in Istanbul, Rome, Florence, Zurich and London.

Any summer visitor at Joey and George Hardie's better watch out. If he doesn't know it by now, he may get put to work with spade or hammer. For the past three summers the Hardie's have been redoing some portion of their home in Belmont Heights. This season finds them with no garage, and complete terracing and landscaping in progress. All ye be herenow forewarned.

In the afterglow of the International Beauty Congress, talk still bubbles on about the contestants and the parties given for them before all the excitement culminated in the brilliant spectacle itself.

One of the many parties for "our" girls and the delightful foreign entries was given in the upper floor of The Chandelier by Messrs. and Mmes. Kenneth E. Wentworth, C. W. Alexander, Vern L. Parker, John O'Steen, plus Ivan Boisen.

Honored guests at the tables, decorated with red, white and blue floral pieces, were 16 American and 15 foreign girls and their hostesses.

Among the guests paying them rapt attention were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bigman, Marvin Cloyd, and Messrs. and Mmes. Jesse M. Allen, Leonard Brock, Martin Vignovich, Wayne A. Dunn, Joseph Witzerman, James R. Hale and David Kofahl.

Reminiscent of the last of the big spenders are Gloria and Lee Eldred and Barbara and Jim Evans who have been playing bridge for the past 10 years, making periodic trips on proceeds from the bridge kitty.

Their sojourn this weekend took them to Las Vegas where they will risk the entire bundle—which is nearing $200—on one roll of the dice.

Diaries are strictly personal business, but John and Dorothea Pritchard couldn't help peeking to learn how the vacation they'd planned for their seven small fry was taking hold.

They had equipped a Dodge bus with sleeping accommodations when they left Mason City, Iowa, for Long Beach, and the children, ranging from 7 to 14 years old, each was presented a diary to record the experience. Single notation one day in the 7 year old's: "Daddy was good today."

Parking the huge vehicle at Grandmother Jennie Pritchard's, they borrowed her car for sightseeing in Beverly Hills, Disneyland and all the usual attractions; then took to the skies for a quickie trip to San Francisco.

The California trip has been in the planning stage for two years when the seven Pritchard kids began saving like sixty. It was a big day when Daddy went to the bank with them and they withdrew more than $500 to help out with trip expenses and sightseeing.

There must be something about living in the Naples area of Long Beach that gives an itch to roam the seas. Sniffing all that salt air every day, no doubht. At any rate, plying the ocean swells at this very moment is the SS Roosevelt, with Neopolitans Ann and Roy Medigovich among the passengers on board. After a merry bon voyage party on shipboard just before it pulled out of the harbor Saturday, the pair can look forward to four months of seeing the world in other ways she is lived.

Although they will do their traveling mainly by ship, a camel looms into the picture too — undoubtedly one of those humpy creatures lurking around Egypt's pyramids.

After a flight from Paris to New York, the Medigovichs will select a new Cad in Detroit and motor in comfortable style to Rhode Island for a visit with Ann's family before sightseeing their way home.

In Error on False-Card

Some players never false-card. Others false-card every time they get a chance. The winning technique lies somewhere in between. In addition there are many occasions when a false-card is downright silly.

South concealed his nice club suit in the bidding and when West got off to a club lead things looked bright indeed. East played the nine and South promptly false-carded himself right out of game and rubber.

South won with the ace of clubs, led the nine of diamonds and finessed. East took his king and looked around for the right lead. A club return appeared hopeless. Obviously West had not led from either queen-jack-ten or king-queen-jack-ten of clubs so South was marked with at least the ace-king-queen of that suit. A spade shift did not look very good either but the heart suit showed distinct possibilities. East led the two of hearts.

South's jack lost to West's queen and the ace dropped his king. A third heart lead gave East tricks with the ten and eight and left poor South high and dry on the rocks.

• • • •

IF SOUTH had simply won the first club with the jack East would have had a tough problem. The three of clubs could easily have been fourth best from a suit headed by ace-queen-ten or even ace-king-ten.

The Bachelor's Game

bought an expensive looking Chinese screen for the same purpose. "It's amazing how much junk you can push behind it," he says.

But, cleverest of all, was the male who just "hates dishwater hands." He built a window box outside the kitchen sink. When dishes stack up, he stashes them there—pulls the blind and prays for rain.

(Again the gals are defeated. The ones we talked to, needed every available inch of drawer, floor and closet space as it was and the idea of outdoor dishwashing didn't appeal.)

3. This is perhaps the most important clue to male apartment care: don't be there.

"I eat out about 50 per cent of the time," says Edward Jamieson. "I spend most of my time away," says Al Larson.

(The single girl is trapped again. When she entertains, the party is at her apartment. She's expected to show off her home-cooking skills and, let's face it, if she isn't invited out, she's in for the evening—glumly cluttering up the place.)

4. Last, but far from least, in the bachelor's bag of tricks: be helpless and have girl friends.

"WHEN I NOTICE that things are really getting pretty bad, I invite a girl over," says Ed Grieve. "They are real cute about showing me how to mop the floor and wash down the stove and all. I generally make it up to them by getting tickets to a show or something."

("That's a pretty smart ruse," commented single girl Joanne Weinhoff. "Yes, and when my boy friend sends things out—guess where he sends them," says Betsy McWilliams. "My apartment looks like a Chinese laundry—his is neat as a pin.")

Landlady Mrs. Lynott sums up the whole matter of male versus female housekeeping like this.

"It's an unfair battle. The men just sort of camp-in, the girls really use their apartments."

Who would she prefer to rent to?

"Bachelors of course. They may present a bungling front, but when it comes to efficiency they're tops. They delegate authority—that means they find girls to do the dirty work."

So, gals take care. Follow mother's advice and NEVER go to a man's apartment. He may not have etchings but he probably does have dust under the coffee table AND a vacuum.

AFTER A FASHION

Chins, Bulges Go Undercover

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I. P-T Fashion Editor

FALL'S sportive look (above) covers chins and gams, camouflages the bulges. Suit by Adele Simpson. Toga-wrap dress (right) has new layered look, is great for girl without enough natural padding. By Ben Reig.

This is a season when most any woman can camouflage her figure problems, whatever they may be.

Designers have taken pity on the female with flabby arms, pouchy chins, too ample seating capacity and too fatted calves; or, on the other hand, the poor girl with more angles than curves.

Styles for fall and winter also are concerned with the poor sport, the extravagant spender, the stay-at-home and the gadabout.

• • • •

FOR THE poor sport is the much-touted sportive look, a trend in casual comfort which does about everything but put rosy checks and muscles on the world's most languid women.

The vogue includes hacking jackets, tennis sweaters, also ski jackets and walking skirts in tweedy woolens, rugged suedes or smooth leathers and furs. But none of these garments is meant to see a barn, a court, a slope or a dusty trail.

A part of that sportive theme is, the turtle neck which takes in all those chins; boots and heavy stockings, which eliminate a glimpse of gams; also easy skirts which cover a multitude of calorie sins, and sleeves that hide slack-fleshed upper arms.

• • • •

THE GIRL without enough natural padding has the layered look on her side, another chapter in the sporty style story.

She can build from the inside with skinny pants, jumpers or skirts and turtle neck blouses.

Over that: sleeveless blouses, preferably fur; jackets and coats. She can add inches, pounds and curves—until she is bent from the weight of it all.

• • • •

IT'S A GOOD year, too, for the big spender.

Opulent creations shriek their cost without any of that under (price) stated look. Take buttons, if you can afford them. On certain little slack dresses they come from Tiffany's, with wholesale prices of $3,000 each.

And buy fur, if you can. But not in any garment so practical as a coat. The woman who doesn't give a hang about the cost can stock up on little princess dresses in white mink, or sable overblouses. She also can stuff her accessory boxes with babushkas of Russian broadtail, her hat boxes with fox and leopard.

• • • •

THE WOMAN who never wants to go anywhere can be the chic-est female in town.

With limitless checking accounts she can summon to her doorstep sumptuous sculptured velvet gowns, or chiffon negligee-like apparel with ostrich plumes, or Oriental pants zany with beads and fringe, or the fanciest white satin ju-jitsu suits in existence.

All to stay at home in.

• • • •

AND THE GIRL who never is at home will find plenty to pack in her luggage this fall.

Lightweight, wrinkle-proof costumes which roll into little space and which mix and match and change their character from breakfast till ball time are in most of the couturier collections. Designers understand the problem. They are on the go, too.

• • • •

WHAT ABOUT a pretty girl with no bad habits to make agreeable and no figure faults to improve upon?

She'll have no fashion worries either—for, on her, whatever-looks-good-ordinarily will look even better.

But she'll have competition this season from those imperfect women whose imperfections, if they show at all, only make them more interesting.

WONDERFUL WASHINGTON

To New Post in Australia

By VIRGINIA W. KELLY
I. P-T Washington Bureau

Lincoln White, a tall Tennessean with a cotton blossom accent, is going to Melbourne, Australia to serve as United States Consul General.

A one time reporter for his home-town paper, the Chattanooga Times, Linc White has been with the Department of State since 1939. He has served as director of the Office of News of the State Department since 1955.

He and Mrs. White will sail for Australia on the "Monterey" on Sept. 19. He told this reporter he plans to savor every minute of the ocean voyage and of his forthcoming four year tour in Australia.

• • • •

STARS of the news media and the State Department were invited to a supper and reception to honor the Whites. The hosts were the former Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding (formerly of the Associated Press) and Mrs. Berding.

The Berdings have owned a large house and garden on fashionable Foxhall Road for many years. Bars and buffets were arranged on the veranda and in the garden. A ceiling fan (so popular in the south and the Far East before air conditioning) spun lazily on the veranda.

Andy Berding writes books and lectures. His last book was "Foreign Affairs and You." Another book is ready for publication.

• • • •

LINC WHITE'S State Department successor, Richard I. Phillips attended the party. A career foreign service officer, a Latin American specialist, and linguist, Mr. Phillips is also tall and affable.

Mrs. John Foster Dulles, widow of the Secretary of State, said she had recently returned from the Middle East. She enthralled us all by saying she had met Lawrence of Arabia (many years ago) and that he was a small man, in no way resembling Peter O'Toole, of the motion picture.

David Waters, press officer for the State Department's Office of Protocol; and Edward R. Murrow, director of the U. S. Information Agency, and Mrs. Murrow were there.

Cards to Benefit Catholic Missions

Immaculate 129, Young Ladies Institute, will have a cad party Tuesday at Holy Innocents Parish Hall, 20th Street and Pasadena Avenue.

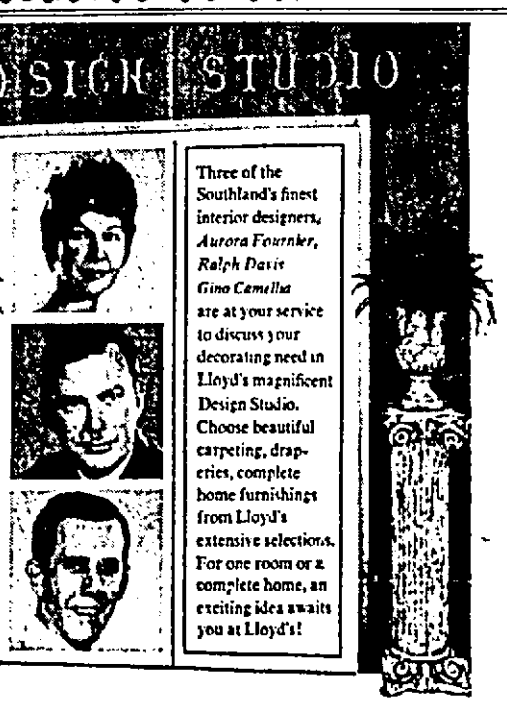

Bridge, pinochle, canasta and 500 will be played. Refreshments will be served at 7:30 with games to begin at 8 p.m. Money from the event, which is open to the public, will be donated to Catholic missions.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Does L.B. Want Grand Opera?

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

In reading the glowing reports of the Los Angeles music critics about the recent very successful opera productions at the Greek Theater in Los Angeles, and especially anent the item that the three performances were sold out weeks before, the thought has possessed me—why can't we have a short season of opera in Long Beach? The old pessimistic attitude that opera is not popular today, has been disproven many times, and right here around us.

Our near neighbor, Laguna Beach, is presenting seven performances of grand opera this month: "Rigoletto," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Madame Butterfly." This is their second season of grand opera in the Irvine Bowl. For four years now the Los Angeles Opera Company has presented grand opera in highly successful productions, also to sold-out houses.

• • • •

IN A CITY like Long Beach with a population of more than 350,000, its vast oil resources, its lavish and costly International Beauty Congress; not to mention the cost of the anticipated World's Fair, it is incredible that we have not had a grand opera season. Instead of the questionable experiment of a month-long spring music festival, why not concentrate on a spring season of grand opera? And I mean "grand" opera with name starts, not amateurs, in the lead roles.

All about us is a rich abundance of outstanding talent. Dorothy Kirsten has just concluded three performances of "Madame Butterfly" at the Greek Theater with overwhelming acclaim, and she lives in near-by Palos Verdes. Our Long Beach Symphony, as in the cities of Europe, could be the excellent orchestra for opera productions.

• • • •

THE TOWN of Downey has been noted by musical authorities for its superior symphony orchestra. Its conductor, Mario Cajati, who has had much opera experience in Italy was assistant to Toscanini, is actively interested in producing a Long Beach Opera Company. He informed that he would use only stellar names in the leading roles, and Long Beach singers in the lesser roles and chorus. He would like to present four operas: "Carmen," "La Boheme," "Madame Butterfly," and "Rigoletto." I asked him what such productions would cost and he estimated around $20,000 a performance.

It would be interesting to get my readers' reaction to such a project and I would welcome letters on the subject.

Check the Schedule Before Gallery Visit!

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

We have a moral this week: always check on time and days before planning an expedition to a gallery or museum. Full of anticipation last Monday, another mother and I packed the youngsters in the wagon and set off for the Pavilion Gallery in Balboa. We were looking forward to a show of three Claremont painters: Paul Darrow, Doug McClellan, and Roger Koontz.

• • • •

ALAS, ALL was locked up; a sign on the door said gallery hours are Wednesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. Things being what they are with vacation schedules, we don't know if we can make it down before the show closes on Sept. 22, but it should be a good one. (The gallery will be closed Aug. 23 through 28 and Sept. 1 through 3.)

However, we did find another gallery, the Albatross, at the other end of the same street at the foot of the fishing pier. While these hours are Thursday through Sunday, 3 to 10 p. m., the gallery is surrounded by workshops —sculptors, jewelers, painters, etc., and we were able to prevail on some of them to let us in the gallery.

• • • •

WILLIAM STURDEVANT of La Jolla is represented by an impressive array of sculptures, some paintings, and 16 really fine copperplate etchings. Sturdevant's sculpture is baroque and, were it music, would be termed "bravura" style. He does heads of prophet-types and animal heads, largely in alabaster, high-lighting the graining and color of the stone.

Sturdevant's etching are in crisp style, beautifully drafted, and have evocative personalities, such as bird-like creatures of fantasy.

• • • •

PHYLLIS BAILEY shows many skillful drawings, largely of women, strongly influenced by her former teacher, Francis de Erdeley, as well as Daumier and Toulouse. They are highly skilled studies in charcoal, conte, and inks. Several are carried on into oils.

John Dove, a current student at LBSC, has several sculptures in the show. One is made from the root of eucalyptus, carved, oiled, and polished. Another is of ceramic and refers to female forms.

There's much to enjoy, artwise, in Balboa . . . for those who go down at the end of the week.

Sellers Film at LBSC

"The Mouse That Roared," starring Peter Sellers and Jean Seberg, will be screened in Long Beach State College Little Theater Saturday at 7 p.m. and again at 9 p.m.

It is the tale of what happens when the tiniest nation on earth, The Grand Duchy of Fenwick, invades the U.S.A. because of a wine dispute. A California wine firm has produced a cheap imitation of the Fenwick product, threatening the duchy's entire national economy.

• • • •

The Fenwick prime minister, played by Peter Sellers, decides to declare war on America, lose, and be repatriated. The Fenwick field marshall, played by Peter Sellers, invades New York City with an army of 20 archers. An important grand dutchess, played by — you guessed it — Peter Sellers, collaborates with them.

Involved in the invasion is the capture of a scientist and his super-powerful "Q-bomb." Jean Seberg and David Kossoff compliment Sellers who outdoes himself in the three roles. "The Mouse That Roared" is one of the best comedies to come out of Britain in several years, according to New York critics.

Box office admission is $1.25 for the last film presented by the Long Beach Film Society in its summer series.

S.M. Civic Goes Round Next Year

Stepping into the theater-in-the-round picture is Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. Plans will get under way next June to convert the auditorium for presentation of Broadway musicals with top name artists.

The auditorium will be modified and redecorated to give it a typical summer theater effect. A round stage, 34 feet in diameter, will be installed; the floor will be fully carpeted, and arm chairs will be installed to bring seating capacity to 3,000. Last row of the seats will be only 15 rows from the stage, spokesmen say.

The present sound system will be supplemented with additional equipment to insure excellent acoustics in every part of the auditorium.

Name Catalina Art Festival Judges

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Three Southern California painters have been named as judges for the Catalina Art Festival to be held Sept. 21 and 22 in Avalon.

Emil J. Kosa Jr., Claude P. Parsons and John W. Hilton will select the winners from the hundreds of paintings displayed in the outdoor event.

Kosa has been painting for 40 years and is a member of the National Academy. Parson, a leader of the American school, paints with firm line and brilliant palette; Hilton is of the "desert school" of California painters.

Bill Bender, who has been exhibiting in New York galleries for the past five years, will judge the children's and youth art exhibits.

A total of $1,500 in prizes will be awarded.

One award of $150 will be made for the best Catalina Island landscape by a non-resident artist. To make it possible for contestants to paint the interior scenic areas of the island, festival officials have arranged special bus rides Sept. 16 through 20. Reservations are necessary. Artists may book space on the buses by calling Avalon 640.

Other prizes are for $400, $200 and $100; popular prizes chosen by the public, $50, $35 and $25; 10 special awards of $10; and 10 honorable mentions.

Any one may enter the festival competition, but all entries must be delivered by hand—no shipping—on Saturday, Sept. 21 between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Paintings must be taken to the Catalina Art Association on Crescent Street. A fee of $2 per entry will be charged. Judging will take place that afternoon.

Cleveland Daughter Will Wed

Of interest to a wide circle of civilian and military friends is the betrothal this week of Martha Ann Cleveland, daughter of Cmdr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Cleveland, to Lt. John Owen Sommercamp, USAF.

Cmdr. Cleveland is commanding officer, United States Naval Station, Long Beach, where his family has been in residence since their arrival last February from a tour in Yokosuka, Japan.

Lt. Sommercamp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Peyton Sommercamp of Beaumont. A 1961 graduate of the United States Military Academy, he currently is stationed at Travis Air Force base as a navigator with the 86th Transport Squadron.

Following their September nuptials, the young couple will reside in Northern California.

Silver Fete for Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Leslie Woods will be honored on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary Saturday.

They Love Window Stopping

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

About three summers ago, Phyllis Turman, noticing the stream of foot traffic past her Peninsula apartment, decided it would be fun to have something fun in her front window for the children to look at.

The window displays now have become a beloved institution in the area, with visitors from many other communities. And it isn't just the children who enjoy it.

"It is a very rewarding hobby," says Miss Turman. "Everyone is too serious about life these days. I do enjoy seeing people smile or laugh a little when they pass by."

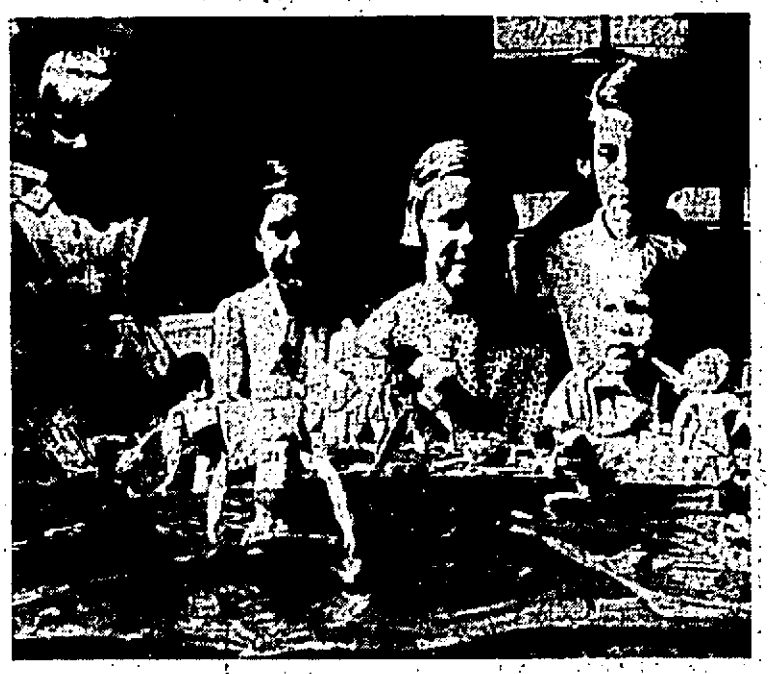

Two of the biggest boosters for Miss Turman's window displays are her landlords, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mills.

"Wonderful people," their tenant says.

* * * *

WHEN Miss Turman started her project the window had six panes of glass divided by strips of wood. Mr. Mills was so enthusiastic that he replaced it with a single pane "because he thought she could decorate it better."

The current display is a beach scene with blue cellophane water and real sand and shells. The tiny figures are made of crepe paper with marshmallow covered heads. Every detail of life at the beach is shown in minute detail, with umbrellas, beach mats and gaily striped back rests on the sand and surf boards and inner tubes in the "water."

AT THE BEACH
These neighbors love Phyllis Turman's window at 59-B 65th Place. Miss Turman has a changing display that is currently a humorous beach scene. The children are (from left) Susy Martin, Priscilla, Cynthia and Gretchen Weede and Christopher Martin. They find the window lots of fun and so do their summer night-strolling elders.

One family group gets particularly appreciative laughs from parents going by overburdened with beach gear. Father is struggling along with umbrella and beach chairs; exotic beach hatted mother has a tiny picnic basket, the thermos and a utility bag and the three children straggle behind with rolled mats, towels, more beach bags and a tiny pink baby!

AT NIGHT the window is lighted with miniature lights strung with clam shells and sand dollars.

Miss Turman's talented fingers started their work with crepe paper shortly after she was stricken with polio.

"No poor me, please!" she exclaimed, when interviewed.

Severely crippled, her friends put her to work making party favors and table decorations.

Now completely recovered, Miss Turman has the ideal job for a beach lover. She swims and frolics with her admiring young neighbors by day and works a late shift at the Bank of America clearing house.

Of the many elaborate and time consuming displays made by Miss Turman, one that got the most giggles was the simplest. Between productions she spotlighted two silly little ceramic lions with fur ruffs and real whiskers sitting under a crepe paper palm tree.

What the happy passers-by didn't know was that the leering lions were taken right from Miss Turman's dinner table where they held the salt and pepper.

Not the Gift, But Cost That Counts!

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is from a large family, and at Christmastime and birthdays and special occasions one or the other of his brothers or sisters will buy an expensive gift for his parents and then present us with our share of the bill.

My husband pays and says nothing.

Now, Molly, we have had many arguments over this. I would much prefer spending our money and buying gifts that we pick out—which, of course, means getting gifts we can afford.

Do you think I'm unreasonable in this? Should I hang him back on the family tree?—BROKE AND DISGUSTED

DEAR B. AND D.:

What do you mean, hang him back on the family tree? Sounds to me he's never been plucked therefrom!

It's ridiculous to let his brothers and sisters dictate in this matter. You have every right to select your gifts yourselves. But, Disgusted, have you thought that failing to go along with the others might embarrass your husband, even if it doesn't you? Maybe he's just trying to be a good sport, so don't get too mad with him.

However, I wouldn't blame you one bit for trying to persuade him that maybe his folks would actually prefer the individual thought on your part. There, you can see I'm trying not to take sides!—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I are confused about dinner and supper. Is dinner the chief meal of the day, or is your noon meal regardless of what you have to eat? If your evening meal is dinner, when do you have supper?

I call our noon meal lunch, and the evening meal dinner. My husband says that's not right. Please set us straight, won't you?—MRS. N.G.

DEAR MRS. N.G.:

Actually, it is easy to be confused because in certain sections of our country dinner and supper differ somewhat from dinner and supper elsewhere.

Dinner, however, no matter whether served midday or evening, is the large meal of the day. Supper is always the evening meal, always lighter than dinner, and served sometimes early evening, oh, say, after a concert or some such, later in the evening.

Lunch, of course, is always the light midday meal. Is this clear or am I confusing you more than ever?—M.M.

Alfred J. Maloney

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Maloney Is Tops at Round Steak

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

He's a man who knows his business from stem to stern. In fact, he'd better know it!

Today's Chef of the Week, Alfred F. (Al) Maloney, has recently been appointed manager, Bethlehem Steel Company's Shipbuilding Division, San Pedro Yard. He succeeds (Chef) W. A. Harrington, at both the "yard" and the barbecue.

Maloney actually parlayed the necessities of World War II into his present position at Bethlehem Steel, working days and studying nights. He came to the San Pedro Yard in 1941, in the production control department. In September of '42, he was appointed junior test engineer. Three years later he became sales engineer, and in 1962 was given the appointment of assistant manager.

• • • •

BORN in East St. Louis, Ill., the family moved the Phoenix, Ariz., when he was 10. His Dad was in government service, and they again moved to San Diego just in time for him to enroll in high school. He remained to graduate before coming to Long Beach Junior College. He brought with him his football prowess which had its beginning at San Diego High.

Maloney then enrolled at USC where he majored in Industrial engineering. His degree took him to Bethlehem. With the largest floating dry dock in Southern California, Bethlehem has invested 7½ million dollars, in the last two or three years, modernizing the San Pedro yard.

A member of the Long Beach Yacht Club, Maloney belongs to the Society of Naval Architects, the Propeller Club, and, "marinewise," to the Long Beach Bilge Club.

He and Dorothene, (Mrs. M.), have a son Michael, 18, a graduate of St. Anthony's High School who plans to enroll at Notre Dame this fall, and a daughter, Patricia Ann, 12, a student at St. Bartholomew.

• • • •

MALONEY is the opposite of a "putterer" — he's a "sitter" if there's any kind of sports event showing on the TV screen.

But . . . can he ever barbecue! In fact, the Maloney Steak began 12 years ago. Dorothene always asked the butcher for a top round steak, 2 inches thick. After a time, the butcher queried her about it . . . that cut being rather unusual. She passed along her recipe—he tried it—liked it, and began recommending it. He dubbed it Maloney Steak.

Now, 12 years later, he's still selling it like crazy.

MALONEY STEAK

2 tsp. meat tenderizer
½ cup salad oil
½ cup red table wine
2 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. marjoram leaves
½ tsp. coarsely ground pepper

Pierce both sides of a 2-inch thick top round steak and sprinkle with meat tenderizer. Place meat in shallow pan. In a bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Pour over steak. Let stand at room temperature for 8 hours, turning often to marinate well. Remove from marinade and grill over hot coals 12 minutes on each side for rare. Carve steak in thin, diagonal slices for serving.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Calling All Travelers!

DEAR ABBY: Please give the gas station folks a break and ask the vacationing public to have mercy on us. They drive up, grab a hose and rinse off their cars. It doesn't bother them that they make a mess for others to walk through. They want their windshields cleaned, but don't need gas. And they've bought their oil by the case somewhere else. They even ask to borrow your tools. They pile out in droves to use the restroom. Sometimes they spend half an hour in there—changing clothes. Our regular customers can't get in for the free loaders. In a nice clean business like a liquor store, the customer spends more in 30 seconds than he does at a service station for a 500-mile trip. And the clerk doesn't have to clean windshields, check lighter fluid or anything. The customer doesn't expect a thing except the right change and a paper bag to put the bottle in. He even gets oiled on his own time and off the premises. Thanks a lot. —"LEFTY"

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who needs help desperately. I consider myself lucky because I have a nice family and we have everything we need. My big problem (and please don't laugh) is that I have a mustache. Boys are always telling me I need "a shave." Even some of my girl friends have tried to tell me in a nice way that I'd be pretty if I got rid of that mustache. I don't want to shave it off, and I'm afraid to use some of the stuff I see advertised because I've heard it could leave my upper lip rough like a man's beard, or maybe it would leave scars. Can you help me?—MUSTACHED

DEAR MUSTACHED: You are a very wise young lady to consider so carefully the results before attempting to remove unwanted hair from your face. Ask your mother to take you to a skin doctor, and let HIM tell you which method is best for you. There are many.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: You say there is no discrimination in cities. Well, you are 100 per cent wrong. At this very moment there is discrimination against hiring overweight people for stenographic work. I went on interview after interview and was turned down. I was finally told outright that I wasn't hired because of my weight. I am only 27 pounds overweight and am trying to lose it. But in the meantime I have to live. If given a chance, I'm sure I could do as good a job as any thin girl. This is certainly not the land of opportunity for the heavy-set person.—STARVING

DEAR STARVING: While "appearances" do play an important role in job-getting, a 27-pound roll shouldn't disqualify you for every job. There must be other factors.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: We run a restaurant and have hired a good prfessional organist. We have a few patrons who like to play "a couple of ditties" on our organ when they come in. When they ask, we hate to turn them down, so we tell them to go right ahead and play a "PIECE OR TWO." The trouble is, once they sit down we can't get them to quit. It offends the hired organist, and besides, the other patrons don't enjoy these amateurs as much as the amateurs think they do. Other restaurant owners must have this problem, too, Abby. Will you print this with your answer and help us all?—BOX NO. 660

DEAR BOX: The way to solve your problem is to put a stop to it before it starts.

• • • •

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Tending Home Fires

Counter Action

Keeping the home fires burning is mostly a matter of heating up something for dinner these days. And, with electric ovens and plug-in appliances, sometimes the heating up doesn't even require a flame.

But, this doesn't by any means indicate that the little woman has abdicated the kitchen. She's still there (up to four hours a day, according to some surveys).

And, unlike grandmother, who had little other than homemaking to do—she's got a million and one other projects to take care of, too.

So, bring on the time saving gadgets and glamorous gimmicks.

Under $1

ELEGANCE is the word these days. It's not enough just to simmer a stew on the back of the stove. When it comes to company dinners, the family expects dining-out glamor at home. Now, with summer melons in the market what could add a more sophisticated note than to serve them in a cocktail or salad cut up in professional looking balls. Easy to do with a gadget made just for the purpose.

And, melons served sliced with a dash of lemon or lime can be elegant, too. That is, if you've a collection of little melon spoons on hand. Of stainless steel, they come with hardwood, teak finished handles—are styled in Scandinavian type simplicity.

Under $2

TOP OF the stove mop-ups take up lots of precious time. Why not fit the burner with a bib? Of aluminum, these practical bibs fit under coil; keep drips from turning into hard-to-get-off stains. Just lift off and rinse out.

• • • •

Look, no lid? No need to grab for one when it comes to draining liquid from a pan. There is a more efficient way. Use a pan drainer. It's easier to hold on to—slotted just right to do job.

• • • •

Building a better mouse trap IS the American way of life. Now, a manufacturer has come out with a better egg slicer. It has handle, is lots easier to manage than the old-fashioned variety. A must for sliced egg fanciers, indeed.

• • • •

DO YOU LOSE spoons in the bottom of bubbling pans? Well, you needn't. Buy a stainless steel pan spoon. It's fashioned to hang on side of on-stove pot; always there, ready to use.

Gravy bowls are great . . . only trouble, by the time dinner is served the gravy is cold. Elegant gravy chafing dish solves this saucy problem. Of chrome, dish will blend with any dinnerware; is attractive addition to table. Candle heat keeps gravy hot; go-with ladle makes it easy to serve.

OUR COVER

"Water skiing is a snap," says Chuck Stearns, who defends his national title before hometown fans next week in Long Beach Marine Stadium. Apparently Chuck believes what he says because, although he is only 24 years old, he has won the national championship five times—not to count a great many other honors. In competing at Marine Stadium, Chuck is returning to the spot where he made his first clumsy efforts to stay afloat. And where he won his first trophy. Jerome Hall tells more about this aquatic champion and the coming National Championships in his story, "The Babe Ruth of Water Skiing" on Page 7.

La Bella's Problem

By William Sunderland

In typically Latin outburst of joy, Sophia Loren hugs knees of husband, Carlo Ponti, at bit of good news.

SHE HAS everything—except a husband. One of the world's most beautiful women, an Oscar on her mantlepiece, contracts for at least two years of films, the starring part in a Broadway play under discussion.

This is Sophia Loren, the Italian actress who once was a skinny little girl named Sofia Scicolone living in the slums of Naples.

Sophia is the second actress in the history of motion pictures to command a salary of $1 million for a picture. That's what she is getting for "The Fall of the Roman Empire." It was Elizabeth Taylor who first hit the million-dollar-mark for "Cleopatra."

She lives with a man she loves—and who loves her. It could be called one of the happiest marriages in the world of films, except he is not her husband—at least not in the eyes of the Italian law.

SHE HAS been married and then had the marriage annulled in an effort to untangle the almost unbelievably complicated legal situation revolving around her and producer Carlo Ponti.

Sophia, relaxing in a chair in her antique-furnished Roman apartment, has a simple answer to the situation.

"No matter what the law says, we are married because being married isn't a matter of standing up before a judge or a priest and having him say words. It's a feeling—and I feel married," she said.

"My husband, my ex-husband, my fiance—or whatever one should call him—and I don't discuss the problem. It simply upsets us and there is nothing to do about it anyway.

"It is a difficult and complicated matter and I really don't have any hope of a solution. It will just go on and on and on and I don't have any hope of there ever being a solution."

SOPHIA, now 28, married Ponti by proxy in Mexico in 1957. But Ponti, nearly twice Sophia's age and several inches shorter than her statuesque five feet, eight, had been married before—to an Italian general's daughter named Giuliana Fiastri. Before marrying Sophia Loren, he obtained a Mexican divorce.

But in Italy, no divorce is legal.

Charges of bigamy were filed in the Italian courts against Ponti—not by his former wife, however. In Italy, any citizen may file such charges, even without having his name made public.

If convicted, Ponti faces a five-year jail sentence and Sophia an equal prison term as being a party to bigamy.

After innumerable court hearings—any court action in Italy goes on for years—the couple decided to get the marriage annulled, strictly as a legal maneuver. Their relationship remained the same.

The Mexican annulment was handed down last year.

THE PROBLEM now is that the Italian prosecution claims the annulment is not valid.

Another touchy point is her acting as godmother to the first baby of her sister, Maria, who married jazz pianist Romano Mussolini—son of late Italian dictator, Benito Mussolini.

Several days after the baptismal ceremonies, a Catholic theologian from Milan, Msgr. Giovanni Battista Guzzetti, said Sophia should never have been permitted to act as godmother because she is a "public sinner."

Sophia said she has enough film contracts to take up her next two years and then she may do a play on Broadway.

"It's still in the talking stage, so I can't say much about it—except that, naturally, I'll be playing an Italian woman."

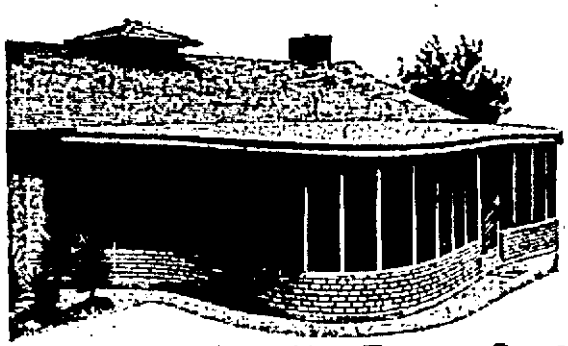

She added, "Certainly, winning the Oscar (for "Two Women") was a high point. But looking back over the years I don't regret anything.

"I learned something from everything—and particularly from the bad things.

"About the future, I don't know. I like surprises."

Tradition of Ships' Figureheads

Undraped figure of a girl graces the bow of MV Bolinas, named for small California town well known to mariners.

By Frank H. Black Jr.

ONE OF the oldest and most colorful traditions of the sea would have been lost if it had not been for the Norwegian owner of a shipping line whose vessels call at the Port of Long Beach.

Thomas Olsen, head of the Fred Olsen Line, revived and has maintained the ancient tradition of placing figureheads on the bows of ships.

And since he placed the first one on a ship in 1936, there have been 49 more Olsen vessels sailing the high seas with large, bronze statues of people from history and mythology on their bows.

THIS TRADITION goes back to when man first ventured out on unknown seas and he felt the need for some kind of magic omen to keep him safe. Thousands of years ago the Chinese painted large, gleaming eyes on the bows of their junks to watch for the dangers of the sea. The Egyptians and Phoenicians often had birds of prey for figureheads to protect them from sea monsters.

And Leif Erickson, probably the first white man to touch on new world shores, had a figurehead on the bow of his oaken ship.

The grand era of this tradition was in the 19th Century when nearly every ship afloat was adorned with women in various stages of undress, generals, figures of state, mythological characters and creatures, Indians and animals.

One of the most famous ships during that period was the Cutty Sark. This noble ship of white sail had a scantily clad maiden for a figurehead, her name coming from the Scotch and Anglo meaning "short chemise."

When the romantic days of sailing ships came to an end and motor driven vessels became supreme, figureheads were no longer considered necessary. In the machine age, man no longer felt the need of figureheads. Ships were equipped with radio and were no longer completely subjugated to the vagaries of the weather.

WHAT ENABLED Olsen to revive the figurehead tradition was a structural change in ship design around 1935. Bows were changed from a sharp to a rounded or "soft-nosed" design, which was ideally suited for the placement of figureheads.

Olsen had several reasons for bringing back the figureheads. He wanted "to preserve an old and beautiful tradition from the days of white sails and to give an opportunity to Norwegian artists to display their art throughout the world."

And in the machine age, he wanted to give a style and a personality to his ships.

The first Olsen vessel to carry a figurehead was the MS Bayard, named for the famous French knight of the 15th Century.

Ship that bore the name of Simon Bolivar also carried his figure at her bow. Craft sank, figurehead was salvaged.

A regular caller at the Port of Long Beach is the MV Bolinas with an unclothed woman on the bow.

THIS OBSCURE little town was selected for a ship's name because, while it is little known to landsmen, it is known world-wide to mariners. For all ship radio messages coming from the Pacific are beamed there and then relayed up and down the West Coast.

When an official of the Olsen Line said that the figure of the nude woman had no specific meaning relative to Bolinas, this writer suggested that no woman should be without some significance—especially one without any clothes—and this one on the Bolinas should symbolize "The Spirit of Radio Waves."

The suggestion has been sent to Olsen headquarters in Oslo.

Some of the other ships calling regularly at Long Beach are the MV Bataan with a Philippine maiden in honor of the province where many Americans fought and died during World War II; the MV Bonanza with an Indian referring to the early West, and the MV Buffalo carrying the dashing figure of Buffalo Bill.

SOME OF the more exotic ships are the Baghdad with Scheherazade looking out over the waves; Balkis, which is the real name for the Queen of Sheba, and the Bolette with another undraped female figure in a scallop shell symbolizing the birth of Venus.

Perhaps the most obscure figurehead is that on the Borgland. It is an owl. The explanation is that the owl is watching the ocean from his nest in the "castle" or Borg.

One of the majestic figureheads was on the Bolivar, with the great South American liberator in marching pose. The Bolivar broke up and sank while on her maiden voyage to Dublin Bay. But the figurehead was salvaged and is now in the Welfare Hall of the Akens Shipyard in Oslo.

Chuck Stearns of Long Beach wears a heavy mantle . . .

The Babe Ruth of Water Skiing

By Jerome Hall

With skis turned sideways to his high-speed course, national water ski champion Chuck Stearns does one of tricks that has taken him to top.

WHEN THE history of water skiing is written it might begin: "One day a man fell out of a motorboat, clinging to a rope . . ."

When the world is ready for a chronology of water skiing, it should begin with the name Chuck Stearns.

Chuck is the Walter Hagen, the Knute Rockne, the Babe Ruth of this sport.

That's a heavy mantle to heap upon a lad barely 24 years old, but it's one he's earned.

In the brief history of water skiing as an organized sport, there is no one to compare with Stearns, who next weekend will put his talent on display for the home folks when the national championships are held at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

A LOT OF water has passed under Chuck's skis since the day he first said "Let's buy a boat, dad. That looks like fun." It was in Marine Stadium that he made his first clumsy attempts to stay afloat. It was there he won his first trophy. And unless there's an upset of major proportions, he will have what he considers his most important victory there next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In the 10 years since Chuck first went splash, he has risen to a position unchallenged by any other in his sport—past or present. Among his accomplishments:

- He has won the national championship five times.
- He has won the Grand National Catalina ocean race six times.
- He is the only one ever to win all three categories of competition in the U. S. finals.
- He singlehandedly brought national recognition to West Coast aquatics.
- He has won the tricks event in the Nationals the past five years.
- He has turned his talents into big business. Chuck Stearns water skis are sold the world over.

IT'S EASY TO SKIM through a list like that without realizing its magnitude. Consider, for example, the Catalina ski race, an annual test of stamina put on by the Long Beach Boat & Ski Club and recognized as one of the more difficult races in the world. It's a round-trip, nonstop race. Chuck has won it six of the eight times he has entered and holds the record of one hour and 14 minutes for the near-70-mile course.

He failed to win twice, once due to an ankle injury and the other time because his navigator made a slight miscalculation and missed the island. If the Coast Guard hadn't hailed them down, Chuck might have established a record for water skiing from Long Beach to Fiji.

Chuck recently won the U. S. Masters tournament held in Georgia in such impressive style that he was immediately selected as the captain of the four-man, two-girl United States team for the World Meet three weeks from now in France.

WATER SKIING has provided him with the chance to see the world by sea without joining the Navy. Earlier this year he made a month-long trip to Australia at the persistent requests of the Down Under skiers. Chuck didn't want to go because it cost him enough school time that he didn't graduate from Long Beach State College this year, but the Aussies were very persuasive. They sent money. Enough to cover a delightful tour of the South Pacific that included a gala holiday in his honor in Tasmania.

Chuck Stearns probably is the only water skier who has been cheered for going Down Under.

Several saronged sirens of the South Seas tilted their hibiscus petals in Chuck's direction, but he escaped with bachelorhood intact. A handsome, muscle-rippling, sun-tanned fellow with financial reserves of some magnitude, he is a popular target.

When he is not in college or slithering across foreign waters, Stearns conducts a ski school at Salton Sea, where he promises, even to ungainly neophytes, that he will have them zipping along at 25 miles per hour after only 30 minutes of tutoring.

Chuck has achieved financial security with his skiing—one of a handful of true pros in the country. In addition to his school ($15 per hour) and his name-line skis which are manufactured by one of the largest ski makers in the nation and sold all over the world, Chuck could wipe out a lot of people's total indebtedness with what he could get for pawning his trophies.

HE HAS WON nine sets of silver tea service, for example—the kind that cost upwards of $1,000. And for the six times he has won the Catalina race he has acquired trophies that cost about $1,500 each. And there are dozens of smaller silver cups that would melt down very nicely.

"I'd never sell any of them. It's a matter of honor," he says, but he admits he did compromise slightly. He gave one of the silver sets to his sister for a wedding present the past summer. And with no other sisters or brothers heading toward nuptials—and with no inclination toward them himself—those big teapots are beginning to pose a problem.

Because of the day that Chuck said to his pop, "Let's get a boat, that looks like fun," life has been a breeze and a salt spray for the Stearns family. His father, Bill, has retired to manage Chuck's business affairs. The elder Stearns was a building contractor, but now will take a house-building job only "if we can see water from the lot the guy is building on."

Chuck views this week as probably the most important in his life. He says, "I remember 1960 was the turning point for me. They said it was impossible to win all three firsts in th Nationals." But he did it.

"Nothing could surpass that, except winning the Nationals in my home town," he avers.

There had been talk that Chuck is over the hill, probably ignited by his third-place finish in the tricks event in last year's U. S. Championships. Chuck also got only a third in the jumps, but a first-place finish in the slalom gave him enough points to take the over-all championship and regain the national crown that he also won in 1960, 1958, 1957 and 1955.

BUT CHUCK has so totally controlled the sport that those two third places, especially in the tricks which is his forte, started rumors.

Young Stearns was beginning to believe them. "It's going to be tougher to win (the Nationals) this year," he said before competing in the Masters tournament in Georgia in June. When Chuck returned with the Masters crown he said, "I was amazed at how easy it was."

If next weekend's tournament is as easy, next month he may regain the world title that he won in 1959 in Milan, Italy. That would mean another $1,000 teapot.

Just what he needs.

Stearns has added teaching to his capabilities and operates a school of water skiing at Salton Sea. Here, he starts a young student skier.

Viewed by millions but never read . . .

His Newspapers Are Props for TV and Movies

By Jack B. Kemmerer

Typical examples of newspaper headlines printed to order for movie and television studios are examples of work of Hollywood's Earl Hays Press.

IN THESE DAYS when "bigness" is a virtue, some newspaper chains have combined circulations that probably run into the millions. Yet, there's a publisher in Hollywood with a single Linotype machine whose newspapers are seen by more people than all of the large chains combined.

The small-time, big-time publisher is Earl Hays, proprietor of the Earl Hays Press in Hollywood. His newspapers, hardly ever reaching an edition larger than 50 copies, are viewed by uncounted millions throughout the world—viewed but never read.

It is to the Earl Hays Press that the movie and television studios come for their journalistic props—the fictional newspaper editions that the screen hero or villain just happens to see on a newsstand or in the arms of a ragamuffin crying, "Wuxtry." The headline comes up at you in a rush to fill the screen with the depressing announcement that the hero's fiancee has run off with the villain; war has been declared; or the Titantic has sunk.

EARL HAYS started in the commercial printing business many years ago back east and moved to Los Angeles where he got in on the ground floor of the then new motion picture industry by printing titles and small inserts. When talkies appeared on the scene titles became obsolete and Hays continued to print inserts and started what is now the largest collection of printed material in private hands.

Earl Hays checks his work and prepares to print a facsimile of a newspaper page on his letter press. Millions see his work in films and on TV.

In his files are such items as Russian telegraph blanks, baggage checks from just about all over the world, foreign birth certificates in languages ranging from German to Arabic, liquor labels, legal forms in various languages, tickets for the trans-Siberian railroad, tickets for the crossing of the Atlantic of the German Zeppelin, goods labels, Mexican marriage licenses and thousands more.

The Hays Press is ready for any contingency. If the order is for a replica of a Berlin, Paris, or Tokyo newspaper, Hays can take from his files the "Berlin am Mittag," "Ce Soir" or "Yomiuri-Hochi" to duplicate authentically masthead, style and content. In the shop are about 8,000 original cuts of various types and there are better than 5,000 original newspapers. The oldest original copy on file is of the Boston Chronicle dated 1769 and there is also an original copy of the London Times of 1799 announcing the death of George Washington.

THE INSIDE pages of an Earl Hays edition are usually blank, but then, in the movies, who wants to go beyond the tell-all headlines? Most of the newspapers seen on the screen are mythical and non-existant, to avoid the possibility of lawsuits against the studios, and a careful check is made to avoid possible infringement of copyright. However, when headlines deal with actual historical events, authentic copies of the respective papers can be used.

At his request, nearly all of the states supply Hays yearly with a replica of their current automobile license plates, which often are numbered "00-000." These plates are used whenever a film script calls for an out-of-California location, in which case Hays makes up dummies printed on heavy cardboard which match the original plates in size, color, and layout. When these dummies are mounted on an automobile, it is impossible to tell them from the real thing.

Through the years, the stock item for which there seems to be the biggest demand is the announcement of the 1918 Armistice with the headline of the attack on Pearl Harbor running a close second.

Hays values his collection of more than 2,000,000 printed items at more than $50,000 and doesn't believe there is anything in the printing business that he can't supply on short notice—except, maybe, a few $1,000 bills.

Photos by the Author

Hays also maintains a file of more than two million original printed items and his shop can and does reproduce an amazing number of odds and ends.

ROUSTABOUT WITH ELECTRIC EYES

Robot Explores for Offshore Oil

By Lou Jobst

A ROBOT roustabout with electronic eyes and ears is extending petroleum operations to the bottom of the sea off the California coast.

The 10-foot, tubular-shaped mechanical and electronic oil field worker is the creation of Shell Oil Co.

Shell is using the robot, sometimes called "Oscar, the monster roughneck," to explore its offshore holdings.

"Oscar" was used to drill a number of wells off Santa Barbara and will be put into use later this year when Shell begins drilling in 266,800 acres of continental shelf recently awarded the petroleum company by the Federal government.

THE SHELF LAND is part of 800,000 acres of offshore area between Point Conception and the Oregon border that the Federal government is opening to oil drilling and exploration.

Shell paid $11.4 million for its 49 parcels. All of the land is located outside the three-mile limit and most is under more than 200 feet of water.

Geologists believe there are oil-bearing strata on the shelf with a potential yield of up to 900,000 barrels of oil per day.

Shell has been exploring the offshore areas for years and is a pioneer in the development of scientific undersea oil operation equipment.

AMONG THE company's developments is the electronic drilling ship, Eureka, which can maintain a stationary position on the surface despite wind or weather or wave conditions.

The Eureka is the mother ship of "Oscar."

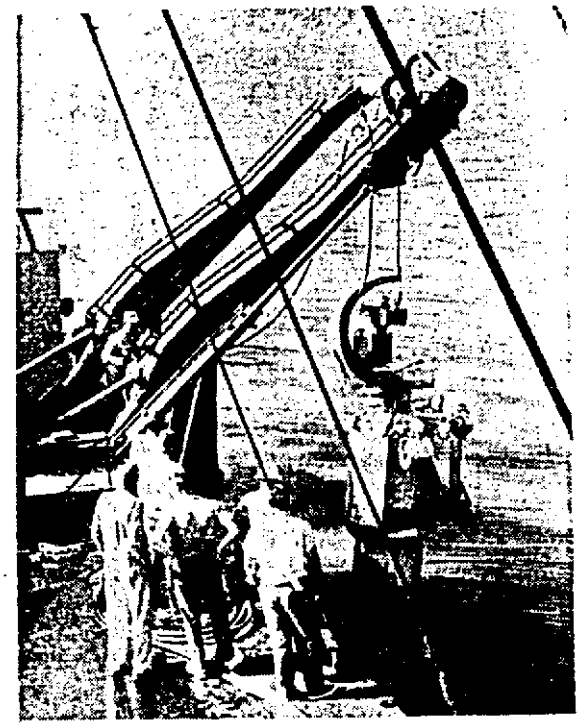

The robot is operated by remote control from the surface and is equipped with an arm that can turn lock screws, operate valves, grip pipe and hoses and wield a brush and other manual tools.

The robot is also equipped with a television camera and sonar gear which feed an endless sight and sound picture to monitors on the surface.

"The robot means we can open entire new fields of underwater wells," explains a Shell official.

THE ROBOT oil worker also could be used to drill off the Southern California coast, but there are other complications.

The state of California claims all submerged land out to three miles beyond the Channel Islands, a coastal chain which includes San Clemente and Santa Catalina and which extend 20 to 40 miles offshore.

"Oscar," the undersea oilman, is lowered over the side of a Shell Oil Co. vessel of the California coastline.

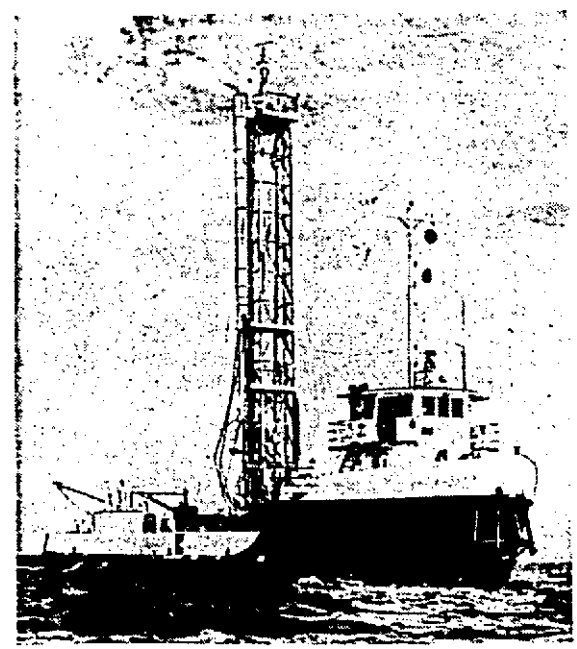

The federal government claims the state can only rightly claim three miles offshore from the mainland and three miles around each of the islands.

The situation does not exist in northern waters where there are no islands.

WHILE MUCH of the California coastal shelf is relatively shallow, down to 200 feet, and can be reached from "Texas Towers," such as those seen off the Southland coast, the robots were necessary to open up operations in the deeper areas.

The robots cost about $250,000 apiece and have been engineered and designed to work on well equipment at depths down to 1,000 feet.

A second generation of robots, the first of which is completed, will also be able to perform such complicated tasks as laying pipe and retrieving equipment from the ocean floor.

Shell's ship, Eureka, can hold fixed position on surface and is mother ship for robot and other equipment.

HINTS ON PILE CRUSHING & CORNER CURLING

When carpet pile is crushed down because of furniture pressure or walking, try a hot iron over a damp cloth, or a steam iron on the spots, being sure not to press down on the iron. Brush up the spots gently after the treatment on the front and back of carpet corners that curl. For cut pile, dampen the crushed area lightly. Comb to raise the pile. Allow to air dry.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Special for Young Moderns

By Stella George

MODERN young couple with two small daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lindsay, 4500 Cerritos Dr., have developed for themselves a custom home that, from every point of view, is especially adapted to their needs and their way of life.

A long walkway, adroitly landscaped on either side, leads to the front door. This opens directly into living room, and interest is focused on a garden seen through a glass wall.

The living room is simply but appropriately furnished with a peacock blue couch and chairs and a coffee table. This grouping is set in an alcove which faces the main portion of the room — thus adding spaciousness to the area. A fireplace dominates the far end of the room and the ceiling is beamed.

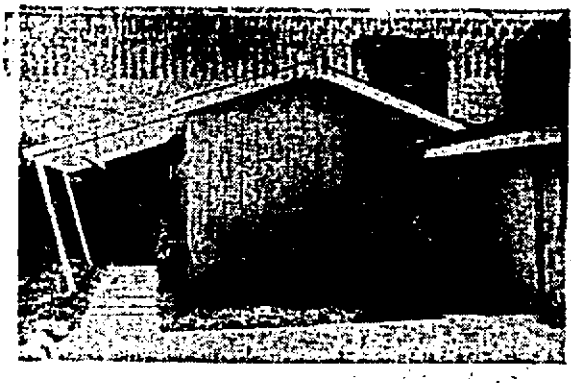

The hallway to the left leads to the kitchen and family room areas designed especially well for a young modern family. The kitchen faces the family room with a separating dining bar with stools on the family room side. The kitchen is not overly large, but it is so well planned that there is ample room for preparing and serving, and room to spare.

AS MIGHT be expected in a family such as this, much of the "togetherness" is spent in the family room, which has been planned accordingly. There is a built-in desk with cupboards and bookshelves above. A sewing machine, when closed, is an attractive table. There is ample space in the room for sit-down dining around a small square table. There is also plenty of room for a piano. Window seats provide seating space for family and guests. And, like the living room, there is the view of the garden.

Bedrooms are compact, well-furnished, and master

In planning the garden, Lindsay arranged for areas designed for children and for adults. This is a view of the adult portion. A playhouse features youngsters' area.

A long walkway leads to the entrance to the Lindsay home. Landscaping makes this approach most pleasant.

bedroom has access to the garden.

The Lindsays planned their home and garden themselves, and the garden is so well done that Lindsay has been called upon to help friends design their own landscaping.

The garden has been divided into adult and the children's areas. Directly outside the living room glass wall is a concrete area with a louvered roof surrounded by tropical plants and furnished wth a tete-a-tete table and chairs. Gravel surrounds the patio and at the right are steps that lead to a walk, giving a feeling of being in the country where paths lead to—who knows what?

TO THE LEFT, more shrubs, more plants, an overhead lantern which glows cheerfully at night. Although this is a man-made garden, it leads as though through a wooded area—then, suddenly, to the children's playground. Neighborhood children know this site well.

There is a playhouse and an artists' retreat, complete with easel, in one corner and shaded by trees. In the summer there is plenty of room for a portable swimming pool to be set up alongside the play house.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Two Stories Solve Space Puzzle

By Jules Loh

ANY HOUSE hunter who has tried to reconcile a large family with a moderate budget is well aware of the big problem.

You can find a house with four adequate bedrooms. You can find a house with adequate living area. But putting the two together all too frequently requires more square footage than a medium sized pocketbook can handle.

Architect Herman H. York has solved the problem in House of the Week B-81, an adaptation of two-story colonial design brought up to date to accommodate today's need for more space.

The house has four bedrooms and 2½ baths, all in 1,653 square feet of habitable area. The one-car garage adds 269 square feet, and the overall dimensions are a modest 44 feet 8 inches wide and 26 feet 1 inch deep.

ITS UNCLUTTERED and extremely functional floor plan also makes for simplified large-family living as well as serving the equally precious cause of economy.

A 25-foot-long room designed for both kitchen and family living runs from front wall to rear wall, equally accessible to both the main entrance foyer and rear service areas.

For more formal relaxation, a dramatic 12x21-foot sunken living room (with an optional fireplace) likewise extends the depth of the house and flows through sliding glass doors to the rear terrace (another optional feature).

Separating the two rooms is a spacious foyer which features a powder room—equally accessible to both living areas. The foyer also leads to the dining room, which means any room in the house may be entered without having to pass through another room.

UPSTAIRS, another central hall plan equally simplifies traffic circulation. The main bath is placed directly at the top of the stairs, convenient to downstairs traffic as well as to all four roomy bedrooms. The second upstairs bath, with a stall shower, adjoins the master bedroom.

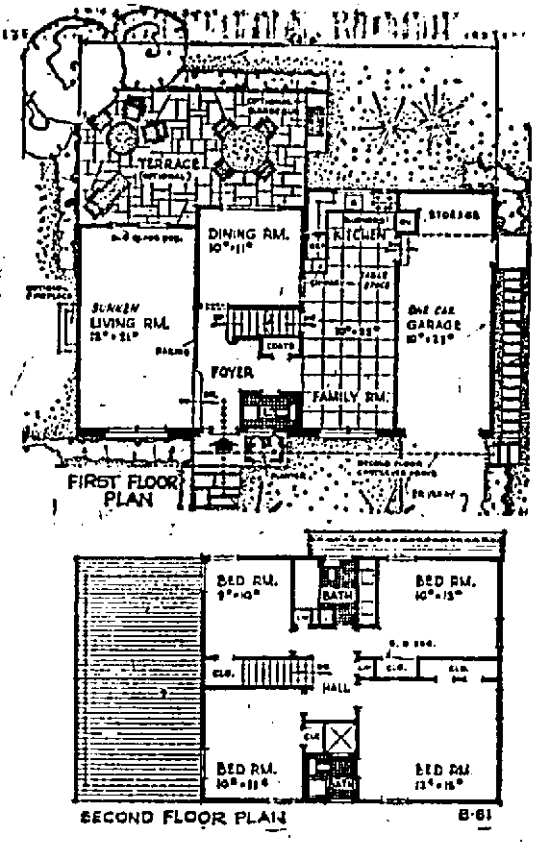

"Any family that needs four bedrooms also needs plenty of room to live comfortably the other 16 hours in the day," said York. "Extending the living room to one side provides the bonus space—enough of it to accommodate a garage as well."

York also suggests that, if desired, the living room could be opened to the dining room simply by eliminating the wall and substituting a railing, and perhaps a step-down. Incidentally, note the dramatic railing between the living room and foyer.

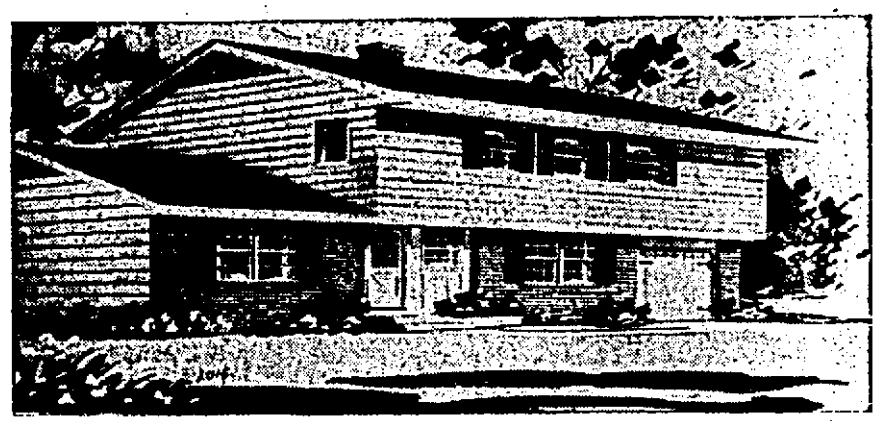

While the plan shows a one-car garage, an additional nine feet will provide enough space for two cars, plus extra storage space in the rear.

THE SERVICE entrance to the house is on the side through the garage rather than in the rear. There is a rear entrance, of course, off the terrace which is only one step down from the sunken living room. Entry on the side, however, assures backyard privacy as well as convenience with sacks of groceries, milk deliveries and so forth.

The kitchen of B-81, with its L-shaped work area, likewise is designed for housewife convenience. And look at the unusual position of the wall oven—recessed into the garage storage space rather than extending into valuable room space. The area above and be-

Central foyer design, as shown in these floor plans, assures excellent traffic circulation in this handsome home. Living room could be opened to dining area.

Attractive and roomy, this colonial home has a sunken living room extending along side, providing necessary area for a large family. House includes four bedrooms.

SPEAKING of storage, there is an abundance of it in this house.

All the bedroom closets are roomy, especially the one in the master bedroom; there are two linen closets upstairs as well; an oversized coat closet in the entrance foyer; the garage storage area; plus a full-height cellar under the living room, dining room and foyer section.

The bathrooms likewise are roomy, well planned, and stacked atop one another for plumbing economy. The main bath upstairs has two lavatories, built into a long vanity with a single mirror. Medicine cabinets are in each end wall.

Sandwich With a Special Touch

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Chicken or turkey, pineapple and Parmesan cheese sauce make something "special" of this appetizing sandwich.

APPROPRIATE for suppers or luncheons whenever folks drop in unexpectedly, Pineapple Chicken Sandwiches, Parmigiana add zest to the occasion. Dill weed accents the chicken slices (or turkey, as you wish) and a slice of pineapple rests regally atop the sandwich. Rich cheese sauce adds more delight, and avocado slices and ripe olives form the garnish.

The sandwiches are quick and easy to prepare and the sauce may be made ahead of time, if you have prior notice, and reheated quickly just before assembling the sandwiches.

The recipe:

Pineapple Chicken Sandwich, Parmigiana

- ¼ cup chopped green onion
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2½ cups half and half
- 1 egg yolk
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 (1-pound 14-ounce) can pineapple slices
- 8 slices buttered toast
- Dill weed
- Sliced cooked chicken or turkey
- Salt and pepper

Cook onion in butter until soft but not brown. Blend in flour and salt. Slowly stir in half and half. Cook, stirring, until sauce boils and thickens. Quickly beat a little of the hot mixture into the egg yolk; return to sauce in pan and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Blend in cheese. When ready to assemble sandwich, drain pineapple. Place buttered toast in 8 individual bakers or arrange all slices in a large shallow pan. Sprinkle lightly with dill weed and top with sliced chicken or turkey, being as generous as you like. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Top each sandwich with pineapple slice. Spoon on hot sauce. Place under broiler until hot and glazed, about 5 minutes. Garnish with peeled avocado wedges and ripe olives, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Recipe of the Week

SOMETHING on the seafood side wins $5 as best recipe of the week for Mrs. Grace Kelly, Hanalei Gardens, 510 N. Lyon St., Apt. 1, Santa Ana. The recipe:

Lobster Tails a la Mom

- 1 lemon
- 1 bottle clam juice
- cracked pepper-corns
- 4 tblsp. white wine
- minced parsley to taste
- garlic powder to taste
- 6-8 lobster tails
- dash oregano
- dash paprika
- pinch thyme
- pinch ginger
- 8 tblsp. butter (dot tails with butter)

Prepare boiled lobster tails. Crack and peel. Place in casserole then add all above ingredients. Place in 325 degree oven and bake until thoroughly heated. Serve on hot bed of rice.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Zoo Heart Ills Increasing

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

SOCIAL AND economic pressures in an increasingly urbanized society may be partly responsible for the growing incidence of hardening of the arteries.

This is suggested in the journal Circulation, by Dr. Herbert L. Ratcliffe, professor of pathology at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

He has found a tenfold increase in heart disease in eight years among mammals in the Philadelphia Zoo. There has been no change in the animals' environment except an increase in population density combined with more complex social relationships.

For the first time, deaths from heart attack have begun to appear in the zoo population.

IN EXTREMELY hot weather, bottled carbonated drinks can be hazardous, an Albuquerque doctor warns in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

On hot summer days the bottle may explode, he explains. He cites the case of an 80-year-old woman who lost vision in one eye from flying glass shards, showered from a bottle that exploded in 95-degree weather.

LIFE-THREATENING blood clots that form in an artery can sometimes be removed by a new method employing a long rubber tube with an inflatable balloon at the tip.

Cincinnati researchers say the technique works this way:

The catheter is inserted into the affected artery and threaded past the clot. Then the balloon is inflated with fluid. Next, with the expanded tube tip behind the clot, the catheter is pulled back in a single sweep, raking the clot along with it.

Dr. John J. Cranley says he and his associates at Cincinnati's Good Samaritan Hospital have performed the procedure 15 times during the past year. Only local anesthesia is required.

PREVALENCE of cough diminishes with higher temperatures and sunshine, according to a two-year study conducted in two large Dallas, Tex., hospitals.

On the other hand, barometric pressure has no effect on cough frequency.

Researchers found that a north wind causes coughs to go up. Humidity and rainfall also increase coughing.

The report is in Schering Science Bulletin.

THE EYES of young diabetics should be checked once a year, researchers at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York recommend.

Increased pressure inside the eye, a condition that often precedes glaucoma, has been found in 7 of 41 diabetic children, the doctors report. Borderline pressures were found in four other juvenile diabetics.

One of the children proved to have definite glaucoma and eventually required surgery. Glaucoma can cause blindness if not discovered and treated in time.

Ordinarily intraocular pressures are checked only in persons above 40 years of age, when glaucoma is most apt to occur.

CAPSULES: Allergic reactions to papaya are uncommon, but they do occur, report two Delhi, India, researchers in Annals of Allergy. . . . Poor persons have 25 per cent more cancer than rich persons, a new report discloses. . . . Nuclear medicine continues to grow; the Atomic Energy Commission reports that 450 radiologists and hospitals have been licensed to use radioisotope treatment devices in the U. S. . . . A British scientist thinks the radiation effects of tobacco smoke should be studied further with the thought that they may play some role in the development of lung cancer. Sir Ernest Marsden, reporting in Nature, tells of finding differences in radiation effect in various tobacco products.

Look on the back of your Bisquick box

Surprise! Here's your shortcut to eight delicious bakings. Quick because the basic ingredients are measured and blended for you in Bisquick. The back of the box is a "cookbook" of Betty Crocker recipes—and brings along its own ingredients to get you started. Discover a new Bisquick shortcut-to-homemade baking. Bisquick

It's your shortcut to homemade...because we've already measured and blended six basic ingredients for you. Here are my favorite recipes.
Betty Crocker

PANCAKES

2 cups Bisquick 1⅓ cups milk
1 egg

Beat smooth with rotary beater. Grease griddle if necessary. Turn when bubbles appear. Makes about 18. Use 2 cups milk for thinner pancakes.

COFFEE CAKE

2 cups Bisquick ¾ cup milk
2 tbsp. sugar 1 egg

Heat oven to 400°. Mix ingredients. Beat vigorously half min. Spread into greased 9" round pan. Sprinkle with mixture of ⅓ cup brown sugar, ⅓ cup Bisquick, ¼ cup cold butter, ½ tsp. cinnamon blended with fork until crumbly. Bake 20 to 25 min.

For richer batter add 2 tbsp. more sugar, 2 tbsp. melted shortening or vegetable oil.

MUFFINS

Mix ingredients as for Coffee Cake. Fill greased med. muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake 15 min. Makes 12.

VELVET CRUMB CAKE

1⅓ cups Bisquick 1 tsp. vanilla
⅓ cup sugar 1 egg
3 tbsp. shortening ¾ cup milk*

Heat oven to 350°. Grease and flour 8" square or 9" round pan. Mix ¼ cup of the milk with other ingredients. Beat 1 min. med. speed on mixer or vigorously by hand. Stir in rest of milk; beat ½ min. Pour in pan. Bake 35 to 40 min. While warm, cover with topping.

Broiled Topping: Mix 3 tbsp. soft butter, ⅓ cup brown sugar, 2 tbsp. cream, ½ cup coconut, ¼ cup chopped nuts. Spread on baked cake. Put about 3" under broiler until brown, about 3 min.

Over 3,500 ft. altitude, add 2 tbsp. milk. Bake at 375° 25 to 30 min.*

FRUIT SHORTCAKE

2 cups Bisquick 2 tbsp. sugar (if desired)
¾ cup cream*

Heat oven to 450°. Mix ingredients with fork to soft dough. Beat vigorously 20 strokes. Knead 8 to 10 times on lightly floured board. Roll dough ½" thick. Cut with 3" floured cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet about 10 min. Split shortcakes: spoon fruit between and over layers. Makes 6 shortcakes.

Or use ⅓ cup milk plus ¼ cup melted butter.*

BISCUITS

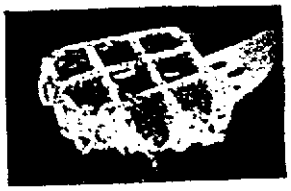

2 cups Bisquick ⅔ cup milk

Heat oven to 450°. Stir to a soft dough with fork. Beat vigorously 20 strokes until stiff but sticky.

For Drop Biscuits—spoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake 10 to 15 min. Makes 12 med. size.

For Rolled Biscuits—roll dough on cloth-covered floured board. Knead 8 to 10 times. Roll ½" thick. Cut with floured cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet 10 to 15 min. Makes 12 2" biscuits. For richer biscuits add ¼ cup soft butter or shortening to Bisquick before milk.

WAFFLES

2 cups Bisquick 1⅓ cups milk
2 tbsp. melted shortening 1 egg

Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Makes three 9" waffles.

DUMPLINGS

2 cups Bisquick ¾ cup milk

Mix well with fork. Spoon onto boiling stew. Cook over low heat 10 min. uncovered and 10 min. covered. Makes 10 to 12 dumplings.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Late Darwins Lost

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Do the admission requirements of some of our colleges and universities discourage potential talent?

ANSWER: Unhappily, yes.

College admission requirements do have that effect when they exclude youngsters who develop later than others.

Dr. John Tyler Bonner, Princeton University biology professor, comments:

"Because of the sudden increase in world population, universities are taking only the students with high grades. One must have flowered at school, before college, to be accepted. There is nothing in our system that recognizes the Darwins that flower after college."

His point is reinforced by Dr. Ernest O. Melby, professor of education at Michigan State University:

"We waste a million kids a year. We admit students largely by grades and measures of verbal intelligence, yet current studies show that high IQ students are not necessarily those most creative."

It is an observable fact that slow starters often go farther and achieve more than fast starters. Educational and business policies which fail to take this into consideration do a disservice not merely to the individuals concerned but to the nation, itself, as it seeks to maintain a leadership of brains in this competitive world.

QUESTION: Is faulty hearing often a cause of slow learning?

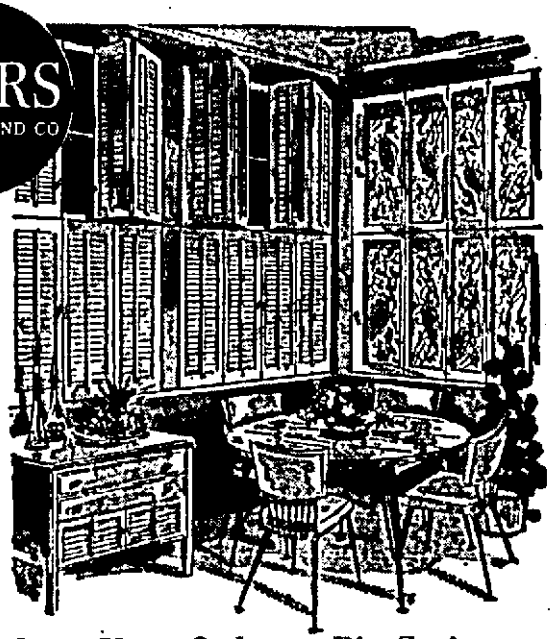

ANSWER: A California State Department of Mental Health survey revealed that from 3 to 4 per cent of school-age children do not have normal hearing.

We have seen no study of the effect of poor hearing on learning, but obviously the child who misses parts of instructions is at a marked disadvantage.

Before next September, every school-age child should get a thorough medical examination, including an eye test and a test of his hearing.

Striking eagle decoration, about 28 inches square, is designed to enhance the front door or adjoining wall.

By Bill Meyerriecks

A STRIKING, modernistic design to brighten up the front entrance area of your home is offered in this issue of Sketchbook. It's a finely designed modern American Eagle plaque for display in the entrance way or on an adjoining exterior front wall. Surprisingly, many homeowners take the most obvious spot of their home for granted and seldom freshen the entrance. Here's the chance to do it—and for less than $2 worth of material.

The charm of the eagle plaque is in its design and its simplicity. Each segment of the eagle is shown full size in the Sketchbook plan for you to trace and cut. From the plan you'll learn what little aluminum and wood material you'll need, how to shape the aluminum for the wings and cut the wood for the eagle's body and nameplate.

To order plan, specify S-121 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Garden Brightener

STRIKING PLANTER with three stepped-up trays is pictured above with Sibyle Collier, NBC-TV actress. Colorful flowers become even more attractive in this bright unit which is a true accent for a garden or lawn. The planter is made of exterior plywood and will last for years. The three steps make possible a variety of plantings. Wheels make it mobile for use around the premises. Any amateur shop enthusiast can make this unit when he uses a full-size pattern—No. 318—available for $1 from Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., PO Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Beautiful Swivel Chair

Upholstered in genuine Vinelle. Luxuriously D-E-E-R Soft foam filled attached pillow back.

Handsomely stitched 12-button tufted back.

Foam padded throughout.

Old Mine Comes Back

By Retta Ewers

LONG thought dead and all but buried, figuratively speaking, a Riverside County gold mine has come alive again.

The mine, near the main highway between Perris and Elsinore, is guarded by signs that warn: "Stay Out — Private Property."

In 1962, Howard J. Hunt and Adam Natalie leased the ground and started preliminary exploratory work, forming what will be known as the Hunt Mining Company, with Hunt and Natalie as co-owners.

THE ORIGINAL shaft went down to a depth of 575 feet but was so filled with debris and fallen timbers that no effort was made to excavate it. Instead new shafts, drifts and stopes will be started on other spots of the acreage included in the lease.

Hunt and Natalie have plans to erect a new stamp mill, eventually a manufacturing plant at the site.

First work will be on the tailings of the dump, which previous operatives thought useless, but which assays $20 per ton. With the mill 200 tons may be processed daily.

The ore from this mine is called "Arseno-pyrite," which means it is mixed with a certain amount of arsenic. The recovered gold crystalizes and forms into shape like iron pyrites.

HISTORY states that gold was first discovered at the Good Hope by a Frenchman named Mache, in 1874, with a group of Mexican miners from Chihuahua, Mexico. This may be true, but evidence of mining in the Gavilan Hills prove that Spaniards were recovering the precious metal long before 1874. Old arrastres are still to be seen where the ore was pulverized.

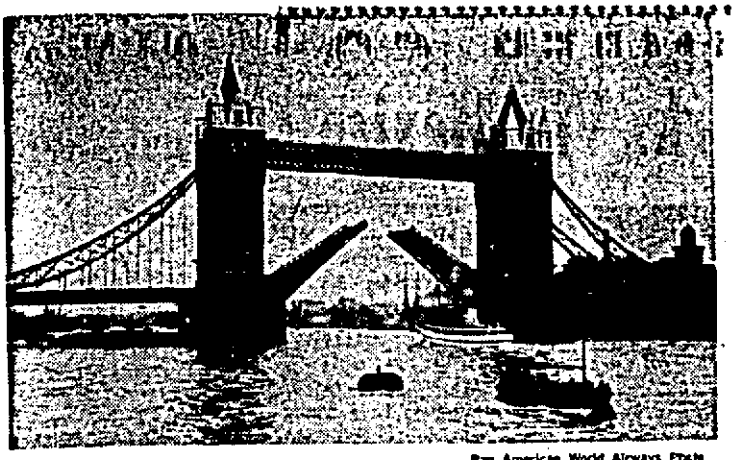

Mache's men used an arrastre, a crude, primitive method or process in which the ore was crushed in a circular, rock-bottom pit, by a huge rock dragged around by a mule or burro.

Water That Lawn!

Lack of water is probably the most universal reason for a lawn that won't stay green. Fertilizer is necessary, too, but more often than not you'll find that water will green up a lawn.

There are several reasons why water is lacking. Most obvious, of course, you don't water enough. More than likely, however, you don't water deeply enough when you do and/or the soil is so compacted that water won't sink in. In the latter case, a coring tool will remedy the problem. Ask a nurseryman about this.

Southland Magazine is your entree to a different home each week, offering an opportunity to see how others developed decorative themes, incorporated comforts, solved family housing problems.

Tower Bridge is one of the famous landmarks of London, a city that has an individuality unique around the world, a city steeped in tradition.

LONDON ...a world by itself

By Eddy Gilmore

I DON'T LIKE London. I love it. Next to Selma, Ala., it's the greatest city in the world. But being bigger than my home town, it has more to offer.

I wouldn't fight about London, but I'm perfectly willing to shout about it.

Residents describe its climate as three months of winter and nine months of lousy weather.

This is a blessing in disguise, for if its seasons were benign, the residents of all the other places—after sampling London—would want to move here.

Already, too many call it home.

It doesn't possess the superficial charms of the feminine capitals of Europe, but there's an elegance and satisfaction about it that lingers like vintage wine on the palate of the heart.

LONDON'S sooty streets are like mellow pages of time and the Thames is liquid history.

Hundreds of houses still standing remind of the thousands of fascinating people who've lived here, and those who live here now: the statesmen and soldiers, sailors and pirates, artists, writers, composers, poets and actors, world-builders, pirates of finance, the great beauties, the cockneys, the wonderful eccentrics. In short, the Londoner.

The tobacco shop keeper of Lambeth who, the morning after the Luftwaffe blasted out all his doors, windows and half a wall, put up a sign that read:

"Business as usual—we like fresh air."

Or the superb arrogance of the Duke of Wellington who was halted by a stranger at a Mayfair ball.

"Mr. Smith, I believe," said the stranger."

"Sir," replied the Iron Duke, "if you believe that you'll believe anything."

Or the second son of a west country earl who was stopped on the street by an acquaintance who happened to be a parlor pink.

"Featherstonehaugh," began the esthetic leftist, "I hear you don't like me."

"Don't like you?" spluttered the surprised aristocrat. "Why, you have the wrong information. As a matter of fact, I never think of you. If I did, I'm sure I should loathe you."

WALK THE STREETS—and the best time to walk them is at night—and history rumbles behind the walls beside you.

There behind that modest door lived Alexander Fleming, the shy man who discovered penicillin.

And here at No. 4 Chesterfield St. Beau Brummell once taught the Prince Regent how to tie a tie.

At No. 147 New Bond St. lived Nelson and at No. 150, Lady Hamilton.

No. 79 Pall Mall is the house that King Charles II gave Nell Gwyn.

Ramble through the quiet streets of Chelsea, pass the houses in which lived Rossetti, Whistler, Carlyle, Swinburne, Meredith, George Eliot and dozens of others.

And where but London would there be an address like:

2 Tite St.?

Further on, the house in which lived Oscar Wilde.

Everyone knows the obvious places—and they, of course, make London, but other corners contribute, too. Especially the unusual ones.

IN BAYSWATER stands London's smallest house—the frontage is 3 feet 6 inches wide.

Big Ben also is world renowned. Properly, it's Clock Tower, which holds a 13-ton bell within, named for a former commissioner, Sir Benjamin Hall.

What city has a "season" like London's?

It begins in early May with the private view of the Royal Academy's annual show.

This is followed by a gay pageantry of events, unrivaled in the scope and magnificence by any other city:

The Eton-Harrow cricket match at Lords, the citadel of cricket.

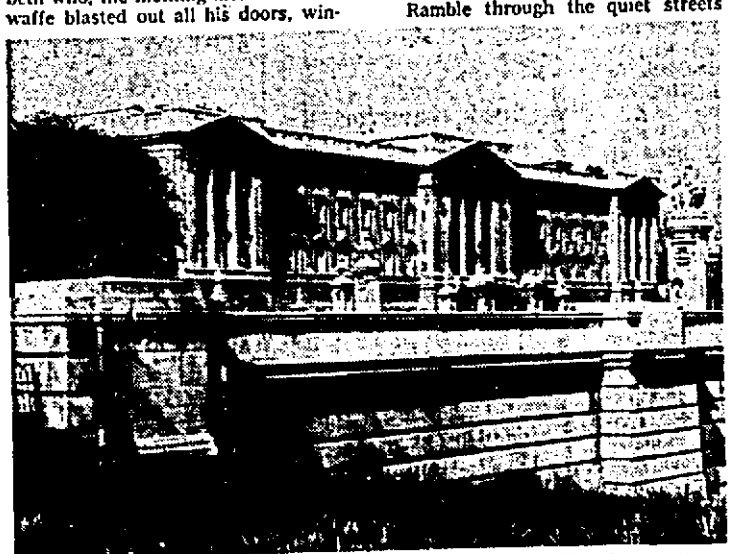

Royal Ascot, with the royal family in attendance.

The Chelsea Flower Show.

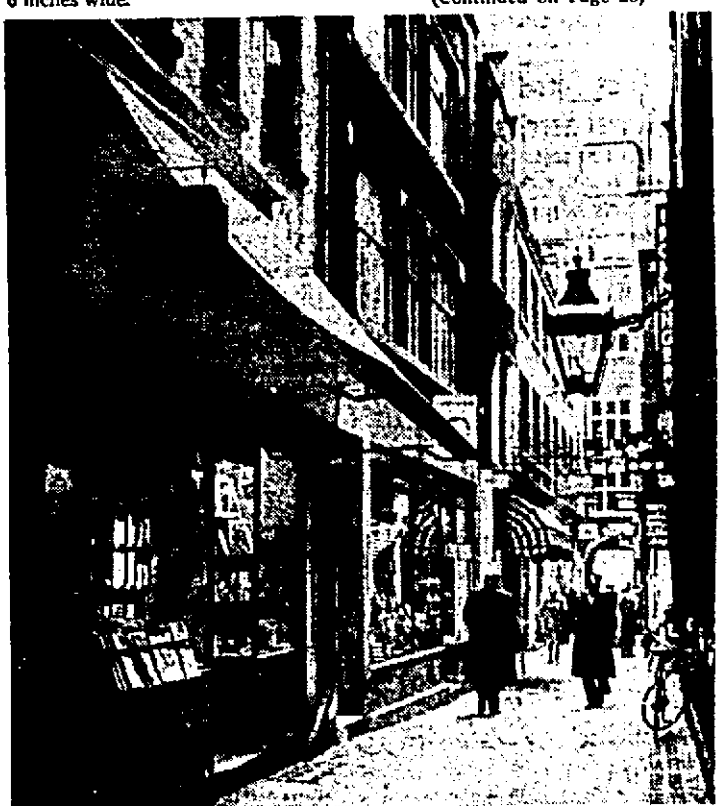

The water sports at Henley.

Epsom Downs.

Buckingham Palace is Queen Elizabeth's London home. In palace forecourt, one of Europe's most famous ceremonies occurs—Changing of the Guard.

British Travel Association Photo

Despite the noisy bustle of the 20th century, some London streets still have Dickensian flavor—like Crown Passage (above), near Piccadilly Circus.

L. A. to New York, Via Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WESTERN Air Lines has come up with a novel travel idea that should catch the fancy of a flock of coast-to-coast flybugs hereabouts.

It's called the "Mexico Circle Trip" and if you fly from Los Angeles to New York under the plan, you can visit Mexico City for very little additional cost—and in some cases for less. And you jet all the way.

Instead of flying direct, you would streak via Western to Mexico, stay as long as you wish to sightsee, go nightclubbing and stuff in the fine restaurants there, and then continue on to New York by Eastern Air Lines.

Total flying time is only two hours, 25 minutes greater from Los Angeles. Roundtrip aircoach fare to the Mexican capital is only $51.65 more from Los Angeles than the direct roundtrip fare to New York.

IT IS POINTED OUT that if you normally fly coast-to-coast in first class accommodations you can, by converting to air coach, make the circle trip for $32.25 less than you normally pay.

If you insist on traveling first class in both directions the additional tab still is only $73.70—a saving of more than $100 over the regular first class fare to the Mexican capital.

And don't forget to get a tourist card before you go, plus a smallpox vaccination certification and proof of citizenship. You'll need them for reentry into the United States.

ANOTHER new way to visit Mananaland is to combine the swiftness of air flight with the enjoyment of an escorted bus tour.

Greyhound, in conjunction with Mexicana Airlines (CMA), has worked out a plan whereby you may, with only 15 days to spare away from your job, get a pretty thorough look-see of Mexico City, Taxco, Cuernavaca and other portions of this fascinating land.

You fly from Los Angeles International to Mexico City and there join Greyhound's regular Escorted Tour of Mexico, with return trip by highway up the west coast of Mexico; or, you may join the Escorted Tour bus in Los Angeles and travel to Mexico over that country's central highway, and return by air.

Highlights of the bus line's now famous three-week Mexico Escorted Tour are retained in the new 15-day air-bus combination tour.

The bus trips leave Los Angeles every Sunday. If you wish to take the first portion of your trip by air, departing time is late Saturdays from Los Angeles International. Twin accommodations cost $326.50 per person.

IF YOU HAPPEN to visit Smiths Falls, Ontario, Canada, before October, it's possible you might hit an unexpected jackpot.

Redwoods Tour

Greyhound bus tours through the Redwood Empire will leave San Francisco Aug. 27 and Sept. 10.

Four-day escorted trips include the historic Valley of the Moon, the Mendocino Coast, Clear Lake, Eureka, and the majestic redwood groves of Southern Humboldt County.

Reservations are available through local travel agents or Greyhound offices.

Show, Anyone?

If you're Broadway-bound to see a stage play, but with little time on your hands, you are an ideal candidate for American Airlines' Hit Show Overnighter Tour.

The "Holiday On Wings" package provides hotel accommodations with private bath and an orchestra seat for matinee or evening performance of a Broadway musical, drama or comedy.

Depending on which one of the six first-class Manhattan hotels the visitor chooses, rates range from $18.75 to $24.50 per person for twin-bedded accommodations, and from $20.50 to $29 for a single, with show tickets included. Air fare is additional.

You can book your New York theater tour package at the same time that you make your American Airlines flight reservations.

During August and September, the local chamber of commerce twice monthly picks an American family visiting this town of 10,000 population to be the "Tourist of the Month."

If you're lucky you get a civic reception, have your picture taken, are interviewed by press and radio, taken on a tour and finally are guest of honor at a luncheon. After the luncheon, the merchants of the town load you down with gifts!

STOCKHOLM also will greet you royally, but in a different way.

If you wish you now may meet a Swedish family with mutual interests through "Sweden at Home," one of Scandinavia's popular "Meet the People" programs, says a Scandinavian Airlines System spokesman.

And for the latest in sightseeing and entertainment hints, a telephone call to "Miss Tourist" can help you fill out your daily schedule.

PACIFIC RAILROAD Society is sponsoring a train (Santa Fe) excursion to Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico, Aug. 30-Sept. 2. Both coach and sleeper accommodations will be offered. Side trips will include Meteor Crater, near Holbrook, Ariz., and the Ponderosa Pine country of Arizona. You can get the details by calling NOrmandy 2-8971.

Air-Minded

There is more scheduled air service to and within Alaska per capita than any other place in the world. There is one aircraft for every 156 residents compared with 625 in Nevada and 4,545 in New York.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

AVILA, SPAIN

"Am a widow of middle age, going in September to Europe. Several questions: Can I drink ice water in hotels and good restaurants?"

I DON'T drink tap water in France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, I do the British Isles, Germany, Austria, Switzerland — but I ask first. It is not resented if you ask, "Is the water all right to drink?"

Best bottled water in France is Evian; Spain it's Solares; I forget Portugal but they have one; and the BEST is Fiuggi in Italy. (If you read the label, you'll find one of the endorsements is from Michelangelo.)

Look at other tables in the restaurants. You'll see Europeans ordering bottled water —though most of them will drink only wine.

"No. 2., I am used to regular hours. How can I get used to later meals?"

I GUESS you get used to them because you have to. The latest is Spain. Dinner seldom starts until 11. And dining rooms don't even open until 10. However, I have discovered the Spanish go to hotels or little restaurants about 6 and stoke up on the meal they call the "merienda" — sandwiches and snacks. This holds you until evening dinner.

In other countries — (not Portugal)—dinners are usually between 8 and 9.

"Do I have to have typhoid shots?"

NO, BUT I DO, and all my family. I also keep everybody up on the three polio sugar cube vaccine, and tetanus. You have to have a smallpox vaccination within the past three years to get back in the U. S. and into some other countries.

Be sure to have your doctor sign the yellow card with the record of shots. And then have it certified by a city or U. S. Public Health department. Some countries will shoot you all over again if it isn't stamped.

I seem to misplace my yellow card a lot. Consequently, I've been pulled out of line and bayonetted in back rooms of airports all over the world. All health departments are afraid jet travel will spread something before they can catch up with it. They needle you just to be sure.

"And No. 3., I am going one way by boat, home by plane. How do you change your money in this case?"

THE PURSER has foreign currency to change for your dollars. By planes, there's always an airport bank. If you arrive when it's closed, tip in small American money — the porter can change it.

But don't tip hotel maids and other people in American coin. They can't change it. Only airport banks will accept coin — usually.

"YOU SUGGESTED carry a duty-free shop and a restaurant. ing $1 bills for changing at last moments. We found no place to use them and wound up, all four of us, with money belts stuffed. . . ."

Well, I don't mean carry a million dollars. Carry two $1 bills for every border you cross. Maybe a $5 for every border, too. What happens is this: You've cashed in your money of the country. You pass through customs. You find yourself in a waiting room of the airport. It has a

If you have to change a $20 traveler's check for a glass of beer, you wind up with more of the same money. That's where the $1 bill shines.

"We are a couple motoring through Switzerland and Italy. Any suggestions for hotels and restaurants? Any special place not mentioned in the guide books?"

FOR ITALY, there is a Michelin Guide. Buy it in large book stores in Europe. It's in Italian. But the symbols (easy to read) are explained in English in the front. Gives the best advice on hotels and restaurants.

For Switzerland, I use TWA Travel tips (50 cents at any TWA office). Covers the big cities, shopping advice, etc. I never had a poor hotel or mediocre restaurant in Switzerland. They are excellent.

For something unusual? You'll find a week at Lugano on the Swiss-Italian border very rewarding. And in Rome, take a taxi at night to the Piazza del Panteon.

Gettysburg: the Agony and Glory

THIS IS CHARLES McCURRY'S jacket painting of Anne Boleyn, whose story is told in Norah Lofts' new novel, "THE CONCUBINE" (Doubleday, $4.95). The British author of the trilogy, "The House of Old Vine," "Bless This House," and "House at Sunset," lives with her husband and son in Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk, England.

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

JACK McLAUGHLIN'S "Gettysburg: The Long Encampment" (Appleton-Century-Crofts, $6.95) probably is the best single volume of the shelves full of books written about the great battle.

Packed into 244 pages are 200 photographs (some published for the first time) and 60,000 words. There are books that give more of the details of the titanic struggle, and some that more thoroughly discuss tactics and strategy, but none that come so close to evoking the terrible flavor of the bitter clash that killed or wounded 33,000 men on the rolling green carpet of the Pennsylvania countryside around Gettysburg.

Frequent flashes of prose-poetry, reminiscent of Stephen Vincent Benet, transport the reader to those three days of long, long ago when men gave no thought to monuments or speeches or even to the day of the week.

And the aftermath is here. Where most descriptions finish with Pickett's charge and Lee's misery-ridden wagon train retreating to the swollen Potomac, McLaughlin's comes back to the battleground to witness the cleanup of the foul-smelling carnage.

Thousands of bodies—men and horses—to be buried. More thousands of wounded to endure the agony of primitive surgery.

Four-and a-half months later, Lincoln gave perhaps the greatest speech in the English language, but was disappointed. Most newspapers dismissed his "foolish" remarks. Some of the wounded still were there in the field-tent hospital.

Recounted are the highlights of succeeding years: the reunions, the dedications — speeches by Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt. The mystery and pain, the grandeur and finality of Gettysburg still live—will always live.

HOW DOES one become one of the richest men in the world?

A man who should know, American oil billionaire J. Paul Getty, describes his rise to capitalism's highest peaks in the autobiographical "MY LIFE AND FORTUNES" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $5.95.)

Getty, fatalist, adventurer, rugged individualist and steely-nerved opportunist, makes it candidly clear that life in such a lofty place is not all roses.

An oil field worker who became a millionaire at 23 and was little known outside the world of high finance and industry until a few years ago Getty has had an unhappy private life, five marriages ending in divorce. His business left him little time for his five sons.

He leaves little doubt he could have done without the fame that belatedly followed his vast fortunes.

"THE WAR AND COLONEL WARDEN" by Gerald Pawle (Knopf, $7.95) is a brand new perspective on one of history's best documented figures, Winston Churchill.

These are the wartime recollections of Colonel Warden, Churchill's code name, by Lt. Cmdr. C. R. (Tommy) Thompson, Sir Winston's personal aide and confidant from 1939 to 1945.

Churchill's day-to-day adventures and historic journeys are described in intimate detail as are his personal relations with other Allied leaders and those of his own "inner circle."

This portrait of Churchill the man—physically fearless, obsessed with gadgetry and secret weapons, his obstinate, unbendable will and singular ability to perceive the bold and subtle patterns of history—adds significant stature to one of the English-speaking peoples' greatest leaders.

NEW FRANCOISE SEGANS were bound to crop up after the successes of that French enfante terrible, Dacia Maraini is Italy's contribution to Saganism and her prize-winning novel "THE AGE OF MALAISE" (Grove, $3.95) need take no back seat as a primer of teen-age sex.

Young Miss Maraini's Enrica, like the Sagan heroines, finds the world bleak and empty, and her solution for boredom is the bedroom. A law student, Cesare, seduced her when she was 15, and while Cesare keeps on conquering her Enrica finds time for a procession of lovers on the side. Callous Cesare is the kind of lad who phones his fiance while Enrica lies beside him. There are so many sexual scenes that they become abstractions. But la Maraini is a deft writer and holds one's attention.

THERE WAS, as every aficionado of modern art knows, Camille Pissarro, but there were also, as not so many know, seven Pissarro children, some of whom were talented painters in their own right. Lucien, the eldest son, was the best of the younger Pissarros. W. S. Meadmore's "LUCIEN PISSARRO" (Knopf $6.95) turns out to be not just a biography of a man, who after all, was not one of the greater glories of French art. It is an intimate glimpse into the entire Pissarro menage.

WILLIAM BLATTY

Everything from the State Department to college football and abstract architecture are satirized by William Peter Blatty in his new novel, "JOHN GOLDFARB, PLEASE COME HOME!" (Doubleday, $3.50). Blatty is the author of "Which Way to Mecca, Jack?"

Whatever Became of Camilla?

Camilla Wicks rose to world fame as a violinist. She now plays role of mother but remains active in music.

By Irma McCall

FROM VIOLIN virtuoso — playing command performances for kings — to young homemaker, Long Beach's Camilla Wicks has made a happy transition. The wife of Robert Thomas, regional manager of a California Electronics firm, she is now the mother of four and lives in Dallas.

Hailed by many critics as the world's greatest woman violinist, Camilla was 3 when her violinist father, Ingwald, placed an instrument in her hands and gave the girl her first lesson. Her mother, Ruby, accompanied on the piano.

One year later Camilla astonished listeners by playing a Vivaldi concerto from memory, but her audience little dreamed that this child's musical genius would enrapture the capitals of Europe. When she was 7, she played a Mozart concerto with the Long Beach Chamber Symphony Orchestra. At 8 she played Bach and Mendelssohn in her own recital.

AFTER SEVEN years under her father's tutelage, Camilla studied with famed Louis Persinger at Juilliard School of Music in New York. While most teen-agers were watching TV, sipping soft drinks and dancing the moment's craze, Camilla was practicing four hours a day.

Mornings she attended Progress School until high school graduation, showing brilliance in science. Principal Frances Nielsen says, "I remember Camilla, as a sweet, thoughtful girl, gracious to everyone. After triumphant concerts she was humble and unspoiled. I wish she could have enjoyed annual outings with her classmates—to Orange County Park, to Catalina, but under rigid discipline she sacrificed fun for her art." One teacher still pictures Camilla playing badminton, barefoot on the playground.

"Her parents (who now live in San Clemente) always told Camilla that her talent was God-given and that she should use it for the good of humanity," relates Mrs. Leah Seykora, a family friend. "The young artist has lived up to this high aspiration."

In 1941, the fortune in Camilla's Chinese cookie must have foretold — "You will travel. Your success will be sensational!" Seven European concert tours, hundreds of performances in the United States, marriage and children, afforded a thrilling life.

THEN, in 1959, she decided to take a quiet interlude so that she could spend more time with her family. Her children, Angela, 10; Paul, 8; Erik, 6, and Philip, 4, enjoy music and all play the piano. This summer they will welcome a brother or sister.

"I doubt if there is any fantastic musical talent among my youngsters, as surely it would have emerged by now," says Camilla, "but they do show marked musical tendencies."

Although a mother, she finds time to keep up her practice and to teach violin. Helping a few promising musicians is both a satisfying and creative endeavor for her at North State Texas University where she is resident violinist. In October, she played an important recital for a Dallas charity affair. For fun she included a difficult virtuoso piece, Ravel's Tzigane, proving that the quiet years have not impaired her brilliant skill.

"What is the most thrilling memory of your tours?" she was asked.

She might have answered: "My New York debut in Town Hall . . . Playing in the Hollywood Bowl under Stokowski's direction . . . My many appearances with the New York and the Chicago Symphonies . . . My first European tour which took me to London, Paris, Milan, Barcelona, Zurich, and many other cities, 88 concerts in all . . . Recording for RCA Victor, and 100 releases in Europe . . . My memorable visit with Jan Sebelius at his home in Finland . . . A command performance for the Norwegian royal family."

INSTEAD she said, "It is too difficult to answer! There were so many high points, playing in the world's greatest concert halls with the most respected orchestras and conductors, premiering new works, being congratulated by royalty, being respected by composers and colleagues.

"But I think the essence of the thrill of concert life all boils down to a single multiple experience — the time one stands, drained of all you have given that evening, on the particular stage — loving the people you have played for and that you now hold in a special moment of rapport—listening to their cries for "Encore!" — seeing the mass movement of the audience to cluster around the stage — feeling unworthy of all this and yet knowing something important and great has just happened to you and to the people out there, which in time will dim and perhaps be forgotten, but now exists and breathes as a tangible thing.

"At this moment one delights in playing the musical favorites of the people down by the footlights, the sweet melodies, pieces bringing memories to each of them. In Europe, especially, I remember times when curtain calls numbered up in the 20s and encores up to 10.

"However, even all these memories are just part of the great, combining, rich, multifaceted life that holds so much each day. And I could tell any number of marvelous things that have happened completely unrelated to music.

"All in all, I seem to be lucky in pursuing a really satisfying combination of home life and music!"

The World That Is London

Trooping the color in high summer.

The tennis at Wimbledon.

Covent Garden.

The International Horse Show.

AND AT THE end of the season, the outdoor beauty of the races at rural Goodwood.

A long, never-ending procession of places to see. Places where things have happened, a great many of them quite horrible, but a part of London's history.

The Houses of Parliament . . . Westminster Abbey . . . the Tower of London . . . Covent Garden with its first production of "The Messiah" with Handel as conductor in 1741 . . . the National Gallery . . . Buckingham Palace . . . Windsor Castle . . . Clarence House . . . the Old Bailey . . . the Inns of Court.

Dickens' London. A lot of it is still here.

Walk along Baker St. on a foggy night and there's the place where Sherlock Holmes was supposed to have lived.

THERE ARE good reasons for complaint about London's drinking laws, but maybe you couldn't have pubs without them. Pubs with such names as:

Dirty Dicks in Bishopsgate.

Johnson's Cheshire Cheese on Fleet St.

The Intrepid Fox on Wardour St.

And the clubs—the Englishman's last refuge from women.

The betting book at one of them still records a wager wherein one member bet another that he would—if he lost the bet—name his unborn son after whatever horse happened to win the Derby.

By the time Derby Day came around the hot horse was a nag named Pot8oes.

Imagine a son named Pot8oes.

Fortunately for the reckless bettor, Pot8oes didn't win. He came second.

High on the list of things to recommend London is the Briton's tenacious admiration for the underdog, his inborn passion for fair play, his natural courtesy, his charming, unconscious and almost naive patriotism.

NO CITY'S citizen can laugh at himself quite so well as a Londoner. In fact, a part of the British character is that ability to poke fun at himself and his institutions.

But—and this is a very big three-letter word—no fun of the royal family, please—at least from a foreigner.

About 270 years ago Tom Brown wrote:

"London is a world by itself."

And I love this world.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on LAVENDER?

—G. L., Long Beach.

G. L.: LAVENDER based on the 12th century English occupational term "lavender" means "launderer." The original Lavender was in charge of the laundry for a great medieval castle. Thirteenth century records list Cecilia and Peter Le Lavender of Cambridge. The Lavender coat-of-arms has three sparkling fountains on a vertical silver and red stripe on a shield tinted red on the upper half, silver on the lower.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on McGEE.—Mrs. A.S., Long Beach

A.S.: McGEE, a Scotch surname, has the same ancestry as the famous Clan MacKay. The clan founder, Eymor Mac-Eye, lived on the heather covered highlands over eight centuries ago. MacEye, MacKay and MacGee meant "sons of the man with strong intellect." Descendants who used the name MacGee had a stronghold and castle at Balmaghie in Kirkcudbright, southwest Scotland. The MacGee shield is black, emblazoned with three silver leopard faces.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly explain WARD.—M.W., Lemars, Iowa

M.W.: WARD may be either English or Irish. In England it was the term for a trusted warden or guardian of a castle gate in medieval centuries. Thirteenth century records list Warin Warde of Cambridge and Simon Le Warde of Buckingham. The English Ward shield has a gold cross with a flower at the end of each arm, centered on a blue background. The Ward's religious motto "Sub cruce salus" translates as "salvation by way of the cross." John Ward of Haverhill, Suffolk, England, came to Massachusetts in 1640. The Irish clan name Mac-An-Bhaird, deciphered as "sons of the ballad-singer," was modernized as MacAward and Ward in the 1500s.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the source of HALLER?—H.H., Long Beach.

H.H.: HALLER implies that the family were once residents of the German Saxon city of Halle. The Saxon term Halle described the town location, which was on the site of an ancient "Halle" or meeting hall. The coat-of-arms of the Hallers of Saxony has a golden griffin (a mythical cross between lion and eagle) centered on a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on BARNES.—I.B., Artesia; D.D, Long Beach.

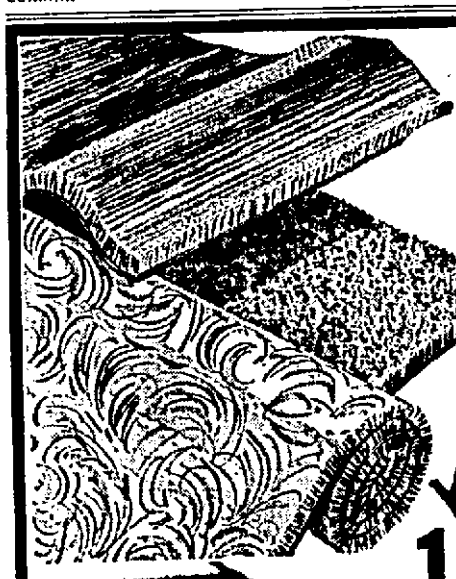

I.B., D.D.: BARNES designated a family who owned a number of "bere-erns," or "barley storehouses" in early Britain. An alternate origin for Barnes was the Norse-English baptismal name Bioms-son meaning "son of the bear." One Barnes ancestor was lord mayor of London in 1371. The family shield from Cambridge is black, decorated with two gold bars below three gold coins. Descendants were land owners in south Pennsylvania in 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background on DE WEESE.—A.D., Long Beach.

A.D.: DE WEESE is a Dutch dialetical spelling of the north German term "Wiese" meaning meadow or pastureland." De Weese indicated "family from the meadow," which was their first home location. The De Weese lineage was native to the east Dutch province of Gelderland. Their coat-of-arms has a broad green stripe across the center of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on ROGERS.—D.R., Long Beach.

D.R.: ROGERS began as the proud Germanic warrior title Ruod-gar, interpreted as "famous spearman." Saxon settlers brought Ruod-gar to England in the 8th century. A remote ancestor, Rogerus, is in the 11th century English census, the Domesday Book. The Rogers shield granted in 1260 has three black stag deer centered on a silver background. The Rev. Nathaniel Rogers and his wife Margaret came from Essex, England, to Boston in 1638.

Year-Around Cat Care Pays Off

Not exactly the way to carry a cat, but Chris Cummins shows size of some of Siamese cats at upcoming shows.

By Eleanor A. Price

FIRST cat show of the season is scheduled next Saturday and Sunday at Orange County Fairgrounds, Costa Mesa, under the auspices of Western and Intra-Valley Cat Clubs. UCF rules and standards will be in effect and judges will be Don and Barbara Yoder of Missouri, Herb Gosling, El Monte, and Jack S. Foster, San Leandro.

Annonuncement of the show brings to mind an axiom of the cat world, that year-around conditioning of felines pays off. Keep kitty free of external and internal parasites, and brush off all dead hairs daily. Show cats often are bathed a week or two before an event, but you can use a dry shampoo such as corn meal, fuller's earth, or a special store product. Rub in well with your fingers, then brush out with a firm-bristled brush. Put a bit of brilliantine on a brush and groom kitty until he shines.

MOST CATS enjoy good health all their lives. But occasionally real trouble appears. One area that is hard to medicate is the cat's mouth. If teeth do not come in properly, surgery may be needed. If lip and mouth sores appear from cat fights, lack of vitamin G (niacin), or from various infections, you have a problem, for cats do not like to have their mouths swabbed. Make a solution of sodium perborate (same as for humans), soak a ball of cotton in it, and place the ball so the cat bites it when you squeeze his jaws. Do this this twice daily. (Discontinue immediaely if condition worsens. Some animals are allergic to sodium perborate.

Half hydrogen peroxide and half water is a good antiseptic, but the cat in swallowing some of the solution will probably vomit.

A cat with a sore mouth won't eat and his taste buds don't function, so he loses weight rapidly. A thin solution of corn syrup or honey can be force-fed. Several times daily, also tiny balls of raw hamburger with a bit of mashed carrot and baby cereal. Try to place the meat one ball at a time on the back of the pet's tongue. Have someone massage his throat so he will swallow.

KEEP the cat's system clean so his mouth will heal faster. If necessary, give him an enema, or make a laxative of senna. Cleansing foods include charcoal tablets, infusion of parsley leaves, celery chopped fine, celery juice, carrot juice, raw grated apple, greens such as cress or bird seed sprouted on a wet sponge or thick wet towel.

Never give mineral oil as it may get into his lungs. To prevent or work loose hairballs, feed a weekly dose of one teaspoonful salad oil or white noncarbolated petroleum jelly. Or let the cat lick up the fat from a can of sardines. Use these products between meals, not at mealtime.

Your veterinarian may suggest niacin injections or antibiotics.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Is a man still in service ever called a "veteran"? A. J.

A. There is no legal definition of the term "veteran." Through usage it has become identified with persons who have been discharged from the armed forces. The term "serviceman" is usually applied to a person still in the armed forces.

Q. How long after our own first tests of the atomic bomb did Great Britain explode its first one? B. H.

A. The first U. S. test was made on July 16, 1945. The first British atomic bomb was tested Oct. 3, 1952, in the Monte Bello Islands, about 50 miles northwest of Australia. It was the world's 35th known atomic explosion, as the U. S. had by that time announced 31 tests, and three Russian atomic explosions had taken place.

Q. In the 1950s, what names were used for U. S. foreign aid programs? J. A.

A. In 1948 the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) was established, to carry out the Marshall Plan. In 1951 the Mutual Security Agency (MSA) succeeded ECA. In 1953, the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) took over MSA's functions. FOA was abolished in 1955, upon the establishment (in the State Department) of the International Cooperation Administration (ICA), which took over FOA's non-military programs. The Department of Defense was put in charge of military aid programs.

Q. How is rock salt obtained? D. S.

A. It is mined in much the same way as soft coal. Shafts are sunk to the rock salt bed and the salt is hoisted to the surface, crushed, screened, bagged, and loaded on cars. Mining operations include undercutting, sideshearing, drilling and blasting, loading and transporting.

Set against a green background, Oriental Poppies will bloom spectacularly in an unusually beautiful picture.

Spectacular Poppies

By Martha Hurley

FOR SHEER brilliancy and spectacular show Oriental poppies are unmatched. In recent years many new beautiful colors have been added. Colors are rose, salmon pink, lavender, Indian copper red, the usual scarlets and white.

The handsome flowers contribute a rare splendor of bloom throughout May and June. Planted either singly or in masses they dominate any part of the garden devoted to their growth.

AS CUT FLOWERS they make stunning tall arrangements. Cut the flowers early in the morning. Before putting them in cold water, dip the stems up to an inch deep in hot water. When so treated the flowers will last several days in arrangements.

Oriental poppies are among the few hardy perennials that are best set out in late August or early September. If planted or divided in the spring, they will not bloom the same year.

The planting hole for each root should be three inches deeper than the length of the root. In preparing the hole, loosen the soil several inches below where the root will go.

The root is placed upright with the crown three inches below the ground level. Fill in with good soil up to the crown, then pour in water until the soil is well saturated. Then fill it with dry light sandy loam over the crown to the ground level but do not pack down.

THE PLANTS prefer a rich, deep, heavy soil. They resent being disturbed when once established. Give the roots plenty of space to spread in a sunny location. Set roots twelve inches apart.

They will need to be staked. Do this early and sturdy, erect stems will result.

Oriental poppies enjoy plenty of food and water. After blooming, cut them back in fall. Give them a dressing of manure which will serve both as a mulch and as a feeding. Keep seed pods removed. The plants go dormant in August. They will be well established in fall for next year's blooming.

Dorothy Digs

Fairy Ring has been very prevalent again this year over many parts of the country. It can be identified by a ring of fast growing dark green grass surrounding sickly brown-colored grass in the center. The rings vary in size and after excessive moisture, toadstools will often be found growing in them. It is one of the most difficult turf diseases to control because the fungus which cause it is deep in the ground.

The proper procedure for eradicating this disease is to spray with a fungicide as soon as possible after the disease has started because it spreads rapidly and will destroy the whole lawn if not controlled. A liquid fungicide containing copper and ether, or a wettable powder combining copper, zinc and chromium have both proven to be very effective in combatting Fairy Ring.

After the treatment, the lawn should be fortified with a light fertilization to help it in making a vigorous and prompt "come back."

Get More Bloom from Lily of Nile

By Joe Littlefield

AGAPANTHUS is easily grown and provides attractive white or blue flowers, the strap-like evergreen leaves remind the gardener throughout the year that he should supply generous amounts of water. The plants like a mulch of manure, and should be fed several times during their active growing season. A balanced plant food, containing less nitrogen than phosphoric acid, plus some potash, and with some trace minerals added, helps plants grow and bloom.

The plants must have sun or more sun than shade to encourage blooming.

Too much nitrogen may cause lush succulent growth at expense of flowers.

One of the new types of lilacs with flowers and fragrance like the eastern lilac is Lavender Lady lilac. It, too, is deciduous.

Lavender Lady lilac should be planted in full sun and with the top of the root ball six inches below soil level. This causes plant to send more growth. Fertilizing with a balanced plant food is recommended right after blooming.

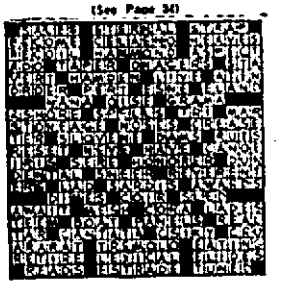

Water the plant deeply and frequently throughout the summer. Stop all watering in September. If no rains by December, start watering. If rain is sufficient, don't water additionally.

Spread one-half sack of steer manure around the plant early in December after soaking the soil thoroughly. Slowly but deeply soak the ground afterwards.

Agapanthus or Lily of the Nile is a desirable perennial that needs sunshine, water and plenty of food.

Shasta daisies like being divided every two or three years and August is a good month to do it. You can also plant new Shasta daisies from nursery stock, this coming fall, so save room for some possible new forms which you don't already have. Something of Lasting Value

Los Angeles' Greek Theater, which has attracted throngs with distinguished live entertainment.

By Robert Ellis

ONE of the Southland's most popular entertainment emporiums — the Greek Theater in Los Angeles' Griffith Park — got that way not by comedies and stock Broadway plays but by presenting the finest available musical comedy, opera, ballet, drama and individual performers.

Now in its 11th year of operation, this once unwanted, neglected, outdoor city-owned theater soon will play host to ticket holder number 3 million who will laugh and applaud this type of distinguished live entertainment under the stars.

Present fare at the theater, which is located at 2700 N. Vermont, is "A Man for All Seasons," a drama that captured both London and New York, the two leading theater capitals of the world.

THE GREEK Theater Association has been different from its very start. Its force and guiding philosophy, once expressed by its general manager, James A. Doolittle, is: "Not simply to provide amusement for a given period each summer but to leave with everyone who attends something of real and lasting value."

Something of real and lasting value: these are the key words which steer the course of the association, and they have paid off.

Statistics show that in 1952, at the start of its contract with the city, the Greek Theater could be and was obtained by the association for a rental fee of $1,000 for the season; 10 years later, at the conclusion of the 1962 season, a rental that established the highest season's fee ever paid for an outdoor theater anywhere in the world—$54,024.

THAT LAST statistic means 297,291 people — 90 per cent capacity and 40,000 more persons than the previous season.

Presentations for the coming seasons will include a visit of Viennese opera and the Grand Kabuki Theater of Japan—and a dream of Doolittle: Shakespeare — the production of the finest plays in the English language amid the tree-and-star studded surroundings.

RAINER DICKMAN

Wine Is Included

IT IS definitely a false rumor that only people wearing suits of armor can be admitted to the posh Ivanhoe Room in the basement of the Lafayette Hotel, Broadway at Linden Avenue.

That story got started because the Ivanhoe Room is decorated with all the metallic effects of King Arthur's era, including swashbuckling swords, shields, maces and other pleasant weapons of battle. But it's not a war-like place at all and one needn't wear iron pants for protection.

One thing a person should definitely take to the Ivanhoe Room, however, is a good appetite. The menu there is devoted exclusively to gourmet steak and broiled lobster, with the guests enjoying the privilege of selecting those items from a refrigerated glass counter. All varieties of charcoal steaks are prepared by chef Joe Dunham, priced at 45 cents an ounce; minimum serving, $4. Epicures are always delighted when they discover that Rainer Dickman, personable catering manager for the hotel, includes the following appetite glorifiers with each entree: individual decanters of red wine (two glasses per customer); chilled relishes, tossed green salad, fine Idaho baked potato and coffee. If a guest likes delectable large mushrooms, cooked in wine, they are available a la carte.

Gorgeous is the word for the redecorating projects completed recently on two of the Lafayette's large banquet and party rooms. The French Room (formerly the Cavalier Room) was redone in French provincial with gold and olive accents. The Boulevard Room was done over in a smart modern French style.

Ben Casey: Romance vs. the Operating Room

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There isn't much opportunity to hold hands in an operating room, so Ben Casey's video girl friend is going to try a new approach.

Dr. Maggie Graham, played by Bettye Ackerman, is switching from anesthesiology to neurology so there will be more time to spend with smiling Dr. Casey, as played by Vince Edwards.

Bettye, a charming actress who also happens to be married to that show's Sam Jaffe in real life, is happy to be making the change if for no other reason than to escape having to pronounce "anesthesiologist" every day of her life.

VINCE EDWARDS AND BETTYE ACKERMAN . . . Anesthesiology Gives Way to Love and Neurology

But behind all this confusion lies reason of a sort.

* * * *

THE WRITERS had run out of ideas on how to bring anesthesiologist Graham into the stories, inasmuch as such medicos spend most of their time administering anesthetics in the operating room.

Therefore they switched Maggie to neurology, which affords her the chance to confer with Casey on paients and personal matters.

Blushingly, Bettye admitted that Ben and Maggie are supposed to be lovers on the series but they can't show their feelings flagrantly for fear of upsetting hospital routine, not to mention viewers and the jolly old American Medical Association.

* * * *

"THE CHANGE will involve me more with the guest stars and with other members of the regular cast," Bettye said during a lunch break.

"A real female neurologist is going to meet with me to talk over the profession so I'll have a better feeling for the sort of problems she encounters. It will also help me with the terminology."

Because both Bettye and Jaffee (he's Dr. Zorba) play physicians on the series, their home life is somewhat medicinal, too.

"We spend a lot of time talking about the cases on the show," Bettye admitted. "And we've built up a whole shelf of medical books and case histories.

"Playing doctors certainly has increased my admiration for medical men and hospitals, but I'm glad it's not my profession."

* * * *

BETTYE'S ROLE sometimes is mistakenly referred to as that of a nurse, but it doesn't bother the actress at all. However, it does look better for Casey to be playing footsie with another doctor than a poor defenseless nurse.

"I don't think they'll highlight our romance any more next season than they have in the past," Bettye said. "After all, how far can they go with it before people would expect them to marry?"

If that's the case, they might as well have left Miss Graham in the operating room, where romance takes a back seat to brain surgery.

The Great Network Quiz Show Returns

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here we go again. ABC, a television network, is bringing back the quiz show in a big way. As you may remember, this whole institution departed the American scene in a rather big way in 1958.

But this one promises, swears, crosses its heart and hopes to die if it doesn't have ironclad, copperbound, foolproof rules and bylaws to keep it from climbing the rigging like some of its daddies used to do.

The new quiz program begins Sunday, Sept. 15. Its name is "100 Grand." It's built around the idea that this country contains a lot of people who follow various hobbies with such a passion that their knowledge equals or surpasses that of professionals.

* * * *

IT WILL PIT amateur experts in various fields against a series of professionals in those fields, the latter being selected by chambers of commerce in various cities. The contestants make up their own questions to throw at each other, and finally the viewing public will submit questions for the last round.

The rules and provisos would choke this whole newspaper, if printed, and anyway you'll be hearing them on the air soon enough. The idea is that after "six weeks of rising tension" an amateur can win $100,000 in the "Ultimate Challenge Round," a phrase that may become as familiar as "isolation booth" and "new plateau" once were.

ABC selected this program after rejecting 131 other ideas for a nighttime quiz show. Its creator and executive producer is a remarkable man with red hair, a red mustache and beard, sandy eyelashes, blue eyes, a beaming disposition, and 225 pounds hung onto a 6-foot-2 frame.

* * * *

HIS NAME is Robert Harley Stivers. He played fullback for Duke University before the war and then went into the Air Force and piloted B29s in raids on Tokyo. He is the man who introduced, in a singular act of pioneering, fresh orange juice in cartons to a thirsting nation.

He jumped from advertising to the orange juice business, ran it from nothing to $20 million in three years, and sold out in 1955. He works until midnight every night ("my hobby is work") and takes his staff home with him on weekends to study new business ideas, several of which are likely to burst upon us during this decade.

And now about this quiz show: "We have what we think is a pretty good list of amateurs already lined up," he said.

"We've been working six months on this show, and no matter how hard you've worked, it always gets frantic when you get close to opening.

"We'll put 10,000 questions in one week into an IBM machine for coding of questions and senders, and it will take 300 judges just to validate the 10,000 questions. I've got 12 deans from major universities who are just one part of our staff.

"The contestants and the MC will be in a huge plastic bubble, unable to see out, or hear from the outside. Our MC will be Jack Clark, who has been substitute MC on 'Password.' You need a man for that job who is in complete command of himself at all times."

BLOT ON CIVILIZATION

British Actor Looks Down His Nose at American TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—English star Robert Morley, visiting this country to make a new movie, labels American television an abomination and a blot on civilization.

Looking down his magnificently arrogant nose, Morley clearly despised everything about our video programs.

"It's terrible," he said. "Except for women wrestlers there is hardly and attempt at culture on American television. And the constant interruptions by advertisers are an insult to any civilization.

MORLEY

"It's frightfully impertinent to tell viewers they must buy products in order to enjoy 'free' television. This sort of thing really shouldn't be allowed.

"Television in your country is a disgrace to the people."

Morley was under the impression that he was offering sound advice to the unfortunate colonials by scolding our television tastes.

"Your TV has far-reaching consequences," he went on strongly.

"Your television is the first thing a visitor sees when he enters his hotel room or someone's residence, and that's a simple fact. Very often it is the last thing he sees before leaving America.

"It makes a simply wretched impression—the commercials and all. The people who make the products advertised on television are the biggest bunch of crooks in the world.

"They remind me of the men selling neckties on the street with a crowd gathered round them."

MORLEY WAS GENTLY REMINDED that English television includes a commercial network now which advertises all manner of British products, and includes some American shows.

"Television in England is excellent, far superior," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

"And it must be remembered that our two networks run about 112 hours a week, and of that number perhaps 30 hours are devoted to American programs—the cream of your shows such as 'Bonanza,' 'Perry Mason' and 'The Lucy Show.' All quite good, you know."

Never lacking an opinion, Morley favors English actors over their America cousins:

"The world's best actor? I'm absolutely amazed that anyone should be considered a greater actor than myself."

Video Finally Plunges Into Racial Issue

B' RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — To network television executives, heaven is a place where there are loads of big news stories, none of them controversial, and all of them enabling video to show off its technical facility. In this paradise, stories like space journeys and coronations are "in"—and matters like the desegregation conflict "out."

It is a pastoral scene—no sponsors heading for the hills, no angry partisans hollering bloody murder from all direction. Nothing, in short, that touches the viewer where it really counts, in his heart and home. Unfortunately, the desegregation story won't go away, and the networks, apparently having recognized this, finally have begun what appears to be a headlong plunge into the areas of evaluation and summation rather than just spot coverage.

ABC-TV led the way last week, using its old Howard K. Smith time slot to kick off a five-part weekly series on the racial crisis, with reporter Ron Cochran as the anchorman and host, properly serious throughout without being unduly grave.

It may be significant that the program was not sponsored.

• • • •

BUT THIS was just the start of the network's plunge. On Wednesday, for instance, CBS-TV will present a one-hour examination of coverage of the desegregation problem by the various news media. There have been some charges that network news reporting has been slanted to the Negro cause.

Here are other forthcoming special programs:

On Sept. 2, NBC-TV is planning an unprecedented three-hour night-time show examing many aspects of the Negro issue throughout American history, up to and including now. The entire prime-time lineup on NBC that night—"Monday Night at the Movies," Art Linkletter's show and "David Brinkley's Journal"—will be pre-empted. By coincidence, this also is the same night that both NBC-TV and CBS-TV expand their evening news report from 15 to 30 minutes daily; and there are some nasty folk who suspect NBC has scheduled its big special to draw attention away from CBS.

On Sept. 26, NBC-TV will also present an hour special on race relations in Washington, D. C., a predominantly Negro city. And on Oct. 28, ABC-TV will air what is billed as an actual on-the-scene "inside story" of the June integration crisis at the University of Alabama, an hour-long show, involving President Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and Gov. George Wallace — and, according to ABC, filmed at moments of decision.

A SHOW WITH NO ACTORS?

Calling All Police Chiefs: Check Your TV Makeup

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If you catch your local police chief wearing makeup this summer don't jump to conclusions or make any snide remarks. You're liable to wind up in the cooler.

Not only that, your constable may be looking back at you through the television set next fall.

A new television documentary series will feature real live cops in 52 major American cities going about the job of revealing the details of their most difficult cases.

Titled "The Lee Marvin Show," the new series leads viewers over the motivations of each case and includes interviews with victims, criminals, witnesses and of course, the cops (which is where your policeman may be caught with the tell-tale powder and paint).

LEE MARVIN

Actor Marvin will appear as moderator, host, observer and what he considers a public service role.

"The show isn't limited to crime," says Marvin. "It will include various forms of police work, rescue, maintaining and enforcing the law, race relations and the battle against the elements.

"I thing viewers will be impressed by modern police departments at work. They're altogether different from the fictional ones that have filled so much television time in the past."

Marvin himself is guilty of portraying the rough, tough cop in his defunct series, "M Squad."

RUEFULLY, HE ADMITS the real McCoy is more exciting.

"In a way I feel like I'm performing a public duty with this show," the actor said; "It will help improve the image of police departments throughout the country.

"I think the show will increase public faith in the men who keep our homes safe from criminals."

The syndicated show has been signed up by some 60 stations thus far. And unlike most network programs, "The Lee Marvin Show," will film 52 segments the first year instead of the usual 39.

"This is the first time that police departments will really go out of their way to cooperate with a TV series," Marvin said.

It is also a "first" for an actor. Marvin will be free to appear as a guest star in other video programs or to make a movie or appear on Broadway whenever the mood seizes him.

According to his contract Lee need only narrate each show, which he says takes him about a half-hour, leaving the rest of his time free for other activities.

"There is no acting in this show for me," he continued. "My job is more or less like that of Ed Murrow's on his old show. At least that's the approach I hope to use."

JACK BENNY takes on a complacent foe—one of the Marquis family chimpanzees—in a rebroadcast of "The Family Hour Specials" Monday on channel 2 at 9 p.m.

LEON AMES tries to persuade his wife, Frances Farmer, that they should give a young deaf mute a job on their farm in a rebroadcast of "Tongues of Angels" on "Reckoning" Wednesday at 10 p.m. on channel 2.

Drama Makes a Comeback on Radio KABC

Between daytime soap operas from "Ma Perkins" to "Portia Faces Life" and nighttime's "Lux Radio Theater" and "First Nighter," radio of the past was one dramatic offering after another.

Suddenly they all disappeared from the airwaves, and listeners were left with a selection of mostly conversational formats, informative shows, "top 40" platters and long-haired musical recordings.

But on Sept. 2, radio drama will make a comeback on station KABC, with two shows each night and three on Sunday afternoons.

Included in the dramatic series are "Theater Royal" with top British stars, "Horatio Hornblower" starring Michael Redgrave, both "Lives of Harry Lime" and "Black Museum" with Orson Welles, Clive Brook and "Secrets of Scotland Yard," and Marius Goring in "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

In a sort of lend-lease arrangement, local drama fans who have missed their American radio heroes will be treated to other top British actors including Laurence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, Alec Guinness.

Walter Scott's Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Who was the last non-Italian Pope?—David Gold, Passaic, N.J.

A. Adrian VI of Holland, 1522-23.

Q. William Vassall, the British Admiralty clerk who sold secrets to the Soviet Union after being compromised as a homosexual—wasn't he once convicted of molesting an 11-year-old English boy? How could the British employ such a man?—David Watts, Concord, N. H.

A. You are mistaking William Vassall for his brother Richard, who was so charged and convicted.

CHARLES BOYER

Q. Is Charles Boyer still married to Pat Patterson? Isn't this something of a record for Hollywood?—D. S. K., N. Miami Beach, Fla.

A. They were married in 1934, have a son Michael who works at Four Star TV productions. For Hollywood it's something of a record.

Q. Is it true that Shakespeare's wedding was a shotgun wedding? I need the information for a term paper.—J. P., Lancaster, Pa.

A. Yes, according to many authorities.

Q. Who said, "The misfortunes hardest to bear are those which never come"?—F. Wirsig, Richmond, Va.

A. James Russell Lowell (1819-1891), American poet, essayist, editor and diplomat.

Q. Is singer Frankie Avalon paying off on a paternity accusation?—H. P., Newark, N.J.

A. He makes regular support payments.

Q. I would like to know from which U.S. medical school Dr. Stephen Ward, mentor of Christine Keeler, was graduated.—G. T., London, Eng.

A. No medical school, but from the Kirksville College of Osteopathy in Missouri in 1938.

MAURICE HERZOG

Q. Is it true that the French have a minister of sport? If so, who is he?—Allen Wilshire, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. True. France's High Commissioner of Youth and Sports is Maurice Herzog, first man to conquer Annapurna, the Himalayan peak. His job: to organize government-sponsored youth clubs, athletic facilities, camping trips, etc.

Q. The rumor has been widespread for months that Marilyn Monroe's last phone call before her suicide was to the Attorney General, Bobby Kennedy. Is this so?—P. Ward, Washington, D.C.

A. No, it was to her psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson.

MAYA PLISETSKAYA

Q. I know this is a matter of opinion, but among critics who is considered the world's greatest ballerina? I mean among those ballerinas now living and working. — Louise Weber, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Probably Maya Plisetskaya, 37, prima ballerina of Russia's Bolshoi Ballet. Critics compare her to the great Ulanova.

Q. I would like to know if the American public has ever been told how the CIA under Allen Dulles set up and paid for the West German Federal Intelligence Agency headed by Reinhard Gehlen. Were we ever told that this organization was infiltrated by Red agents who transmitted to Moscow all our top secret information?—T. L. P., Falls Church, Va.

A. The American public is told practically nothing of CIA activities, because such disclosure would nullify the Agency's effectiveness. As for Russian infiltration of the Gehlen organization, it was amazing. Three of the organization's most trusted men, Heinz Felfe, Hans Clemens and Erwin Tiebel, turned out to be Soviet agents, who in 10 years delivered more than 15,000 photos of the Gehlen files to Soviet contacts in East Germany.

Q. What is the age of actress Patricia Neal? Is she now married? — John Baker, Lowry A.F.B., Colo.

A. Patricia Neal is 37. She is married to writer Roald Dahl.

Q. What has become of British cinema queen Shirley Anne Field? Last reports had her going to Mexico to make Kings of the Sun with Yul Brynner.—Ralph H. Martin, San Jose, Calif.

A. After finishing Kings of the Sun, Miss Field returned to London.

Q. I've been told that Judy Garland's Thanksgiving Day TV show was taped this July 4th. True or false?—Tom Kline, Hastings, Neb.

A. Judy's Thanksgiving Day show was taped over the July 4th weekend.

Product of The American Tobacco Company — "Tobacco is our middle name"

do British girls make

Jane Partridge (l.) works for International Beauty Show, Elizabeth Eddy for American Book Publishers Council, Davina Crawford (r.) for Broadway producers.

The invasion has begun.

Each month British girls in droves are streaming into the U.S. to take secretarial jobs.

In the past two years an estimated 2,500 have invaded the Oakland-San Francisco area. Another 500 have moved into Southern California. Approximately 3,000 have immigrated to New York, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Dallas is getting more British secretaries than ever before, and it's just a question of time before the British cuties edge into the business worlds of Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Denver and Miami.

The British secretary in the U.S. today has become the latest status symbol of the rising au courant American executive.

Her distinctive accent, exotic and appealing to the American ear, her polished, dutiful manner, her good-natured, polite deference to authority have made the girl from England an "office catch."

Few American executives will admit that a British secretary is hired specifically to add "class" to the office. But employment agency officials reveal that is the number-one reason why the overseas girls are in demand.

"Years ago," explains one Manhattan personnel chief, "the boss wanted a Picasso or a Klee on the wall. Then he switched to the company limousine, the private office bar, the shower and his own lavatory. Now he wants a British secretary. Maybe it's a fad, but if it is, then without a doubt it's growing stronger, especially among a certain rather sophisticated type of employer such as one finds among advertising and airline men."

Marjorie Hurst, who heads the Brook Street Bureau of Mayfair, an employment agency which has sent hundreds of British girls to this country, claims the U.S. demand for her secretaries exceeds the supply.

"It's really quite simple," she points out. "You Americans like our girls for the same reason British business men like your secretaries. These girls represent the crème de la crème.

"Look at it this way. Any British secretary who comes to the States generally has poise, assurance, determination, self-reliance and a sense of adventure, or she never would have left her own country in the first place.

"These qualities, plus her technical skills, equip her to become a first-class secretary. That is the true basis of her popularity at the present time in America."

Marjorie Hurst and husband Eric. Mrs. Hurst owns the Brook Street Bureau of Mayfair, Ltd., London, which supplies hundreds of British secretaries to U.S. firms.

Listen to Warren Titus, President of the Peninsular & Orient Lines, who employs a British secretary: "I think," he says, "that a good secretary is a good secretary regardless of her nationality. But there are some differences between British and American secretaries. The British girls exude a great deal of poise and graciousness. They are more reserved, more conscious of the relationship between employer and employee. And they seem to me to be much more careful about their speech. They articulate well.

"I hired Rita Magnus not because she was British and certainly not as a status symbol, but simply because there was a shortage of good secretaries at the time—there still is—and Rita could do the job."

Rita Magnus, 33, bright-eyed and brunette, is probably typical of the average British secretary working in this country. "I've been in America five years," she reveals, "and before I came I worked for several years in the steno pool at the Bank of England in London. They were very, very strict.

"I find in San Francisco, American employers are very much easier to get along with. They place less reliance on hidebound traditions. If you prove yourself, that's all that matters. And you prove yourself through your work. People are more easygoing and informal here. It was shocking to me at first to hear employees call their bosses by their first names, but now I think that's kind of nice—informality but not familiarity. You can work for 50 years for one man in England and still be calling him Mister."

In addition to the informality and friendliness of better secretaries?

Patricia Hill (l.) works for San Francisco Insurance Co., Dinah Boyd for Minneapolis-Honeywell, Susan M. Saffrey (r.) for American Book Publishers Council.

American employers, what British secretaries like best about working here is the increased pay scale. They receive more than twice their British salaries.

Take Davina Crawford, 23, now secretary for the Broadway stage producers Cy Feuer and Ernie Martin. "Before I came to America," she says, "I worked as a secretary for the North British Locomotive Company, a Scottish outfit with a suite of London offices. I was getting a very good salary, considerably above scale, 15 pounds [$42.00]. Here I get $95 a week. And your standard of living is so much better. I share an apartment in midtown Manhattan with two other girls. We have hot water, central heating, wonderful shops and the weather—well, compared to London weather, it's a dream. And in the summer I share a cottage on Fire Island. It's a much better life you have in this country for the average working girl."

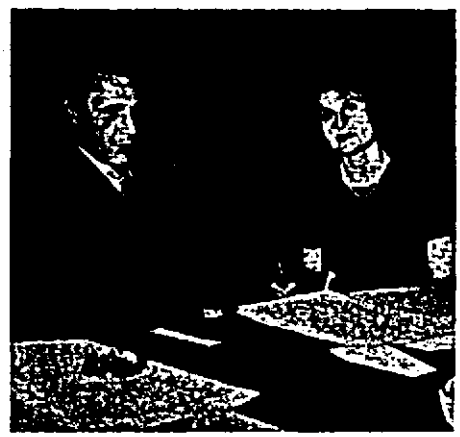

Are there really any differences between British and American secretaries? According to the British, there certainly are.

Monica Duston, secretary to Walter Henschel, public relations executive for Braniff Airlines in Dallas, says, "I believe our training is a little more strict than that of American secretaries. A British secretary generally has a steno speed of 100 words per minute and a typing speed of 60."

Elaine Aldersley-Williams, a secretary for McCann-Erickson in New York, believes that the average British secretary is more conscientious and diligent in her work than her American counterpart. "I think," she explains, "that we are brought up to take work more seriously. We do not feel imposed upon when our employer asks us to do something extra."

Says Dinah Boyd of Minneapolis-Honeywell, "The fundamental difference is in our method and manner of speaking. The British secretary on the telephone is easy and clear to understand. I think that's the outstanding factor behind our popularity. Our accent in this country is a novelty. That's why we appeal to employers."

Valerie Lewis, 24 (see cover), who works for International Bond & Share in San Francisco, reports that a British secretary rarely expects to find any social life or to make social contacts in her job. "As a result she doesn't pay nearly as much attention to her clothes and appearance as the American secretary who hopes one day to marry the boss. British secretaries rarely do marry their bosses. We are mildly class-conscious."

Warren Titus, president of Peninsular & Orient Lines, with secretary Rita Magnus. Titus finds British girls more reserved than Americans, more speech-conscious.

Marjorie Hurst, who took 60 American secretaries over to England last month and had her employment agency find them jobs there, is undoubtedly an authority on the essential differences between British and American secretaries.

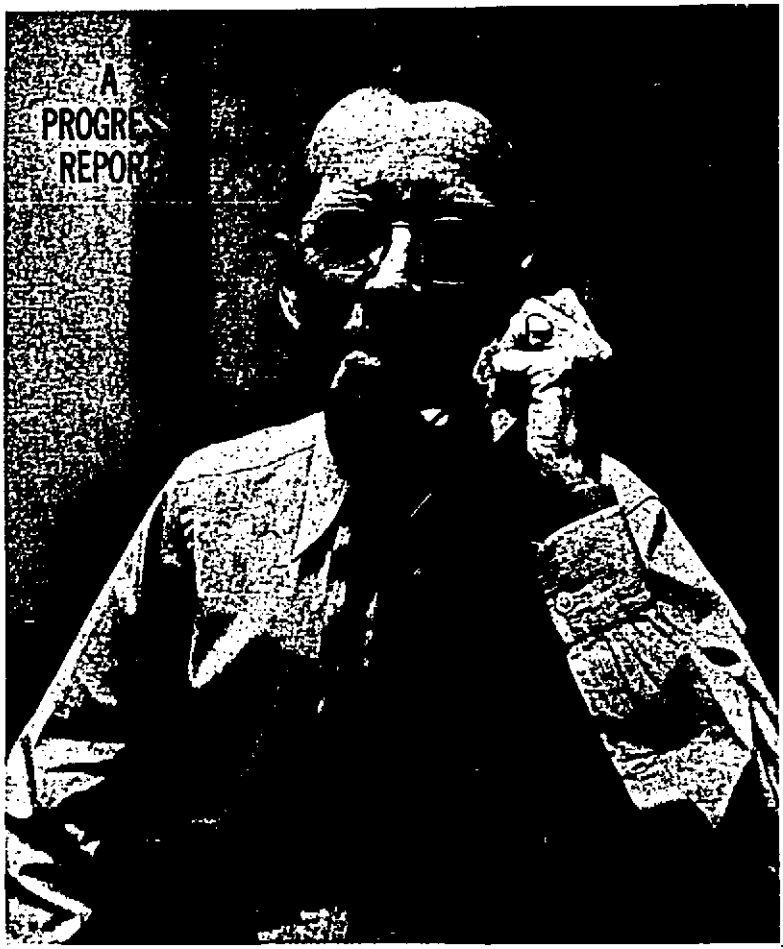

"There is no doubt," she declares, "but what British girls on the whole are more diligent and more amenable to taking orders than American girls. And frequently, too, they are better trained. But the American girl assumes more responsibility. She has more know-how. She can handle pretty nearly any situation. She's more versatile, and she certainly dresses more smartly for the office.

"British secretaries dress drably. I think it's because they don't have as much hope of ensnaring a man. The American girl constantly has her eyes open for a husband, and that's why her appearance is so chic and smart. Her marital opportunity might lie in her office.

"American girls are accustomed to a fast and rapid tempo of work, great bursts of energy and informality. British girls work at a much more leisurely tempo. But in the end both get about the same amount done.

"As for the accents," Mrs. Hurst continues, "the American is just as exotic in London as the British is in New York. American secretaries are very much in demand throughout the entire world, because they are glamorous, stylish, independent and competent."

Right now, however, it's the British secretary who's the current rage in American office effects. To the male American ear, her voice presents a more cultured, businesslike tone reflecting an attitude of diligence, respect and reserve. L. S. ■

Everything's "A-okay," says Lester Evans, 77, Coconut Grove, Fla., to caller from phone service.

LIFESAVING
phone calls for older people

by SID ROSS

A telephone buddy system for aged live-alones, first reported by PARADE (November 18, 1962), has mushroomed all over the country, saving lives and bringing help, cheer and emotional security to thousands of elderly people.

Inaugurated in Saginaw, Mich., by Mrs. Clara Sample McClure as Reassurance Service, it has spread to more than 300 communities. Here's how it works: a daily call is made at a specified time to an elderly person living alone. If the call is not answered, an immediate investigation is made.

In some places a public-spirited individual foots the telephone bill, in other towns the community takes over and in some cities a nonprofit answering service keeps in telephone touch with the elderly.

Dr. Wilma Donahue, chairman of the Department of Gerontology of the University of Michigan, recommends this service for nationwide adoption. She says:

"This creative yet unusually simple solution provides needed security for old people who want to live alone and not be a burden on others. This service is a practical guardian for the well-being of old people who want to live independently and with dignity."

THE WAY IT WORKS

To show how these telephone life lines work, here are two examples, both in Florida and both inspired by PARADE's article.

For one dollar a month, old people in the Miami area can subscribe to Friendly Neighbors, Inc., a nonprofit telephone answering service run by Francis Zeller, 24 years old and blind. Sponsored by the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce Committee on Total Employment, Friendly Neighbors not only helps the aged, but also employs handicapped workers to do the phoning.

Dr. R. M. Applebaum, of South Miami, was instrumental in bringing the Saginaw idea to this area. He and Mrs. Florence Fox, chairman of the Dade County Committee on Total Employment, together with other residents, worked out a double-benefit plan —help for the aged and work for the handicapped.

Subscribers to Friendly Neighbors (and to other phone plans) fill out an application form which lists nearest relatives, chronic diseases, if any, physician's name—and the time they wish to be called. This record is kept by the answering service in case of emergency. One subscriber in his late 70's says, "I'm not afraid of being alone any more."

Mrs. Louva Hilliard, a 66-year-old widow, says, "I've got high blood pressure. It's dangerous. But with this service I feel relieved and reassured."

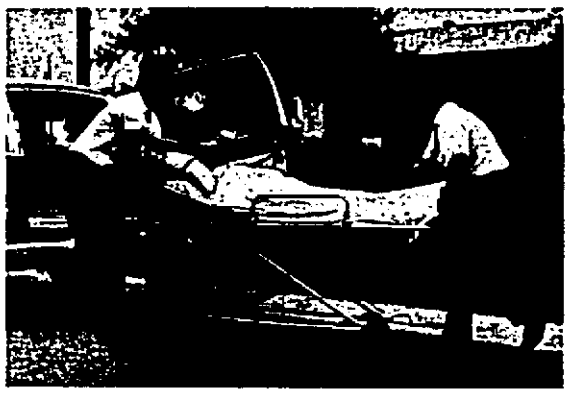

An 86-year-old widow, Mrs. Lillian R. Hale, likes to live alone so she can do as she pleases; but she finds it comforting to get a daily phone call. "I like someone calling me to check if I'm all right and haven't fallen and hurt myself," she says.

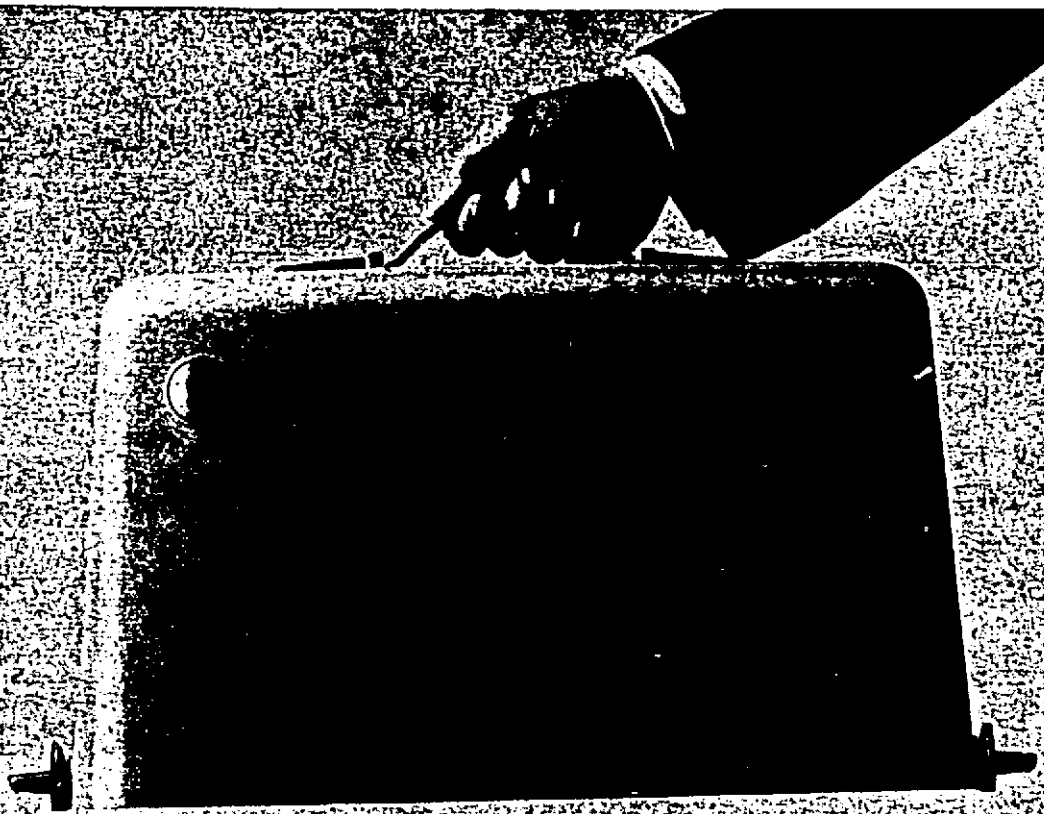

Just 250 miles away in St. Petersburg, Fla., a public-spirited citizen, Jack G. Powell, operates Check-Mate, a free phone checking service. Powell, whose business includes operation of an ambulance service, not only provides twice-daily phone calls to over 75 subscribers, but also delivers prescriptions and sends an ambulance if needed. He relates an incident in which Check-Mate saved a life.

"We called a subscriber three times and got no answer, so we sent a radio car out. When we got there the man was having trouble breathing. His fingers were turning blue. We called an ambulance, administered oxygen and rushed him to the hospital. He would have been a goner."

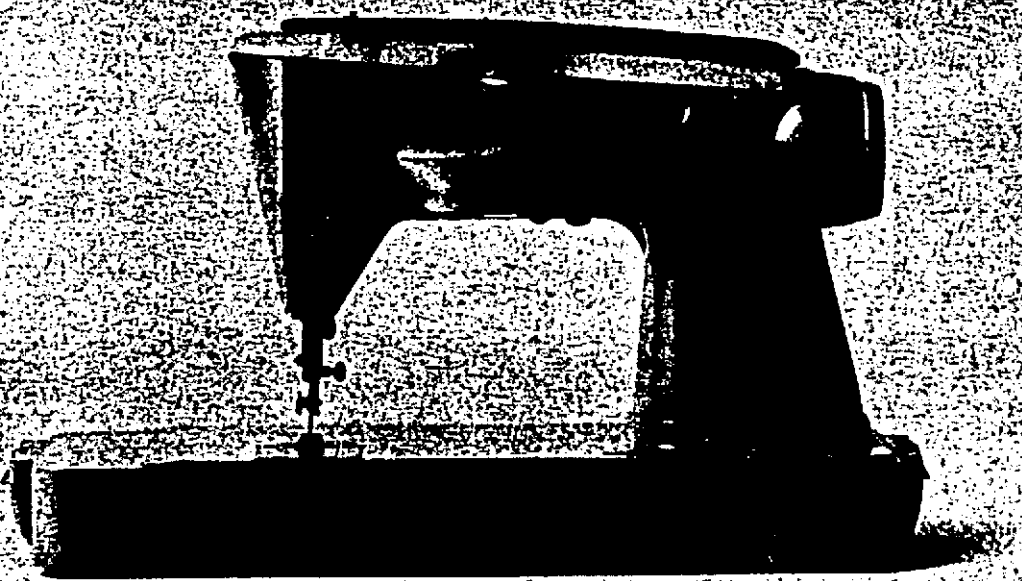

If you're interested in helping start a similar service to provide "reassurance" to the elderly in your community, write for information to PARADE, Dept. L, 733 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

Center of Friendly Neighbors' activity in Miami is phone room where handicapped workers make daily telephone checks on subscribers.

Ambulance provided by the St. Petersburg reassurance service takes woman to hospital. After calling several times and getting no answer, the service investigated and found that client had suffered a stroke.

CLAIRE GIANNINI HOFFMAN: A WOMAN IN A MAN'S WORLD

by LLOYD SHEARER

Most women who are appointed to the boards of directors of large U.S. corporations are successful in-fighters—ambitious, aggressive, able, driving and competitive businesswomen.

Last week, however, Sears, Roebuck, one of the world's largest merchandising chains (approximately 1,745 outlets), pulled a switch. To its board, for the first time in its 77-year-old history, it elected a sweet, genteel, soft-voiced, attractive, housewifey widow of 59.

Her name: Mrs. Claire Giannini Hoffman.

Her lineage: Daughter of famed, controversial chain-banker, the late Amadeo P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America—the world's largest, with 837 branches, almost $14 billion in resources.

Her husband: The late Cliff Hoffman, one-time all-American Stanford University football great, later popular San Francisco stockbroker, who died in 1954.

Her credentials: Previous service on the Bank of America board (since 1949); 40 years of long and arduous service for a dozen community charities, but most of all an inherited obsession with the welfare of the working man; a sincere and empathetic understanding of the problems besetting the nation's women, working and otherwise.

POPULAR DIRECTOR

Says Austin Cushman, shrewd, razor-sharp, progressive Sears chairman: "We've elected Mrs. Hoffman to our board of directors for some very selfish reasons: Seven out of every 10 Sears customers are women. We've got 124,000 female employees. The plain truth is that no one understands women like another woman. Mrs. Hoffman is not the kind of woman who antagonizes members of her own sex. She's not high-powered or high-pressure. She's done personnel work for the Bank of America for years, and I honestly believe she's one of the best-loved and certainly one of the most popular directors of the bank. She has that rare ability of establishing an instantaneous rapport with people."

What Claire Giannini Hoffman intends to bring to the merchandising business is what her father brought to banking—humanization.

Before A. P. Giannini founded his Bank of Italy (later, the Bank of America) in San Francisco in 1904, banks in this country were cold, austere mausoleums, consisting largely of bars and cages, services for the rich, and forbidding, unapproachable officers.

A. P. changed all that. In his bank, he had the bars and cages removed. He positioned the desks of his officers out front, hired Italian-speaking officers who could converse on friendly paisano terms with the immigrants who flocked to San Francisco at the turn of the century.

He introduced the system of personal loans, personal investment advice, family trusts, a dozen other banking services today taken for granted.

"Money," he used to advise his only daughter Claire, "is of value only when it works for people, when it allows them to improve their lot in life."

All her life Claire Giannini heard paeans of praise about "the people."

When her father got in proxy fights, he took his battle to "the people." When government officials sought to put the squeeze on him, he appealed to "the people." When the vaults of his bank lay heavy with cash, he counselled his charges, "Encourage loans. Get it out to the people." In the early 20s when some bankers were charging California farmers 12 per cent on loans, A. P. cut his rate to 6 per cent. "Never take advantage of the people."

Before he died in 1949, Giannini founded the Bank of America-Giannini Foundation and endowed it with $509,235, half his personal fortune, to provide educational scholarships for "my boys and girls of the Bank of America." Throughout his life he gave away many millions. When he died he left an estate of $489,278. Of this sum, $50,000 went to various charities, the rest to his foundation.

DEEDS NOT WORDS

In his will, he wrote to his executors: "Like St. Francis of Assisi, do good—do not merely theorize about goodness. This is my wish. . . ."

With that sort of paternal heritage, what kind of woman would you expect Claire Hoffman to be? As the daughter of the man who founded the world's richest bank, you might well expect a social butterfly or a husband-collector in the Barbara Hutton tradition.

Claire Hoffman is no such creature. She is a down-to-earth, feet-on-the-ground, spade-calling, second-generation American. She dresses her age, knows the value of a dollar, has suffered in a 14-year span the heartache, the loss of 7 of the most important people in her life—father, brother, husband, mother, three others.

Although her father sent her to the best schools (Rosemary Hall, Conn., Mills College, Calif.), he didn't pamper her.

"He believed," she says, "as I do, that young people should stand on their own two feet, that suffering and effort build character, that the best men are self-made, that no man should take a wife unless he's prepared to support her.

"The man I married was a great athlete. But he worked his way through college. He waited tables, he worked on the docks as a stevedore. He helped support his mother and educate his sister as a nurse. He worked for four years before we could get married, and when we did, it was in 1930, right in the Depression.

"He was making $250 a month and we lived on that for a good long time, so I really know what it is to make both ends meet. We lived in a little rented house in San Mateo for 11 years, and we paid $125 a month rent, and all we had left to live on was $125. I know firsthand what it is to scrape, what a few extra dollars means to the average housewife.

"My father used to talk to me a great deal. In our home we just ate, slept, drank and breathed bank and people, and Father used to say that one way to achieve happiness is to take on the problems of others, then you don't think so much about your own.

"I think that's why there's so much unhappiness in the world today. So many people think only of themselves and of the easy life.

"I hear so many parents say they don't want their children to go through what they did. They want to spare them hardship and anxiety and worry. That's not how you build character. Let children face problems and overcome them.

"I'm convinced that business organizations must make their first concern the good of the people they serve. I lecture at orientation and training programs at the bank. And I tell this to our trainees over and over again: Be interested in people; serve them and others will serve you.

"I know there are managerial injustices," Mrs. Hoffman continues, "especially where women employees are concerned. I've seen women capable enough of training an army of men passed over just because they were women. They're loyal, devoted, competent and invaluable. Why aren't these women made vice-presidents? Why aren't their abilities recognized?"

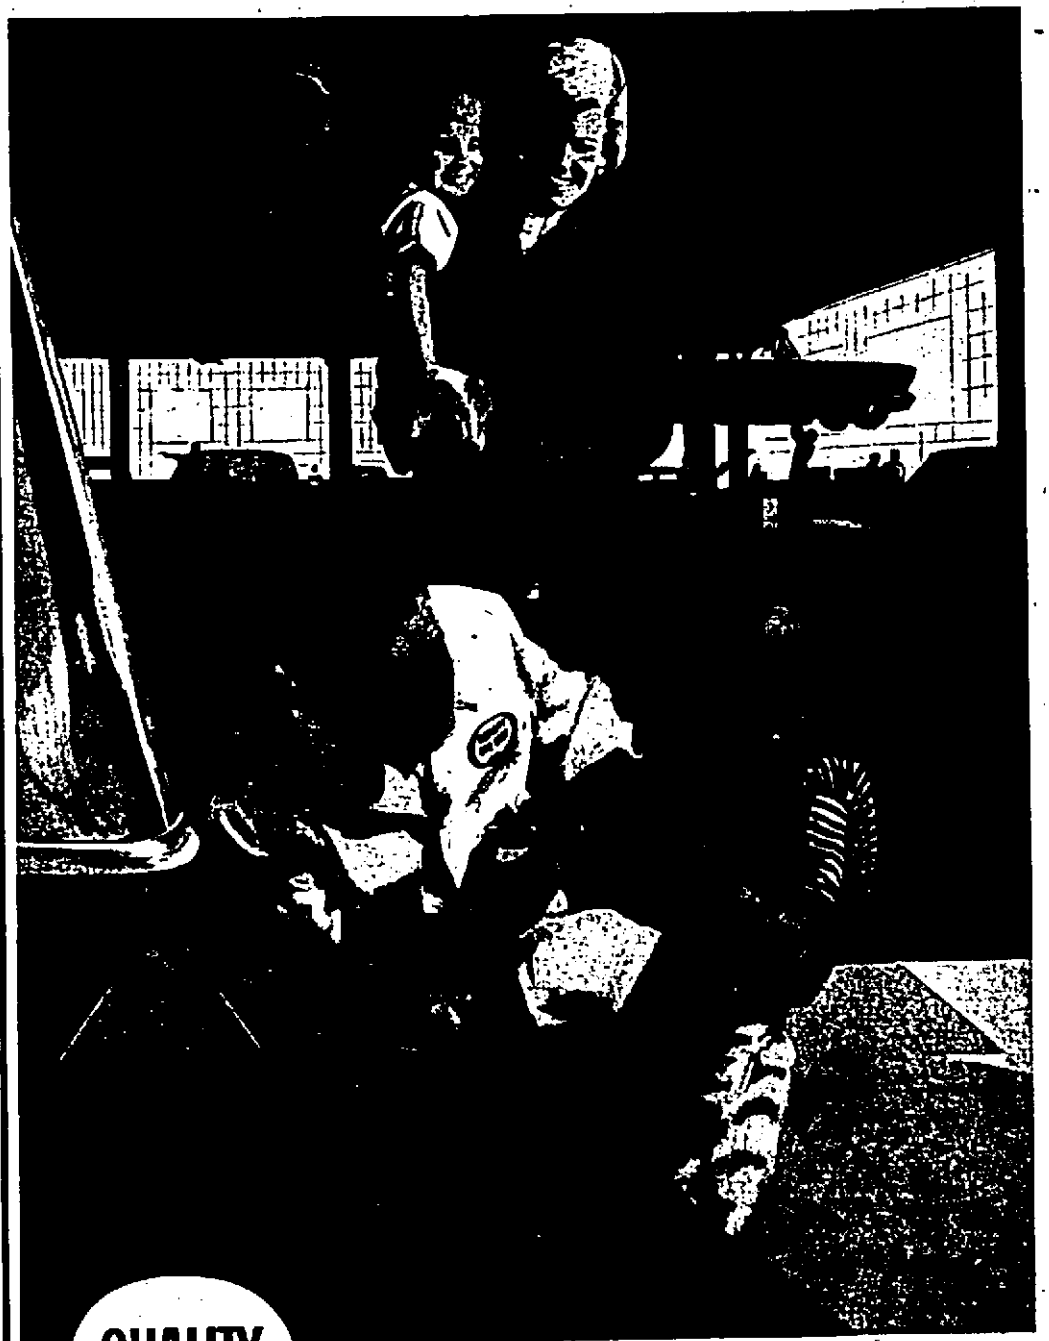

Mrs. Hoffman is no militant feminist. She believes simply that anybody who is capable, regardless of sex, should hold the job for which he or she is qualified.

MAN COMES FIRST

"Fundamentally, I say that God made man first, and man was made in such a way that he must be first if he's a man at all. Any woman who adjusts herself to this thinking and accepts it will get along much more easily in the world than if she fights the thought that she's a woman and not a man. A woman has her place. She can be influential. She can rise. But she must do it as a woman."

Claire Giannini Hoffman is convinced that the corporation boards on which she now serves—The Bank of America, largest merchandiser of money in the world, and Sears, Roebuck, largest merchandiser of goods in the world—boast two of the nation's most accessible, enlightened and idea-receptive managements, where her thoughts will be given every consideration.

"My father," she says, "used to tell me: 'Whenever you buy a stock, Claire, put it away, forget about it. But keep your eye on management.' Now I'm part of management, the public's eye is on me, and I don't intend to let anyone down."

This is the season for family reunions. If the gathering of the clan is at your home this year, you'll welcome this easy menu and the recipes that go with it. The food is cooked indoors and served outdoors, where there is usually more elbow room. Use paper accessories—plates, cups, napkins, etc.—to make the clean-up job quick and easy.

FAMILY REUNION MENU

Oven-Fried Parmesan Chicken* · Easy Potato Salad · Boiled Corn on the Cob
Raw Relishes on Ice · Watermelon · Iced Coffee or Tea

*Oven-Fried Parmesan Chicken

¾ cup butter or margarine
3 broiler-fryer chickens, cut into serving pieces
3 teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons monosodium glutamate
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups flour
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon paprika
1½ teaspoons oregano
1 cup buttermilk

Line two 15x10x1-inch shallow baking pans with aluminum foil. Divide butter between pans; put in 425° oven for about 5 minutes, or until butter is melted. Sprinkle chicken pieces with half the salt, monosodium glutamate and pepper. Turn chicken; sprinkle with remaining salt, monosodium glutamate and pepper. Combine flour, Parmesan cheese, paprika and oregano. Put in shallow pan or pie plate; pour buttermilk in second shallow pan. Dip chicken pieces in buttermilk; roll in flour mixture; place skin side down in melted butter, placing half the chicken pieces in each of two pans. Bake at 425° for 30 minutes. Turn chicken; reverse pans on shelves; bake 20 minutes longer. Makes 12 servings.

One of these oranges could fool you!

No color added

Only the one stamped Sunkist is sure to be delicious – because Sunkist Oranges get the most care!

Sunkist even knows how good oranges will taste before they're picked. Pre-samplings are taken for flavor.

Then the oranges are picked at the peak of ripeness. After careful washing, they're inspected again and again by quality experts. Only then can they earn the Sunkist stamp. This kind of extra care has been traditional with Sunkist for 70 years.

When you shop, look for the Sunkist name. And remember, it's not a Sunkist Orange unless the Sunkist stamp is on the skin.

The lost children... help save them

Today 500,000 children are victims of serious mental illness. They are lost children—lost to their families, their communities, and to themselves. About a third of them can be helped. New research is the only hope for the rest. The National Association for Mental Health supports such research, and provides special treatment services and schooling for these children. Save the lost children.

SAC's B-58 bomber relies on a woman's voice for air safety.

a new idea to prevent AIR CRASHES

Joan Ririe records air warnings in the Northrop Corp. studio.

■ Some day in the very near future, if you ride the commercial airlines, your life may be saved by a 31-year-old California mother.

The voice of lovely Joan Ririe, housewife, singer and one-time movie starlet, is already warning B-58 pilots of the Strategic Air Command when plane trouble occurs—and telling them what to do about it. At home in California, Joan is at a loss with a pop-up toaster, yet the fate of $14,500,000 aircraft and their crews rests in her hands.

Her voice is a key element in a revolutionary new aircraft warning system developed for SAC by the Northrop Corporation. Known as VIPS—Voice Interruption Priority System—it immediately alerts the pilot to danger and dramatically reduces reaction time when his plane is in trouble.

Supersonic aircraft don't give the pilot a second chance. If something goes wrong he has only moments to decide what to do. Yet because today's jet pilot is surrounded by a multitude of control panels containing scores of warning lights, some of these have been known to go undetected for as long as 30 minutes. If the warning concerns something minor, no immediate crisis exists. But if a major problem is involved, death and disaster could result.

Furthermore, even after the warning light is spotted, it has taken pilots an average of 12 seconds to determine what is wrong and what to do about it. With VIPS, reaction time is reduced to about 3 seconds. And this difference, at supersonic speeds, can well be the difference between life and death..

Here's how the system works.

A tiny 8-pound package of pre-recorded warnings reports and analyzes 50 different hazard situations. If a malfunction occurs, the pilot is automatically told of the trouble and advised what action to take. The advice is repeated until the trouble has been cleared up.

first things first

The voice which reports the problem is that of Joan Ririe. A crisp yet calm and reassuring female voice, it cuts through the male chatter of crew members or ground control. Not only does Joan tell the pilot exactly what the trouble is, but if trouble comes in bunches, she tells him what to worry about first. Only when the gravest danger has been dealt with does she advise him how to deal with the next one.

Northrop technicians went to great lengths to find the right voice for VIPS. They knew that for instant recognition it had to be the voice of a woman. They also knew that it would have to comfort and assure rather than alarm. A SAC pilot's nerves might be shattered by a high-pitched voice shrieking, "Check for left engine fire!"

Joan Ririe was a natural for the job. She had been on radio, television, in movies and on the legitimate stage since age 5. Her voice was right, and she knew how to project it—though it's doubtful that she ever expected to project it to an altitude of 50,000 feet.

Today, when not tending her young children, Joan sings with her husband's orchestra under her maiden name, Joan Elms. And in the meantime, her voice is music to pilots in trouble all over the world.

A system similar to VIPS is already being used to monitor Minuteman ICBMs, eliminating the necessity for crews in the underground silos in which the ICBMs are stored. Soon, a Joan Ririe may be safeguarding your life as you fly your favorite airline.

And ultimately Joan, or another aerial backseat driver, may instruct our astronauts on their way to the moon.

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

Doctor-approved bulk stimulant helps keep you comfortably on schedule as no ordinary laxative can!

SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system plus Vitamin B_1.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

WOMEN ASTRONAUTS. Of the 175 civilians who have applied for jobs as astronauts, 2 are women. The spacecraft center will not reveal their names until and unless they are finally chosen.

NEW CIGARS. Since Havana-made cigars have practically vanished from the U.S. scene, cigars from the Philippines are now being marketed here. Philippine tobacco is pleasantly mild.

BEN-GURION'S RESIGNATION. Seasoned diplomats expect David Ben-Gurion, recently resigned chief of the Israeli government, to return to office within a year or two. They say he is the one indispensable man in the Israeli setup. Reason Ben-Gurion resigned: internecine warfare within his own party. His comrades wanted him to launch a campaign against the West German government because German scientists are working for Nasser in Egypt. Ben-Gurion is convinced that it is more important to make future friends of the Germans than to treat them as past enemies.

WILL DAVID BEN-GURION RETURN TO OFFICE?

RED TRAVEL LURE. Owners of West European hotels, nightclubs and restaurants are disturbed at the increasing number of American tourists spending their cash behind the Iron Curtain. This year for the first time, Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Hungary and East Germany are making a determined effort to lure the U.S. traveler by promising low, regulated rates and no outrageous gypping.

INNOCENTS ABROAD. American women traveling in Europe this summer should be aware of a new beach racket. Here's the way it works: Two personable young men approach a girl on the beach. They strike up a pleasant conversation. Presently one man invites the girl to go for a swim. While she does, the other searches her handbag for money, jewels, other valuables. Of late the racket has been particularly pernicious on the island of Majorca.

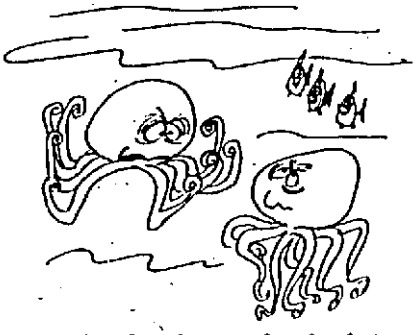

EASE MIXED MARRIAGE LAWS. There is a possibility that the Roman Catholic church will shortly make some concessions on the problems of mixed marriage. Best bet: it may allow a repetition of a wedding between a Catholic and a non-Catholic in the church of the non-Catholic. Until now it has insisted that a Catholic priest perform such weddings and that the ceremonies may not be repeated in any other religion. Recently, when Prince Juan of Spain married Princess Irene of Greece, he was granted permission to marry in both Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox rites.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

EDITOR'S NOTE: Paul Gilbert, born in Alexandria Bay, N.Y., has never from the age of 7 known any life other than show business. His father was an English music hall comedian, his mother a French circus aerialist. As a child he was apprenticed to a group of South American circus performers. When he was 17, he suffered a 65-foot fall from the high wire, and his career as an aerialist was over. After a year of hospital recuperation, he decided to make comedy the keystone of a new career, and for the past 20 years Paul Gilbert has been specializing in laughs. He has worked in all the leading night clubs of the nation, has appeared on all the top TV variety shows, and for a comedian has established some sort of record by marrying eight times. Herewith some of Gilbert's favorite funnies.

by paul gilbert

An alcoholic friend of mine was recently out on the town most of the night. When he finally staggered home around three-thirty in the morning, his wife met him at the door. She took one look at him and exclaimed, "Drunk again!"

"Really?" replied my friend, with surprise. "Me, too!"

A whole herd of buffalos was stampeding across the plains. Suddenly the lead buffalo hesitated and was quickly overtaken. He was knocked down and trampled on by the rest of the herd. The last buffalo was kind-hearted and stopped to console his fallen friend. He solicitously asked, "But why did you stop so suddenly?"

"Well," replied the lead buffalo, "I thought I heard a discouraging word."

One thing I'll never understand about inebriates is why when one of them has had a few drinks too many, his friends always say, "Give him coffee—give him coffee."

Let's face it—all they're going to get is a wide-awake drunk!

A lady was complaining to her neighbor that her 12-year-old daughter was a beatnik.

"She hangs around the house all day in dirty blue jeans and a sweatshirt, reading poetry and playing jazz records," said the mother. "This I don't mind . . . but a beard?"

My neighbor's little boy came joyously running home from school one day and insisted that his mother buy him a gun-belt, holsters and a set of pistols.

"What are they for, dear?" questioned the puzzled mother. "Certainly you're not going to tell me you need them for school."

"Oh, yes I do," replied her son. "Our teacher said that tomorrow she will teach us to draw!"

A farmer called the veterinarian for some free advice, saying: "My horse sometimes walks normally and sometimes seems to have a bad limp, and I am wondering what you might recommend?"

"The next time your horse walks normally," advised the vet, "hurry up and sell him."

Definition of a psychiatrist: A man you pay to ask you questions your wife would ask you for nothing.

A long-lost friend called me one day to say that he was in town and would I come over to see him.

"Sure," I replied. "Where are you staying?"

"I'm at the Hotel Plasma," he said.

"You must be mistaken," I told him. "Isn't it the Plaza?"

"No, it's the Plasma," he answered, "where they bleed you!"
